Cadillac

Motor Illustrated: The Six Window Sixty-two Sedan

A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

Even its economy says "yes"!

Let us reflect, for a moment, on the things that beckon a man to Cadillac.

There is, to begin with, the car's grace and majesty of styling—a temptation that is difficult indeed to deny.

There is its luxury and its comfort—eloquent invitations to ownership all by themselves.

There is its masterful performance and its reputation for quality—almost irresistible attractions in today's world of motor cars.

And now, more than ever, Cadillac's economy ranks high among those important considerations that lead inevitably to the "car of cars."

For a Cadillac has, over the years, become progressively more practical to own and to operate.

The purchase prices of a 1961 Cadillac is remarkably reasonable in relation to the cost of other cars. In terms of value received, it might well represent the greatest bargain of all.

And consider how well a Cadillac holds that value—and makes your Cadillac a sound investment for whatever length of time you might choose to own it.

Then, too, the car is unusually conservative in its use of gasoline—and as free of maintenance as sound engineering and careful craftsmanship can make it.

Visit your dealer soon for the facts.

You'll find, we are certain, that even Cadillac's economy says "yes!"

Many of Freedom Riders Badly Beaten in Alabama Are Ministerial Students

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Who are these people, 21 young people, 18 Negroes and three whites, who risked the wrath of mob action to ride a bus?

And who are those who opposed them — some with legal action, some with swing ing fists, lead pipes, baseball bats and sticks wielded in bloody riot?

The 21 young people, mostly college students from Nashville, Tenn., and all of them veterans of sit-in and standstill demonstrations, say they are trying to finish a job.

The job is segregation-testing tour of bus stations in the South from Washington, D.C. to New Orleans.

"I would go again," she said. "The whole movement has been very rewarding to me."

STUDENTS WERE TARGET

"Some Negro students from Fisk University and Tennessee A. and I. State University at the Good Christian Association last February and told us they would come while help in their stand-ins.

"We always felt strongly that segregation is wrong. This was something we could do to help in what's far away in The Congo. I realized I couldn't stand by and do nothing more."

She and Susan Herrman, 20, of Lake Forest, Ill., a white girl co-ed, were sent back to Nashville by Montgomery, Ala., police following Saturday night violence. Miss Herrman is an exchange student from Whittier College in California, attending Fisk University.

READY TO DIE

(In a telephone interview, with the Los Angeles Times Sunday, Miss Herrman was quoted as saying: "We were all prepared to die. For a while Saturday I thought all 21 of us would die at the hands of that mob in Montgomery.")

Freedom Riders, two white girls, one white and 18 Negroes, trying to ride in buses through Alabama to New Orleans (La.) say they help the cause of true freedom for all the races.

The third white person in the group is Jim Zwerg, 21-year-old ministerial student from Fisk. His home is at Appleton, Wisc., where his father is a dentist.

"I believe this type of nonviolent action is the kind of love that Christ preached," Zwerg told a reporter.

Miss Wilbur said many Negro members of the group are ministerial students.

The student group moved into Birmingham to join in the test of bus station segregation after the original Freedom Riders were brutally assaulted by violence and took a plane from Birmingham to New Orleans.

Negotiate a big grain sale to Red China: "I think that explains Diefenbaker's visit."

In Vancouver, he said, he had been asked a question about the recognition of Red China and "I pointed out that this involved a matter of government policy and that I had no comment in the matter."

But he had reminded the reporter of the 1940 Commons discussion on China.

He did not reply directly to Paul Martin (L — Essex East) when the latter asked him again whether, as reported, he had said that Canada perhaps should have recognized Red China right from the start.

Justice Minister Defends Actions Of Mounties

TORONTO (CP) — Justice Minister Fulton hit back Monday at criticism of RCMP security investigations.

"There is an inherent difficulty in security matters in that individuals' private lives receive close scrutiny," he told the Ontario Dental Association annual convention.

Mr. Fulton, who as attorney-general is the minister responsible for the RCMP, said "the threat to Canada's security could not be minimized, in spite of the fact that we are in a state of peace."

Mr. Fulton said he had heard objections "that files are kept by the RCMP."

"... I have never heard of any efficient organization which did not keep files." The files protected the innocent as well as helped to convict the guilty.

PREDICTS INSURANCE

Dr. William G. McIntosh, past president of the association, predicted that some form of dental insurance will soon be available to large numbers, if not all, Canadians.

Dentists themselves must take an active interest in establishing some form of prepaid dental insurance programs, he said at a breakfast session.

The dental profession should emphasize care of children and some method of payment based on a fee for service, he said.

Uses Pearson's Statement to Answer Question

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton in effect denied Monday having told a Vancouver reporter that perhaps Canada should have recognized Red China at the government right from the start.

He said he thinks what he did say is best explained by a 1940 statement by Lester B. Pearson, now Liberal leader and then external affairs minister. Mr. Hamilton, over several parliamentary questions, quoted some of the statement which included these sentences:

"Nothing can be more important to Canada than building up trade with the Far East, including China. But one essential element in the development of trade . . . is to establish some kind of contact with that government. So naturally the first motion of trade is part of the problem of our relationship with the Communist government in China and the two cannot be separated."

Said Mr. Hamilton, who made a once-a-year trip to Hong Kong to negotiate a big grain sale to Red China: "I think that explains fully what I said."

In Vancouver, he said, he had been asked a question about the recognition of Red China and "I pointed out that this involved a matter of government policy and that I had no comment in the matter."

But he had reminded the reporter of the 1940 Commons discussion on China.

He did not reply directly to Paul Martin (L — Essex East) when the latter asked him again whether, as reported, he had said that Canada perhaps should have recognized Red China right from the start.

Fisher Preaches Last Sermon Before Retiring

LONDON (Reuters) — Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury, said Monday night his most moving memorial service as he annointed Queen Elizabeth during the coronation ceremony in 1953.

Fisher said in a television interview that he was deeply moved at the moment when he placed the holy oil on the queen's head but more so during the annointing act.

Preaching his last sermon as Archbishop of Canterbury Sunday, Dr. Fisher said the Church of England is trying to promote "a true unity of spirit" among the 17 Anglican churches.

"The Church of England," he said, "has been in Canterbury Cathedral "faithfully tries to teach us to think as it sees revealed truth, respecting all true freedoms, encouraging each to think for himself, yet requiring nothing that goes beyond the evidence to justify it. Only prayer to the Holy Spirit is "that he will give us, singly and corporately, a right judgment in all things."

Dr. Fisher, 74, retires at the end of this month after 16 years as head of the Anglican church.

OTTAWA (CP) — With a sales pitch of buy or die Earl Attlee made a bid Monday to sell the idea of world government to Canadian parliamentarians.

"I wouldn't bet you have another five or 10 years without another war," the veteran British former British prime minister told reporters before he addressed a luncheon of Canadian MPs and senators.

Throughout a 45 - minute press conference the 78 - year-old former Labor party leader kept referring to the ever - increasing danger of a third world war.

The solution, he contended, was a world parliament. Its formation would result in complete disarm a m e n t, world control and an international police force — and an end to war.

He came here to tell Canadian parliamentarians about the work of the all - party British parliamentary group for world government of which he is a vice - president.

The United Nations Association of Canada is failing if didn't mean that a world parliament would also fail.

Asked whether he felt Canada should acquire nuclear weapons, Lord Attlee said the fewer people who acquire them the better. The more countries which have such weapons the more likely some "trigger-happy fool will touch them off."

What's Holding Up Budget Question Asked

OTTAWA (CP) — What's holding up Finance Minister Fleming's budget for the 1961-62 fiscal year which began last April 1?

Around Parliament Hill, which thrives on speculation about any unanswered question, there are several as reasons for it, as there are kinds of taxes.

There is a story of conflict within the cabinet over tax incentives for industry, another that the budget is being delayed as long as possible to set the stage for a fall election campaign and still another that it is being held up until after the June federal-provincial conference in Montreal to get royal commission on transportation.

This theory is that the cabinet is still pondering the report's far - reaching implications and that Mr. Fleming can't complete his budget plans until a decision is reached.

It can be argued that there really is no hurry to the budget at all since Mr. Fleming has never indicated a target date for its presentation.

He was awarded $100 general damages and $5,000 exemplary damages against Jack Rosenstein, publisher of Hollywood Closeup. Sahl had sued for $150,000.

American Farm Machinery Firm Tells of Prices to Bd.

OTTAWA (CP) — A major American farm told critical Canadian Agricultural Machinery Institute implements business is not a mass production industry in the generally accepted sense and should be judged on the basis of its own unique problems, Combines Committee heard Monday.

The case of Massey-Harris Company of Moline, Ill., which has a manufacturing plant in Toronto, appeared before the Commons agriculture committee investigating prices paid by Canadian farmers for farm implements.

Committee members peppered them with questions through Monday afternoon sessions with A. R. Connell, director of Deere and Company sales promotion, leading off the company's replies.

Alfred D. Haire (PC—Wellington-South) said the industry seems to have a far bigger margin of profit than the budget figures show.

Arnold Peters (CCF—Timiskaming), referring to the Welland operation, said Canada seems to be the victim in some cases of an international operation.

He wanted to know why the Welland plant's advantage in labor costs over the U.S. operations of Deere and Company wasn't reflected in the cost of the company's implements sold in Canada.

SUBMITS VIEW

The argument that the farm implement business should be judged in the context of its own unique problems formed the foundation of the company's formal submission.

It argued that the total North American farm machinery production is the output of many different machines and attachments.

"In our company alone we offer for sale more than 8,700 different machines and attachments."

Deere and Company said it is in a constant dilemma between trying to reduce costs by producing a greater volume of standard machines on one hand and satisfying customer needs on the other hand to constant pressure from farmers to adapt these basic machines to local needs.

The company said a characteristic of the industry is that it does not enjoy the advantage of producing to fill orders.

"We must produce to fill not actual orders on hand but orders we think our dealers estimate we will receive from farmers in the coming season and is subject to many things over which we have no control, such as droughts, floods, crop failures, pests, diseases, ect."

CHANDLER IS BETTER

CULVER CITY, Calif. (AP)— Actor Jeff Chandler, who underwent an emergency 11½-hour operation last week is improving but, is still on the critical list, a hospital spokesman said today. The 42-year-old actor, suffering from a ruptured artery last Thursday, was given a 35 pints of blood by transfusion.

Liberal Member Will Continue To Press Request

TORONTO (CP) — Elmer Sopha, Liberal member of the legislature for Sudbury, said Monday night he will continue to press for a royal commission on the province's crime situation despite Premier Frost's accusation that his remarks linking a number of cabinet ministers to organized crime were based on hearsay evidence.

Mr. Sopha said he found the premier's remarks "very interesting."

"But he knows very well what has to be done," he said, "and we are continuing to press for a full-scale investigation."

The premier indicated he might agree to an investigation of the Liberal MLA's accusations, but only within strict terms of reference.

"Royal commissions can become fishing expeditions in which no holds are barred," Mr. Frost said. "One question leads to another and the result is a breakdown in morale.

"If there is to be any investigation it would have to be on very specific things to avoid a fishing expedition."

TRY TO RESTORE IT'

Liberal Leader Watermeyer said that in demanding a royal commission his party was not trying to undermine police confidence "we are trying to restore it."

Mr. Frost said he thinks Mr. Sopha's accusations are based on hearsay evidence from the trial of a former provincial police officer, Robert J. Wright, convicted on a charge of conspiracy. The information was contained in the officer's diary and contained references to names used by the gamblers.

Mr. Sopha was called upon Saturday by two cabinet ministers for not naming the minister he has in mind.

Mr. Sopha, one of the leaders in the Liberal party's fight against organized crime, didn't name anyone when he made the statement to reporters, but said he has evidence "that implicates a cabinet minister in the Frost government in organized crime."

Three Soldiers Ruled Entitled To Prisoner Pay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three American soldiers alleged to have collaborated with Communist side when captured during the Korean War are entitled to prisoner - of - war pay, the Supreme Court decided Monday.

The trio refused repatriation after the war, but changed their minds after 18 months in Communist China and returned to the United States in 1955.

Justice Potter Stewart delivered the unanimous decision in the three claims by Otho Bell for $1,455., William Cowart for $4,991 and Lewis Griggs for $3,810.

The men, former corporals, given dishonorable discharges from the army. Each sought pay and allowances from the dates of their capture in 1950 and 1951 until they were discharged Jan. 23, 1954.

The three appealed to the high tribunal after the U.S. Court of Claims rejected their demands on the grounds that to grant them pay "would be to put a premium of dishonor and penalty on courageous loyalty."

EDMUNDSTON, N.B. (CP)— A rousing political rally of the sort grandfather used to tell about gave Liberal Leader Lester Pearson a sensational windup Monday to his four - day byelection campaign swing through the Maritimes.

A lively crowd in a church basement in this French-Canadian town of 12,000 showed approval of Mr. Pearson's speech.

It was the first time in 26 Ottawa a national Liberal leader has visited the town and Liberal sentiment was high. The meeting was punctured by firecracker blasts from the rear of the hall and more Victoria Day fireworks went off outside.

Co - star of the evening was Premier Louis Robichaud, 35-year - old sparkplug of New Brunswick Liberalism who took office in an election upset last June. He and a handful of provincial cabinet ministers trod the rally with a show of waving, fist-pounding attack on the federal government.

REALIST IN POLITICS

Traditionally, provincial premiers do not become involved in federal campaigns but Mr. Robichaud and his cabinet have been in the thick of this one. The premier says he is participating because of the deal the province got in the last federal - provincial tax arrangements.

Head of the Conservative campaign is J. C. Van Horne who resigned the Speakership in January. He is the premier's chief political foe in the province.

Mr. Pearson, who spoke in French and English, said the Conservatives in Ottawa and Fredericton have done little more than break election promises and run up deficits during three years of office.

He called on the voters to register their lack of confidence in the government next Monday by supporting Liberal candidate Jean-Eudes Dube, 34 - year - old Campbellton lawyer.

The Conservative candidate is Edgar Fournier, who was a provincial cabinet minister eight years until he lost his seat in the election of a government last year. He runs a neon sign business here.

SEE IT AS KEY

Political observers regarded this as the first test in the four where byelections are slated May 29. They look for a tipoff to how French-Canadian political sentiments stand.

A half-hour before the meeting began, crowds lined the streets leading to the meeting. Rock 'n' roll music blared from loudspeakers on the church steeple. Down the block a public address system on a car fought the music with shouted Conservative slogans.

The crowd inside was a colorful confusion of red ties, red shirts, red skirts, red caps and red dresses of every shade. The Liberal party color is bright red.

Mr. Pearson said he was "flabbergasted" by the turnout.

Mr. Pearson challenged Finance Minister Fleming to come out into the open and explain the reason why the "most unusual delay" in this year's federal budget.

CLAIMED SPREAD

He said the government is afraid to bring down its budget, normally presented by the end of April, before the May 29 byelections.

"Is it because you must not know the huge amount of the fifth consecutive deficit he will put in the budget?" he asked. Or. is it because Mr. Fleming intends to increase taxes and does not want to announce this bad news just before the byelections?

"It is your right to know the reasons for the decisions before you vote next Monday, and, the long parade of Conservative speakers in this riding should be asked to provide the answer."

Mr. Pearson wound up a three - day swing through the Maritimes — a swing which Conservatives claim is with Monday's speech before a rally in a Roman Catholic parish hall in Edmundston is the chief centre of Restigouche-Madawaska.

Relaxed and confident, Mr. Pearson told the New Brunswick Sunday predicting a Liberal sweep in the four votes.

He said he has been greatly encouraged by the enthusiastic political campaigns in Ontario's Leeds riding, where he opened the campaign, and Kingston, Prince Edward Island constituency, he toured Saturday.

The other riding involved in the May 29 vote is Esquimalt-Saanich in British Columbia.

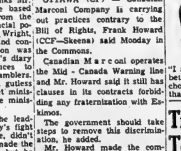
Member Charges Discrimination By Company

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian Marconi Company is carrying out practices contrary to the Bill of Rights, Frank Howard (C—Okanagan-Kootenay) said Monday in the Commons.

Canadian Marconi operates the Mid - Canada line running and Mr. Howard said it still has clauses in its contracts forbidding any fraternization with Eskimos.

The government should take steps to remove this discrimination, he suggested.

Mr. Howard made the comment after Northern Affairs Minister Dinsdale told public department in 1959 had issued instructions that no girl or boy should be made to curtail fraternization between whites and Eskimos.



Such fraternization had been curtailed although it was revealed on the occasional the first contact for many Eskimos with whites, Mr. Howard said, was established in 1953 that the DEW line clauses had been applied to the Mid-Canada line or Canadian Marconi.

Mr. Howard said the case was not mentioned specifically, Mr. Dinsdale last week of a 28-year-old Australian - born electrician, Terry Whitfield, who he said he was "fired by Canadian Marconi after going out with a 25-year-old Eskimo girl.

The girl, Anne Witaituk, was dismissed from the company's fairs department at Great Whale River, a northern Quebec community on the shores of Hudson Bay.

WON'T BUT OIL

MOSCOW (Reuters) — British Trade Minister Reginald Maudling said here Monday night that Britain would not buy Soviet oil "for the very good reason that we have plenty of our own." Obtaining a quota for Soviet oil for Britain was by no means to be one of the main Russian aims in an annual review of the Anglo-Soviet trade pact which began here Monday.

"Jest a Second"

"I agree that your judgment is better than mine dear — our choice of life partners proves that."

Trustees Want To Be Paid For Services

WINDSOR (CP) — Ontario high school trustees decided Monday they should get paid at least as much as municipal councillors.

About 150 trustees attending the annual meeting of the Associated High School Boards of Ontario passed a resolution asking for the pay.

Thomas Wells, chairman of the Scarborough board of education said the Ontario government "just doesn't encouragement to put recent legislation into effect and pay us."

A report resolution passed at the closing sessions concerned the teacher shortage and the cost of text books.

The association also resolved to ask the department of education to have persons other than teachers drive school bus high - school curriculums.

Delegates said study courses must reflect the needs of he community and that half of Ontario's secondary students drop out before the end of education.

Stephen G. Saywell of Oshawa was re-elected president.

Other officers include vice-presidents, Walter A. Clarke, St. Marys, John C. Miller, Sarnia and Morgan Brown, Leamington; secretary - treasurer W. E. Bayes, Weston.

Visiting a Taxidermist's Shop

As you read this, somewhere in transit there is a Nile perch from Africa, a dolphin and bonefish from Hawaii, a blue marlin from Australia or New Zealand and a sailfish from Peru, all headed for the same destination —Al Pflueger's taxidermy shop in North Miami, Florida.

From such great distances as these, only the skins of the fish are shipped, having first been salted and dried. Somehow Al and his staff of experts will soften these skins, stretch them over moulds, and paint them back into natural colors.

We went to call on Al last March at his plant in North Miami. The plant itself is composed of a group of five or six buildings which give Mrs about 22,000 square feet of working space. Here his staff of 90 employees mount fish. They turn out in the neighborhood of 8,600 mounts per year.

Scattered here and there about the world are 300 agents, all of whom send fish to Al for mounting. The process consists of 30 operations, all done by men and women who are specialists and experts in their particular jobs.

FISH LOOK ALIVE

From the skinning room the fish work their way through the various departments to the finishing room where they are painted in the natural color schemes so that the mount looks exactly as the fish did when first lifted from the water.

When the paint is thoroughly dry, the mounts are taken to the carpenter shop and shipping room. There a crew of carpenters build shipping crates, each one tailored to the exact dimensions of the individual mount. It is a fascinating experience to walk through Al's plant and watch what goes on.

You never know what surprise is in store for you as you pass from room to room. Here on a long table is the huge mount of a killer whale. A bit farther on, hanging on the wall, is a baby porpoise, about three feet long. In one room there are literally hundreds of sailfish, hanging from the ceiling to dry before being sent along for finishing. There are added things such as ribbon fish, tiger fish, queen trigger fish, parrot fish, etc.

Al himself is a man in his middle fifties, tall, lean, brown-haired, tanned to a healthy and permanent brown from years in the Florida sun. He is a competent ichthyologist; has been the court of last resort in identification disputes which sometimes crop up in the Metropolitan Miami Fishing tournaments.

While talking with him, I asked him if he had odd requests from time to time. Al smiled. "You never know," he said. "what is going to show up from day to day. A fellow sends in a fish which he speared while skin diving. There is a hole in the side of the skin where the spear went in. He doesn't want the hole repaired. No, indeed! That hole must be left there just as it was when the fish was boated."

I asked him what was the largest fish he had ever mounted. It turned out to be a black marlin, 15 feet, six inches over all and weighing, when caught, 1560 pounds. That monster posed quite a problem for the boys in the carpenter shop, building a crate that would protect the mount from damage during shipment.

Some anglers, instead of collecting mounts of huge record fish, collect miniatures of the favorite game fish. It is not uncommon to have tarpon come in for mounting measuring only two or three inches in length. The smallest such mount that he has made was a sailfish measuring, bill and all, one and one-eighth inches.

Over the fireplace in my office hang three mounts of Al's game fish — a bonefish, a snook, and a sea trout. All of these were Mel Miami Tournament winners in the fly-rod division. The sea trout still holds the all time tournament record. Al mounted these for me and they still look as lifelike as they did when they were lifted from the water.

Always Al is glad to have visitors at the plant. He or his strapping son, Al, Jr., will be glad to take you on a tour of inspection through the plant. As I say, for an angler it is a fascinating experience.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Six years ago, when the Canadian women's golf championships were staged in Victoria, British Columbia won the interprovincial team title. Since then the province hasn't been able to repeat the victory.

But there's growing confidence in women's golf circles here that the trophy will return to B.C. this year.

The girls give three reasons. The first is that the championships will be held in B.C. again with interprovincial team, Canadian close and Canadian open play scheduled between Aug. 1 and 13 at Vancouver's Marine Drive and Point Grey golf courses.

The other two are Janet McWha and Donna Collett. These, of course, are in addition to the crop of rankling young golfers and steady veterans native to B.C.

IMPORTS FROM EAST

Miss McWha, a 24-year-old school teacher who has been a scratch player for five years, and Mrs. Collett, 22 - year - old wife of Marine Drive professional Len Collett, are recent imports from Quebec and Manitoba.

Janet moved here last September from Montreal where she earned a place on the Quebec women's team six times in the last seven years and was three times runner-up in the Quebec championships.

Mrs. Collett, the former Donna Paton, came here late last year from Winnipeg when her husband won appointment as Marine Drive pro.

She missed last year's competitions, taking time out to have a baby, but has returned for three consecutive years—1957, 1958 and 1959.

SUZANNE MARRIED

One of last year's B.C. interprovincial team will be missing this year. The former Suzanne Foulis, who scored a rare double by taking both junior and senior titles in B.C. in 1960, has married and moved to England.

Ruth Wilson of Vancouver, Mrs. Shirley Naysmith and Mrs. Dorothy De Girolamo of Victoria will be trying again for berths on the four - member team.

The two-member Junior team may remain intact, too, with Gayle Hitchens, 16, runner-up to Gail Harvey of Toronto in last year's junior championship, and Nancy Young, 18, both of Vancouver, still eligible for the junior competition.

Mrs. De Girolamo was a member of the 1955 championship team, playing then as Dorothy Herbertson. Other members of that team were Mrs. J. H. Todd of Victoria and Sheila Ross and Mrs. E. L. Buchanan of Vancouver.

This year's team will be selected following the B.C. championships here June 19-23.

THE HOLIDAY

Professional soccer at its magnificent best . . . The mighty Hotspur magnificent in Football Cup victory but gallant Leicester City more magnificent in defeat . . . An eye-opening spectacle for those who have never seen Britain's national game at its finest, and nostalgia for lovers-one suspicions. Magnetic precision at Wembley and a "purple heart" to a gallant Leicester winger who refused to leave the field although painfully injured. The fleet-footed "Richest" of the Spurs Mr. Jones and the desperate efforts of the City's Guilfoyle . . .

And above all a lesson to tonsil-screeching Canadian pro hockey announcers and commentators. The British "roar at the puke" deserves the third "magnificent" of the game. He identified players and plays in a low pleasant voice, was notably non-partisan and stole none of the game's thrills with loud verbiage.

And another heart-wrencher and spine-tingler for "Carry Back" fans in the prancing Preakness. The 1961 "Silky Sullivan" dangled-near missed it at that. As usual he spotted the pack the field and in that roaring Derby finish came from the cellar to nip Globemaster by a nag-bit. Whew, it was that close with a half-of-length of hores worth the difference between $126,000 and $30,000.

For others it was the thrill of the drive and the suspense of a thirty-shot putt on the lush greens of the country club; the sigh of disappointment as the little white ball trickled past the hole.

From the mesh of the Trent to productive Hay Bay, northward to sun-glinted lake and cold-watered stream, some sought the elusive pickerel and trout.

To the diamond-minded it was the inaugural "Play Ball" in baseball's Fair Grounds debut with the Kenmore winning their exhibition with Merrion and "Temple" new school Bobcats and Cobourg ushering in a bright new year for softball. And all the new satirical splendor of Justice Al. Kelleher and his associate judges of the Provincial Supreme Court, Lasalle, Que.

Ribboning highways and byways took the cabin and cottage minded to the calm ethereal serenity of northern streams and tree-bordered lakes. Work, yes for many to get the summer hideaway in liveable condition but the damage was not done by the workaday world.

Then, a solemn Sunday and sun-splattered Monday gave kittle chance for "black-soaking" but inside it was homey and man-made heat provided holiday comfort.

Sun-tan lotion and swim-suits were in demand but at one time a greenish "white-wing," the first of the season was noted heeling slightly to a wisp of a breeze on Quinte waters.

In this last-early season, the planned pattern and wayside scatterings of vernal display heralded the opening of the land. Many of the motor-minded, took to the highways knowing that the blossoming of the year in public park and forest depth makes spring a time of gaiety and color.

But riding the highways and byways too was the Great Spoiler seeking the holiday harvest he inevitably reaps. Yesterday a laughing, happy family or group of friends. Today by a sudden explosive accidental action, the chilling hush of a morgue or the whispery stillness of a hospital room.

May 23. For the great majority a holiday of peaceful quiet. For some the last long sleep. . . .

Win Six In Row

By ED WILES
Associated Press Staff Writer

Baltimore Orioles, one of the pre - season favorites for the American League flag, are no better than fifth, seven games behind first place Detroit at the moment. And if the Birds' personnel hopes spring, it's strictly a case of suicide.

What else would you call it when they can share a starting pitcher with six hits, four of them doubles, and two walks in four innings, but score just one run while leaving six on base?

That's what they did Monday night as righthander Jack Fisher pitched perfect ball for five innings yet would top with his third straight defeat in an 8-2 loss to the Yankees at New York.

The victory lat the third place Yankees 5½ games behind Detroit. The Tigers walloped Kansas City 10-2, protecting their 3½-game lead over the second place Cleveland Indians who beat Minnesota 7-6 in 12 innings. Boston and Chicago White Sox 4-1 and Los Angeles Angeles defeated Washington 8-4.

SUNDAY'S RESULTS

In action Sunday, New York Yankees and Baltimore Orioles split a doubleheader, New York won the first 4-2 and Baltimore the second 3-2. Chicago and Boston Red Sox also split a doubleheader, Chicago won the first 6-5 and Boston the second 4-1.

Washington Senators won a doubleheader from Los Angeles Angels, 5-2 and 7-4. Scott took the first game of a doubleheader 5-3. The second game was rained out.

Cleto Boyer broke up the perfect game by Fisher with a leadoff single in the sixth inning for the Yankees and came around with a second run for a 1-1 tie, Boyer also hit a three - run homer in the eighth —with all the runs unearned— off Fisher, who finished with a five - hitter.

The Yankees, with Jim Coates winning his relief of Ryne Ditmar, put it away in a four-run seventh. Two walks and a single by Tod Davis broke the tie.

The clinching run came when second base umpire Larry Napp ruled second baseman Mary Breeding had dropped a liner by Elston Howard. When the Orioles gave up in their argument that Breeding had caught the ball, Tony Kubek capped the inning with a two - run, two-out single.

TIGERS WIN

The Tigers came from behind on a tying, solo homer by Norm Cash in the fourth inning then flattened the As with six runs in the fifth off Dave Wickersham. Righthander Phil Regan remained unbeaten, allowing just five hits, one a clouting homer by Don Lenzen, while winning his fifth.

Cleveland, 4-0 in extra - inning games, made it six straight on Willie Kirkland's ninth - inning single in the 18th off losing reliever Ted Bowsfield, eight innings of two - hit, shutout relief by Frank Funk.

Funk struck out seven after getting the Indians out of a bases - loaded, none - out jam in the eighth when he relieved Leonie Gree on a pop up and then got Don Mincher on a doubleplay ball. A pair of two-run homers by Woody Held overhauled a 3-2 lead by the Twins.

WHITE SOX TIMBER

Bill Monbouquette put away only his third victory in seven decisions for Boston, beating the White Sox with a seven-hitter.

He blanked Chicago after the third inning, fanning Sherm Lollar and Billy J. C. Martin to hit into a doubleplay with the bases full in the sixth.

Frank Baumann was the loser, giving up a trio of singles by Carl Yastrzemski, Jim Pagliaroni and Frank Malzone as the Red Sox broke a 1-1 tie in a three - run fourth.

The Angels cut down one Washington runner at the plate in the eighth and escaped another score when rookie Chuck Hinton left third base too soon on Jim King's apparent sacrifice fly in the Senators' seventh. Los Angeles scored the decider in the ninth on a squeeze bunt by winner Eli Grba in the sixth. Pete Burnside was the loser.

Merritton Bows to Kenmors 3-1

By PETER CARVER

The Belleville Kenmors split their pre-season two-game exhibitions series by handing Merritton Jr. B. champions a 3-1 decision at Victoria Crescent at fairgrounds.

The Kenmors play host to Fort Hope next Sunday afternoon in their opening league game at the same grounds.

The homesters opened the scoring with one run in the second inning and put the game away with two in the fifth. Merritton's lone tally came in the fifth frame.

The game was a pitcher's duel all the way with Belleville's Larry Sodden setting down the opposition on three hits; loser John McDonald held the Kenmore to five. Soden whiffed seven and walked five. McDonald blazed third strikes by eleven batters while walking only one.

Belleville's first run came pegging with a long triple and scoring when one Moe Hunter's single sent the Kenmore catcher home on a close play.

The second run was scored on a one-run lead. Merrition evend the score in the late top of the fifth on back-to-back singles by Snyder and Hale. A wild pitch and a fielder's choice accounted Kenmore's the loser's only run.

Belleville came back in their half of the inning as Moe Hunter collected his second hit of the game and scored on Larry Mavety's triple. Mavety (came home when the Merritton catcher let a low pitch get by him to close out the scoring.

Larry Mavety and Moe Hunter were the best for the winners, each collecting a single and an extra base hit between them. Larry Soden had a three-bagger.

MERRITON — Hale, Hicks, Snyder, Kirkland, Bell, Blanke, Sunderland, Madson, McDonald, Holochuck.

JEROME TIES RECORD

CORVALLIS, Ore. (CP) — Harry Jerome set a record for a holder of the world's 100-metre mark at 19 years, joined a long list of runners, Saturday who share the world 100-yard mark when he won the Far West Track and Field Meet 100-yard sprint in 9.3 seconds. The young Canadian, frustrated by a leg injury in his attempt last summer to win an Olympic gold medal for Canada, led all the way by capturing the event for Oregon, the university he attends on a track scholarship.

CAHA Warns Pros

Amateurs Demand Rules Rights

By CHARLES GERSEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association vowed Monday it will take a strong stand against the National Hockey League in setting up rules for Canada's member one sport.

The association's indignant over what it feels is automatic rejection of its rule suggestions by the professional - dominated joint rules committee, warned it will ask for a board of arbitration if it happens again.

The joint rules committee, in which the pros have a majority vote, meets again in June. Under an amateur - professional agreement any hockey rules adopted must be approved by the committee.

If the board of arbitration is sought and refused, said the CAHA secretary - manager Gordon Juckes of Melville, Sask., "our next step probably" nothing will have to decide what to do. "Perhaps the agreement" either party can terminate the agreement but must give two years notice.

RULE BOTHERS

One of the more controversial rules governing the CAHA is the covering "icing the puck." The CAHA this year adopted a resolution calling for a quicu call, or an automatic stoppage of play when the puck is iced—shot from a team's own side of the centre line across the opposing goal line when the clubs are at equal strength.

The resolution states that the referee stops the play only if a defending player other than the goalie touches the puck after it passes the goal line. The CAHA's hope to have this changed was rejected by the joint rules committee.

It was decided that for at least another year helmets and goals' masks will not be compulsory.

The association reversed one of its policies when it approved a resolution calling for a visiting team in the playoff series to get $200 expense money and the home team $50. The new regulation, designed especially for senior clubs, eases the burden of travel costs suffered by the travelling players.

FINANCES POOR

Delegates gave only brief attention to the usual "in-the-red" financial report.

Juckes said in an interview before the meeting opened that the CAHA's financial situation likely will be discussed later.

Juckes attributed the resolution calling for playoff games to be arranged on a 2-3-2 basis, alternating each year in western inter - branch junior A and B playoffs.

President Jack Roxburgh of Moncton objected to both the Allan and Memorial Cup series this year were "the finest series financially in some time."

Win Opener 6-2

Bobcats Defeat Cobourg

Smart fielding and clutch clouting gave the Belleville Bobcats a 6-2 victory over the Cobourg Merchants in the Belleville District Softball League opener at the fair grounds yesterday.

Five errors behind the six-hit hurling of Jim "Sleepy" Dawes did not help the Cobourg cause any. Dawes whiffed nine and walked two.

Bobby Hunter gave up nine hits, one a home run, struck out four, and walked two. He was helped by a smart double play and two sensational right field catches by Bobby Green, whose single drove in one of the Bobcat runs.

The Cats struck early, scoring single in the first and second, two in the third and singles in the seventh and eighth. They committed one error, a dropped third strike.

Two errors and Brown's single gave the runners their first inning run. Bobby Green drove in Gongos, who walked, for the second tally in the second inning.

Earl Cousins' single drove in John Batchelor, aboard by an error and Fields, who had hit ahead of him, for the Cats' third innings two runs. Two Cobourg batsmen in the seventh scored another and John Batchelor blasted a centre-field homer with none on in the eighth to end the scoring.

Hunter held the Merchants to three clouts until the fifth, when Dick Turpin blasted a four-bagger to break the Cobourg egg. Black to back singles by Dawe and O'Brien, and Campbell's long fly scored their second run in the sixth.

The Cats' double play and Green's first over-the-shoulder pull-down of a sure hit stopped a Cobourg rally in the eighth and the right-fielder's second cloud-snatch in the ninth halted another Merchants' effort.

Twice Hunter gave up two hits with none out, but with his mates fielding flawlessly behind him yielded but one run, retiring the followup three batters on each occasion.

Dick Turpin hit a double and homer for the Merchants, with O'Brien, Dawe and Thomson each getting two singles. Mitts for the other.

All the way from Simcoe to the game was OASA pair of friends here last fall while Mrs. Perking who made a host president, Mrs. Perkins and guests at the league annual dance.

The Belleville Public Schools Band played prior to the game under bandmaster Alf Cooper and received a fine ovation.

Orono Defeats Kenmors

Belleville Kenmors, 1960 Ontario Junior "A" champions made their intermediate debut in Orono yesterday and went down to an 8-3 defeat before the veteran home club.

It was the opening game of the newly-formed Lakeshore Intermediate Baseball League.

The Belleville youngsters held a 3-2 lead going into the sixth when the Orono batters came to life scoring three runs in the inning and another trio in the seventh to salt away the victory.

Carleton the Orono hurler went the route giving up eight hits and blanking the Kenmors after the third innings.

Pat Asseltine started for the Kenmors, giving up five runs, four hits and five walks in six innings. Gord Vaughan took over and was nicked for seven hits good for four runs in two innings. They whiffed six between them.

The Kenmors spotted the homesters a run in the first and reared back with three in the fourth with Asseltine's double, Vaughan's triple, Soden's single and Mavety's double.

Orono picked up a run in the same frame and cut loose in the fifth on successive singles by Mercer, Cox and Armstrong. A fielders choice and a sacrifice scored all three runners.

Vaughan went back in the seventh and was greeted by a single and three back-to back doubles that accounted for three runs.

The Kenmors threatened in the seventh but a double play cut off the rally. They led off the eighth with two successive hits but Carleton settled down and retired the side with no damage done.

Asseltine and Soden led the Kenmors with two hits each with Lock, Goyer, Mavety and Moxon getting one each.

Pirates Game Behind

'Bums', Giants Run Neck-And-Neck

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

All right hander Stan Williams has to do to nail a complete game victory these days is fire a four-hitter and keep firing until Los Angeles Dodgers finally get around to putting it away.

After getting only a 1-2 record and no complete game out of six starts this season, Williams hit on the four-hit, extra-inning formula for a 2-1, 11-inning victory over Milwaukee last Wednesday. He stayed with it again Monday night, once more giving up just four hits for a 2-1 decision at Cincinnati, this one in 10 innings, as the Dodgers remained just percentage points shy of the National League lead with their fifth straight success.

San Francisco stayed .014 percentage points ahead with a 3-1 victory at St. Louis. Third place Pittsburgh, one game behind the Giants, defeated Milwaukee 2-1 in the only other NL game scheduled.

Williams fanned eight and walked three, while blanking the Reds on two singles after they had tied it 1-1 in the first inning. That gave him a total of 19 strikeouts in his last 21 innings and the NL lead with 55.

WON EIGHT STRAIGHT

The Dodgers, winning their eighth in a row on the road, collected 10 hits, but still barely pulled it out. Loser Bob Purkey (4-2) gave up a walk to Maury Wills opening the 10th, but after a sacrifice and Willie Davis' single moved him to third, Wills was nailed at the plate trying to score on Wally Moon's infield single, two outs. Reliever Tommy Davis finally broke it up.

Giants, after losing three in a row to the Dodgers, bounced back behind Jack Sanford (3-3) at St. Louis, cracking a shutout duel with two runs in the sixth off loser Ernie Broglio (3-5). Two singles, by Chuck Hiller and Harvey Kuenn, and errors by second baseman Alex Grammas and right fielder Joe Cunningham, both on a grounder by Willie Mays, gave the Giants one run. Hobie Landrith's sacrifice fly produced the clincher. Orlando Cepeda closed it out with a home run, his 11th, tops in the NL, in the eighth inning.

Pittsburgh managed just four hits off Bob Shaw (1-4), but one was a tie-breaking home run by Dick Groat in the eighth. It was Groat's first of the year. Harvey Haddix (3-0) was the winner, giving up seven hits, one a homer by Frank Bolling, but walking just one and striking out seven.

Sunday's scores: Los Angeles 2, Cincinnati 1; Pittsburgh 2, Milwaukee 1; San Francisco 3, St. Louis 1.

Another Derby Finish

Preakness to 'Carry Back'

By JOHN CHANDLER

BALTIMORE (AP) — Carry Back, the most popular colt since Native Dancer thrilled the fans eight years ago, came from behind with his characteristic late rush and won the 85th running of the $170,700 Preakness Stakes at Pimlico Saturday.

With Jockey Johnny Sellers astride the Kentucky Derby winner, owned by Mrs. Katherine Price, Carry Back zoomed up from seventh place in the field of nine three-year-olds and gave the same heart-throbbing finish he provided at Louisville two weeks ago.

The little dark-brown son of Saggy Joppy by Star Rock whipped down to the finish line of the mile and three-sixteenths race and poured it on just when it appeared that Leonard Sasso's Globemaster might take the $126,200 first prize.

Carry Back, the even-money favorite of an excited crowd of 2,311, came swinging away on the outside just ar he did in the Derby and just made it in the final strikes to win going away by three-quarters of a length over Globemaster.

The winner's time was 1:57 4-5, three seconds slower than the Pimlico record.

He won the Derby at Churchill Downs May 6 by the same margin over Fred Hooper's Crozier. Crozier could not do better than third, four lengths behind the pace-setting Globemaster, who had upset Carry Back in the Wood Memorial April 28 at Aqueduct.

Now it's on to New York, where Carry Back should be the odds-on favorite to win the $125,000-added Belmont Stakes June 3 and become the ninth three-year-old to sweep the triple grand-slam—the Derby, Preakness and Belmont. No horse has accomplished this since Citation did it in 1948.

Carry Back paid $4, $3.20 $2.20. Globemaster, who started at 8 to 1, paid $8 and $3.40 to place. Crozier, the second choice at 3 to 1, returned $2.40 to show.

Sherluck was fifth, followed by Hilting Away, Nashua Blue, Orleans Doge and Crimson Fury.

The $126,200 Carry Back earned boosted his career total to $739,068. This brought him up to 13th place from 19th in the list of the world's leading money-winners.

Trap, Gun Results

There wasn't a perfect 25 score turned in at the Quinte Trap and Gun Club's weekend shoot on Sunday but four of the regulars came mighty close.

In last week's Wednesday shoot, Denny Rosatte and Earl Marvin both fired rounds of 25 to lead the pack.

'Carry Back' Not Hurt

NEW YORK (AP)—The Daily News said today that Carry Back, winner of the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, "was injured in shipment between Pimlico and Garden State and is a doubtful starter in the Belmont Stakes."

In Camden, N.J., Sawyer, site of Garden State Park, Jack Price, trainer of Carry Back, said the three - year - old colt skipped in excellent shape from the Pimlico track in Baltimore. ("I've got about 15 calls about weather he's been hurt," Price said. "Where do these things start!")

Billy Hewitt Retires

(Billy) Hewitt retired Monday night as an official of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association but the 61 - year - old veteran indicated he plans to be around for some time yet to promote the game he loves.

The keen - eyed Torontonian received a standing ovation from a dinner crowd at the CAHA's annual meeting here. He is retiring as the association's registrar - treasurer —a job he has performed since 1924.

Hewitt, showing no signs of an attack of pneumonia that struck him during a European tour with the senior Winnipeg Maroons last winter and forced him to spend nearly a month in Prague and London hospitals, told the crowd that he plans to continue taking a strong interest in hockey.

"I may have a long way to go," he said.

Hewitt remains a life member of the CAHA and recently was elected to his 29th consecutive term as secretary of the Ontario Hockey Association. He said in an interview he plans to complete 60 years in the OHA job, then retire.

Leafs Take Pair From Columbus

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Call it a surprise, a sneak punch or whatever, but Toronto Maple Leafs have suddenly regained their championship form of a year ago in the International League now that their pitching seems to have worked his way back into form.

Ron Negray, with a three-hit shutout and Raul Sanchez, with some sparkling relief work helped the Leafs to a 1-0 and 3-2 doubleheader sweep of the league - leading Columbus Jets Monday. The only other game scheduled, Richmond at Buffalo, was postponed by cold weather.

Negray (2-2) handed Columbus his second straight shutout from a Toronto pitcher in the opener. But Jim Umbricht, who gave only five hits, was the victim of a passed ball by catcher Roberto Herrera that allowed the only run to score in the eighth inning. It came after singles by Billy Moran and Chuck Tanner.

DRIVES IN WINNER

Pinch-hitter Ellis Burton's single drove in the winning run in the nightcap after Columbus took a 2-0 lead, getting one run on Herrera's homer. Earl Hersh's double in the first for Toronto run and the second scored after a walk and singles by Moran and Tanner.

Paul Francis (1-2) was the loser, also in relief.

The sweep was part of a good holiday weekend for the Leafs after a dismal season start that dropped them to the bottom of the IL. They now are in seventh place, five games out of first.

On Sunday Leafs split with Rochester, losing 13-2 and coming back to take the nightcap 4-0. In a Saturday contest they edged Rochester 4-3. In other Sunday games Syracuse lost twice to Buffalo Bisons 9-8 and 3-2, league - leading Columbus split with Richmond, losing 10-7 and then winning 5-2, and Jersey City lost to Charleston, with the second game scoreless after eight innings, called because of rain.

CLEROUX MEETS HARRIS

HOUSTON (AP)—Bob Cleroux of Montreal, the No. 10 contender for Floyd Patterson's world heavyweight boxing championship, puts his ranking on the line in a 10-round fight with Roy Harris of Cut and Shoot, Tex., tonight. Cleroux, a former lumberjack, knocked out Harris, a former backwoods school teacher, in five rounds last July in Montreal. Harris, once rated as the No. 2 challenger, has been spanked since Patterson knocked him out in the 12th round of a 1958 championship fight.

Quebec Aces Get Rousseau

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League Monday night announced they have acquired left-winger Guy Rousseau of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League in exchange for right-winger Norm Corcoran and cash.

Rousseau, 26, played the last three seasons with Rochester Americans of the AHL, while Corcoran, 30, spent the last two seasons with the Aces.

Amount of money involved was not disclosed.

The Aces also announced that Floyd Curry, coach of the defunct Montreal Royals of the Eastern Professional Hockey League, has signed a one-year contract as coach of the Aces. Curry, who played 19 seasons with Montreal Canadiens of the NHL, previously had agreed to coach the team.

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Jockey Avelino Gomez gave Moony an expert ride Monday as the Buffalo horse scored a neck decision over Anita's Son and Grey Monarch in the Sweyaird Stakes at Old Woodbine.

With Gomez getting the last ounce of effort from his horse, Moony defeated Anita's Son by a scant head while Grey Monarch was third.

The Canadian racing season's largest record was set Monday as the Victoria Day holiday thriller, the wagering of $386,680 was largest of the current season.

The Sweyaird time was 1:37.4.

Moony paid $3.90, $2.50 and $2.10. Anita's Son paid $2.50 and $2.10. Grey Monarch paid $2.20 to show.

The daily double paid $52.50 when Navy Grand and Court's Forth won the first two races. The quinella of Welland Canal and Sure Service in the fifth race paid $11.30.

Two jockeys — Dennis Elliott and Ken Hall—escaped without serious injury when Globe Express tumbled after tripping on the heels of Rue's Girl in the first race.

SETS TWO MARKS

BRAMSVILLE (CP) — Fred Hill, a slightly built Indian from Shawsken, near Brantford, set two North American harness racing records here Saturday. The 30-year-old father of six won all eight races of the Niagara Harness Horsemen's Association said it was the first time that has been done in North America. And, they said, it was the most consecutive races ever won by a single driver on the continent.

The Trots

HAMMURG N.Y. (CP)—Holidaying Canadian fans swelled the Buffalo Raceway throng to 8,184 fans, largest crowd of the meeting, Saturday night and happily watched Dominion-owned horses win three of the first six races on the card.

The featured $5,000 pace, however went to an American-owned standard - bearer, Ipsis Paul, with a 2:05 1-5 effort. Bill Gratian finished second and Canadian - owned Gens Pudney a 50 to 1 shot, earned show money.

Ben Webster trained two horses of the Soky Stables, Downsview, Ont., to victory in the early races. They were Crown Attorney ($4.70) and Andy Burnett (7.70). Then Ed Arthur of Otterville, Ont., drove his own Ensign Dillon to a $7.00 triumph in a B-1 pace on the program.

HULL, Que. (CP) — Win Em Boy, a five-year - old gelding owned and driven by Allan Facey of Roosevelt, came from behind in the stretch to win Monday night's $800 Invitation Pace at Connaught Park.

The winner paid $14.30, $7.00 and $4.50 while runner-up David Hal returned $6.00 and $3.80. Third place went to Hematite who paid $2.20.

Neil Curran brought Hi Acres Rudy to the finish in 2:10 4-5. Ray Cousael, owned and driven by Ivan Farr of Thamesford, turned the trick in the first race, a 10 pace—when he defeated the favored Vogue Direct. He paid his backers and across-the-board prices of $38.80 $11.50 $6.70.

HEADS AL ALL-STARS

BOSTON (AP) — Paul Richards of Baltimore Orioles was named American League all-star team manager Monday by president Joe Cronin.

The two all-star games this season will be played in San Francisco July 11 and Boston July 31.

Trout Fool Fishermen

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP)—Half a million rainbow trout fooled 1,500 fishermen this holiday weekend when a re-stocked lake was opened to the public for the first time.

Stump Lake was crowded with 350 boats at 6 a.m. Saturday, but the first fish wasn't landed until 7 a.m. and from then on the weekend apparently lapsed into a fishing.

The lake had been touted as a potential jewel by sportsmen, with a likely catch of 20,000 trout in the first week weighing around five pounds each. The final count Sunday was 1,200 fish.

Pete Myronuk of nearby Valley View caught the weekend's biggest—a rainbow that weighed in at five pounds, 15½ ounces.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It's been safe the last three or four years for folks, particularly long, lining near a large body of water, to tell their neighbors to "jump in the lake." They've been reasonably certain they wouldn't do it.

It wasn't always so. About eight years ago people took the advice literally, and there were times when ocean beaches could find almost as many humans as fish thrashing around in lakes, channels and straits.

The marathon craze was on. All sorts of characters in North America and Europe — grandmothers and grandfathers, teenagers, people of all occupations, sizes, shapes and ages—plunged in for swims in bonnets. The great majority were hauled out, their brief fling for dubious glory shattered.

The zany business continued about four years and then things returned to normal. It was pretty hectic while it lasted and there were occasions when the action was more spirited in the accompanying bands and on the shore than in the water.

MAY REVIVE CNE SWIM

Now people with the urge to tell others to jump in the lake had better brush their mouths because there's a move on foot to stage a long-distance swim along the lakefront in Toronto this summer. The promoters, the Canadian National Exhibition, say the swimmers will be within easy eyeshot of shorelife spectators.

Final plans are expected to be announced later this week. And at the same time officials are expected to explore the possibility of reviving the 25-mile cross-Lake Ontario swim in 1962.

Will this lead to a return of those wildcat lake swims when traffic became so snarled that the Ontario government at one time considered legislation to outlaw them?

"Could be," says one CNE official. "There are lots of people wanting to get swims across the lake. Even swimmers from Europe are talking about it. If we think the crowds will find out, we think the craze will hit again."

MARILYN DID IT

The CNE was responsible for the dizziest madness a few years ago.

With much fanfare and, appropriately enough, a press conference aboard a lake steamer, it offered Californian Flo Chadwick $7,000 to swim Lake Ontario from Youngstown, N.Y., to Toronto.

The media were caught on. Miss Chadwick, and a few uninvited starters, made the plunge, but only one made it—Marilyn Bell, a 16-year-old Toronto schoolgirl. Forty hours, weak and about all Marilyn, the first person to conquer the forbidding stretch of water, and from that night on—Sept. 9, 1954—the marathon madness in its full swing.

No large body of water in Canada, the United States and some parts of Europe was safe from these long-distance swim buffs. One man, Cliff Richard of Orillia, Ont., was drowned while trying to cross Lake Ontario.

Miss Bell went on to conquer the Juan de Fuca Strait and the English Channel and wherever she went she attracted fans by the less of thousands of dollars. The shoreline viewers gave her tremendous ovations, but rarely saw her—immediately she completed a crossing.

Newspapers whisked her to hideaways for the exclusive story on how she conquered this and that body of water. And even while she was swimming the action on the accompanying boats was a show itself.

A Toronto newsreel camera man received an unscheduled dunking when he was dumped by a woman reporter. Legions of rival newspapers cut in on each other to prevent pictures taking. At times, reporters used the old equalizers—bare fists—to settle arguments.

Marilyn Bell was the heroine of all long-distance swimming. The others, and there were scores of them, kept on jumping in until about 1958 when the madness suddenly died down.

Marathon swims are sound thing like hustles. They come and go.

Says Magistrate Closely Related To Crime Leader

TORONTO (CP) — Donald MacDonald, Ontario Liberal leader accused Attorney-General Roberts Monday of appointing a new magistrate who is related to a well-known Ontario gambling leader.

Mr. Roberts described the charge as "a lot of hooey from beginning to end."

The CCF leader said in a statement that appointment of a magistrate "is usually made on a patronage basis —rewarding the party faithful. There are exceptions — but they are exceptions that merely prove the general rule."

Calling for a "thorough and independent investigation" into "the administration of justice and its relation to the unrepressed establishment of organized crime in this province," Mr. MacDonald said:

"For example, not long ago the attorney-general appointed a new magistrate who is a close relative of a well -known gambling leader in gang province; and persons closely associated with the gambling world have openly boasted, rightly or wrongly, of their influence in having the appointment made."

Mr. Roberts replied:

"That's a lot of hooey from beginning to end. Our magistrates are selected with the greatest of care. He's been attacking some vital institutions then make up our minds in any way of life. We know how to assess any blast from him."

A FIRE TRAP?

BOSTON (AP) — A Faneuil Hall a fire trap? The National Fire Protection Association considered the Revere-old redbrick structure last week. The association said the famous meeting hall of colonial times has inadequate entrances and exits, narrow staircases, no sprinkler system, an undesirable quantity of electrical wiring and a trash fire hazard exists on the first floor and basement.

AT THE BELLE — John Wayne and Chill Wills raise their voices in song during the filming of Wayne's $12,000,000 Technicolor production of "The Alamo", on location in Brackettville, Texas. Richard Widmark, Linda Cristal and Laurence Harvey head the distinguished cast in "The Alamo", now playing an extended engagement at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

Movie Column

Missy, Barbara Stanwyck, Back on the Movie Stage

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Missy is back on the movie stages, and she has been missed.

Every Hollywood worker knows, Missy is the nickname for Barbara Stanwyck, who evokes an almost fanatical following among her fellow laborers in the Movie Mills. The reason is not only that she is a pro. She also is "one of the boys."

She laughs, kids and swears with the crew, and they swear by her. So does the rest of the cast. She is a refreshing throwback to an era of professional pride, as contrasted to the shallow, erratic quality of some of today's "stars."

Where has she been? She just finished a season in the TV jungles and won an Emmy for it. Before that, she admits she waited for the producers to call her. Forty Guns was her last film, and that was in 1957.

Producer Charles Feldman called her for a role in A Walk on the Wild Side, and she responded.

"I'm playing a madam in the picture, Chalk up another first for Stanwyck."

MAORE TO WORK

The actress was sitting out on the set, her feet propped up on the makeup table while her frankly grey hair was being prepared for the scene. She makes no secret of her age, which is 53. Nor does she conceal her eagerness to work.

"I'm always at best when I'm on a picture," she said as she polished a long flight of stairs to the set. "I wouldn't know what to do with myself if I wasn't working."

Miss Stanwyck's sunny award last week had a touch of irony. She won it for "Trooper Hook", in the medium that supplied her first major award. She never made it with an Oscar, though she was nominated four times—for Stella Dallas, Ball of Fire, Double Indemnity, and Sorry Wrong Number.

GAVE SIX PLANES

Seven Animated Cartoons On Screens Next Season

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — The big new trend in TV is the animated cartoon—next season there will be seven of them: Bugs Bunny, The Flintstones and Rocky and his Friends will return for another season, and there will also be NBC's Bullwinkle, CBS' Alvin and the Chipmunks, plus ABC's Calvin and the Colonel, and Top Cat.

Ed Sullivan and company travelled all the way to Las Vegas last week to turn out a vaudeville show which, except for one helicopter stunt act, was indistinguishable from the ones churned out weekly from New York . . . Annual Awards shows, like beauty pageants, are still powerful audience-pullers. Last week's Emmy show grabbed, far and away, the biggest audience in its time period.

Raymond Burr still wants to wind up his Perry Mason chores for keeps this season, but his contract has another year to run and the show is scheduled in its regular spot next season by CBS . . . Now that Perry's 6-hour Macbeth has won a lion's share of the Emmy awards, it will be launched this week—in Great Britain—as a motion picture.

AT THE PARK — Bob Hope stars with Lucille Ball in a spritely twist of life among the communist set-in comedy. "The Facts of Life", a United Artists release in color by DeLuxe, starts at the Park Theatre. Cna. show at 2.30 p.m. Continuous performances. Also "You Can't Run Away From It", starring Jack Lemmon and June Allyson. Cna. complete show starts at 7.30 p.m.

KILLED A DANCER

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Five years ago Mu Wang-shen was sentenced to death on charges of masterminding the murder of five members of a retired Chinese nationalist general's family. He appealed and was acquitted. Mu was arrested again—this time for slaying his estranged mistress, Lo Fou-hua, 21, a taxi dancer and singer. Police said he admitted the slaying.

Tuesday, May 23, 1961.

General Tendencies: There are all kinds of chores and tasks for you to complete today and tonight and not a moment should be lost in so-doing. Be sure also that you make it point to tune in on what appeals to you of an artistic nature, such as where art, beauty, color, music, culture and allied interests are concerned. Be lofty in thinking.

Aries (March 24 to April 19) It is important you are so efficient today that all co-workers are impressed with your ability and you will soon be in line for advancement. Give great attention to minute details. Take the health treatments you need tonight.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) M attained properly, you arise feeling so full of energy and enthusiasm that you can do much to improve personal as well as business affairs. Dress in good style, then off to interesting activities, fine time with friends in P.M.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Affairs at home require immediate and careful attention now and you find that close ties are in a mood to be very co-operative, too. You can then take it easy there tonight or invite good friends in for dinner and chit-chat.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 23) If you step out of dull routines and get into the busy world of outside activities, you will find that there is much you can accomplish, in the way of sales, conferences, purchases, contacts etc. Learn to deliberate less, also.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 21) Financial affairs, striving for greater security is now of the utmost importance. Confer with close ties and get their suggestions and advice, which is bound to be very good. Then full speed ahead. Don't waste a moment's time.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) Be sure you know early what you want to accomplish in any of today's dealings, then carry through successfully by thinking positively. Evening can also be very lucrative as well as pleasurable if you get out to the right places socially.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Private conferences with key people are most beneficial and advisable today and in P.M. Also, read your paper and listen to TV programs for novel ideas. Progress will be yours if you work quietly.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You are able to go after those personal aims today, provided you know what it is you want. Success can come through the auspices of trusted friends, if you confide in them. Later, get out and make valuable contacts. Grow.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Look to that powerful higher-up you know for the advancement, the new position, the support you need at this time. However, be sure your credit is A-1. Dining out at some fine restaurant with friends is fine tonight.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A perfect day for getting into new interests that will prove successful, lucrative. Consult progressive friends for the ideas that will help you channel your energies wisely. After enough study, come to quick decisions.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Forget dramatics and glitter now and go along with powerful higher-up who is interested in seeing you advance. You can advance very quickly thereby and yet not jeopardize present safe and secure position you enjoy. Expand.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Lengthy conversations with key people will lead to greater success and give you fine, progressive ideas now, so be sure you plan your time and set up appointments wisely. Ask lead questions, but then do most of the listening.

If your child is born today ... he, or she, will be one of those rare people with remarkable inventive ideas, plus the ability to make them constructive-ly workable. Be very sure you educate your clever progeny wisely, according to a formal academic course, plus training in business courses, so that the great success in his chart starts early in life and progresses slowly but surely.

Astrological Forecast

Wednesday, May 24

By CARROLL RIGHTER

General Tendencies: This is a day when your logical reasoning powers and your knowledge of details and the specific work required are at loggerheads. You want to perform duties in a painstaking manner, but you need more information if the success you desire is to be yours. An ingenious and inventive attitude are needed for right results. Keep conscientious.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) —Put aside unimportant tasks so that you can look into bigger and better interests. Be sure to read your paper for information and to study other periodicals. You can make your life far more successful and happy by thinking constructively.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) —Be careful you are not extravagant in your desires to have a good time. Concentrate on inexpensive fun after you have done your utmost to insure greater abundance and security. See that you keep well within your budget.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Important you are very kind and thoughtful with close ties today and avoid any arguments that might easily start up. Keep busily occupied with pertinent affairs and be sure to take the treatments that will improve your state of health.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Forget private anxieties and be off into the bustling world of activity where much can be accomplished. Make and keep appointments, see that your bills aren't overlooked or collected, etc. Be very careful while out driving, however.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — very opportunity is yours to get together with congenials at the hobbies or activities that bring the greatest mutual benefits. However, do not commit yourself heavily where finances are concerned, though there is temptation.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—Be sure that your credit and good will remain intact now. A thoughtless act might place you in jeopardy. Labor very efficiently since Big-wigs are in an irate mood and would like nothing better than to vent ire on you.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) — Important you remain alert and eager to do what is expected of you now or you get things pretty messed up instead of advancing quickly with the aid of higher - ups. Work.

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22) — Be careful not to get into the clutches of a conniving individual who wants your secrets. Stick close to those who truly have your interests at heart. However, don't commit yourself where finances are concerned today. P.M. have fun.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) — Observe all keen perception you have today and heed the wise words of a higher-up. And while you are able to preach gentle rapport with associates, higher-ups do not seem to grasp your ideas at all now. Be patient.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Get out of that rut early and out into the teeming world of activity where you are able to have more fun, new opportunity and meet a host worthwhile individual. Strive to better yourself so that life becomes more fascinating.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) —Important you show a smiling exterior now and think along lines of big business or sizeable affairs instead of worrying about the pennies. They tonight is fine for being happy with loved one. Be kind and thoughtful.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) —Steer clear of possible fracas at home and get out early with associates so that you have a successful day in business or other activities. Attend to any civic matters, also, and acquire greater prestige and good will.

If your child is born today he, or she, will be one of those unusual individuals who can plow through a maze of confusing conditions and get at the core of things. However, you must early teach to complete what is once begun before going on to something else. Then the child becomes very promising and great success is possible if you advocate your progeny well and give spiritual training, too.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In each hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of even 10 to 30 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Bio-Dyne is now made in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Jake the Barber Sends $25,000 To Save Patriots

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — John (Jake the Barber) Factor says he's wired $25,000 to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt "to help save the lives of the 1,200 Cuban patriots being held by dictator Fidel Castro."

Mrs. Roosevelt, Milton Eisenhower and Walter Reuther head a committee to raise money to buy 500 bulldozers Castro has demanded as ransom.

Factor himself was the object of a $200,000 ransom attempt after he was kidnapped by a Chicago gangland mob in 1933. He was released and his testimony sent Roger (The Terrible) Touhy to prison for a 99-year sentence. Touhy was subsequently released and was shot to death.

DESERONTO

Removal of Curb On Front Street Hotly Debated

DESERONTO — Discussion of problems concerning the streets took up considerable time of the regular council meeting on Monday night. All members of council with the exception of R. Marks were present, with Mayor Sweetman in the chair.

A petition signed by a number of merchants on Main St. was read. It requested the council to give earnest consideration to the removal of the curb on the north side of Main Street between Centre and Prince streets. This was laid over to new business and when re-introduced took some time. Mr. Lock spoke to council on behalf of the merchants and stressed the fact that with angle parking the street was not wide enough and could be the cause of a fatality. He said that if a motorist's injury was impanelled because of an accident, that angle parking would be ruled otu and the merchants would lose considerable business because of the loss of parking space. He advocated council allowing all the parking space possible. Councillor Lott suggested that an estimate of the cost be obtained as well as a report of the gain in space that would be made. Council set up a committee to discuss the matter and, on motion of Reeve Metcalfe, decided to ask the H. J. McFarland Co. for an estimate of the cost of removing the curb and paving the area from the present road to the sidewalk. Mr. Luck also spoke of the very great possibility of a new business coming in the town.

APPLICATION REFUSED

H. Klaver asked for a business license for the sale of candy and ice cream at his residence. Council felt that this would violate the residential clause of the by-law being prepared and refused his application.

The petition of a number of residents of East Thomas and First Streets to have the drain cleaned on First Street was referred to the streets committee.

A letter from H. Moody and T. Kentish objecting to the junk yard on George Street, brought forth another letter from the occupant of the premises who stated the premises would be cleaned up early in June as he was vacating the property.

Council granted the sum of $10 to the St. John Ambulance Association and $75.00 to the Deseronto Memorial Scholarship for 1961.

Councillor Howard reported that the work of patching the streets was progressing favorably and the west end of the town would be completed in a day or so. As a result of the illness of Councillor Marks, who is chairman of the streets committee, council appointed Councillor Howard in charge of the streets committee until Marks is able to return.

Councillor Detlor gave notice of motion of a by-law on zoning the town and one for the erection of stop signs. The street committee was given authority to purchase the necessary signs.

After being notified of the failure of the present incumbent to clean privies and septic tanks, council decided to advertise for tenders for the position. Notice of motion was given for the rescinding of by-law 1427 governing sanitation.

The mayor advised council that he had received a phone call from Mr. Marek to the effect that he intended placing a gate across the roadway leading to the pump-house. Council felt they would be within their rights to expropriate twenty feet of this property for a road to the pump-house. They decided as the first step to have a survey made of the east side of Fourth Street and the south side of Water Street adjoining the Marek property on the bay front. When the proper lines are established they will then know the proper procedure to follow. This report will be completed for the next regular meeting.

Many Names For Thistles

Field sow-thistle, creeping sow-thistle, bare's-lettuce, thistle milkweed, milky tassel, colewort: all are names associated with the three sow-thistles found in Ontario — perennial, common and spiny. All sow-thistles have a white, bitter, milky juice.

The seeds of all sow-thistles are scatgered by the wind in the same manner as dandelion seeds. Sow-thistles are commonly found in spring seeded crops such as oats, barley, corn and soybeans. In early June, about the time the oats and barley begin to ripen, hardy fieldfed sow-thistles were on a patchwork appearance of yellow, covered by the yellow sow-thistle blooms which always stick up a few inches above the grain crop.

According to the Field Crops Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture, the old slogan of "Sow in July when it's hot and dry" is still a very useful control measure in heavily infested areas. Modern chemicals proper used, however, will prevent sow-thistle from ever becoming a serious weed problem. 2, 4-DB, although more expensive, is more effective on sow-thistle than 2, 4-D. Sixteen ounces of 2, 4-DB in twenty gallons of water per acre, applied to the grain crop at the six-inch to shot-blade stage, will keep sow-thistle well under control and will not harm the under-seeded grass-legume mixture. More detailed information on control is contained in the new Ontario Department of Agriculture publication No. 75, available without charge from the office of the county agricultural representative.

PUBLISHES OWN BOOK — Jacques Hebert (left) and Pierre Trudeau, both of Montreal, spent six weeks in Communist China this year and returned to write the book Mr. Trudeau is holding—Deux Innocents en Chine Rouge. (Two Innocents in Red China). The book was published by Mr. Hebert's own firm. He became involved in the publishing business when Quebec authorities refused to print his book defending a convicted murderer.

Books Too Hot to Handle By Ordinary Publishers, So Starts Own Business

By GERRY McNEIL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Three years ago, when Quebec publishers found Jacques Hebert's violent defence of a convicted murderer too hot to handle, he suddenly found himself in the publishing business.

Since then he has aimed 21 books, practically all of them controversial, at the book-buying public and has sold 330,000 copies.

A 35-year-old self-taught newspaper man, Hebert ran into trouble with the publishers when he tried to peddle the manuscript of a book on Wilbert Coffin, who was hanged in 1953 for the murder of three American hunters in the Gaspe Peninsula, denouncing the provincial government's handling of the case.

He finally had to go to Edgar Lesperance, a printer and distributor of adventure novelettes and other popular French-language publications.

Lesperance tossed the Coffin book aside with his regular run and it sold 13,000 copies. The pair signed a two-year contract and founded Editions de l'Homme, producing little rankling from Communist China to prison reform and selling them at $1 a copy.

This month the partnership was dissolved and Hebert formed his own company, Les Editions du Jour, letting the printing contracts.

Under the new arrangement, he hopes to venture into fiction and satire.

The book on Red China was written by Hebert and Pierre Trudeau, also of Montreal, after a six-week trip to the Asian country this year. It's called Deux Innocents en Chine Rouge —Two Innocents in Red China.

Hebert commissioned 80 per cent of the books published by the old firm. His most spectacular success was Les Insolences du Frere Untel. (The Impertinences of Brother Solange) a caustic critique of Quebec speech and manners by Brother Pierre-Jerome, a Marist teaching brother at Alma, Que. It sold 116,000 copies.

As head of last year's provincial election campaign, Hebert published Le Chretien et l'Electeur, a searing condemnation of corrupt electoral practices as volunteering written by Abbes Gerard Dion and Louis O'Neill of Laval University.

"Terrible workers came to us and took piles of copies to their factories and sold them," Hebert said. "People who never entered a bookstore bought copies."

JAIL EXPOSE

The first two books published by the firm in late 1959 were Hebert's expose of conditions at Bordeaux jail near Montreal and a biography of the late Premier Maurice Duplessis.

The Duplessis biography, launched within weeks after the premier died, was written by political reporter Pierre Laporte. The only Hebert publication so far to be translated into English, it sold 22,000 copies in French and 5,000 in English.

Hebert risked arrest to get background for the book on conditions in the psychiatric wing at Bordeaux. A 20-minute interview with some of the inmates convinced him of the truth of allegations that sex perverts being held for no apparent reason in overcrowded quarters.

As he struggled to get the facts, an anonymous telephone caller offered him a file from the warden's office. Hebert took it, had a photostat made and returned it within 24 hours.

The Quebec government denied the book's accusations but changes were quietly made in the jail's administration.

All Latin America May Be Lost to Soviet Bloc if Castro Remains Long in Power

— Miller

Harold K. Milks, chief of The Associated Press Caribbean services, arrived in Miami Friday night from Havana with the first planeload of Americans repatriated from Cuba. Milks had been in asylum in an embassy in Havana since April 18, but from his many contacts in Cuba he has gathered a comprehensive picture of developments there.

By HAROLD K. MILKS

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Fleeing Americans left Cuba Friday with the firm conviction that if Fidel Castro's Communist regimins long in power all Latin America will be lost eventually to the Soviet bloc.

The invasion fiasco of mid-April has left Castro undisputed ruler of Cuba's 6,000,000 people. His opposition, which two months ago threatened to develop into a potentially dangerous enemy, has been shattered and disheartened. And his followers are behaving openly that the C o m m u n i s t revolution in Cuba today will be a Communist wave over the rest of Latin America tomorrow.

Diplomats in close contact with the Soviet Embassy from its inception said in Havana this week they believed only outside forces could possibly swerve Castro from his program of turning his once happy island into a Communist stronghold than any in Central Europe.

Several said if his rule continued for as long as six months they saw little hope of keeping communism from the rest of Latin America.

In the north following the invasion, which shattered against the Communist armed forces, I saw little of Cuba beyond what was visible from the windows of two embassies in which I took asylum from Castro's police and intelligence agents seeking me because they claimed all American newspaper men were spies.

PICTURE TERRIFIES

What I heard with highly placed Cubans and many fo r e i g n o t s in Ha. The picture they drew was terrifying from a Western viewpoint. Fidel Castro today is on a power - mad rampage and there appears to be nothing in his own country which might halt him.

The bearded leader shattered the u n d e r g r o u n d opposition within Cuba at the same time he smashed the April invasion. What is left is a mass of unhappy and angered Cubans, hating his Communist regime but too t e r r i f i e d by its armed strength to oppose it.

The end of the invasion alert in Cuba by no means halted the reign of terror which Castro

i n a u g u r a t e d. Hebert is well-equipped to take the calculated risks his profession demands. Politically, he is realistic. He knows his rights and those of others.

He bucked Duplessis and his nationalist policies as early as 1951, when he started a weekly newspaper called Vrai (True).

He was called leftwing, but nobody has ever accused me of being rightist," he says.

Despite this, Hebert looks slightly capitalistic in the well-cut conservative dark suits he favors. His thinning black hair crowns a medium build.

A cousin of talented Quebec poet Anne Hebert, he is an indirect descendant of Louis Hebert, the first Quebec settler.

...ands, and thousands of Cubans were imprisoned for no reason other than that they did not support Castro's regime.

Thousands of people, grabbed by secret police and herded into detention centres under inhuman conditions, have been freed. But thousands more have been arrested in the wake of a campaign of repression which appears to go deeper than those of the worst days of the Communist campaign in Europe.

The Castro revolution, encouraged by its military and political successes, has reached the stage of brutal swaggering with the Cuban dictator and his supporters openly lashing out at their enemies at home and abroad and challenging the United States to do anything about it.

LOSING CONTROL

It appeared to me as it did to many others watching the Communist sweep over Cuba that al-timey Fidel Castro had lost control of his own revolution.

One of his proudest boasts had been the honesty of his regime. Yet his G-2 and militia raiding parties in their roundup of Americans and Cubans after the Bay of Pigs invasion at times seemed more interested in looting than in finding agents of counter-revolutionary or other wrongdoing.

Americans caught in the Castro roundup and released through interv e n t i o n of the Swiss Embassy reported their homes had been pillaged while they were detained.

A similar wave of legal lawlessness swept the entire island in the wake of the thwarted i n v a s i o n. In some areas, outside the Havana province, it was directed mainly against the R o m a n Catholic Church.

What is the solution to this threat to the political stability of the hemisphere?

TIME IS PAST

Many diplomats with whom I talked before leaving, Cuba say the only effective anti-military intervention in Cuba by the United States or other Latin American nations, unless Castro provides a reason.

It was the concensus of these observers that the best way to oust Castro today is to ridicule him.

"Make a dictator look ridiculous and you destroy him," said a spokesman in the Havana diplomatic corps.

"That's the job of the United States. I think Washington should assemble a tax force-oot of marines or paratroopers and a skilled propagandists and use it to make the bearded Castro look as silly as he is."

TROUBLE FEARED

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — The justice ministry has asked the judge advocate general of the armed forces to investigate rumors of a widespread plot against Castro. The ministry said a "worker-student-peasant movement" is reported planning to overthrow the government and establish a Castro-type regime.

Jobless Total Drops 83,000 By Mid-April

Unemployment Rate Up Over Last Year Report

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment in Canada dropped by 83,000 between March and April to a mid-April total of 622,000, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today. The jobless total, a post-war record for April, represented 9.7 per cent of the labor force, compared with 8.8 per cent a year earlier.

The decline was the second in monthly drop in the unemployment figures after a five-month winter climb to a February peak of 719,000.

However, the April total was 70,000 higher than a year earlier —and the unemployment rate was up over last year in all regions.

Only Political Dodge Says CCF Leader

TORONTO (CP) — Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario CCF leader, said Tuesday night the government's demand that opposition parties turn over any evidence of "organized crime" that they possess can only be taken as a political dodge.

He said in a statement that the reaction of Premier Frost's government to any possible embarrassing situation has been to try to cover it up.

When it served their purpose, they have deliberately blocked the submission of evidence that would have proven their guilt," he added.

Mr. MacDonald said Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer has fumbled the crime issue by limiting his activities to parallel statements calling for establishment of a royal commission to investigate organized crime and gambling.

He said Attorney-General Roberts was "playing Tory politics" in the repeated assertion that any information on crime should be given to the police.

Mr. MacDonald said the attorney - general had at least some, if not all, the information on which the CCF leader has based his contention that leaders of organized crime sometimes operated with the cooperation of persons in high places.

The attorney-general was informed of efforts by persons in high places to influence the courts when gamblers were on trial, and he did nothing about it," said Mr. MacDonald.

"He did nothing, because to take proceedings further would have been profoundly embarrassing to the Tory party, including people in high places," he added.

Three Montreal Men Arrested At Napanee

NAPANEE (CP)—Three Montreal men were arrested and charged early today with possession of narcotics for the purpose.

The men, Alfred Cadieux, 43, William Marcelli, 44, and Lionel Tremblay, 24, were arrested after a Kingston cafe owner told police he was suspicious of a $10 bill a man tried to use to buy cigarettes.

The cafe owner said the man took the bill back and paid for his cigarette change. Later he was questioned about the bill.

Five counterfeit bills, all Canadian $10 denominations, were found in a car bearing Quebec licence plates.

REMAND SOLDIER

CHATHAM (CP) — A 19-year-old soldier stationed at Wolesley Barracks, London, Ont., was remanded Tuesday for a week on a charge of shooting a 15-year-old Ridgetown, Ont., girl. Pte. Lloyd Edwin Mills of Glencoe, Ont., was given time to reconsider his plea of guilty. Mills said he believed the girl was 17. The girl, who disappeared Friday, was found with Mills in Toronto Tuesday by police Monday night.

BEN-GURION WILL BRIEF P.M. ON MIDDLE EAST

Claims Situation Is Worsening

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier David Ben-Gurion of Israel flies here today to impress Prime Minister Diefenbaker and North American leaders with what he regards as a steadily worsening Middle East situation.

Mr. Ben-Gurion's plane was due at Uplands airport at 10 a.m.

He will fly to New York Sunday night, after visits to Quebec City and Montreal, meetings with United Nations Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold Monday and U.S. President Kennedy Tuesday.

An Israeli government spokesman said the premier's chief aims in North America are first, to impress Western Hemisphere leaders with the continuing and increasing dangers of United Arab Republic commitments on peace in the Middle East and second, to thank Canadian and American Jewish community leaders for their investment in Israeli bonds.

A strong contingent of advisers in foreign and military affairs is accompanying Ben-Gurion on his first official visit to Canada as the incoming prime minister of the 13 - year - old independent republic of Israel.

A Canadian government spokesman said talks between Mr. Ben - Gurion and Mr. Diefenbaker late today probably will concentrate on foreign affairs, with the two prime ministers exchanging bilateral views and North American viewpoints.

WON'T DISCUSS UNEF

The Canadian source said it was very unlikely there would be much discussion on the United Nations Emergency Force now in the Middle East.

At present 1,000 Canadians are serving in the 5,000-man force, acting as a buffer between Egypt and Israel and neighbors.

Israel never permitted the UNEF to be stationed on the Israeli side of the border following the Suez crisis. The Canadian impression is that Israel now accepts the presence of UNEF in the Middle East as a tranquilizing factor in the troubled area.

The Israeli source, however, said his government regards the situation as still dangerous and still deteriorating with the importation of Russian MIG fighters by the UAR.

18 Killed, 4 Injured as Military Plane Crashes After Takeoff

McCHORD AFB, Wash. (AP) — A big VIP military transport carrying servicemen from many Americas plunged into a wooded area five miles from takeoff today, killing 18 men and leaving four injured critically.

The C-124 Globemaster fell apart as it lifted from the McChord runway in pre-dawn darkness, headed for Fort Sill, Okla., with 15 army men and its air force crew of seven.

Five men got free somehow from the shattered, burning plane and were rushed to hospital in Seattle and Tacoma. One died a few hours later.

One airman and three air force crew remained in critical condition.

"One of the first men at the scene heard a man calling for help," said Capt. Joseph Higgins, McChord public information officer. "The survivor, in his shock, was found sitting on a log near the wreckage."

Say Kennedy Behind Plan For Tractor-Captive Trade

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy was reported today to have taken a personal hand in the behind-the-scenes maneuvering which led to the creation of the "tractors for freedom" committee to free captured Cuban invaders.

Authoritative sources said Kennedy was deeply interested in obtaining freedom for the anti-Castro prisoners if possible.

The three leading figures on the committee—Walter Reuther, Dr. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Dr. Milton Eisenhower—have refused to confirm or deny they had been in contact with Kennedy. But Reuther reported a "green light" from unspecified Washington officials.

While various departments mentioned in reports handed out position, Kennedy's encouragement was seen in a variety of indirect ads from different federal agencies that indicated White House interest.

1. A U.S. Coast Guard plane provided transport for prisoner representatives.

2. The state department made plain it would waive the Cuban request to let the trades through.

3. The treasury is reported seeking ways to allow tax deductions for gifts to the committee.

4. The White House was said to have decided the exchange would not violate the Logan Act—a law that bars private U.S. citizens from dealing with foreign governments in any matter in dispute with the United States.

On the other hand am Raybourn of Texas, Speaker of the House of Representatives, said Kennedy told congressional leaders at a White House conference Tuesday that the government "is out of it and is going to stay out."

But help from the top or not, the deal may still have a stormy time.

Senator Hubert Humphrey, Minnesota Democrat, predicted today that Fidel Castro will back out. It was the Cuban prime minister who first proposed exchanging the 1,200 prisoners for 500 tractors.

Humphrey, assistant Senate Democratic leader, said in an interview "there are all kinds of indications that Castro does not intend to go through with this plan."

Freedom Riders Form New Group to Continue Bus Tour

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—New groups of so-called Freedom Riders are expected to arrive in Alabama by chartered bus today to continue a violence-marked bus tour of the southern states.

"We are still recruiting people," a spokesman said today, announcing that Negro students and ministers were coming from Chicago, Detroit, Nashville, Tenn., to reinforce the dwindling 14-bus band of angry mobs here.

"Many, many groups are on the alert — more than we can serve," said Ed King of Atlanta, Ga., executive secretary of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee.

Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. said white and Negro "Freedom Riders are sticking by their plans to fly here from New Orleans, despite Governor Bowe Davis's warning to "stay out of Mississippi."

National guardsmen, ruling Montgomery under martial law, John Patterson's edict of martial law, kept them off the streets and guarded the Greyhound bus station where the Freedom Riders' chartered bus was beaten unmercifully by rioters Saturday.

South African Police Raids Bring Thousands of Arrests

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) — Police carried out sweeping raids throughout South Africa today as the government extended its tough crackdown on opponents of its withdrawal from the Commonwealth.

Thousands of Negroes, Indians and whites have been arrested in the government crackdown and more swoops have been recalled to duty.

Several organizations have called on workers to stay home from their jobs for three days beginning next Monday. The republic is to be proclaimed a week later.

Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd and his Nationalist government ordered the heavy action.

Today's swoops against the African National Congress and the Pan-Africanist Congress followed the government declaration of a state of emergency following the police killings of 67 Negroes at Sharpeville on March 21.

Verwoerd had told Parliament the "unnecessary and undesirable" to debate the ban on all meetings between May 18 and June 18 as sought by the opposition.

Such a debate could have only "propaganda value" and lead to incitement," he said.

Hon. Earl Rowe Stands Up for Death Penalty

OTTAWA (CP) — "Don't let us get chicken." Hon. Earl Rowe said Tuesday night in the Commons during debate on a government bill abolishing the death penalty for unprovoked murdered murder.

Veteran Progressive Conservative for Dufferin - Simcoe added: "Don't let us get soft . . . we are not here to abolish the criminal but society."

Mr. Rowe said he wondered whether the Commons was being carried away by sentimentality.

"I am more concerned with the life of the young child or mother than with all the criminals who have died on the gallows," he said.

"In the twilight of my career I'd dishonor myself to vote for total abolition of the death penalty."

Nobody could tell him that hanging was not a greater deterrent than life imprisonment, a sentence which might end as little as 12 years.

Scores of little girls had been raped and murdered, small boys killed and bank clerks shot. Thousands of men lay in Canada's graveyards as martial principles. If a few innocent men had been hanged, they had died in a just cause.

DEATH PENALTY DEBATE SHOWS MIXED REACTION

Fulton Supports 2 Degrees of Murder

OTTAWA (CP) — A capital punishment debate continues in the Commons today on a government measure to establish two degrees of murder in Canada—one punishable by death at the gallows, the other by life imprisonment.

Reaction of the score or so of MPs who spoke Tuesday was mixed.

Several MPs insisted that the death penalty should remain as it stands. Others felt it should be abolished altogether. And there were opinions falling somewhere in between.

Many members—including the abolitionists — expressed support for the principle behind last week's coup, gave new assurances that the Junta will return South Korea to civilian control. He said in a statement that the Junta's "sincerity and honesty no longer then necessary."

Mr. Kyle, a native Montrealer, joined the railway 37 years ago as lawyer after graduating in engineering student at McGill University.

He served as central region vice - president in Toronto from 1955 to 1960 when he became regional general manager from 1949 to 1950.

Between that time he was assistant vice - president of operations and system headquarters here.

Korean Junta's Head To Confer With Kennedy

Will Leave Wednesday For Washington Parley

SEOUL — Lt.-Gen. Do Yung Chang, leader of South Korea's ruling military junta, will leave Wednesday for Washington to confer with President Kennedy, a junta source said today.

Gen. Chang told a press conference earlier today he would visit Kennedy as soon as possible to "accelerate the understanding" and obtain the support of the American government and people for last week's "Korean revolution."

"I am informed reliably that President Kennedy wishes to see me," Chang said.

RECOGNITION SOUGHT

Another, government source said Chang received certain information directly from Washington" that Kennedy wished to see him.

However, the American Embassy in Seoul said it did not know of any "arrangement" between President Kennedy and Gen. Chang.

The embassy, which has opposed the coup, Tuesday expressed "deep concern" over the junta's move in banning political and social organizations in South Korea.

Maj.-Gen. Jung Hui Park, regarded as the man behind last week's coup, gave new assurances that the junta will return South Korea to civilian control. He said in a statement that the junta's "sincerity and honesty no longer then necessary."

Justice Minister Fulton moved closure on a new government bill dealing with capital punishment, one aim of which is to confine the noose for premeditated murder while lowering the penalty for other murders.

Some MPs insisted the death penalty should be retained, as it stands now; others felt it should be abolished altogether.

Liberal Deachteists and Conservative Gordon Aiken both came to the same conclusion—that the effect of the bill would be to abolish the death penalty in Canada.

Finance Minister Fleming said the government hopes to have legislation passed this session on new federal-provincial tax arrangements.

P.M. Is Warned Of Israeli Militarism

MONTREAL (CP) — Issa Nakleh, permanent representative of the Palestine Arab delegation to the United Nations, sent a telegram to Prime Minister Diefenbaker Tuesday in warning of Israeli militarism.

Mr. Nakleh said he sent the telegram on eve of Israeli Premier David Ben Gurion's visit to Ottawa because "I'm sure Ben - Gurion isn't here to enjoy the good Canadian sunshine."

"He wants arms," Mr. Nakleh told a radio interview. "We know that Israel plans to make war on Jordan within a year. We don't think Canada should be involved."

Mr. Nakleh said the Arab point of view on the Israeli situation was never heard "because newspapers are boycotted by Israel and Jewish money are telling only half the story."

"I am a Christian Arab," he said, "and I'm proud to say I was Palestine. When the Jews took over, they took my law office, my books and my home. Then they expelled me."

"It is wrong, by international law," Mr. Nakleh said, "to discriminate against any citizen of state. In occupied Palestine—I shall never say Israel — the Arab is a second - class citizen.

"I say that if Eichmann killed 6,000,000 Jews, Ben - Gurion killed 1,000,000 Arabs, and one day he will have to sit in a glass box, to hear his crimes."

Eichmann Trial Will Be Televised

JERUSALEM (Reuters)—The prosecution told the court trying Adolf Eichmann today that some 100 children seized by the Germans during the Czechoslovak deportations of Jews in Czechoslovakia during the war were found again after the Second World War in Germany.

Assistant prosecutor Gabriel Bach said the prosecution had checked to try to find out if anything had been found out about the children after the end of the war but "up to now none of these children has been traced."

Eichmann, accused of the murder of millions of Jews during the war, is charged with causing the deportation of the children to Poland and their murder there.

The Czech village was razed by the Nazis in 1942 in retaliation for the assassination of Reinhard Heydrich, chief of the Bach read extracts from Eichmann's pre-trial interrogation in which the accused denied responsibility for the fate of the Lidice.

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A raid by city police morality officers on a branch of the Royal Canadian Legion here Friday prompted a plea for royal intercession Tuesday.

William Dennis, president of Byron Branch No. 533, after consultation with his fellow officers, took the matter to Queen Elizabeth, the patron of the Legion.

He said he telephoned Buckingham Palace and was advised by the Queen's secretary to send a telegram. He was told it would be read and referred with instruction to Governor-General Vanier in Ottawa.

Morality officers carted off 59 cases of beer from Legion premises in the raid, the third carried out by police in less than two weeks.

The serving of beer by Legion branches in areas of London annexed Jan. 1 is against the law.

The telegram to the Queen read in part: "We are 100-strong active service veterans. We are being victimized by the prohibition resulting from political manoeuvres. We beg your intervention."

"We have been trying to find a move about to give us the same privileges as army messes," Mr. Dennis said. "We can't operate illegally or legally."

May Be Forced To Move Outside Farmers' Market

The demand for off street parking in the downtown Belleville area will probably soon see the outside farmers' market moved from its present location on the market square.

This is the feeling of Mayor M. Hall who pointed out that the day is coming when the market would have to be moved to meet the demand for additional off-street parking.

He suggested that the old city gasworks plant property south of the CPR tracks might be a possible future site for the market and also for the city yards.

Referring to the demand for downtown parking the mayor pointed out that on every day when parking was most in demand the market square was used for market purposes.

Historic Site Subject of CBC Radio Broadcast

A town is being built on the Bay of Quinte, 100 miles east of Toronto, but it's construction of old, authentic materials but the builders aren't concerned with the fact — they're proud of it.

The town is a replica of an historical site — Upper Canada Village, a life-size model of a typical Eastern Ontario town of the early 1800's.

It is the subject of an hour-long CBC radio program in the Venture series, Sunday, May 28. The broadcast will be heard on the Trans-Canada network (CBL) at 5 p.m.

The program, entitled Overture to 1812, will include interviews by Bill McNeill with historians, builders, blacksmiths and a 103-year-old man whose memory helped contribute to the restoration of the buildings.

The 40 buildings, dating from 1792 to 1867, were moved to the site in Morrisburg at Battlefield Park from various points in the area in order to escape flooding due to Seaway construction.

The project commemorates the Battle of Crysler Farm, Nov. 11, 1813, when British and Canadian troops stopped an American attack aimed at Montreal.

In the restoration, every effort has been made to preserve the authenticity of the project. Old wood was employed to patch the log buildings, hand hewn beams were used and cutting was done by hand-saws and in the original construction.

Historian Ronald Way, who is living at the site during construction, will discuss some difficulties of the undertaking during the broadcast. Mr. Way is creator of another well-known historic site, Fort Henry.

Chamber Plans June 14 Dinner For Recruiting

TRENTON — In an effort to sell the Chamber of Commerce to businessmen and industrial heads, the Chamber will sponsor a giant "get-acquainted" dinner in the auditorium of the Community Gardens on June 14. Executives and their wives will be guests of honor. Walter Laschuk and Jack Goldberg are in charge of arrangements.

At last night's Chamber directors' meeting, president Harold Pearce commended Mike Gartner, Jack Goldberg and Don McPherson on their work in planning a downtown parking area and presenting the plan to town council. The plan would entail the eventual demolition of the present fire hall and police station and filling the space with parking meters.

Retail merchants in the downtown area had protested to council about a proposed addition to the present fire hall. Last night Mr. Gartner said that town clerk O. W. Larry had promised him, as chairman of the merchants' group, to say that the "addition was out" this year, as funds had not been allowed for the work in the 1961 budget.

At the request of Chamber members, Ian Darling will assume the duties of Chamber secretary pro tem. He will be assisted by Ted Kinsella, H. B. Smith, secretary since Chamber was re-formed last year, announced his retirement last month.

Ian Darling said that he had found a location near the 401 road for a sign which would welcome visitors to the town. Now a suitable location for a second sign must be found at the city or other entrance to the town. Town council has been asked to refurbish the existing sign which has been stored for years in the town sheds. Mr. Goldberg suggested that a sign advertising the location of the town be placed on the Murray Canal pier.

Baha'is Recall Declaration Of the 'Bab'

TRENTON — "Behold What God Hath Wrought!"

On May 23, 1844, the first telegraphic message in history flashed along wires in America. On the same day in Shiraz, Persia, a young merchant announced to a friend that a new era in world history and religion had dawned, with its coming came a new message from God. This youth, who came to be called the 'Bab' or the 'gate' to the new age", said Mrs. Jim Lott, speaker for the Baha'i meeting of the local Baha'i community which celebrated the 117th anniversary of the declaration.

The first telegraph was the herald of an age of expansion in transport, communication and scientific discoveries", said Mrs. Lott, 'and the declaration of the Bab was the herald of a fresh vitality in religion. With the coming of the Bab came the knowledge that all men worship the same God, though their rituals may be varied; that love, in the form of justice, must be expressed in a national as well as on a personal level; and that in the world of today, religion and science must work hand in hand to overcome the time when they were in reality enemies."

Mrs. Lilly Brant of the Tyendinaga group was chairman of the meeting.

The municipal parking lot on Trent Street is being resurfaced this week on resurfacing Quinte street.

Tenders have been called for the construction of 50,000 square feet of sidewalk. Bids close on May 31.

Fine Man $100 For Failing To Remain

TRENTON — In magistrate's court here Tuesday, Francis Oldrey of Trenton, charged with failing to stop after his vehicle was involved in an accident, was fined $100 and assessed $3.50 costs.

On May 5, the Oldrey car struck a parked car owned by Pat Donnelly, Victoria Ave., Trenton, on Dundas St. East.

Oldrey told police that his "choke was stuck" and that he could not stop after he struck the other car. Mr. Donnelly pursued the Oldrey car for two blocks, and finally caught up with it.

Damage to the two vehicles was set at $300.

One Trenton resident, charged with consuming liquor in a place other than his residence, asked for a few days to pay a $15 fine.

Asked by the magistrate if he could not borrow the money from friends, the man said, "I ain't got them kind of friends. I've got friends on pay day, they got money".

However, he said that he might be able to raise the fine money if he could make a phone call.

Police Chief F. J. Taylor told the court that the money might consider providing taxi service in order to let him get the money as this would be cheaper in the long run than taking him 'back to Belleville' to jail.

House on Street, Council Wonders Who Owns What

City council wants to know just who owns the un opened Fahey Street, right of way where it intersects with West Moira Street and has directed the solicitor to get the information as soon as possible.

Alderman Jack Ellis, chairman of the city public works department, noted it was important to determine the ownership of the street right of way as it would be along this artery that sewers would be installed to serve the Parkdale area.

But the crux of the matter is that the right of way apparently cuts through the corner of a house, the owner of which has had the deed for his property for over 30 years.

"It's important that we know as soon as possible who owns the right of way," he said.

Council Delays Legalizing New-Rate Parking Meters Already Placed on Front St.

It's going to be free parking on Front Street for the next day or so until city council passes an amended by-law legalizing the new dual-headed meters installed on the main thoroughfare a week or so ago.

Yesterday city council received a delay in public consideration recommendation calling for the amendment of a city by-law providing for the installation of new type parking meters from one hour double the hourly parking fee to ten cents per hour instead of a nickel.

The meters were installed two weeks ago but there had been a delay in bringing the amended by-law in to council.

To straighten the matter out council will meet with the local parking authority in a special caucus meeting Thursday.

Parking commission chairman Glen Thompson stated today, however, that as far as the commission was concerned the council action would make no difference to the operation of the meters.

"Whether or not they want to prosecute meter violations is up to council and the police department," he said.

There was divided opinion on the part of council on the wisdom of increasing the parking fee on Front.

Alderman Corke said the reason for the new meters was that the old meters were worn out and had to be replaced. The increased parking fee was instituted to encourage more people to use the off-street parking lots," he said.

Alderman Robert Temple said there had been many complaints about the increased parking fee.

CALLED GUNFIGHT

"I don't think it will make parking any shelter to obtain. It's merely going to make it more money," he said.

Alderman Ireland said he also had received many complaints about the increased parking fee but wondered what the charge for parking was in the downtown areas of other centres.

Alderman Don Hamm said that the ridiculous part of the whole thing was that the matter was coming to council after the meters were installed.

Alderman Ben Corke wanted to know whether the parking authority had the authority to increase the parking fee without the approval of council.

"Can we turn it down?" he asked.

Alderman Elliott said the matter had been before the traffic committee with members approving unanimously of the increase.

It was agreed, however, to refer the matter back to get an opinion from the city solicitor. Later the caucus meeting of council and the parking authority members was arranged for Thursday.

PLAN NEW LOT

At Thursday's meeting council will also get the details of the proposed purchase of the old James Roy property on the west side of Front Street north of Victoria Avenue, as an area for the development of additional off-street parking.

Earlier in the meeting a recommendation from the finance committee asking council to take action to purchase the property was referred back for lack of details.

At present the matter be referred, Mayor Haig suggested it should be put on the table laid into by the finance committee.

Council was told that the project would cost an estimated $100,000 and would provide parking for approximately 300 cars.

Alderman W. Jarvah said his information was that the parking authority was that the cost would be self-liquidating.

But Mayor Haig said council would be only assuming the cost would be self-liquidating.

NEEDS INVESTIGATION

"This whole matter of off-street parking warrants investigation," he said.

He said that motorists were continually being irked by the receipt of parking tickets for a few minutes over-time parking and he noted that this was depriving public relations.

He said that parking lots with attendants where motorists paid only for the time parked should be investigated, while he was not certain whether a multi-storey parking garage on one of the present parking lots would not be a good thing.

Alderman Corke said he felt the parking authority was wise in its move to purchase the James Roy property as it was the only downtown lot now available.

"It is a pity that we have to discuss it in such a vague manner," he said.

Grant of up to $75,000 Asked by 'Y' Building Fund

A municipal grant of up to $75,000 has been asked from the city council for the proposed new $350,000 Belleville YMCA to be constructed in the east end of the city.

The formal request was made to council last evening by William S. Wills, chairman of the YMCA building campaign and was referred to the finance committee without discussion.

Included in the delegation waiting on council were Mr. Wills; John C. McDonald, YMCA president; Don Williams, past president, and general secretary, D. J. Diamantides.

Mr. Wills told council that the present "Y" has been in use for over 50 years and said it was outgrown, outworn and outmoded. The new "Y" was proposed to be built on a six-acre site on Victoria Ave. east of Herchimer.

Mr. Wills outlined the services which the "Y" provides for all age groups in the city and suggested that a municipal grant of at least one half of the cost of providing the swimming pool at the new site be voted by council. He said the cost of the pool would be between $120,000 and $150,000.

Recognizing the need to ease the tax assessment in the city, Mr. Wills suggested that the grant given would be spread over three to five years.

Council entered into no discussion on the grant request but referred the matter to the city finance committee.

'Y' Building Fund Stands At $140,046

YMCA new building campaign workers, meeting Tuesday night, reported subscriptions totalling $72,932.00 secured over the hole day weekend, making the grand total to date $140,046.

Leading section for the night was that of J. Bryson Leslie, reporting $2,506 closely followed by Freeman E. Burrows' section with $2,368. George A. McEllistrem's section reported $1,338. The leading division was that of Leo McQuay, reporting $971; and the leading team that of Mrs. G. Thompson, reporting $315. For advance gifts committee John C. McDonald reported $21,760. Seven workers were recognized for reaching or exceeding their individual quotas of $300 . . . Donald Boyce, Arthur Ehler, Gordon Locklin, R. J. McAllister, Mrs. Marge Miller, Howard Nelles and Mrs. Robert Ross.

E. E. Follwell, a team worker, introduced a newcomer to the bonnie. "Crime," he said, "seems to be increasing; and the best cure for it is to provide useful and helpful activities to fill the leisure time of youth."

"How fortunate we are," he remarked, "that the YMCA program does just that, in addition to many volunteer leaders, our YMCA has been blessed with staff secretaries who — with modest financial remuneration — give their lives in service to our youth." Reverting to the campaign workers, Archdeacon Creegan declared, "You workers in this project are giving mighty service, every leader in our community, by your efforts to provide the YMCA with finer tools to do their jobs; and you do it for exactly the same reason that YMCA leaders devote their lives — just because you have a deep loyalty to improve. God bless you all!"

Robert W. Freestone, who presided, asked the leaders and workers present to urge their friends associates to support their efforts. "You will notice," he said, "that while we have reached the half-way mark in time, we have reached only one-quarter of our objective. The results to date show that Belleville's new YMCA building. It's your responsibility to give everyone the opportunity to contribute his or her share." The next report meeting will be on Thursday evening.

Council Directs Treasurer to Write off $6,833

City council last evening directed Treasurer C. J. Bender to write off overdue accounts amounting to $6,833.

The largest item on the list was an amount of $5,740 owing from the Donovan Construction Company in connection with a bill for the restoration of the sewage following the installation of gas mains in the city.

Council was told that the matter had been settled in court and the city was writing off the $5,740 balance.

The remainder of the items to be written off totalled $1,093.

Tom Hookings, local CJBQ radio announcer, did just about everything but give local Kiwanians the shirt off his back as he related the trials, tribulations and triumphs of being a disc jockey between gales of laughter at the weekly meeting at the Kiwanis Centre yesterday afternoon.

Starting off with a classical discussion of the virtues of Latin mottoes and their application to everyday events, Mr. Hookings proved through a liberal translation of the motto of the local radio station that there was much truth to be found in the words of a dead language.

Departing from the realm of the classics the speaker conducted a brief lesson in the anatomical analysis of the disc jockey, the general theme of which indicated that there could exist many a slipped disc in the backbone of the profession. Those present, through the assistance of various visual aids, were quick to appreciate the speaker's theory that eyestrain could be produced, graphically speaking, not by a straight line between two points but, rather, by one with a series of compound curves that would set the old air airwaves media.

The various problems confronting a disc jockey in the organization and presentation of his program were delineated by the RCAF veteran who then promptly confused each listener with facts and his audience as well through a series of oratorical plots and gambits pertinent to each problem.

DEMONSTRATED POINTS

Throughout his speech Mr. Hookings demonstrated a prime point in the disc jockey's character, a point which he later summarized as the removal of his personality as a necessity of the profession; versatility with a reasonable knowledge of a number of subjects at large. To this facet of his work he added the necessity that of maintaining a good and acceptable appearance at all times, and that, if necessary, of plunge wholeheartedly into the activities of the profession even, if necessary, to the point of giving the shirt off one's back for one's audience.

Mr. Hookings demonstrated the latter points most emphatically when he removed his linen maculately tailored and well-pressed shirt and tossed it into his audience to a highly esthetic and scintillating bare-back rendition of the latest hit which has been rarely seen in recent years on the dinner speaking circuits of either rural, suburban or metropolitan areas.

The speaker concluded by having shown his audience that a "D.J." can truly put his back into his work, and received the plaudits of the Kiwanians.

The club members also participated in an interesting session of the club executive's recommendation that a substantial contribution to the YMCA building fund. Final discussion of the matter was left over to the next in two weeks' time.

President Jack Brain conducted the meeting.

Fluoridation of Municipal Water Approved by Council, Little Opposition to Move

Belleville city council yesterday approved of the fluoridation of municipal water supplies and will request the public utilities commission to institute the fluoridating of water in the system.

The recommendation forwarded to council from the city Board of Health was passed with little discussion and with only two or three councillors voicing objection.

Alderman Walter T. Elliott was most outspoken against the institution of the recommended fluoridation program. He agreed that a fluoridation had its advantages, but at the same time pointed out there was much, which was not understood.

He said the costs for setting up the fluoridation program would run as high as $44,000, and opposed fluoridation of water supplies without a referendum.

Alderman Eugene Harrison, chairman of the city Board of Health, said Alderman Elliott's estimate of the costs was too high. He said the costs for adding fluoride to the city water supply would total only about four cents per year per person.

REASONS FOR SUPPORT

He said the local dental association was urging fluoridation and claimed such a program could be expected to reduce cavities in children's teeth by up to 50 per cent. The benefits of such a program would far outweigh any disadvantages, he said.

Alderman Jack Deacon said it was the duty of council to approve fluoridation without a referendum. Arguments for a referendum were merely a "smokescreen" he suggested.

"Council has a duty to perform and should not back away from its obligations", he said.

Alderman Don Whalen said he possibly agreed with fluoridation but suggested council should learn more of the costs involved before taking any action.

In answer to this Alderman Jack Ellis declared he knew what dental woes for his children was costing him and said he was willing to pay more than his share of the fluoridation costs.

Earlier in the meeting a delegation from the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club testified on council urging approval of the fluoridation program for city water.

Renovations on Two Floors Of City Hall to Cost $17,500

City council will proceed with renovations to two floors at the city hall to provide badly-needed space for city administration departments.

Yesterday council voted to proceed with the work and approved the tender of local contractor Bert Hiles to carry out the work "at a cost of approximately $17,500.

The contemplated renovations will see the appearance of the inside farmers' market with the space to be used for enlarging the welfare department, provision of office space for the city purchasing agent, and for the location of the city clerk's office in the area on the second floor of the building.

Upstairs the plans call for extension of the city assessment department and for the location of the planning engineer's office to the space now used by the city clerk.

Council voted for the full renovational program for both floors at city hall, rather than for a partial program which would have seen renovations carried out only on the first floor.

He claimed the work was proposed primarily to provide space for the city administration department. Instead of spending the money for renovations, he suggested council should be purchasing agent's office in the first floor space now used for council committee meetings.

But council voted to proceed with the renovations, and agreed for the cost to be debentured.

Municipal Problems Studied

The Ontario Legislature's select committee on municipal law will study the possibility of a province-wide municipal election day.

Law is one field in which uniformity is generally desirable—but surely the date of municipal elections is one of the exceptions to this rule. There are many factors to be considered in determining the best time of year for municipal elections and several of these factors vary greatly from one community to another. Vernon Singer, Liberal member for Toronto York Centre, suggests that it would be a good idea to have the municipal year correspond to the provincial fiscal year, so municipalities would know what grants they would get and would thus be able to set their tax rates early in the municipal year, thereby avoiding paying interest on borrowed funds. This suggestion sounds reasonable, but there are other ways to effect this saving without imposing any uniformity in the municipal election date. It would be possible, for instance, to permit municipalities to levy a first installment of taxes, due Jan. 1, the amount to be equal to a quarter of the previous year's taxes. Or the municipal fiscal year need not coincide with the term of office of the council members—and whatever is the municipal approach it was, to all intents and purposes, followed for a number of years by one Ontario city, in which the council for one year set the budget in the fall and levied the taxes for the next year, so that the first payment fell due early in January.

Of one thing we feel certain—few municipal councillors and even fewer municipal electors are likely to view with favor another suggestion by Mr. Singer, that four-year terms for municipal councillors be permitted, at the discretion of the electors. Sometimes it is a burden enough to endure a Federal or provincial government for four or five years without an opportunity to get rid of it, to suggest that electors would ever vote to saddle themselves with municipal councillors for a similar term is to give the word "discretion" a queer twist.

An Unwise Offer

Fidel Castro picked a bad time in offering to exchange a thousand prisoners, captured in the April 17 invasion, for 500 bulldozers.

Castro said there was a historical precedent —during the Napoleonic wars Spain exchanged captured French soldiers for pigs.

Unfortunately for Castro, there is an even more recent precedent, of which the world has recently been reminded. Eichmann offered to exchange Jews for trucks.

In fairness to Castro, it must be admitted that the circumstances are slightly different—the Jews had never invaded Germany, but were the citizens of an ally of Hitler and a relatively willing ally, at that, Hungary. Nevertheless Castro can say, though, can eliminate the fact that he proposes to use human beings as "trade goods." The only exchange which he could make with a clean conscience would be to offer to free the prisoners if the U.S. pledged that it would not permit its soil to be used for any new invasion attempt, nor would it finance such a venture.

New Ways With Old Problems

Old problems can be solved in new ways and old customs put to new uses.

It would take a lot of shepherds to keep watch over Australia's hundred million sheep which wander freely over the pasturelands of that great sub-continent. Nor would bellring the wether prove of much help—of what use a sound without ears to hear it? But ears can hear over vast distances today with the help of science and Australia's sheep farmers have substituted small radio transmitters for the traditional bell. Automatic signals enable the sheep herders to find their sheep when shearing time comes around.

To the north of Australia, an old custom has been put to a new use—or perhaps one ought to say put to use for the first time. A university in Indonesia initiates freshmen by holding a Red Cross "medical week" requiring the freshmen to attend lectures, enroll as blood donors and organize campaigns to collect medicine, clothing and food.

The youth gets together his materials to build a bridge to the moon, or, perchance, a palace or temple on the earth, and, at length, the middle-aged man concludes to build a woodshed with them.—Henry David Thoreau.

Nothing changed more constantly than the past; for the past that influences our lives does not consist of what actually happened, but of what men believed happened.—Gerald White Johnson.

Ladybugs Are Prized

Chatham News

In our younger days, encountering a diminutive spotted bug, one used to put it tenderly on the back of one's hand, and chant the magic words:

"Ladybug, ladybug, fly away home,
Your house is on fire and your children all gone."

Whereupon you waved your hand, and the ladybug vanished into thin air.

That must have been what a psychologist would term "subconscious conservation." For highly-civilized even in those distant days, for present-day farmers and entomologists the lady bug is tops.

The lady bug is in fact the angel of the insect world. So highly is it valued, in the United States there are "ladybug farms" where the insects are collected and shipped to 30 states and as far away as Egypt. One company ships over 10,000 gallons of ladybugs (135,000 bugs per gallon) each year. They are shipped in 100, 500-bug packages, boxes, leaf-sacks and in small packages of 5,000 for small gardens.

Why has the ladybug, affectionately known in the rhyme as "Little Cow of God," become so popular? Science has the answer. She eats such harmful insects as mealy-bugs, aphids, cutworms, leaf-worms, mites, scale and the eggs of insects known to be harmful to man. The ladybug is carnivorous and will not eat vegetation. Nor does she attack other "good" insects.

Hoary Old Argument

Toronto Telegram

The hoary old argument that Western Canada would be better off if neither truck nor trade with the Communists was resorted to has been dressed again in guarantees that disapprove Canada's commercial dealings with China and Red China. In the last two weeks, for instance, the signing of a major Canadian grain deal with China has drawn the fire to three critics, like a letter written in the New York Times regard it as "immoral" and a "betrayal of the West" for the U.S.

In actual fact, Canadian commercial policy regarding these two countries has been in line with the policy of members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The Canadian offer of embargo has been the exception rather than the rule.

The charge that countries who trade with China and who are willing to keep in "cautious Communist regimes in power" doesn't hold water. If Canada — and other Western nations were to cut off all trade with Communist countries, it would be doubtful whether the West would gain on balance. On the contrary, it could be argued that the failure to trade has benefited and actually weaken the West's economic strength.

Humanitarian considerations are at stake as well. This is why the U.S. has exempted food and medicine from the embargo on Cuba. The Canadian sale of grain to China comes under the same category. China has suffered a disastrous crop failure and famine is a real threat. No one in a position to help could stand aloof.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY
DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS
SERIOUS BEYOND WORDS
We have had occasion to remind ourselves frequently that the growth in crime in the United States has assumed alarming proportions. Yet no matter how often we have reminded ourselves of this tragic fact we have not reminded ourselves often enough. Crime is increasing percentage-wise so much more rapidly than population that we should be standing aghast at the figures we read. The F.B.I. has a message for Americans which they had better heed.

Let us always remember that the men in the dock have claimed that the free democracies will finally disintegrate not through outside pressure but because of weaknesses within. Lord Macaulay made this prophecy about the United States many years ago. Now and again a politician or writer has had the courage to depart from rosy prophecies of future greatness and to get right down to the brass tacks of everyday iniquity. The criminal population in any nation is comparatively small, but it takes only a speck of infection to poison a whole body.

Church, school, government, newspapers and every agency for social betterment need to gird up their loins and turn and face the enemy relentlessly in stealing up upon us. We must do something about this situation or it will do something to us. And what it can do to us is so tragic that we can only subvert out gaze form the plight in which our children and many more will be involved.

"Dear Dr. Meisner: I have a malignant growth in the colon. Because of a friend's heart condition, my physician said that surgery is out of the question.

He referred me to a prominent cancer specialist who has been giving me "shots of" treatments, and I have had 17 thus far.

"I have been told by several dear friends that these treatments result in severe after-effects. They advised me to discontinue them. Now I don't know what to do.

It seems to me that we had better get this straightened out without delay. Your dear friends doubtless have the best of intentions — but we all know what is paved with good intentions.

In such a case, life itself is at stake. I am amazed that these dear friends are all ignorant of this!

It is true that cobalt-60 treatments may carry a risk of discomfort. But to say that is correct, hardly any treatment is completely without risk of some discomfort or other.

In cobalt treatments there is some risk that the patient may encounter what we call "radiation sickness" for a time. Why is this? Well, in the first two radiation is used to destroy the cancer cells. However, it may be (but not always is) enough radiation to make the patient feel pretty sick for a time.

This, however, passes. And there are measures which can be taken to ease the discomfort, although I must say that in severe cases the patient has to put up with the annoyance for a while. However, it is not to be (but not always is) enough radiation to make the patient feel pretty sick for a time.

Modern science of the basic sort is filled with paradoxes of this kind. Indeed, the closer we approach the basic laws of the universe, the more we find that the "opposite" blend into an essential unity.

The profundity of Bohr's observation, for example, in its application to a great deal more than the world of physics, may believe that the world of ideas has much the same sort of "complementarity" that the world of matter has.

It is easy to see that the opposite of "true" is obviously "false: a while cannot be black, water cannot be dry, fiance cannot be both lucky and a republic at the same time.

But, when we consider a great and important truth such as, "Man was made to be free," we fall into dangerous error unless we remember that the opposite truth that man is also bound.

He is bound to his nature, as he is bound to his Creator. Each one tree and nothing else. He is bound by responsibilities, duties and acts that are distinctively human; he is bound to friendship. So when the is no longer rational, he is no longer a man.

All the consequential ideas of humanity are bound together in a tension of paradox. Man's liberty and man's servitude are opposite sides of the same coin. To grasp the rope by only one end is to become so entangled in it as to advocate of dead fatalism. Man is made for liberty — but he is not made for irresponsibility.

This is only one obvious example of how the apparently conflicting truths merge at the heart of a great matter. To comprehend is to understand relations, and to use them, is the ultimate task of civilization.

Russo-U.S. Pact Coming?

Financial Post

A mental straight-jacket inhibits a lot of current thinking, or what passes for thinking, about world affairs. For example, what's your view of a Russo-American alliance? Does it seem fantastic? Or as a fantastic as the idea of colonizing the moon?

Here is what a right-wing London newsletter, with a fairly good record of correct guesses, has to say:

"Russia is convinced that, in the course of time, China will in every way outmatch Russia and control a large part of South-East Asia. Russia also fears that one day India will go Communist and China. What she would leave Russia as a mere satellite. Khrushchev knows that the best solution of all would be to give up militant Communism and join the West. That is what Litvinoff (Soviet foreign minister under Stalin) stood for and many people in Russia want this."

Whether it's credible or not, Western people should try to break out of the rigid thought pattern in which the East-West quarrel is an everlasting, unchangeable feature of the world scene. If it really is unchangeable, atomic war is a certainty.

Strictly Personal

Niels Bohr's Strange Rule Is Explained

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Two weeks ago I quoted Niels Bohr, the noted Danish scientist, who said: "There are trivial truths and there are great truths. The opposite of a trivial truth is plainly false. The opposite of a great truth is also true."

Several readers has asked me to explain what Bohr meant by this enigmatic remark. I will do the best I can in a brief space.

In his pioneer work on atomic physics, Bohr has developed what he calls the principle of complementarity." This means, simply, that opposing theories often turn out to complement one another; that conflicting truths may be reconciled in a higher truth.

One of the most fascinating examples lies in the realm of light rays. There are two opposing theories: one, that light is made up of waves; the other, that light is made up of corpuscles. These theories contradict each other — but both happen to be true, depending upon which operation we are trying to perform.

Modern science of the basic sort is filled with paradoxes of this kind. Indeed, the closer we approach the basic laws of the universe, the more we find that the "opposites" blend into an essential unity.

The profundity of Bohr's observation, for example, in its application to a great deal more than the world of physics, may believe that the world of ideas has much the same sort of "complementarity" that the world of matter has.

It is easy to see that the opposite of "true" is obviously "false: a while cannot be black, water cannot be dry, fiance cannot be both lucky and a republic at the same time.

Coopering Takes Skill

BBC London Letter

An old craft is unlikely to die out while whisky is still drunk in bars of country inns. The making of barrels, for storing the liquor during the maturing whisky than in barrels made of wood. In a recent BBC broadcast a professional overseas service program, Mr. Ian Macdonald of Tomnavoulin-Martin described a visit he had paid to Scotland's first school of coopering. The school is a big cooperage in Glasgow.

Mr. Macdonald, who, he said, before the young trainees could be classified as skilled coopers, who today earn a high wage. During the first three months, he said, the basic handicraft, following the various processes from the time when the wood, which the American oak in prime condition, was delivered. The shaping of the staves, then the steaming to get the barrel bend into them, the heading and driving out. If the barrels are to hold whisky, the inside will be slightly charred because this helps the whisky mature. Never that a certain amount of sherry will be poured into the barrels and will be absorbed by the wood by compressed air. This is to give whisky time to mature in the barrel. Compressed air to force the sherry through the wood is comparatively new method, which gets a barrel ready for whisky in a matter of days. The old way was to leave the sherry in the barrel for "several several weeks."

After three years the learners graduate to making barrels alongside a master cooper for a further two years, learning among other things that a cooper never knows. "The wood settings are made into bungs for the barrels; the chips are used to cure fish by smoking — and the sawdust is burned to smoke hams."

Cobalt 60 an Effective Treatment for Malignancy

By Joseph C. Meisner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Meisner: I have a malignant growth in the colon. Because of a friend's heart condition, my physician said that surgery is out of the question.

He referred me to a prominent cancer specialist who has been giving me "shots of" treatments, and I have had 17 thus far.

"I have been told by several dear friends that these treatments result in severe after-effects. They advised me to discontinue them. Now I don't know what to do.

It seems to me that we had better get this straightened out without delay. Your dear friends doubtless have the best of intentions — but we all know what is paved with good intentions.

In such a case, life itself is at stake. I am amazed that these dear friends are all ignorant of this!

It is true that cobalt-60 treatments may carry a risk of discomfort. But to say that is correct, hardly any treatment is completely without risk of some discomfort or other.

In cobalt treatments there is some risk that the patient may encounter what we call "radiation sickness" for a time. Why is this? Well, in the first two radiation is used to destroy the cancer cells. However, it may be (but not always is) enough radiation to make the patient feel pretty sick for a time.

This, however, passes. And there are measures which can be taken to ease the discomfort, although I must say that in severe cases the patient has to put up with the annoyance for a while. However, it is not to be (but not always is) enough radiation to make the patient feel pretty sick for a time.

Modern science of the basic sort is filled with paradoxes of this kind. Indeed, the closer we approach the basic laws of the universe, the more we find that the "opposites" blend into an essential unity.

The profundity of Bohr's observation, for example, in its application to a great deal more than the world of physics, may believe that the world of ideas has much the same sort of "complementarity" that the world of matter has.

It is easy to see that the opposite of "true" is obviously "false: a while cannot be black, water cannot be dry, fiance cannot be both lucky and a republic at the same time.

But, when we consider a great and important truth such as, "Man was made to be free," we fall into dangerous error unless we remember that the opposite truth that man is also bound.

He is bound to his nature, as he is bound to his Creator. Each one tree and nothing else. He is bound by responsibilities, duties and acts that are distinctively human; he is bound to friendship. So when the is no longer rational, he is no longer a man.

All the consequential ideas of humanity are bound together in a tension of paradox. Man's liberty and man's servitude are opposite sides of the same coin. To grasp the rope by only one end is to become so entangled in it as to advocate of dead fatalism. Man is made for liberty — but he is not made for irresponsibility.

This is only one obvious example of how the apparently conflicting truths merge at the heart of a great matter. To comprehend is to understand relations, and to use them, is the ultimate task of civilization.

There's no basic difference between radiation from cobalt-60 and radiation from the high-voltage X-ray units which have been in use for many years.

In one case, an X-ray tube emits the rays. In the other, the same sort of rays are emitted from a pellet of cobalt which has been made into a ray-producing isotope.

Depending on the location of the tumor which requires treatment, it is quite possible to focus the rays so sharply that "radiation sickness" can be avoided. And cobalt units can be focused very sharply indeed, which is helpful.

Something like one-third of all cancer patients are being cured by surgery and -or radiation. Where surgery is impossible, radiation is absolutely necessary. Trolling a person to discontinue the treatments amounts to telling her to give up a meal, because it might be unpleasant, even though giving it to invited death. These friends simply cannot understand what terrible advice they are giving!

"Dear Dr. Meisner: My business and my life depend on facial skin. It doesn't seem to be possible. In case an extensive eruption of pimples and a fine tooth comb on it, and sometimes it bleeds a little. In the past two weeks it has been itching. — Mr. F."

This decidedly sounds like more than dandruff. A scalp infection, called seborrhea, is a frequent cause of this sort of trouble. In case an extensive as this, treatment should be prescribed by a physician or a skin specialist.

"Dear Dr. Meisner: What can be done to remove a port wine birthmark from the face? — Mr. F."

KEEP LIVING AHEAD

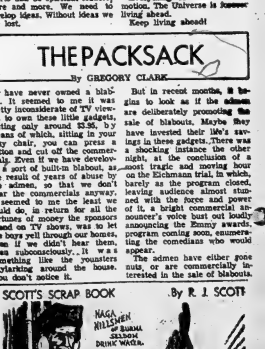
Keep living ahead — and back up the words: "Keep Living ahead." We all grow as we succeed; but, as a fact, we owe many a triumph to feeling our way ahead — just like a fool in the dark. Faith, with faith, confidence and self-reliance is lead out into the light.

We must keep adding to the self-investment and then tramp on ahead, with our eyes on hope. To grasp the rope by only one end is to become so entangled in it as to advocate of dead fatalism. Man is made for liberty — but he is not made for irresponsibility.

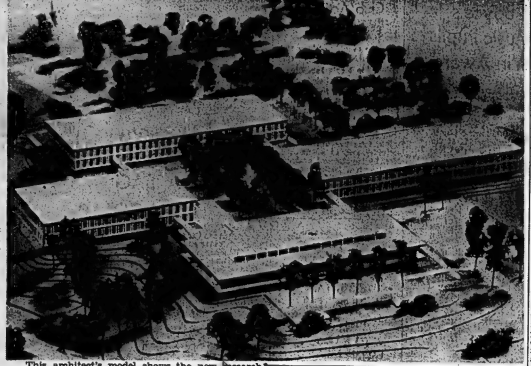
This is only one obvious example of how the apparently conflicting truths merge at the heart of a great matter. To comprehend is to understand relations, and to use them, is the ultimate task of civilization.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK



I have never owned a blabout. It seemed to me it was pretty inconsiderate of my viewers to own these little gadgets, costing only around $3.95, by means of which, sitting in your cozy chair, you can press a button and cut off the commercials. Even if we have developed the sound of these things, as a result of years of abuse by the admen, so that we don't hear them as a nuisance anyway, it seemed to me the least we could do, in return for all the fortunes of money the sponsors spend on TV shows, was to let the boys yell through our hoses, even if we didn't hear them. Then subconsciously, it was something like the younsters skylarking around the house. You don't notice it.



But in recent months, it begins to look as if the admen may be cutting down on the sale of blabouts. Maybe they have invested their life's savings in these gadgets. There was a shocked hesitation the other night, at the conclusion of a long, tedious hearing hour on the Eichmann trial, in which, barely as the program closed, leaving the viewer quite stunned with the force and power of it, a bright commercial announcer's voice burst out loudly announcing the Jimmy something program coming soon, enumerating the comedians who would appear.

The admen have either gone nuts, or are momentarily interested in the sale of blabouts.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

This architect's model shows the new research centre, being built near Ottawa by the Northern Electric Company, where communications research will be carried out for the Canadian telephone industry, including its parent company, The Bell Telephone Company of Canada. The first building—a two-storey laboratory at the left—is now being occupied and the administration building at front will be ready by fall.

Canada's First Telephone Research Centre Is Opened Today by Northern Electric

OTTAWA — Canada's first telephone research centre today began opening its doors to the scores of scientists and technicians who — working in a new setting near the capital — will create and develop ideas of benefit to the nation's communications.

One of the four proposed buildings is now being completed. A second building will be completed on the spacious, 70-acre site in time for the official opening this fall. Two other laboratory buildings are planned for the future.

The Northern Electric Company's research and development centre will serve the Canadian communications industry, including its parent company — The Bell Telephone Company of Canada. It will double the Northern's present research facilities, fast growing since their formation in 1957.

Research into projects of specific concern to communications in Canada will be the centre's basic function, said A. B. Hunt, Northern vice-president who heads the organization. In this, it will complement the work of the world-famous Bell Telephone Laboratories in the United States.

"There is a real necessity for the development of specialized products and services to meet conditions peculiar to our own Canadian environment," he said.

The importance of the Northern research centre was stressed by T. W. Eadie, Bell Telephone president, who described it as "the nucleus of a major Canadian research centre, one that will share its findings with the world just as the Bell Laboratories do today".

IN GREEN BELT

The scientists will work in an atmosphere conducive to the creation and development of ideas. The arrangement of the buildings provides a campus-like setting. The site is just west of the city limits in the two-mile deep "Green Belt" that is part of Ottawa's long-term plan to beautify the capital.

The staff will include many scientists with advanced degrees at the master or doctorate level, plus technicians such as laboratory assistants, tool makers and model shop personnel of high technical skill, as well as their associated office workers.

Surroundings that would attract some of Canada's best scientific minds were just one of the factors that had to be considered by the planning committee, headed by Mr. Hunt and A. G. Lester, Bell Telephone's vice president - engineering. Others were as varied as distances from major centres, transportation services, school and social facilities for employees and proximity to bodies such as the National Research Council and the Defence Research Board.

FIRST BUILDING READY

The first building started in the spring of 1960, is a two-storey research laboratory. It will also house office staff until the administration building is finished in the coming months. By fall, there will be some 200 full-time employees in the two buildings, which together will provide over 100,000 square ft. of floor space.

The one-storey central administration building will feature a unique sound room where "pure" sounds can be tested. It might better be called a "dead" room because it will be so constructed that there will be no reverberation of sound and no sound will enter from without. There will also be a comprehensive library of technical books and periodicals.

The new centre will bring together groups now spread over three cities. The first group now moving in comprises some 125 scientific and office workers located in rented quarters in Ottawa. Next will be the 50 or so people in the semi-conductor research group in Montreal. Then there will be the 15 to 20 members of the audio and video research group now located temporarily in Belleville.

Eventually, when the last two laboratory buildings are completed as expansion dictates, it is expected the centre will house close to 1,000 persons engaged in developing new products and services for the benefit of Canadian communications users.

LODA Help Is Requested By Commission

Assistance of the Lake Ontario Development Association will be asked to guide the Belleville Industrial Commission on a planned development program for the city.

City council yesterday approved of a recommendation authorizing the mayor to write the head office of the LODA at Peterborough asking assistance on the development program.

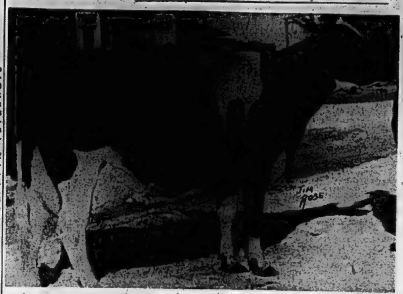
"They have experts to assist municipalities in drawing up such a program," commented Alderman Jack Ireland, co-sponsor of the recommendation along with Ald. Ben Corke.

The recommendation apparently was the outcome of a request which the city industrial commission made to council two weeks ago requesting direction on how far the commission could be expected to go in attracting new industry to the city.

Sales Profit Figures Hit 13-Year Low

TORONTO — Profits on the sales dollar in Canada's manufacturing industry in 1960 dropped to 4.4 cents, the lowest in the 13 years the Canadian Manufacturers' Association has studied them, J. Stuart Richardson, chairman of the CMA's public relations committee, reported today.

This figure is seven-tenths of a cent less than the profit figure of 1959 and 1.1 cents lower than the average of annual profits between 1948 and 1960.



"Our survey covered 1,006 companies right across the country", said Mr. Richardson. "These companies had net sales of $9,746,107,000 and employed in aggregate, 469,590 people in the 12 months covered by the survey.

"The profit figures certainly reflect the business difficulties Canadian manufacturers experienced as a group in 1960", continued Mr. Richardson. "What is more, out of the 1,006 companies which answered our questionnaire, there were 301 reporting a loss and this fact alone emphasizes that running a plant involves the risk of loss as well as the possibility of profit."

The 1960 survey revealed other interesting and significant information, continued Mr. Richardson.

Federal and provincial taxes on corporation income in 1960 were 3.9 cents out of each dollar of sales; the number of shareholders in the companies responding to the questionnaire was 343,109; total net worth of the 1,006 participating companies amounted to $6,279,-333,000; the profit expressed as a percentage of total net worth averaged out at 7.3 per cent; the profit of 4.4 cents on each sales dollar was split into 2.5 cents for shareholders and 1.9 cents for retention in the business.

"Sales profit figures have varied only slightly in the 13 years we have been questioning our members", concluded Mr. Richardson. "Our first survey, covering 1948, showed a profit of 8.2 cents. The highest figure was 1950, when it averaged 7.1 cents, and the lowest was this year, when it dropped to 4.4 cents. The average over the 13 years is a modest 5.5 cents."

COBOURG HOLSTEIN RECEIVES TOP AWARD — This pure bred Holstein, bred and owned by Gordon S. Macklin, Cobourg, has been officially classified "Excellent" for body conformation, the highest award available. She is Linmack Rosafe Floris and she is an outstanding producer as well, having given 17,389 lbs. milk containing 788 lbs. fat in 305 days as a senior three-year-old on twice-a-day milking. This record has a Breed Class Average of 102 per cent for milk and 103 per cent for fat.

Glorious 12th Relived at Chi Rho Meet

For over an hour during the Wednesday meeting of the Christ Church Chi Rho Fellowship the parish hall resounded to the sights, sounds and emotions that went to make up the Orange Walk at Belfast in 1958. That was the year Earl Keene travelled to the heart of Orangeism, as the representative from the lodges of this area.

Using a film "A Hundred Thousand Strong" and a taped recording of the bands, speeches and crowd noises, Mr. Keene recreated with his own enthusiasm the greatest "Walk" he has ever participated in — a memory that is even greener than his memory of the one held in Belleville in 1957 of which he was a prime organizer.

IRISH HOSPITALITY

His remembrances were many and-varied but throughout his talk was the thread of Irish hospitality. "I bought two meals during my month in Ireland." From the moment he set foot in Ulster until the moment he stepped onto the plane that was to start him on his journey back home, he was made to feel that he really belonged, a technique the Irish have developed into a fine art.

Historically, "The Glorious Twelfth" is a celebration of the Battle of the Boyne, in which William of Orange defeated James II. What is now known as the Orange Order began in 1795 after the battle of the Diamond between Protestants and Roman Catholics in County Armagh "to maintain the laws and peace of the country and the Protestant constitution." The ethical obligations of membership are high.

WORLD WIDE ORDER

The Orange Order is world-wide, as proven by the various contingents pictured in Mr. Keene's film. Two of the strongest were from Australia and Toronto. Along with Belfast, Glasgow and Liverpool, the Queen City is listed as one of the strongholds of Orangeism.

Mr. Keene was introduced by president Ted Warwick and thanked by Al Gardiner.

The refreshments at the close of the meeting were provided by Eleanor Butcher, Barbara Kellar and Marion Bailey. Joanne Cavalier's group was in charge of the meeting.

Prior to Mr. Keene's address, recreation was in full swing with the Bertzin Bouncers coming up with twin wins over the Crouter Crushers on the volleyball court. As a result of the night's action, the Bouncers have pulled to within eight points of leaders in the team standings. Bill Crouter of the Crushers shares the lead in the individual scoring with Herb Cavalier of the Bouncers each with 27 points. Joanne Cavalier of the Crushers follows with 25 points, while two Bouncers hold down the 3rd and 4th spots. Bob Swain with 24 points in third and Ted Warwick fourth with 23 points.

Weddings

ALEXANDER — INSLEY

A lovely, double-ring wedding was solemnized on Saturday, May 13, at 11.00 a.m. in St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill, Belleville, when Sheila Marjorie Insley, of Belleville, youngest daughter of Mrs. William Insley of Belleville, and the late Mr. Insley, became the bride of Gerry Milton Alexander, also of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald C. Alexander. The Rector of the Church, the Reverend L. Arthur Page, officiated before a background of mixed, spring flowers.

The bride given in marriage by her mother, was charming in her street-length bridal ensemble of white linens, featuring a matching three-quarter jacket of lisene and lace with small white flower hat. She carried a white prayer book crested with red Sweetheart roses mingled with white heather.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Douglas Murray, of Belleville.

The bride's table was prettily appointed with a white cut-work embroidered - linen, cloth and centred by a three-tier wedding cake, embellished with tiny yellow roses, and topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom.

The bride's mother received, attired in royal blue crepe and lace with pink hat and matching gloves, and corsage of pink carnations. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a two-piece green silk, orange hat and matching gloves, with corsage of yellow carnations.

WHEN TO ANNOUCE THE ENGAGEMENT

This letter, from a young lady in Maplewood, New Jersey, is quite interesting because many other young adults face the same problem. She writes

My boyfriend and I both nineteen years of age, are planning to become engaged soon. We want to be a large wedding and feel that a year will be necessary to make proper preparations for the wedding itself, and also to make our financial status more secure. However some of my friends have told me that the proper length of an engagement should be six months, or less. I thought perhaps you could help us with this problem, as we are anxious to do everything right.

Frankly, the friends are right in that six months are usually allowed between the announcement of the engagement and the wedding. It may be a period of three or four months; this also is perfectly proper. Actually, there is no rigid rule, but common sense comes into it.

If you announce an engagement a year before the marriage-ceremony is to take place, many things can happen. A year is a long time. Of course you know this won't happen to you, but young people often find, after a few months, that they aren't as suited to each other as they had first believed. If the engagement has already been formerly announced, it is difficult to explain to relatives and friends. If no announcement has been made, the couple does not have the embarrassment of admitting that they made a mistake.

There really should be no embarrassment, but there always is! Isn't it better to find out before marriage — rather than after — that it just won't work?

Why not wait six months before announcing your engagement? During this time you can learn more about each other. When you do take the step of formally letting your friends know the good news, you will be sure — and so much happier!

Gentle suggestion: A large wedding is very nice, if you can afford it. But, remember, it is not worth breaking up the budget in order to have it. Nothing is more impressive than a small and dignified ceremony with relatives and friends joining together afterwards to celebrate. Going off in debt for a big function, really doesn't make much sense, does it?

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Question — When I was a small child I was badly bitten by a dog. I have never been able to get over it, and am deathly afraid of dogs of all kinds. Several friends of mine, who ask me to visit them, have dogs. I always refuse their invitations because of this. I'm ashamed of this fear, but I can't help it. How can I explain it to them? — Miss H.V. S., Tupelo, Miss.

Answer — Be perfectly frank about it. You will not be doing the wrong thing if you tell them the truth and ask them if they will shut their dogs up when your visit them. I know it is difficult for you to do this, but it's better than having people think you don't appreciate their offers of hospitality.

Dr. Peter Moore, son of columnist Mary Moore, was married to Margaret Froome early this month. Margaret made her own wedding cake with her future mother-in-law's help. The top layer of this wedding cake is to be stored "for the christening party" at the bride's request. Margaret is a British bride and this is a British tradition. The recipe for this cake will be given to you next November to be used for your 1961 Christmas cake.

Early on the Sunday morning after the wedding the telephone rang and a low English voice said "This is Mrs Moore's junior speaking. May I speak to my mother?" and I said "Margy dear, you are!"

This will give you a glimpse of my delightful new daughter-in-law and Pete were pop-way to their wedding trip/destination in Haliburton but just had to talk about the previous day's events to someone so we had a great old long distance talk from which I hung up in a cozy glow.

WEDNESDAY

Main-Course Casserole (see Tuesday); Generous Salad of Head Lettuce, Chunks, Celery and Tomatoes with 1000 Island Dressing; Tapioca Custard Pudding; Coffee.

Pete is no longer a bachelor for they are well and truly married. A great vacuum pervades this house for all of the guests have gone — Marianne and Herbie and their precious brood being the last to depart. When I opened the refrigerator door this morning I found in a lonesome looking bride-maid's bouquet covered with cellophane. In Peter's clothes cupboard hangs his black formal suit. In mine are Margy's empty hat and shoe boxes. In the living room are flowers beginning to droop. In my fruit cellar is the top of the wedding cake which by British tradition must be stored carefully for the christening party.

I am lonesome but do not have time to dwell on it for there waits on my desk a pile of readers' mail to be answered. So I must get on with the business of my week's work.

The featured recipe which I am giving you today is called Shrimp Gumbo and it was served from a chafing dish at the rehearsal party. It was so popular the guests came back for second and third helpings. That ought to be sufficient recommendation.

SHRIMP GUMBO (serves 15):

Three packages fresh frozen shelled and cleaned shrimp, 3 cups water, 3 tablespoons vinegar, 1 small onion sliced, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon mixed pickling spice or "shrimp boil" spices, 1 cup raw long-grain rice, drained pulp from 2 20-oz. (No. 2) cans of tomatoes, 2 sliced green peppers, 1 pound washed and sliced mushrooms. To the shrimp in a large pot add the water, vinegar, onion, salt and mixed spices. Bring to boil and cook gently, covered for 10 minutes. Add rice and cook, covered, until rice is tender — about 25 minutes. (If drained off about 1 cup of the excess liquid at this stage.) Add all remaining ingredients (tomato pulp, green peppers and mushrooms) and bring to boil. (Note: I made this casserole a day in advance so as soon as it came to boiling point, after vegetables were added, I removed it from the heat and covered it, and stored it in the refrigerator until nearly serving time.) If you are going to serve it right away cook the vegetables only about 5 minutes for the pepper should be bright green and the mushrooms need only about 1 minute of cooking. This is a large amount so it may be served from a preheated soup tureen. Or as I did — serve it from a chafing dish, on or over which works out to 40c per person. A perfect party dish.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

Where has May gone and what has happened to it? It seems hardly possible that there is only one week left and apart from a day or two, it could not be called the merry, merry month of May by any stretch of the imagination. If April showers bring May flowers, what can we expect from all this May shivering? Certainly many spring flowers have been very late; the flowering shrubs and the lovely fruit blossoms are only now making a show.

We hope it is forgiven to talk about the weather since everybody else is doing it. Many there are who still say that the explosion of nuclear weapons and bomb testings have changed the weather. With only a handful of people understanding this type of thing, we are in no position to refute the statement. We still like the stand taken by a fine member of the older generation when she said: "I think it is nothing short of impertinence to go exploring the heavens".

CORRECT PREDICTION

The people who hold that the weather for the forty days following Good Friday are controlled by the weather on that day, have been right this year. But during the first week of May we heard a lady in a store say that all May was going to be cold and wet. Wherever this forecast comes from, it was right too.

It is more likely that weather along with a lot of other matters goes in some sort of natural cycles. While we are living through a bad cycle, it seems endless; the good cycles go quickly — which sounds familiar, too.

Have, we had spring? We suppose so since June is considered a summer month. Spring redecorating has gone on despite the dreary weather and we learn that preference and taste have turned to softly muted or grayed colors for wall shades instead of the sharper pastels. If you are doing a bit of touching up, here are some tips from a source which is in the business and should know what it is talking about. If masking tape is used when painting window frames, the tape should be removed as soon as the paint comes to the point where it will not run. If you leave it until the paint film becomes hard, you are more likely to cause jagged edges when you take the tape off.

PAINT SWITCH PLATES.

Electric light switch plates and outlets are less conspicuous if painted with the same paint as the surrounding walls. Remove the plates and paint them separately so that the paint around the plates does not become chipped when plates are taken off for electrical repairs. Garden furniture should also be painted the same color as the house trim or shutters to present a unified outdoor effect. Be sure to remove all loose paint and sand the rough spots before re-painting.

We are warned against using metallic paints on radiators since they keep the heat in. Radiators should be painted after the heat has been turned off for the summer. The type of paint for radiators is important too; research has shown that more heat comes through flat paint than through glossy enamel.

So, with painting around home, at the cottage and on the boat, can we end with a bated breath, "Summer is icumen in!"

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mr. I. B. — Did you ever hear of having perfect teeth pulled out?

Eunice B. — I trust my dentist. It's his idea for improving my looks.

Mr. I. B. — My daughter is 22. She makes a fair salary and lives at home with us. Whenever she's hit with a big bill for something she needs, I help her out.

But now she's signing a contract with a dentist for more than $1,000! He wants to put caps on her teeth. But first he's going to pull two of them, which, he says, are in the way.

How can a girl have too many good, healthy teeth? Eunice is attractive the way she is. But she wants to look like a dentifrice ad or a movie star. I'm willing to chip in to repair her teeth. But not to remove them!

Eunice B. — Dad doesn't understand how self-conscious I am about my big mouthful of teeth, some of which overlap, others of which are discolored and chipped. When my friends called my attention to the fact that, unconsciously, I was putting my hand in front of my face when I smiled, I decided to consult a dentist about my appearance.

I know it's expensive. It'll also be painful even though I'll get a local anaesthetic. But good looking teeth are so important. My dentist has it all figured out. The whole thing will take about a month and I don't have to pay the total immediately.

Dad must trust my dentist's advice. He'll have a daughter who keeps smiling!

The Council — "There are few smiles that make us happy," said an old First World War song. Eunice's, it seems, makes Mr. B. happy. But since it makes Eunice blue, he'll be seeing less and less of it.

When a physical attribute distresses its owner there are only two things to do — either correct it or accept it, and go on from there. When it's irreversible and uncorrectable, one can learn to live with it and find compensations. But Eunice's crooked and mismatched teeth can be prettified.

"Nature does not know best," said Dr. Peter B. Medawar, the eminent biologist, in discussing her blunders. Eunice may be one of the many children who inherit one parent's small mouth and the other's large square teeth which get crowded out.

At any rate, her plan to avail herself of cosmetic dentistry ought to be encouraged by her father. She's not out to spe the toothsome smiles of the a d s. She merely wants to achieve a row of teeth that fit her face and match each other. Then she can forget about them and grin easily, rather than grimace self-consciously as she does now.

We must insert the warning to Eunice, however, that the dental job may make her happy about her teeth and her smile, but it won't make her live happily ever after. That's ability comes from within. Many's the person who goes around with a gorgeous car-to-ear smile which cloaks what psychiatrists call "a smiling depression." The smile is only tooth-deep!

Since Dad is convinced that Eunice's smile is not only prettier, but several layers deep, he'll stop lamenting the two pulled teeth and the steep bill. Until then, only Eunice and her dentist — are smiling.

NOT A NUT

The peanut, native of tropical America, is not a nut but a legume, with seeds developing underground.

Women's Institutes

UNIONDALE W. I.

THE CON. OF SIDNEY— May meeting of Uniondale (Heritage West) Institute was held at Mrs. Morley Sines, 6th concession of Sidney with a large attendance.

Letters were read from G. Boyce re connection with historical research and Jane Gray, radio reporter. "Thank You" cards from recipients and flowers, baby spoons and fruit baskets.

The new amendments of the sick and flower committees brought in by the directors were read by Mrs. M. Sine.

Uniondale Women's Institute have applied for the "Fall Millinery Course" as their extension service, (this course is for three days). The achievement day for 4-H Club girls will be at Stirling on May 27; their course is "Dressing up home grown vegetables".

The program convener, Mrs. Bert Bush, opened with a sing-song, followed by piano solos, Monica Sine, "Grandfather's Clock", Elaine Sine, "The Little Prince", Betty Sine, "Sailors Hornpipe".

Mrs. Maurice Mallory has been chosen as district annual convener for agriculture and Canadian Industries on May 31st at Whites Church. Mrs. Edison Sine gave her report of the presidents conference at Guelph and read a sketch by Mrs. Lymburner, "The Power of Speech". She also expressed that members refer to the hand book and study it.

Mrs. Bert Bush read an educational paper which dealt with the life of Pauline Johnson, who was born near Brantford in March, 1861; Her father was an Indian Mohawk Chief and her mother came of a good English family.

The writing of poetry came naturally to Pauline. Her books, "The White Wampum", Flint and Feather" contain many dramatic poems about her Indian people. She wrote many musical poems about nature. She loved Canada and her books of patriotic poems entitled "Canadian Born", was published in 1903. Her later poems were of a more spiritual nature. Mrs. Bush recited "Canadian Born" and Mrs. Loney read a poem, "The Cattle Thief" by Pauline Johnson and Mrs. Harrington a poem, "What Others Do", and the meeting closed.

Mrs. Sine was thanked for her hospitality. Mrs. Sine also explained the making of 3 fruit salad which was enjoyed for lunch.

The June meeting will be at Mrs. Gerald Harrington's with topic, historical research, by Mrs. Ross Dafoe.

The Experts Say

Interest in Buying Antiques Waxing Says Auctioneer

By DEIRDRE MUNGOVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Everyone is a bargain hunter at heart, especially when they aim their sights at antiques.

And more people are showing more interest than ever in antiques, says Ben Ward-Price, owner of an auctioneering business in Toronto. He declares that demand is exceeding the supply, with a rising tendency in prices.

You have to know what you're doing if you want to get a bargain. Perhaps one of the worst hit was the American who bought every piece of silver offered at an auction in England. Too late, he discovered the prices were based on the weight per ounce.

In furniture, most enthusiasts prefer the 18th-century English pieces, says Mr. Ward-Price, but they usually have to settle for the heavier and more ornate Victorian pieces.

GENUINE PIECES

"Only God can make an antique—if you accept Him as time." he said in an address to a group of church women here.

No dealer will define the characteristics of a genuine antique, except that the article must be more than 100 years old—before 1858 in Canada, and prior to 1832 in the United States.

"It's a tricky business," says Mr. Ward-Price. "We are always arguing and discussing whether things are right. A man I knew who went to England, one day turned to me and asked: 'how do you ultimately decide if the piece is an antique?' I said you feel it. 'You're absolutely right,' he said. 'It comes from the atmosphere of the piece'".

Mr. Ward-Price and his colleagues insist that if you want to build up a good collection you should rely on the guidance of a reputable dealer or auctioneer. Besides this, read up on the history of antiques and attend lectures held in local museums.

"You can't go too far wrong at farm sales, but when you deal with high class stuff, you must know what you're doing. Otherwise you'd be pretty silly getting involved."

Don't forget that the market is full of copies of original works of art. Some of these copies are expensive, especially if they are obtained from a large establishment.

"One woman has been painting the Mona Lisa in the Louvre for 30 years now," Mr. Ward-Price says. "And her painting is as good if not better than the original although the colors are not as mellow. But after all it should be good because she has done nothing else during that time."

Although the main antique centres in Canada are Toronto, Montreal, Quebec City, Halifax and Vancouver, many farm and estate sales are scattered throughout the country. They feature Canadian silver, household and religious articles, crockery, glassware and pine, maple and fruitwood furniture. They are not as scarce as antiques on foreign markets, but this could be because they are not as yet fully recognized or appreciated.

Successful Living

By Doris Clark

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Husband Is a Drunkard

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—I am the mother of 10 children, and very much in love with my husband who to me seems immature, even though he is 20 years older. But he is an alcoholic.

Approximately one month ago he deserted the children and me; however, he has been back three times, but I refused him entry because I am afraid he will create another disturbance. Also, I am weak where my husband is concerned.

I have been in and out of court to get support. I did gain custody of the child, too, but he makes the weekly support a bit or miss thing. I have told him that if he would seek help about being an alcoholic, he will be welcome, as the children need a father and I need companionship.

His family also objects to me, as he is torn between them and me (especially his older sister who is unable to bear children). He also has another woman.

Should I stick to my guns or give in and let him return, as I am very confused and lonely. I am afraid of losing him completely.—LONELY AND PERPLEXED.

DEAR LONELY:—Alcoholics are always immature. What is his mental conflict, the thing that triggers the drinking? Could be the family's objection to you; could be the other woman whom you seem to be mentioning as an afterthought.

Perhaps there are some basic differences between you and him which make your marriage unsatisfactory to him; clashes of personality, maybe. You may have given in to him too much. Children and immature grown-ups really need people to be firm with them, no matter how much they resist them.

Obviously being "soft" with him has failed. Stick to your guns. Like other alcoholics he won't go for help until he is convinced he is sunk.

DEAR DORIS:—I have been reading your letters in the paper and see where you recommend a book called "Facts of Life and Love for Teen-Agers."

I have a 14-year-old daughter and thought it would be good for her. Now could you tell me where I can buy this book?—MRS. B. H.

DEAR MRS. B. H.:—A paper back edition of this fine book is now on sale in Canada at news agencies or shops where paperbacks are sold, for about 50 cents. The author is Evelyn Millis Duvall.

If you cannot find it in your city, write to me and I will give you the name of a distributor through whom you may order it.

DEAR DORIS:—I am being married at the end of June. My mother says she is the one who issues the invitation. Is this right?

Now should the invitation read, and how long before the wedding should it be sent?—BRIDE-TO-BE.

DEAR BRIDE-TO-BE:—Mother and father of the bride are host and hostess at the wedding.

The invitation reads: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stevens request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter Mary Jane to Mr. Peter Jones on Saturday, the twenty-fourth of June, at seven o'clock, Main Street United Church, Blankstown, and afterwards at Blankstown Country Club. RSVP, 77 Pool Avenue.

If the invitation is formal, this is printed on a folded sheet of paper. Get your printer to show you samples to choose from.

Invitations should be sent out three weeks to one month in advance of the wedding.

Land of Enchantment

By RITA CHAPELLE

Editor's Note:—Rita Chapelle's home is in Belleville, but she has been teaching at the School for Visually Handicapped at Alamogordo, New Mexico, for the past year.

New Mexico is a land of contrast. Here, side by side, are the ancient and the modern. Blanketed Indians, with the wisdom of ages in their faces, rub elbows with crew-cut scientists; adobe mission blend with the New Mexico earth, modelled on the same means which are built with security-guarded laboratories. Sunbitten cowhide chaps ride cattle past radar sites and range beacons. Here in the dust of centuries are the markings of a prehistoric man. And here, quiet now, briefly idle, where on July 16, 1945, in a blinding flash the Atomic Age came bursting on our world. It too is a land of surprises—a place of deep shadow and brilliant sunshine—of towering mountain peaks and flat plains—of "White Sands" and ancient ruins. Three distinct cultures, Spanish, Indian and Anglo, mingle their heritage that is altogether unique in America.

One is awed by the majestic splendour of the Sierra Madres mountains bordering the Tularosa Basin in the southwest corner of the State in which the city of Alamogordo is situated. To the south, the highway stretches across a cacti desert to El Paso, Texas, and on across the Rio Grande to Juarez, Mexico. Bordering the east side of the city, the great "White Sands" stretch in almost never ending view; to the north lie the old Spanish town of Tularosa (City of Roses), from whence the basin receives its name. To the west, the Sacramento mountains, snow-capped during the winter, provide the much loved skiing facilities for enthusiasts.

Just a half hour is needed to take one into the midst of the "White Sands" now a National Monument. One is astounded at the snowy whiteness of the dunes at the foothills of the mountains range. In width, they stretch for forty miles and in length sixty. Today, a section is still a mineral proving ground but to the visitor it is the picnic resort and play area where children frolic. The glistening sea of sand has been drifted by the wind into huge wavelike dunes that are almost bare of vegetation except along the fringes. A few species of plants, the yucca, New Mexico's State flower, have been able to resist burial under the constantly shifting dunes. A lizard may be seen or a few other animals which have developed a protective bleached coloring making them inconspicuous in their pale environment and thus enabling them to avoid their enemies.

GYPSUM DESERT

The "White Sands" as they are called, are actually a concentration of pure white gypsum which over the years has dried to form the largest gypsum desert in the world. They are unique not only because of the immense surface concentration of pure gypsum, which are a combination of natural factors, but also because of the outstanding beauty of the flowing contours of these dazzling white dunes and their intriguing patterns of light and shadow. Here, a photographer would find much delight.

Rainfall in the area is very scarce. In fact, it is so scarce that the New Mexicans joke about their dust rains. When the March winds blow the desert sands across the terrain, the air is completely filled with dust, raining as it were, from the clouds. A severe dust storm might be compared to a heavy fog in Ontario making driving hazardous. A slight but uncommon during a dust storm is the tumble weeds, some as large as washtubs, rolling, tumbling and then being caught in some obstacle where they remain until disturbed by human hands. In an open sweep across the fields, they are caught sometimes by a barbed wire fence and how they form a windbreak for protection to a cotton crop.

CARLSBAD CAVERNS

A little more than two hundred miles to the southeast of Alamogordo brings a visitor to the world's largest and most beautiful caves—the Carlsbad Caverns—a majestic example of nature's handiwork sixty million years in the making. Some of the rooms in the caverns are so vast that the ceilings are 350 feet high. The King's chamber and that of the Queen are small by comparison but all give the feeling of being in a fairyland. Below the surface the temperature is a constant 56 degrees, much different from the 105 of Carlsbad itself in the summer months. To have lunched in the world's largest dining room 830 feet underground was an interesting touch, but it is the beauty of the rock formations in the caverns that leave a lasting memory. Once enjoyed, it can never be forgotten.

This too, is the land of William H. Bonney, better known as "Billy the Kid." At Lincoln, N.M., is the bar and the old court house still scarred by the bullets of the slight, soft-spoken, and fearless outlaw. He died at the age of 21 and is said to have killed 21 men. With the passing of the years has achieved the stature of a legend. Such a part of it as the newspapers in the museum here show a very unsympathetic public opinion towards him, and many expressions of commendation in Sheriff Pat Garrett who killed him.

A CANYON HIKE

A most thrilling aspect of life in almost any section of the State is mountain climbing and canyon hiking. On a trip to Dog Canyon just four miles to the south of Alamogordo, the view from atop one of the cliffs 6,000 feet up, was an experience. Great ranges, mountains and cacti plants vie-Rife for sixty miles. The clear dry climate makes visibility exceptionally good. On the ridge a dozen varieties of cacti were just opening their buds to the afternoon sun, and scattered with overhanging boughs of the cottonwood tree, fandango, on either side with green fernery, and nourished by a tiny creek which somehow had found its way through rock crevices.

The northern part of the State, too, offers much that is different from other lands. Santa Fe (City of Holy Faith) with its quaint Spanish architecture, San Miguel Mission and the N. M. Museum of Art add charm to the natural surroundings in which the city is situated. This was the centre of Spanish and Indian culture and of Catholic activities during the missionary period, when Jesuit and Franciscan priests were newcomers to the area. North of the city's old plaza is the Palace of the Governors, now a museum, over which have flown six flags. Highways lead to pre-historic ruins, to modern Indian pueblos and to native villages where Spanish is still the mother tongue. Here, too, one may travel the old Santa Fe trail made famous in the days of the pony express.

At Taos, one of the largest Indian pueblos, can be seen Navajo women spinning their yarns and making their own vegetable dyes for the beautiful rugs which are treasures of their tribe; or one may watch a jeweller with tools, turquoise and silver shaping a neck piece or bracelet to be sold in the village curio.

Despite the improvements of our modern age, New Mexico still keeps pace with both the past and the future — in a land that most certainly spells "Enchantment".

VON Reports on Recent Convention Held in Toronto

The monthly meeting of the V.O.N. Board was held May 16 at the YMCA, with Mr. J. Lennox presiding. Miss L. Bonnick, the secretary, read the minutes of the previous meeting, which were adopted as amended by-laws have been sent into Ottawa and a letter has been received from Miss J. Leask accepting the majority vote.

Mr. Harold Parker, as delegate to the Ontario VON convention, reported that the whole concept of illness has changed. In the United States, 3 per cent of persons over 65 are in homes for the aged. "Here we are going to make it possible to look after the over 90 age group". He stated that 32 branches of the VON have started home care. The regional director for Canada, Miss Mary Ferguson, who is retiring in June, was presented with a jade ring and cheque.

Mr. A. Gagnon, treasurer, gave an account of the finances, a successful tea was held recently. Mrs. R. Brain, convener, stated that the regional conference this year assisted to a great extent. Also, she was pleased to have the student nurses from the hospital help in the nursery and crèche.

Miss D. Connor, head nurse of the local branch, gave her monthly report, which stated that 511 home visits were made in 104 patients. Thirty-three of the patients cared for were admitted to VON service during April. The 511 home visits, 394 were for nursing service and the remaining 117 were for health supervision.

A total of 1615 hours were used in nursing activities. This consisted of two half days at the Child Health Conference at the Kiwanis Centre, 3 visits to the Douglas Atkins School and 1 visit to the Canadian Oil Belleville School. On April 24, Dr. J. D. Empson, MOH for Thurlow Township, conducted the second in a series of immunization clinics at Moira-ton-Corbyville School and the Douglas Atkins school.

During April, eight senior student nurses from the Belleville General Hospital spent one day observing VON work. Miss Marilyn Thompson, a past graduate student in public healthy nursing from the University of Ottawa, began her VON field work in Belleville, April 18. She completed this field experience May 15. Stated that three, Miss Dorothy Davidson, also a past graduate student in public health nursing from the same university has started her field work.

Miss Connor went on to tell of the annual convention of the VON May 4 and 5 at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto, which she attended. This convention was presided over by Lt.-Col. Oaler, president of the National order, who is retiring. Eighty-one branches were represented with 216 delegates present. In 1960, $1,000 bursaries were offered. There are 65 nurses at present, including one male nurse in Vancouver, caring for paraplegics.

Safer Street Crossing Report Given

Our Lady of Fatima P.T.A. held its May meeting in the school on Thursday evening last, with the president, Mr. J. Ryan, presiding.

Mr. J. Ryan opened the meeting.

Following a short business meeting the president called upon Mr. Kevin Murphy, leader of the traffic committee, formed at a previous meeting, to report on the progress made to secure safer street crossing conditions in the area used by the pupils of Our Lady of Fatima school.

Mr. Murphy stated that Sgt. Hutchford had been contacted and was most co-operative, and that he travelled with and marked for the motorists.

Parents also have an obligation to see their children are taught to cross streets properly.

The president thanked Mr. Murphy on the progress that had been made.

A program to provide some recognition for outstanding students for the 1961-62 school year under the co-operation of the P.T.A. was held over for

'Padre of the Pubs' Not Backed By WCTU in Convention

By Elizabeth Mothersell
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The Ontario Women's Christian Temperance Union doesn't want its name linked with that of Toronto's "padre of the pubs."

The WCTU's 58th annual meeting decided Tuesday earlier press reports that Canon Cecil Johnston backs Rev. Arthur Packham's pulsating approach to preventing alcoholism.

The United Church minister frequents beer parlors as a means of helping alcoholics overcome the habit. However, the padre does not insist on total abstinence.

This did not prevent individual members from backing the minister's work, the meeting decided, but it did prevent official support because of the organization's pledge.

Association members from all parts of Ontario reaffirmed their stand for total abstinence —and determined to "fight to the last ditch" in Ontario communities voting on the liquor plebiscite.

It was also suggested that an attempt be made to "win back" areas that have liquor lounges.

"The wets don't give up the battle—neither should we. If the wets lose—they are back fighting within three years."

FEAR BEING DIFFERENT

Ontario President Mrs. James Nelson of Merriton, in her annual report, said people today had a fear of being different.

One reason might be "because men and women have had to wear uniforms through two world wars—and have got into the habit of having someone else think and make plans for them."

Mrs. Nelson complained that a road safety conference in Toronto last January overlooked alcohol as an accident cause.

"Everyone secured to shut their eyes, and yet we are told that a large percentage of the 87,186 accidents last year had alcohol as a contributing factor."

Quadros Lives in Glass House But Isn't Afraid To Throw a Few Stones

Russell Elman, Canadian Press Staff Writer, has completed a tour of South America. In this story he reports on the policies of Brazil's new president.

By RUSSELL ELMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

BRASILIA (CP) — Janio Quadros, Brazil's youthful new president, is a man in a glass house who is not afraid to throw a few stones. So far his own window panes are intact.

He has reserved his biggest boulders for the patronage system, using the pebbles for American diplomats and Portugal.

When the austere 44-year-old former schoolteacher was inaugurated here Jan. 31, he inherited along with his unfinished, expensive new capital a staggering unpaid bill.

Never in its history had Brazil been surging with such vigorous development but the price was near financial chaos and a runaway inflation.

The eyes of the country's 65,000,000 inhabitants looked hopefully to Quadros in his glass - framed presidential Palace of the Dawn as their man of the hour, who would not only set the economy right but lead Brazil to the forefront of the world's stage as a great power. In his first three months in office, their new hero has not let them down.

CLEANING HOUSE

The tall, lean chief executive of Latin America's largest and most populous country has yet to prove his ability to rescue Brazil from its economic plight but he has begun to clean house with unprecedented vigor and the world is sitting up and taking notice.

At the very first, he made a symbolic clean break with the past by taking up residence straight away in the new capital and taking Congress along with him. The sterilized atmosphere of Brasilia's glass and concrete government offices was an ideal setting for him to begin his national housecleaning.

A hard taskmaster, who drives himself at a remarkably brisk clip by traditional Latin American standards, Quadros finds no room for "manana" in his vocabulary. He expects his colleagues to follow his own example and the daily work schedule for Brasilia's civil servants has been increased from six to eight hours. He has also set them a controversial new fashion of dress, replacing the traditional white collar with an open-necked khaki army - type jacket and matching trousers called "slacks."

FIRED CIVIL SERVANTS

The new president again broke with custom by not having to divide the spoils of victory among his supporters. Though he won an overwhelming popular election triumph, he made no known special deals to gain the backing of any particular group or interest. He needed to have few qualms about ordering the dismissal of all civil servants hired after his election.

But it is in the field of international relations that Quadros has perhaps hurled the most stones. One of his first acts was to declare a new foreign policy. From now on Brazil, while preserving its old friendships would seek an independent course in the Cold War.

The president followed up by establishing diplomatic relations with several Eastern European countries, making overtures for restoring ties with Russia after an interval of 14 years and recognizing Communist China. He has also indicated that Brazil will be noticeably cooler towards the mother country, Portugal, and he does not conceal his disapproval of Portuguese policy in their strife-torn African territory of Angola.

SEEKS U.S. AID

The Brazilian leader's dealings with the United States have been more enigmatic. He has meted out some gruff treatment to American diplomats calling on him, but he has done nothing to suggest he intends to follow Cuba's path of inflammatory anti-Americanism. In fact, his envoys have been hard at work in Washington seeking American economic assistance.

At home, the problems still facing Quadros are formidable. He has to overcome a $400,000,000 budget deficit, he has to find a solution to the chronically-depressed, drought - stricken northeast, he has to complete the transfer of the capital, and he has to curb inflation but keep up the country's development.

Most Brazilians, however, appear prepared to remain on Janio Quadros' bandwagon for perhaps above everything else they have faith in him as a man of integrity—a quality rare in South American politics. As mayor of the city and subsequently governor of the state of Sao Paulo, he earned a reputation for honesty and for being a skilful administrator by rescuing Brazil's largest city from near bankruptcy and turning it and its state into the richest and most industrially progressive region in the country.

The question now asked is whether he can do the same for all Brazil. Many Brazilians are confident that Janio, the man in the glass house, will succeed.

Cuban Underground Leader Vents Anger on Rebel Invaders Who Came to Cuba

Editor's note: Associated Press correspondent Robert Berrellez was arrested in Havana by Cuba intelligence agents April 17 as a rebel invasion force hit the beach on Cuba's south coast. He spent the next 5½ weeks in Cuban prisons packed with Premier Fidel Castro's enemies, who spoke to him freely. This is the first of three articles on Cuba by Berrellez, back in his native United States.

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

NEW YORK (AP)—A leader of the Cuban underground sat in a Havana prison, bitter and weeping.

"If ever overthrow Fidel, we'll shoot the invaders as traitors," he declared. "They destroyed our counter-revolutionary organization by not telling us they were coming."

Thus did one of Premier Fidel Castro's enemies react to the fate of a band of rebel invaders who came to save Cuba and, in the view of many underground fighters, betrayed their comrades.

Many underground members were caught in the widespread rounding up of Cubans in mid-April, immediately after the pre-invasion bombing of the country's main airfields. The prisoner, a 32-year-old Cuban and former president at a Texas university, was a top-ranking officer in one of the many underground anti-Castro factions.

Chained, swept the underground after the detention of an estimated 200,000 people at the height of the invasion scare, it was among those thousands and spent 25 days in two prisons until my release May 12. Thousands were questioned briefly when I left Cuba last Friday.

"We weren't told when the invasion was coming," the anti-Castro underground leader said. "It now seems every American newsman per man at the exact day and hour. But why weren't we told?"

Asked if he felt betrayed by the invaders, he said he would have succeeded if the underground had received advance word of an attack, he said chances would have been good with a larger invading force."

The invasion, early on the morning of April 17, came two days after Castro's huge "revolutionary defense corps" started a mass detention of all persons suspected of being even indifferent to the revolutionary cause. The detentions were triggered by the air attack of April 15.

"We lost millions of dollars in cash and equipment," the imprisoned underground leader said. He told me. "Hundreds of us could also lose our lives if Fidel decides to start executions again."

While at La Cabana prison, correspondent was arrested April 18 after the firing squads cut down a dozen accused counter-revolutionaries. They said the group included one man by mistake.

The underground leader who talked with me was arrested a month before the April invasion. He bitterly blamed an anti-Castro radio station for his arrest. The station, on Swan Island, has had close links with the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

"This station paid tribute to Castro's courage in refusing to get out of Cuba clandestinely," he said. "That tipped off Castro (intelligence) and I was finally trapped."

Radio Swan was considered so discredited by the Castro government that its broadcasts were often played back to the public in Havana.

Many of the anti-Castro groups represented a big and well-equipped force became apparent to me during my detention in the Havana prisons.

But if they were well organized, it was also evident that Castro's counter-intelligence was a remarkably well distributed force. In La Cabana, two major fights broke out early in May involving what other prisoners and I called G-2 agents posing as prisoners.

Dispute Over Pay May Delay Sunday Movies

TORONTO (CP) — City council okayed Sunday movies Tuesday, but next Sunday theatre fans probably will choose between second - run films and Cup - Cakes Cassidy.

A continuing dispute between theatre operators and projectionists over pay rates for Sunday work will delay Sunday movies in all chain - operated theatres, Arbitration proceedings are to begin June 17.

Alex Lewis, business agent of the Toronto Local of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, said the dispute doesn't concern the city's few independent movie houses which "are living up to their contract."

He said chain theatres will only closed Sundays unless the theatre managements lose the existing contract, which provides double overtime pay or $12 an hour for Sunday work. Gilbert Abella, manager of the Lux Theatre — one of the city's two burlesque houses — said his theatre definitely will open Sunday, with Cup - Cakes Cassidy, "the tease artist, as featured attraction.

"We are fighting her in specialty acts. The show goes on," because her name was mentioned so much in city council debates."

The debate was over whether theatres should permit Miss Cassidy and her colleagues to perform. Several councillors fought a losing battle to exclude burlesque from Sunday fare.

The vote was passed by council Tuesday permits holding of meetings, public performances, concerts and lectures Sunday after 1:30 p.m.

No Preference Should Be Given Says Contractor

KINGSTON (CP)—Systems of bidding on construction jobs which give preference to local contractors are harmful to taxpayers as well as the construction industry, President Arthur G. Sullivan of the Canadian Construction Association said Tuesday night.

Speaking to the Kingston Builders Exchange, Mr. Sullivan said the practice enriches firms with adequate financing should be able to bid on jobs anywhere in Canada.

"Public bodies have special responsibilities in seeing that procedures followed result in the lowest possible construction costs," he said. "The taxpayer should get the best possible value for the money spent."

Local preference was contrary to free-enterprise principles and the argument that it provided more local employment did not hold water.

"Out-of - town contractors ordinarily send in only a superintendent or a personnel manager," said. "They like to hire as many local men as possible for this eliminates the payment of room and board allowances."

The employment of local men could also be specified in the contract documents, he said.

Mr. Sullivan said the Ontario Public Works Branch comes into effect in September and also a tax on capital investment in construction materials and equipment were not exempted.

Retired Judge Against Two Murder Degrees

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Proposed legislation to establish two degrees of murder was described Tuesday night by Arthur M. Ford, Progressive Conservative Appeal Court judge, as a system which would make fish of one man and flesh of another.

He said if one man hangs and another doesn't, if one is locked up and another is not, "the sense of justice in the public may say let's scrap the whole thing and it's not have any capital punishment."

The new government bill on capital punishment separates deliberate murder, punishable by death, and murder — premeditated murder, punishable by a mandatory sentence of life imprisonment.

Mr. LeBel told the Canadian Progress Club of London that mand s t o r y sentences have never worked and would not work under the proposed new law.

He also questioned why there should be any interference from the cabinet when a court and jury in a case has guilty capital murder.

Picton's first indoor horse show attracted more than 800 exhibitors from Eastern Ontario competing in the various events of the five-hour show. The show took place in Picton arena, where a layer of sawdust was frozen into the ice and a thick carpet covered over this rough surface. Similar shows are to be held in Kingston, Napanee and Belleville. Top is Duff Wilson of Picton who won the potato race competition and placed second in the saddle pony over 46 inches class. Bottom is Billy Kotchapaw of Bethesda who rode Dennis Moore's pony to a first place win in the musical chairs competition and also the overall championship trophy for saddle ponies under 46 inches. Shah of Iran Tackles Task Of Staving off Revolution

By DAVE OANCIA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Shah of Iran and his new prime minister, Dr. Ali Amini, have tackled the deadly serious task of staving off a revolution by making political concessions.

The theme is that their program may be too little and too late—thus bearing out Premier Nikita Khrushchev's ominous prediction of a month ago.

The Soviet chieftain, in an interview with U. S. journalist Walter Lippmann, made clear that he views Iran as the best example of what he regards as a "world-wide and historic revolutionary movement—akin to the change from feudalism to capitalism.

Iran, he added, had a weak Communist party, but the misery of the masses and the corruption of the government were surely producing revolution.

WARNED OF REVOLT

Weight was given to his views this week by the Shah's new agriculture minister and government spokesman, Dr. Hassan Arsanjani.

He warned that a "red revolution is inevitable" if land reform is not carried out.

His warning came on the heels of recent intrigues by some big landowners who disagree with it, the government's land reform program.

Under this plan, the new ruling group will begin distribution of private lands as soon as all state lands have been given to the peasants.

Over the years a succession of ministers has entered office, each taken his share of spoils from oil revenue and departed.

CORRUPTION CURSE

He is determined to end corruption, oppression and foreign enslavement. He also is said to want to bring the guilty to book, empty their pockets of ill-gotten gains and make the concessions that will bring fairer shares to the populace generally.

He starts his task with an empty treasury and a great deal of unrest in the country.

If his reform experiment fails the Iranians in all probability will be faced with the bleak alternatives of police rule or revolution.

Town Engineer Absolved of Any Criminal Acts

ARNPRIOR (CP)—A judicial inquiry into the administration of town engineer W. F. Priestley has absolved him of any criminal acts and malfeasance in office.

The findings of County Judge T. M. J. Galligan were made public Tuesday after the hearing of council. The inquiry was held in October.

The judge's five - page brief, was critical, however of some of the engineering department's procedures with respect to use of municipal employees and materials on outside work.

The inquiry followed a trial in which Mr. Priestley was accused and acquitted of stealing a few dollars worth of cement blocks.

Mayor Robert Simpson, who was instrumental in bringing about the inquiry, said he was "disappointed" with the decision, "but I suppose I'm not allowed to criticize a judge's findings."

Council passed a motion expressing its confidence in Mr. Priestley's integrity.

WOULD BUY ARMORIES

TORONTO (CP) — A special courthouse committee of Metropolitan Toronto council recommended Tuesday that Metro notify the federal government of its willingness to purchase the University Avenue armories at the $2,000,000 price suggested by Ottawa.

Western Lands Seek Support For Laos Plan

GENEVA (Reuters)—Western delegates to the international conference on Laos hoped today to pick up more support from nonaligned countries in the wrestling up of working groups to seek a formula for Laotian neutrality.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and Malcolm MacDonald acting British delegation chief, planned to confer before the conference resumed on the best way for the 14-country gathering to move forward.

The Communist bloc was backing open debate as opposed to working groups. Western delegates said they got more backing for the working group idea—already supported by India—from other neutral countries.

MacDonald, British high commissioner to Canada in 1941-46, and Gromyko were expected to release an up - to - date report from the Indian - Canadian - Polish truce commission, which is supervising the ceasefire in Laos.

An authoritative source said the report mentioned minor cease-fire violations, but said all was quiet in general. The cease - fire was generally observed earlier this month by the three Laotian factions after nine months of civil war.

Several Western and neutral participants have said that the strengthening of the commission so that its police powers are more effective.

The first phase of the conference has "made progress" despite not knowing what to expect next and the Western Allies making little effort to present a unified front.

Indians Spurn Option of Full Citizenship

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's Indians have spurned the option of full citizenship in the past and seem likely to continue that course, says parliamentary committee on Indian affairs was told Tuesday.

Enfranchisement — the assumption of privileges and obligations of full citizenship—attracted only 131 applicants among the 178,000 Indians in the last fiscal year and 46 were approved, reported L. L. Brown of the Indian affairs branch. He suggested to the joint Senate-Commons committee that there is little real inducement to change.

It doesn't seem likely that enfranchisement "will be the door to integration in the future to any greater degree than has been true in the past," said Mr. Brown, echoing testimony to the Indian affairs branch director.

"But he said he believes it should be retained—if not in its present form.

It would not be democratic to take away from the Indians what their status, for one thing, and it might prove increasingly attractive to them later on when they could acquire full ownership of their property held in trust by the Crown — and full management of their affairs.

He said the Indian may think of the same rights as non-Indians, including the right to vote, the provincial vote in many areas and increasing freedom to buy liquor.

"Most benefits open to persons of non-Indian status are also open to Indians, which means that except in certain areas there is little real inducement for the Indian living off a reservation to take enfranchisement."

Everywhere Last Tangible Link With Crown Disappears In S.A. and Tension Growing

EDITOR'S NOTE: Brian Barrow is a Canadian newspaperman who has recently returned from a year of reporting on the problems of his country. In this story he discusses the growing tension as the nation prepares to become a republic May 31.

By BRIAN BARROW

CAPE TOWN (CP) — The president has been elected, Royal is not a name being stripped from courtrooms and public buildings. Everywhere the last tangible links with the Crown and the Commonwealth are being severed and South Africa finds herself becoming the world's most unwanted, isolated and jittery republic.

As May 31 approaches Prime Minister Verwoerd and his more extreme supporters are more remote from the realities of the situation than ever. By some incredible feat of self-hallucination, they see their country rising rosy in their garden of apartheid.

Meanwhile, capital is leaving the country, gold shares drop, business is falling away and generally empty. Men the country cannot afford to lose are leaving in alarming numbers — doctors, specialists, university professors, engineers, businessmen, technicians. External pressure is increasing. The whites are more divided among themselves.

The soon - to - be - republican nation-wide strikes and demonstrations to coincide with Republican Day. For first time since 1948 the Colored people will join the strikes in thousands in sympathy with the Africans.

Meanwhile, a series of parliamentary by-elections has shown that more and more whites are becoming disillusioned with the nationalist camp. The gulf between white and non - white is wider and more dangerous than ever.

Events here have shifted from the sphere of electoral appeals and sane parliamentary government. Only the force of naked power, To the non - whites Parliament and the law have become irrelevant. To the nationalist government, Parliament is merely a useful machine for entrenching white domination.

In these last sad days of monarchy the government has made its decision to create a republic. Bannings, of non-Communists under the Suppression of Communism Act have become more frequent. There have been country - wide "round-ups" of Africans in which a few thousands were detained without charge, without trial, without bail.

BOLSTER POLICE FORCE

The defence force has been enlarged and transformed into an auxiliary police force to ensure internal security. White security battalions are to replace African guards at airfields, munition dumps and supply depots.

Tension grows daily among the whites. Thousands are buying stocks of tinned food, fuel and firearms. In many city areas whites are organizing themselves into groups of vigilantes to patrol the streets at night in case of trouble.

Everywhere there is talk of asking the same question: What will the Africans do May 31?

The government is taking strong measures to maintain law and order. The police are launching raids on African locations near Cape Town and Johannesburg, seeking arms and illegal literature.

But May 31 feelings will be such that the smallest incident could scar the new republic with another Sharpeville, or worse, on the day of its birth.

Much depends on what form the non - white demonstrations will take. If the Africans stay away from on the days of the strike — May 29, 30 and 31— there need be no trouble. But if they go to work in the usual way, then refuse to work once they are in the cities, the situation could be extremely dangerous. The police would be compelled to disperse any gatherings.

What the country now craves, and this goes for many moderate nationalists, is that with the republic there will be a rebirth of justice and tolerance in most local affairs.

Pressure is mounting all round for consultations between the acknowledged leaders of all races to pave the way for a national convention in which a new constitution, guaranteeing the freedom and rights of all sections, can be worked out.

Every thinking person here at the moment looks forward to future stability. Because all things continue as they are going now, the life of the republic may well be a short and violent one.

CBC President Puts Case Of Football to Committee

OTTAWA (CP) — CBC President Alphonse Ouimet presented a strong appeal Tuesday for maintenance of the national television network as a means of "raiding" by private networks.

He told the Commons broadcasting committee that the Canadian system of broadcasting is one of the cloudiest stages in its history."

Questions had arisen which could develop "to the point where they would seriously interfere with the development—and perhaps even the existence—of the national service."

Mr. Ouimet made his case in a prepared statement submitted to the committee in response to a request for information on TV broadcasting of Big Four football games in Eastern Canada.

The current controversy results from the fact that privately owned CFTO - TV Toronto outbid the public network CBC for the 1961 and 1962 TV rights to Big Four games. The CBC has refused to participate in its network be split to allow private affiliates in Toronto to carry the Big Four broadcasts.

Mr. Ouimet said the football controversy "illustrates a new threat to broadcasting—our ability to get and hold contests."

The idea seemed to be that anyone wanting to put on a show operator merely had to buy the rights to a mass-appeal event such as football and then ask for a temporary network, then say to the CBC:

Get off you own network, Mr. CBC, we're in competition with you. Give us access or else we need your facilities and the use of your affiliated stations. You can have it back after it has served our purpose.

He said that facilities be needed not only on the role of future temporary networks—such as a football network—but also the role and responsibility of the second TV network to be created by Premier Diefenbaker, Spencer Caldwell.

Margarine May Become Legal In Quebec

QUEBEC (CP)—A margarine bill was given first reading in the legislature Tuesday, placing the province in line with the rest of legality in Quebec.

The bill—which actually supplies to any dairy product substitute, must be studied and debated by the assembly before it becomes law.

There is little doubt it will. Industry spokesmen and political spreads has lessened slightly this year.

The Quebec bill would give the legislature iron control over such substitutes as margarine. Inspectors would be given all search and seizure powers.

It lays down stringent rules for the manufacture, color and packaging of margarine and other spreads.

Color - measuring instruments will be used to ensure that butter substitutes have less than 1/10 degrees of yellow color, or yellow and red combined.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

One of the finest athletes ever developed in Canada will be at Memorial Arena Friday night. You can add to that "gentleman, sportsman and philanthropist."

He is not only the idol of wrestling fans both sides of the border but thousands of crippled kiddies look upon him as a "big brother."

And Whipper Billy Watson is just that. What he has done during a period of years for these less fortunate kiddies cannot be measured in dollars and cents.

Nor is his popularity confined to crippled children and wrestling fandom. Thousands of healthy youngsters all over Canada have benefited from his advice and interest.

You could call an annual incident in the life of Whipper Watson one of his "finest hours." At the sports celebrities dinner of the Ontario Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association held for the exclusive benefit of crippled children, the Whip is the bodyguard of "Timmy," the crippled child guest of honor.

A standing ovation greets the proud "Whipper" as he carries his smiling young guest to the seat of honor at the head table. Not only that but the Whip accompanies his little "pal" to various functions arranged for the benefit of other "Timmy's."

His wrestling ability to well known to Belleville and district fans. He has appeared here on many occasions over the years and he is loved as popular today as when he made his ring debut here.

And if you don't believe that, be on hand at the arena Friday night and hear the ovation the Whip gets.

Incidentally, he meets the Russian "arch-villain, Ivan Kalmikoff in the main bout, and that, says Sstasi, should be the best of the local archives. This pair has met before and you can take it from the multitude they are anything but lodge brothers.

And what should be a ring-dog thriller is the semi-final between Stan Stasiak, the pride of Arvida, and handsome Tony Marino. There is another for the book.

Tom The Emperor Jones, six-foot-eight of colored muscle, who favors the unlimiting coco-bonga, meets the "Black Terror," who makes his hooded debut in a Belleville ring. They say the "Terror" is well named and will give the ex-Ottawa Rough Rider a run for the rasslin' roses.

HAIL, TO THE CHAMPIONS!

A columnar salute to the sturdy young track and field champions of Moira Secondary School.

These fine youngsters, shoving evidence of good coaching, flashed to their first Quinte COSSA district championship by sweeping to a brilliant victory over eleven other schools. They amassed 158 points as against 86 of the second-place Trenton High School.

The crowning achievement of Belleville's "soreat high" came last Saturday when they defeated 16 other schools of the Central Ontario Secondary Schools Association to win the track and field title.

Lustre is added to the team glory in the fact Moira is the first Quinte district school to win COSSA laurels.

It was a close, hard-won victory. Moira won the title with a team total of 61 points while close behind was the crack O'Neill Collegiate team of Oshawa with 35 points. And crowding the second-place squad was Whitby C.I.'s fine youngsters with 21 points.

While the double win was mostly team effort, special accolades go to the school's junior champion, Ron Faulkner, who not only won the Quinte District title but repeated with an outstanding effort in the COSSA meet. Faulkner swept the 100, 220 and 440 dashes in his Quinte victory and took the 440 in the COSSA meet finishing second in the 220 and 100.

The fine showings of all the city's secondary schools in both the Quinte and COSSA meets denote a marked upsurgence in interest in track and field.

All the schools have good coaches and the results of their work are beginning to show in the "results" of the various meets. The sport has long been dormant or nearly so in this district. Outside scholastic circles it has been as dead as the dodo bird.

Efforts to revive it in connection with the Belleville Fair a few years ago met with little or no response. Spectator-wise it had no drawing power. Holidaying students showed little or no interest.

Now, thanks to secondary schools coaches, the sport seems definitely on the upswing. City schools' teams are "showing higher" in the results column. Reports from other centres reveal the sport is becoming more popular.

Tigers' Triple Homers Trounce Twins

Three In Row, Tribe Beaten

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Detroit Tigers are a whooping 15 games over .500 and have a 10-game lead in the American League race again—but it took a tough parlay to turn the trick.

First, the Tigers hammered three consecutive home runs, tying the major league record, while breaking a ninth-inning tie for a 5-3 victory over Minnesota Twins Tuesday night.

Amid then second place Cleveland Indians, after winning six in a row, were beaten 9-0 at Los Angeles by the last place Angels on the three-hit pitching of Ken McBride.

It was McBride's first major league shutout, the first shutout for the Angels' staff, the first shutout for the Tribe—and the first shutout at cozy Wrigley Field, the AL's former beaven.

SOX DEFEATED

Baltimore outscored Minnesota in fourth place by defeating Chicago White Sox 7-4, and Washington topped Kansas City 7-3 in the only other games scheduled in the AL.

Norm Cash, Steve Boros and Dick Brown combined for the home run burst by the Tigers off a pair of relievers, loser Ray Moore and Paul Giel. It was the third time Detroit has smashed three consecutive homers for a share of the much equaled record. Al Kaline also hit his first home run of the season, in the sixth inning, for the Tigers, who collected nine hits. Hank Aguirre was the winner in relief.

The Twins had seven hits, one a fourth inning single that gave Lennie Green a 20-game hitting streak, best in the majors this year.

McBRIDE WINS

McBride, a 25-year-old right-hander who had only an 0-2 record to show for two brief trials with the White Sox, gave up two singles and a double, walked five and struck out five against the Indians.

The Angels backed him with 11 hits, three of them homers—a pair of three-run shots by Ken Hunt and Earl Averill, and a solo by Leon Wagner in the first inning off loser Jim Perry.

Wrigley Field cow has given up 63 home runs in 31 games, with Ron Santo socking 26.

The Orioles also did it with home runs, one by Dick Williams in the first inning and a two-run homer by Jerry Adair in the second. Southpaw Billy Pierce was the loser, although striking out 12 in six innings.

THIRD STRAIGHT LOSS

Billy Hoeft won with three innings of three-hit, shutout relief by Hoyt Wilhelm, who lowered his earned run average to 1.32 for 41 innings. It was the third straight loss for the White Sox.

A two-run triple by Willie Tasby wrapped it up for the Senators as they scored four in the eighth at Kansas City and beat Ray Herbert. Ed Hobaugh was the winner, with relief help from Marty Kutyna when the A's came back with two runs in their eighth.

Pitcher Don Larsen, connerted into an outfielder by As manager Joe Gordon after hitting a pinch homer Monday, was 0-for-4 and struck out with two on in the rally.

$100,000 Rookie for Yanks, Braves

GRENADA, Miss. (AP) — Jake Gibbs was expected to sign a professional baseball contract today for a bonus of about $100,000. He wouldn't say which team he planned to join.

It was speculated that the 22-year-old baseball and football star from the University of Mississippi would pick New York Yankees of the American League or Milwaukee Braves of the National League.

Gibbs, who played third base for the Mississippi baseball team and quarterbacked the football team, had been expected to sign a baseball part earlier. However, baseball commissioner Ford Frick ruled in March that teams could not until final examinations, or, if it came later, the collegiate season's end, before signing college players.

Gibbs attracted a title with his passing and running as the signaller who sparked Mississippi to No. 7 ranking in the United States in the undefeated season.

Gibbs, a six - foot, 185-pounder, was named to the All-America team by The Associated Press last season. He batted .309 in three years of college baseball.

CARAT BACK IS FINE

Reed, chief veternarian for the New York Racing Association, categorically denied Tuesday that there is anything wrong with Carry Back and labelled a report the Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner had been injured "a cruel hoax." Carry Back is scheduled to bid for the third leg of the triple crown in the Belmont Stakes a week from Saturday.

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—Delegates to the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association's annual meeting decided Tuesday in favor of the one referee-two linesmen system of officiating in inter-branch playoff games after CAHA President Jack Bonburgh challenged them to show "guts enough" to decide the thorny issue.

It was a decision on Rule 33 (A) which gave the CAHA president or his representative the option of appointing either a referee and two linesmen or two referees to handle a playoff series.

Some teams found themselves playing first under one system, then under the other, in this year's junior and senior playoffs.

Delegates from the Thunder Bay and Maritimes branches opposed the new rule but were outvoted 17 to 4. Ontario, Quebec, the Ottawa district, British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba approved the change.

JUST TOO FAST

"Our junior hockey is just too fast for the two-man system," said Art Potter of Edmonton, a CAHA vice-president. "The referees just can't keep up."

A proposal by the Manitoba branch that the CAHA adopt the rules of the International Ice Hockey Federation was turned down without discussion.

The association considered the spearing penalty grave enough to give it a section of its own in the rule book. A player will draw an automatic five-minute major for spearing, where in the past the referee could use his discretion. For a second spearing infraction, the player receives a game misconduct and his team will play shorthanded for five minutes.

Cards Clobber Giants

Dodgers Lay First Egg, Reds Crow

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Cincinnati Reds are within 1½ games of the National League lead again because of a right-hander high on the rookie of the year list and a stubborn southpaper the night well by the league's No. 1 relief ace.

After sinking to the bottom when they lost 10 of their first 18 games, the Reds have won 18 of their last 26. Rookie Ken Hunt, and Billy Henry have been in on almost half of those victories in the comeback spurt to fourth place.

It was Hunt and Henry who combined for a five-hit, 3-0 victory over second place Los Angeles Tuesday night — dealing the Dodgers their first defeat of the season and ending their winning streak at five.

San Francisco retained a percentage point (.013) lead although the Giants were walloped 12-4 at St. Louis. Third place Pittsburgh remained within one game of the top despite a 1-0 defeat at Milwaukee on the four-hit pitching of Lew Burdette. Last place Philadelphia defeated Chicago Cubs 2-1 in 10 innings.

Hunt, 22, has beaten the Giants, Pittsburgh and now the Dodgers in a 4-2 record and is 3-1 on the Reds' comeback. Henry, the old man of the staff at 33, now has four saves in the same spurt.

HENRY WAS PERFECT

The Dodgers got all five hits off Hunt. The youngster struck out six, but also walked six, bringing on Henry in the eighth for a 6-3 save for the 3-hit mopup. It was Henry's 10th appearance, for a total of 13 1-3 innings in which he has allowed just one earned run.

The Reds beat Los Angeles for the first time in five tries by bunching three of their seven hits for two runs in the sixth off Don Drysdale (3-3). Gus Bell's sacrifice fly and a single by Gordie Coleman brought them across after singles by Don Blasingame and Vada Pinson and a walk had loaded the bases.

Bill White was 4-5 and drove in five runs, two with a first-inning home run off loser Sam Jones (3-3), as the Cardinals banged 15 hits and ran up their biggest scoring total of the season. Don Taussig also hit a two-run homer in support of Ray Sadecki (3-3), who breezed in with a 12-hit job. Harvey Kuenn and Orlando Cepeda homered for San Francisco as the Giants suffered their fourth loss in five games.

The Braves scored in the first inning on a triple by Frank Bolling and a single by Joe Mathews, then zeroed in on Burdette's 4-hit pitching. Burdette (4-3), but grounded out in the fifth after Bill Mazeroski had doubled and moved to third with two out.

A single by Charlie Smith and a two-out triple by Bob Skinner broke it up for the Phils against Glen Hobbie (3-5). Frank Sullivan (3-4) and reliever Chris Short blanked the Cubs on five hits after a first-inning homer by Billy Williams.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kansas City Athletics of the American League announced Tuesday that pitcher Ed Keegan will be sent to Buffalo of the International League on waivers.

Just Keep Rollin' Along

Old Lefties Never Die

Little Bobby Shantz, an American League castoff, has licked Pittsburgh teammate Harvey Haddix and Milwaukee ace Warren Spahn in laughing at age.

Another relief specialist who will be 36 in September, Shantz took the one Tuesday from Haddix (35) and Spahn (40) in making his first start since he shut out Detroit Tigers 3-0 for New York Yankees Aug. 5, 1959.

The five - foot - six, 156-pounder was a surprise choice of Pittsburgh Pirate manager Danny Murtaugh to face Milwaukee Braves after scheduled starter Joe Gibbon suffered a stiff arm.

Shantz was tagged for a run in the first inning when Frank Bolling's drive was missed by left - fielder Bill Skinner and centre-fielder Bill Virdon. Bolling, credited with a triple, scored on Eddie Mathews' single.

With two men out in the second inning, Shantz surrendered another hit, but then dazzled the Braves, retiring 18 straight, before he was lifted for a pinch hitter in the eighth.

STILL LOSES

Despite his brilliant performance, Shantz wound up with the loss as Milwaukee righthander Lew Burdette, a comparative kid at 36, was equally effective and went the distance in a 1-0 victory.

The meeting of Shantz and Burdette marked their first since the second game of the world series between the Braves and Yankees in 1957. In that, Burdette outdueled Shantz for a 4-2 triumph.

"We couldn't do a thing against Burdette, so it's just another loss," said Shantz after Tuesday's game.

"Shantz pitched himself a heck of a ball game — just couldn't," Murtaugh said.

"He's still a great pitcher," said Milwaukee coach Whitlow Wyatt. "He has just about as many pitches as anyone in the business — and can put them where he wants them."

The Tracks

TORONTO (CP) — Mayor Maurice Saxe, a three - year-old colt owned by Mrs. Vernon G. Cardy of Ste. Marguerite, Que., boosted his Queen's Plate stock Tuesday when he won the Riverdale Purse at Old Woodbine race track.

It was the first start of the season for the Quebec horse which is listed among the possible starters in the $70,000 Canadian classic at New Woodbine Saturday, June 17.

Mayor Saxe paid $3 straight, $6.70 and $4.

Chic Miss, owned by the successful Buffalo racing partnership of Rocco Glan and Fred Capretta, was the featured Ragtiville Purse. The four-year - old filly defeated Gal Gal by a half length while Plagal finished third.

Chic Miss paid $2.80, $2.50 and $2.10. She combined with Gal Gal for a quinella of $19.70.

The daily double paid $21.50 when Kingflow and Skindles Hotel won the first two races.

Banks Goes To Outfield For Cubs

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Cubs' Ernie Banks, who made major league history at shortstop both at bat and afield, voluntarily shifted to left field Tuesday because of an ailing knee.

The 30-year - old Banks explained at a press conference his preference for the shift, which he said he asked of the Cubs' No. 1 coach, Vedie Himsl, Sunday.

Banks, who never before has played the outfield, will be replaced at shortstop — at least for a spell—by Jerry Kindall, former University of Minnesota fielding star who had not started a game this season before Tuesday. Himsl also indicated Andre Rodgers, obtained from Milwaukee earlier this year, was available at short.

Banks in 1958 hit the most homers by a major league shortstop in one season, 47. In 1959 he posted both the major league fielding percentage shortstop mark, .985, and the fewest errors at that position, 13, while playing 155 games. His total of 238 homers is tops for any shortstop in major league history. He was the National League's most valuable player for an unprecedented two successive years in 1958-59.

"I felt I wasn't doing as good as I was capable of doing at shortstop," explained Banks.

Picton Walts Stop Flyers In Opener

TRENTON (Special) — The Picton Walts made their debut in the Belleville and District Softball League a winning one here last night by defeating the loose-fielding RCAF Flyers 7-4.

The Walts got a strong pitching job from the aging Pat Marcade whilst taking advantage of five RCAF errors to chalk up their margin of victory. They built a 7-1 lead by the end of the seventh and turned back the Flyers' rally attempt in the last two innings.

Marcade gave up eight hits and all the losers' runs before giving way to reliefer Lake with one on and none out in the ninth. Pat fanged 10 and passed two.

Bob Butterfield, the first of three RCAF burlays, took the loss before giving way to Corky Corcoredden in the third. Ken Kibblewhite took over the chore in the seventh. They allowed six hits in all while fanning eight and walking four, three by Butterfield.

Two walks and a single off the pitcher's glove opened Picton's scoring in the first. RCAF made it 1-1 on Hughes' single, a sacrifice and an error in the second before Picton pulled away.

MacDonald's base hit, a walk and an error scored two runs and chased Butterfield in the third. Cole's double and another error made it 4-1 in the fourth while hits by MacDonald and K. Hancey, a walk, another two-run error and Heffernan's hit made it 7-1 and sent Corscadden to the showers in the seventh. The only runner to reach base off Kibblewhite's slants was L. Hawker on a dropped third strike.

An error in the outfield and Roger Drake's home run plated two Flyer runs in the eighth. Lawrence's triple and a passed ball closed the scoring although the losers left two more stranded in the eighth and another pair in the ninth.

Roger Drake homered and singled for the Flyers while Donnie Cole had two singles in the many official trips. Ron Taylor also had two hits, Doug Alexander a triple and Sam Mann a pinch-hit single in the ninth.

From Hooks To Hats For Champ

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Just because a young man named Emile Griffith is a milliner by trade, don't get the idea he's a sissy.

The 23-year-old New Yorker is here training for his 15-round title defense June 2 against Mexico's Gaspar Ortega.

So any of his ring rivals needle him about his hat-making?

"No, they don't," said the muscular fighter, inferring with a heavy smile it might not be a judicious idea.

One of Griffith's managers, Howard Albert, is in the millinery business and the fighter took up the trade as a hobby. He now is a designer during off-ring hours.

"I find it relaxing," Griffith explained.

Leading Light of England's Film Comedy Now in States

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Terry-Thomas is here, hyphen, gap and all.

It's not only natural that Hollywood would import one of the leading lights of England's film comedy industry. He now is acting in Bachelor Flat with Tuesday Weld, Richard Beymer and Celeste Holm. Director Frank Tashlin does a rave over TT: "He is a magnificent clown. He can even take a prat fall with dignity."

The name of Terry - Thomas needs to be explained. He was born Thomas Terry Hoar Stevens.

"When I started thinking of a stage name, I considered Thomas Terry, but discarded it for fear I would be presumed to be a member of the Terry family," he said, referring to the English stage clan.

He adopted Terry-Thomas and shows mild annoyance when he is called Terry or Mr. Thomas.

About the gap. It stretches several millimetres between his upper front teeth and lends to his comic appearance.

THAT'S IT!

"People rush up to me and say, 'Smile!'" he has remarked. "When I do, they are very grateful and say, 'That's it!'"

So influential has this feature been that he called his autobiography Filling It In, for which is what a lot of people want to do. But not TT.

"My family never considered orthodontics. All the females in my family have the gap, so it wasn't considered unusual. I suppose if I were a romantic type of actor, I would have done something about it. But as a boy I considered myself the Errich von Stroheim type and was always posing with a watch crystal in my eye."

T - T and the gap have achieved the same thing in a series of hilarious English films like I'm All Right, Jack and Make Mine Mink.

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Strange and frightening ailments are afflicting that once proud and glamorous industry, railroading. NBC's final "white paper" of the season took a look Tuesday night at these frail systems in the United States. It summed up the gloomy picture with some shots of rotting ties, rusting rails and defensive railroad presidents pleading for equal treatment with rival forms of transportation while raising the spectre of socialism in a nationalization of the industry.

But the public's prevailing attitude toward rail travel was even more dramatically sketched in three short vignettes.

One was a film clip of the early 1890s showing a stalled, elegantly attired men, women and children dining in luxury aboard the plush 20th Century as it roared through the countryside. Then the scene shifted to today —a group of disconsolate, bored people in the train's club car.

"I'm on this train," one man disdainfully, "because I couldn't get on a flight to Chicago."

"I've got too used to bad conditions," said a New York-bound commuter with weary resignation. "But I'll settle for the hot cars in summer, the cold cars in winter and I'll sit on a hard bench, if they will only just get me to work on time."

The program skipped all over the country, finding delays, breakdowns, poor service, discontinued trains, branch lines and main lines all over the place.

Carrying people on trains just doesn't seem to be profitable.

Everton Nips Concordia 1-0

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Concordia lowered its second consecutive shutout defeat Tuesday night by dropping a 1-0 decision to Everton of England in the International Soccer League opener here.

A crowd estimated at 8,000 saw the visitors outplay Concordia during most of the game.

Centre-forward Bobby Young, Hull's ex-lawyer is the second Army for the league schedule, scored Everton's goal at 27:00 minutes of the second half with a low shot that slid under Concordia goalie Tony Macedo.

Cleroux KO's Roy Harris

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Bob Cleroux of Montreal stopped Roy Harris of Cut and Shoot, Tex., in the 8th round of a scheduled 10-round heavyweight fight Tuesday night with hell - like rushes and powerful body punches.

The hard-swinging, 205-pound Canadian knocked Harris down twice for counts of eight and had him down when the bell rang at the end of the fourth round on the count of five.

Harris, 195, could not answer the bell for the fifth round and it goes into the record books as a technical knockout in the fifth.

REFUGEE INCREASE

West Germany received 65,170 refugees from East Germany during the first quarter of 1961, compared with 50,333 in the same period of 1960.

The Trots

MONTREAL (CP) — Josedale Jet Pilot and Russell Tass, a couple of long-shots, combined for a $481.50 daily double Tuesday night in the opening two races at Richelieu Park.

Josedale Jet Pilot paid $27.50, $10.20 and $7.50 while Russell Tass returned $30.10; $14.70 and $6.

Mirfin Hanover won the featured $1,700 2-2 pace with a 2:04 1-5 time for the mile. The payoff was $3.10, $2.90 and $2.60.

Billy Springwood returned $8 and $4.20 placed money and Carolwyn Grattan showed for $3.

BILLIARDS CHAMP HURT

LIMA, Peru (AP)—Adolfo Suarez, world three - cushion billiards champion, will have to remain in a hospital for 30 days after suffering a broken shoulder bone and head injuries in an auto accident. The Peruvian ace artist won the title recently in Amsterdam.

Passes Up Canada Cup

Leonard for Memphis

TORONTO (CP)—Stan Leonard of Vancouver says he will pass up the Canada Cup matches in San Juan, Puerto Rico, June 1-4 rather than incur a $200 fine and suspension from the United States Professional Golfers Association.

The Memphis Open is scheduled for the same dates and the PGA constitution calls for the penalty to members who skip a PGA-sponsored tournament to play in another event on the same date.

Leonard, one of the top 20 earners of the touring golf trail, said Tuesday night in an interview he still wants to go to San Juan, where he is slated to represent Canada along with Al Balding of Toronto.

But, "If PGA rules by its decision in Everton of England in the International Soccer League opener here.

A crowd estimated at 8,000 saw the visitors outplay Concordia during most of the game.

Centre-forward Bobby Young, Hull's ex-lawyer is the second Army for the league schedule, scored Everton's goal at 27:00 minutes of the second half with a low shot that slid under Concordia goalie Tony Macedo.

decision to bypass the Canada Cup, even though I want to represent Canada."

"I have no intention of playing Tony Lema in Canada and never had," he said. "But the PGA bylaw says that a member cannot play in a counter competition at the same time a PGA co - sponsored event is scheduled.

"I simply can't afford a $200 fine, or to miss six months on the tour."

Balding was quoted to the same effect last week.

Leonard blames the PGA ruling on protests by sponsors who feel they aren't getting enough top players for their tournaments.

"I played at Greensboro this year," he said, "and I doubt that there were half a dozen of the top 30 money winners in the field. That simply isn't fair to the people who are putting up the big purses and making pro golf a major league sport."

WILL TATTOO HORSES

TORONTO (CP)—William J. Riswick, supervisor of racing for the Ontario Racing Commission, said Tuesday the ORC soon will start tatooing standard breds to "give more assurance to the public." Mr. Riswick said thoroughbreds have been tattoed since 1951 and "there hasn't been a ringer since the tatooing began." Pictures of the tattoo and other information will be kept on file and copies will be sent to the United States Trotting Association.

JOBLESS TOTAL

the warm period of 1960 but lower than the 1958 and 1959, was almost entirely among the young.

The 9.7-per-cent rate of unemployment in April compares with a rate of 11.1 per cent in March and 11.3 per cent in February. The peak winter unemployment during the last winter.

Although the unemployment rate was up over last year in all provinces, there was a gain in employment across the country, in most parts, the gain was more than seasonal.

Unemployment was down earlier, but elsewhere employment gains ranged from two per cent in the Pacific region to about five per cent in the Atlantic region.

There was little change in the number of unemployed women. As usual, said the labor department, most of the women who found jobs in April came from outside the labor force.

Of the 622,000 workers out of a job in April, 240,000 were on temporary layoff. The rest, 590,000, were without work and were seeking work.

The unemployment picture in Ontario

A larger-than-usual gain in employment in Ontario raised the number of people at work to 2,807,000, compared with 2,718,000 in March. The unemployment dropped to 160,000 from 190,000 in the March-April period.

It was 8.8 per cent of the 2,807,000-member labor force, compared with 8.1 per cent in March and 5.8 per cent in April, 1960.

However, on a year-to-year basis, the number of employed was hardly changed.

The government shut down about 100 newspapers and 200 magazines, including many which were termed incompetent, financially weak and subservient to money payoffs. Registration of new publications was frozen and censors withheld permission for all school newspapers to appear.

Some 4,200 Koreans arrested as hoodlums will be sent to labor camps, but whether they will be "re-educated" after their trials, Mal.-Gen. Shin Hahn, the new home minister, announced, was a question of the death penalty.

DEATH PENALTY

tention of the death penalty—said that hanging is inhuman and should be replaced by execution in the concrete chair or on the gas chamber.

Mr. Fulton said Commons debates in the past few years show clearly that the majority of MPs favor retention of capital punishment.

"It became equally obvious, however, that even those opposed to abolition, there are serious misgivings as to the present law and practice governing the death penalty," he said.

"Juries, and indeed the whole administration of this branch of criminal law will, I believe, be immeasurably assisted by this new approach.

"From now on they will know that the law itself takes formal account of the thousand-and-one different combinations of circumstances that may lead to, or turn it from, the charge of any such event which brings an accused before them on a charge of murder."

Two MPs—J. F. Deschatelets (Maisonneuve) and Lucien Cardin and Gordon Aiken (PC—Parry Sound-Muskoka—both said the bill would, for all practical purposes, abolish the death penalty for 5 years.

"I believe the majority of the people would like to see capital punishment abolished except in certain cold - blooded, planned and deliberate murders," said Mr. Aiken, a former magistrate.

SEES JURY BURDEN

Mr. Deschatelets also said he was speaking only for himself, contended that the bill would place a heavy burden on juries to decide conviction for murder or manslaughter and recommendations of mercy. The burden should be lightened, he said.

He noted that the bill did not follow recommendations in 1953 and 1956 calling for retention of the death penalty but a change in the method of execution.

The only woman to speak in the debate was Margaret Aitken (PC—York - Humber) — said she favored abolition of the death penalty but would support the bill as a "good compromise and a step toward the abolition of capital punishment."

A veteran proponent of abolition, Harold Winch (CCF—Vancouver East), described the legislation as a progressive step but insisted the only right course was to abolish the death penalty outright.

Oslas J. Godin (L — Nickel Belt) said he supports the principle of the bill but with certain reservations.

CRIMES INCREASING

Arthur Maloney (PC—Toronto Parkdale), noted criminal lawyer, said the 1958 and 1959 "real milestone" in the administration of justice. The death penalty was absolutely useless but its abolition still lacked public support. He urged the government to consider commutation of all outstanding death sentences.

Mr. Deschatelets said the distinction between capital and non-capital murder would "become a picnic for learned lawyers and legal experts." Murder is murder, he said, which the cabinet had commuted the penalty in capital murders with evidence of premeditation.

Mr. Deschatelets asked why a jury which took the responsibility of finding a verdict requiring the sentence of death could be asked whether it wanted to recommend clemency. This provision appeared to contradict the definition of capital murder.

FREEDOM RIDERS

mand of the Alabama congressional delegation to get the marshals out of the state, took place in Washington.

The marshals were sent only after the city and state officials failed to quell mob violence and the federal men prevented "an imminently bloody race riot" at the church, the attorney-general said.

Kennedy said one of his assistants, John Seigenthaler, talked to Governor Patterson at Kennedy's emissary and that Patterson assured Seigenthaler violence was "going to be ended."

"Twelve hours later, Mr. Seigenthaler was lying unconscious in a street in Montgomery after having attempted to protect a girl from another armed mob."

READY TO BURN

Kennedy said witnesses at the scene in Montgomery Sunday night told him the church in which about 1,000 Negroes were gathered, "would have been burned to the ground with great loss of life" if the marshals hadn't stepped in.

"What is now needed is action on the part of Governor Patterson and local law enforcement officers—not merely words of tribute."

The Freedom Riders originally were a group of Negroes and whites who planned to challenge segregation in southern states by riding in the same seats of the buses.

KENNEDY WANTS TO PUT MAN ON MOON

South African Arrests Ignored In Strike Call

Raids by Police Fail To Stop Pamphlet Issue

By DAVE OANCIA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Pain is pain, whether it comes at birth or at death.

There will be a little of both aspects Wednesday when the Old Union of South Africa dies and the new Republic of South Africa is born.

Many agree that what will be witnessed will not be the birth of a glorious republic—with its connotation of freedom and equality for all regardless of color—but the birth of an outcast.

For in taking the last steps through becoming a republic May 31, South Africa takes the decisive one of severing ties with the Commonwealth of Nations.

Public indications are the racially segregated state of Prime Minister Dr. Hendrik Verwoerd faces a future of increasing loneliness and tightening blackand-white bitterness.

May 31 is a national holiday but there will be little celebrating.

In preparation for what was meant to be a day of jubilation, Verwoerd's government has felt it necessary to take measures that by any yardstick can only be called stern.

TAKE EMERGENCY STEPS

South Africa is practically on a war footing. A drastic ban on demonstrations has been imposed. Leave for defence force officers has been cancelled. Eleven reserve regiments have been called up.

Police raids on African townships have been intensified. Thousands of non-whites are believed to have been arrested. And white women of all ages have been trained in the fine art of how to shoot pistols and rifles.

The decision to sever links with the British Crown was taken by Verwoerd when he returned from a visit a little at the March meeting of Commonwealth prime ministers.

"We don't operate as a judge or jury," Prime Minister Dr. Verwoerd told newspapers after South Africa announced her decision to quit the Commonwealth.

"The principle of non-discrimination is a principle applicable to all. The United Nations stands for it. Membership of the Commonwealth can stand for no principle.

"To the Commonwealth nation, the South African move is regrettable. We regret for it that the brown and black nations already make up the majority and did not have a preferred indictment issued by the attorney-general of Quebec.

The new indictment was announced by special Crown prosecutor Jean Marchen secondary after Judge Peter Shortens finalized reading a 30-page judgment in Sherbrooke, Que., of preliminary hearing dismissing the charges.

The new indictment lists the same charges as were dismissed —conspiring and recording information that might be harmful to Canada; attempting to communicate this information to a foreign power; and attempting to collect information purposely to setting up an espionage ring.

Mr. Miquelon said this was a serious case and Judge Shortenau had dismissed the charges on a point of law.

The preferred indictment will put Bienvacki directly on trial after he is tried, and dispose away with preliminary hearing.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: Cold, cloudy weather is firmly entrenched over North, ern and Central Ontario. Showing down of the cold-weather front assured Southwestern Ontario of a fine day much like yesterday. Friday will be cool and cloudy throughout the province.

NAZIS INVADE NEW ORLEANS — Five members of the American Nazi Party pose in full uniform for photographers at a New Orleans motel. They arrived on their "hate bus" with the avowed intention to picket Jews, Negroes and Communists. New Orleans police ordered them to remove the swastika arm bands when they were in public. The motel operator ordered them from the premises and they left New Orleans briefly to regroup and make further strategy to picket the NAACP and a New Orleans movie theatre. (AP Wirephoto).

HOUSE PASSES GOVT. BILL ON DEATH PENALTY

PC Back-Bencher Votes Against It

OTTAWA (CP)—A young Conservative back - bencher voted against his party Wednesday on a government bill he says heralds the abolition of capital punishment in Canada.

Maurice Johnson, 32-year-old lawyer representing the Quebec constituency of Chambly - Rouville, remained in his Commons seat as nearly 100 fellow conservatives stood in favor of a bill that provides the death penalty for deliberate murder with life imprisonment decreed for slayings judged to be without premeditation.

Twenty Liberals joined Mr. Johnson as the bill was given second reading — approval in principle—by a vote of 139 to 21.

Mr. Johnson said he opposed the bill because it was, in his opinion, the first step toward abolition of capital punishment. This was denied by Justice Minister Fulton.

The young partner in a Montreal law firm, who spoke in the Commons especially opposed to a section of the bill exempting persons under 18 from execution.

TERMS IT DANGEROUS

This, he said, was a dangerous clause in these times of "serious juvenile delinquency" and of "young hands of robbers who don't hesitate to commit murder."

Cohen Told Skelton He Was Paid $15,000 to Attend Graham Revival

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comedian Red Skelton testified Wednesday that Mickey Cohen once told him evangelist Billy Graham paid him $15,000 to sit in the audience at a revival meeting.

Skelton and comedian Jerry Lewis testified at Cohen's trial on charges of income tax evasion. Both said they dealt with Cohen over the proposal that a movie be made of the story of Cohen's life.

Billy Graham's name came out under questioning of Skelton by Assistant United States Attorney Tom Sheridan. Said Skelton:

"He (Cohen) told me Graham paid him $15,000 to sit in the auditorium (at a Graham revival) and said he would have gotten $25,000 if he had consented to Christianity."

In London, England, Graham's top aide denied that the American evangelist ever paid anybody money to sit in the audience at a revival meeting.

Skelton said Cohen told him Graham paid him $15,000 to sit in the audience at a revival meeting.

Skelton and comedian Jerry Lewis testified at Cohen's trial on charges of income tax evasion. Both said they dealt with Cohen over the proposal that a movie be made of the story of Cohen's life.

Arrest Ten American Nazis Picketing New Orleans Show

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The self-styled "Fuehrer" of American Nazis, George Lincoln Rockwell, and nine of his followers spent the night in jail after picketing activities.

Officers said the district attorney's office would be consulted today to see if any further action will be taken against the group.

Police booked them for "disturbing the peace in a manner that would unreasonably disturb and alarm the public." They were picked up at the Civic Theatre where they were protesting showing of the movie Exodus, which depicts the beginnings of the modern nation of Israel.

Rockwell and five of his so-called storm troopers, wearing khaki clothes with swastika armbands, arrived at the rain-drenched movie house with protest placards.

While these arrests were under way, four members of the party arrived by bus at a rally of the National Association for the Advancement of White People in a school auditorium.

Two pickets got out. Police ordered two who remained in the bus to drive on, and then ordered the pickets to leave because, police said, they were obstructing traffic. Angered drivers were slowing down to watch.

Later, the four arrived at the theatre, and also were arrested.

Negro Leaders Turn Deaf Ear To Attorney-General's Plea

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Integrationists today turned a deaf ear to U.S. Attorney - General Robert Kennedy's plea for a cooling-off period on integrated bus trips into Alabama and Mississippi.

Negro leaders vowed they'll increase efforts to crack bus segregation in the Deep South despite the jailing of "Freedom Riders" by police in this Mississippi capital city of 150,000.

Two buses carrying 27 "Freedom Riders"—25 Negroes and two whites—pulled into Jackson four hours apart Wednesday accompanied by heavy-weeping Mississippi National Guards.

Advance Polls May Show Apathy Over 4 Byelections

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If advance-poll turnout in one of the constituencies is any indication, public interest in the four May 29 federal byelections isn't exactly at fever pitch.

Advance polls were held Saturday in Victoria Wednesday only in the prosperous Ukrainian community suburbs in the Esquimalt-Saanich byelection.

Total number of eligible voters in the British Columbia riding is 49,000. The seat, vacated since October when Defence Minister Pearkes resigned to become B.C.'s lieutenant-governor, is being contested by five men.

George Chatterton, 43-year-old mayor of Saanich, is trying to keep the seat in the Progressive Conservative government camp. His opponents are Liberal David Groos, 43-year-old former navy officer, Social Crediter George Hahn, at 49 a twice - successful candidate in the federal New Westminster-Burnaby riding, New Party candidate Glen Hamilton, 41-year-old social worker, and Don Poirer, 23-year-old Victoria student campaigning for the Socialist party of Canada.

The byelection race is predicted for the traditional Conservative stronghold of Leeds in Ontario, where a two-way fight is being waged by Conservative Elwood Stewart and Liberal John Matheson. Stewart, a businessman, and Matheson, a lawyer, are known locally.

Leeds was represented from 1953 until his death in December by Hayden Stanton. Advance polling was slightly heavier than in Esquimalt-Saanich, 241 of a possible 26,100.

Interest in Leeds has been boosted by participation in the campaign by Liberal Leader Pearson and several cabinet ministers, among them Public Works Minister Walker, Agriculture Minister Hamilton and Northern Affairs Minister Dinsdale.

TWO ALLEGED DOPE TRADERS HELD IN TORONTO

Two Others Being Sought

TORONTO (CP) — Two men named in a United States grand jury indictment as participants in a conspiracy to smuggle drugs were arrested here Wednesday.

Albert Aqueci, 39, and his brother, Vito, 41, both of Toronto, were picked up in simultaneous raids on their homes.

Three other men named in the indictment—John Papalia, 32, of Hamilton and Rocco Scopelliti, 31, believed to live in the Toronto area — are being sought. Papalia is on bail in Toronto awaiting trial on charges of assaulting gambler Max Bluestein of Toronto last March.

The indictment named 20 persons, of whom 13 were arrested in New York and Brooklyn. All pleaded not guilty when arraigned Wednesday.

Conspiracy charges against Vito were withdrawn.

Extradition privileges visits made by the four Canadians to New York to meet members of the smuggling ring. It said Albert Aqueci met a Frank Catuno there in March, 1960, and left 11 pounds of pure heroin. On another occasion, it said, Vincent Mauro, the indictment charged.

His brother is alleged to have conferred with Albert Palmeri in September, 1960. Palmeri, Mauro and Carmine Galante of New York were named in the indictment.

Albert Aqueci was on $6,000 bail on a charge of illegal possession of narcotics and possessing a dangerous weapon. He said his brother are being held without bail.

Papalia, known variously as Peppo and the Enforcer, surrendered to Toronto police May 11 and was charged with the assault on Bluestein. He was released on $4,000 bail and was to appear in court June 15.

It will be up to the Ontario attorney - general's department and the county court judge who hears the extradition charges to decide whether Papalia will be delivered to U.S. authorities when arrested, the senior county court judge, Robert Forsyth, said.

William C. Bowman, director of public prosecutions, said the extradition hearing may make is whether or not the men are extraditable, he said.

No statement was made afterwards by either leader. Further talks may be held later today.

Asks Congress For Nine Billion For Space Work

Will Be Long Program Requiring 9 or 10 Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy called on Congress today to beef up the military, strengthen foreign aid, attack unemployment and pump $7,000,000,000 to $9,000,000,000 into rocketing a man to the moon.

His requests were made in an extraordinary message — a second report on the State of the Union, for delivery in person before a joint Senate - House session, almost on the eve of his departure for conferences abroad.

Kennedy asked for $1,500,000,000 in new appropriations now to get on with his programs plus a recognition from Congress and the country that billions more will be required in the future.

Speaking of the objective of landing a man on the moon and returning him safely to the earth," a project some experts estimate may require nine or 10 years, the president said:

HALF WAY NOT ENOUGH

"Let it be clear that I am asking the Congress and the country to accept this commitment to a new course of action—a course which will last for many years and carry with it heavy costs—an estimated $7,000,000,000 to $9,000,000,000 additional over the next five years. If we were to go only half way, or reduce our sights in the face of difficulty, it would be better not to go at all."

"For while we cannot guarantee that we shall one day be first, we can guarantee that any failure to share this effort will make us last," the president said.

Kennedy asked $670,000,000 of new funds for the current year, including $531,000,000 for the moon project.

He also asked $100,000,000 of new foreign aid funds, shared about equally between military and economic assistance.

PLAN EMERGENCY FUND

The economic portion, $250,000,000, would go into a presidential contingency fund, he said, to be used only upon the president's finding that a sudden and extraordinary drain on the regular funds would require the use of this emergency reserve.

The need for such funds, he said has been "illustrated by recent events in Southeast Asia."

The president said his coming meeting with Soviet Premier Khrushchev in Vienna will be only "a personal exchange of views."

"No formal agenda is planned and no specific issues will be pressed," he said.

Referring to nuclear test ban negotiations at Geneva, he said "we intend to go the last mile in patience."

But "it will probably be expecting too much to hope that the new emphasis of the problem" (Geneva) "will bring fruitful group testing bug status segregation in the southern United States.

Meanwhile, the Alabama flareup took prominence play in South African newspapers and radio reports.

The Johannesburg Die Transvaler said in an editorial that "those who still want to put forth interference as a magic word which will clear up the world's racial problems, including those of South Africa, should think again."

The Bloemfontein Die Volksblad said President Kennedy's

Kingston City Workers Strike

KINGSTON (CP) — Public works services in Kingston went on strike at midnight Wednesday night when more than 100 workers refused to enforce wage demands in a dispute with the city.

The strike by members of Local 9, the National Union of Public Employees (NUPE) (CLC), involves the board of works, the parks department, the sanitation department and traffic and streets painting crews.

The union seeks a general increase of 8 cents an hour, overtime pay for weekend work and a clause preventing a cutback in wages for a classified employee who is used temporarily in a capacity calling for a lesser rate of pay.

Community Planning Week Kicked off With Exhibit

TRENTON — Community Planning Week got under way here Wednesday night.

Dr. W. A. L. McDonald, chairman of the Trenton and Suburban Planning Board, O. W. Larry, board secretary, and members of the Trenton area conducted visitors around a display area at Canterbury Hall, explained the various exhibits and outlined the aims and objects of planning in general.

Trenton's recently-approved official plan was a drawing card for the spectators, while various "before" and "after" planning exhibits ran a close second. Several planning enthusiasts from Cobourg and Brighton had motored down for the first night of the exhibit.

A display board prepared by Trenton's assessment commissioner, Alan Smith, proved that there is a preponderance of homes in the Trenton area assessments cannot support one public school child.

Trenton's large range plans for waterfront development were displayed in a mockup which came in for a great deal of scrutiny.

Colorful posters and slogans prepared by the town's elementary schools were also on be display. As there are prizes for the best of these, it is expected that the exhibit hall will be filled with students and their parents. The chairman of the board told a reporter that the student displays were excellent and well worth seeing.

The official plan, which was recently approved by the Minister of Planning and Development, covers the residential residential, commercial and industrial growth of Trenton for the next 15 years. Project Planners Associates of Toronto, who were instrumental in compiling the plan, estimate that by 1975 the town's population will 17,500. The plan is based on a series of calculations drawn from statistical records of growth of municipalities similar to Trenton.

The town has been divided into seven "neighborhoods" by the plan and each will be serviced by commercial areas, parks and schools. Subdividers will be expected to conform to the plan when developing their properties.

Industry will be encouraged to develop in areas designated for this use, and serviced by water and sewer facilities.

Present planning board members, in addition to the chairman and secretary, are Bruce Ireland, Howard L a n g d o n, Arnold Robson, Mrs. Harriet Simmons and John Forbes.

The planning board studies local problems and makes recommendations to town council concerning them.

Council is expected to appoint a three member committee of Belleville to consider minor variances in the zoning by-law, which would be dealt with by the Ontario Municipal Board.

Individual displays of Bell Telephone products and a Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation development unit were featured at the exhibit as examples of what comprehensive planning can do. The same principal may be applied to town planning.

CNR Workmen Still Mopping Up Derailment

TRENTON — C.N.R. workmen are continuing mopping up operations at the scene of last Thursday night's freight derailment on the canal bridge at Lock No. 1 of the Trent Canal. Crews of men have taken the damaged box cars apart and the sections have been moved to one side of the track or taken away.

Meantime, railway officials are considering the best method of salvaging the lone box car which plunged from the bridge into the bed of the canal.

The scene of the accident continues to be a great attraction for spectators and photographers are still snapping pictures of the wrecked cars remaining on the scene.

Trenton firemen were called to the salvage area Yesterday afternoon when fire broke out in a box car which was being cut apart by a torch.

Honor Villans

TRENTON — Members of the fire department last night were hosts to firemen within the Hastings and Prince Edward Mutual Aid area at a social gathering planned in honor of Villans, of Belleville, who has been appointed second in command of the investigations branch of the Ontario Fire Marshal's office in the Belleville area. The chiefs from Cobourg and Oshawa attended.

Specifications For New Type Plane Scrapped

WASHINGTON (AP) — A veteran U.S. Navy captain said Wednesday specifications and other data on a revolutionary type plane concept were destroyed last fall on orders from his superiors.

Capt. Cooper B. Bright said the project — involving an inflatable plane that its backers claim could take off vertically from almost any kind of surface ship — was squelched because certain admirals feared it

Inquest Looking Into Death Of Tommy McNevin Opens In the County Courthouse

A coroner's inquest looking into the death of kidnap victim, Tommy McNevin, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald McNevin of this city, commenced this morning at the Hastings County Courthouse.

The hearing is expected to take at least two full days with inquest officials stating that a total of 37 witnesses were to be heard.

Only four witnesses were called during the morning session. These included Mrs. McNevin, mother of the dead boy, Mrs. Thos. Williamson, wife of Thos. Warren Williamson who appeared as intermediary in the ransom note demand to the McNevin family and was later found shot to death in the basement of his Southview Ave. home and Cpl. Harold Howling, head of the Ontario Provincial Police identification branch at Belleville.

The ransom demand to the McNevin family was for $35,000.

Two days after he disappeared on March 30th, the McNevin boy was found dead trussed to a small tree in a Sidney township swamp eight miles northwest of the city.

Coroner for the inquest is Dr. Donald Warren of Hamilton while Crown Attorney Harry Deyman of Cobourg is conducting the enquiry.

FIVE-MAN JURY

The five-man coroner's jury, empanelled by coroner's officer, Inspector J. Clair Hayes, and following completion of the evidence will determine "how, when, where and by what means" the McNevin boy died, were all Belleville business men. They are J. N. Vanover, foreman; Frank Domonico, Bryson Leslie, William Hurst and Walter Day.

At the outset of the hearing the coroner told the jury that there was no one on trial at the hearing.

This inquest is merely to bring out all the evidence," he said.

However, enlarging on the instructions given to the jury by the coroner, Crown Attorney Deyman told the jury that if they came to the conclusion that the McNevin boy came to his death as result of wrongdoing they must indicate the person who they felt was responsible.

First witness called was Inspector Hayes who told the hearing that viewing of the body by the jury had been dispensed with. He identified the order for the dispensation.

IDENTIFIED PHOTOS

He identified photographs taken of the Sidney township area where the boy was found lashed to a tree. Other photographs were closeups of the area where the boy was found, bruises on the boy's head and neck, and of the Williamson station wagon and the basement of the Williamson home on Southview Ave., where Mr. Williamson was found shot to death.

Seated with the crown attorney in the courtroom were Hastings county crown attorney John A. Pringle; Inspector L. Needham of the Criminal Investigation Branch of the Ontario Provincial Police, and Inspector J. B. McLaughlan of the Belleville Police Department, who headed up the investigation into the boy's death.

Despite the wide interest in kidnap death of the young Belleville boy, outside of inquest officials there were only about 30 persons, including some witnesses, in the courtroom when the inquest opened at 10 o'clock.

A large desk map of the city, along with diagram drawings of the Williamson house were set up in the courtroom and were repeatedly referred to by the crown attorney.

The day after the kidnapping Mr. Williamson who had appeared as intermediary in the ransom demand was found shot to death in the basement of his home, a 12-gauge shotgun being found at his side.

Cpl. Howling said fingerprints found on the shotgun were those of Mr. Williamson. The position of the prints was such that the firearm had been held with the muzzle pointing at the holder.

Clad in black and speaking in a low voice, Mrs. Williamson told the hearing that she and her husband had lived in Belleville for the past five years. She said her husband was partner in the T. and W. Products Ltd., a firm making dinnerable dishcloths.

Her husband had been active in the boy scout movement and was formerly a Sunday school with the Tabernacle United Church cub pack.

Questioned as to the family finances Mrs. Williamson said she had quite adequate and she had known of no financial difficulties her husband may have had.

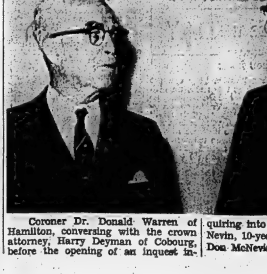
POLICY LAPSED

She said, however, that an insurance policy carried by her husband had been allowed to lapse late last year.

In a calm, unfaltering voice, Mrs. Williamson reviewed events at her home prior to March 31st when during the evening she had heard a shot from the basement and found her husband dead at the foot of the basement stairs.

On March 20th (the day of the kidnapping) her husband had left at eight o'clock in the morning. He ordinarily returned home at five or five-fifteen, but that night had not come home until about 6.10.

Cpl. Harold Fellows, who had explained that he had had a period on the R.C.A.F. in the States and had not realized it was so late. She said her husband had appeared normal and after the evening meal the family had listened TV until 11 o'clock, when they had retired.



STARTLED BY FOOTSTEPS

Tuesday morning Mr. Williamson had left for work at the usual time, but shortly after Mrs. Williamson that he would be back to Kingston and did not know whether he would be home for lunch.

Mrs. Williamson said that during the morning she had been busy washing and then returning to the kitchen had been startled to hear footsteps on the basement stairs. She investigated and was surprised to see her husband, who told her he had not gone to Kingston after all.

She had next seen her husband about two o'clock in their living-room, at which time he had appeared quite shaken up.

Navy League Plans New Dock

The Belleville Branch of the Navy League of Canada, which is affiliated with the Belleville United Appeal, met yesterday evening at the Sea Cadet building on the harbour with a good attendance of members. Plans for the construction of a new dock to replace the old structure, which had greatly deteriorated over the past few years, were discussed and approved. It is anticipated that work will commence in the near future on the new dock.

The members also discussed the possibilities of closer liaison and integration regarding the training of personnel for advancement between the Sea Cadet and the Navy League Cadet Corps.

It was suggested that representation be made to the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club regarding the possibility of co-operation and participation in the Lake Yacht Racing Association Regatta to be held in this area during the summer.

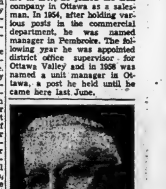
'Laboratory Technology' Topic at P.T.A.

The members present at the Nicholson College P. T. A. meeting last Tuesday evening heard an interesting talk on "Laboratory Technology" by Mr. Clifford Stone, chief technologist at the Belleville General and Hospital for Isolated Diseases.

Mr. Stone, stated that the career of a laboratory technologist was an interesting one. The course for Laboratory technologists is open at Belleville General Hospital Laboratory for graduate students with matriculation standing. Senior matriculation is preferred, but with the present shortage of laboratory technologists junior matriculation students are being accepted. It is a one-year course and the school is affiliated with the Ontario School for Technologists at Hamilton, Ontario. Succesful students are registered technologists and may obtain work in any of the hospital laboratories, throughout Canada.



Registered technologists may become specialists in any of the following laboratory fields, namely, bacteriology, biochemistry, hematology, histology and urinalysis.

Mrs. Ted Kelly, 1st vice-president thanked Mr. Stone for his informative talk.

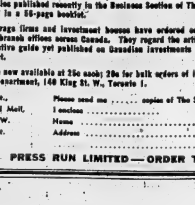
Questions from the floor followed the talk.

Mr. Paul Cleary, president, opened the meeting and the Rev. Sister Mary Theresa said the prayer.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. G. O'Brien, assisted by Mrs. Johnson.

H. W. MAINES, of Bell Telephone's plant department in Belleville, who recently marked 30 years of service with the telephone company.

Liberals Pick Mrs. J. Newman



TORONTO (CP) — Former Controller Jean Newman, out of politics since her defeat in Toronto's mayoralty elections last December, returned Wednesday night when she was nominated liberal standard-bearer for Toronto Eglinton in a forthcoming provincial byelection.

The seat was left vacant by the death of former education minister William J. Dunlop. Traditionally Conservative, the riding has not been represented by a Liberal since the late Harold Kirby was defeated in 1937.

Economic Trade Reverses

It is a banker's business to keep his fingers on the economic pulse of the nation. Moreover, when a bank gives advice to a customer or a potential customer, it never plays a Pollyanna role. It does not subscribe to the theory that telling the truth, if it hurts, makes the hurt worse.

It follows that when a big Canadian bank says that the recession of 1920 has passed its ebb and that the economic tide has reversed, there are solid reasons for hoping that its analysis of the situation may prove correct. In its current Commercial Letter, the Canadian Bank of Commerce says that Canadians can start breathing a little easier about their economy. "Although the returning flow is almost imperceptible yet, there are indications it is coming," it declares. It expects industrial production to revive under the twin stimuli of increasing final demand—demand by the ultimate consumers—and the cessation of inventory liquidation.

Retail trade should show a moderate increase, probably strongest in the latter half of the year, says the bank. Capital investment should expand slightly, but the bank predicts that there will be greater emphasis on housing and social investment, while business investment will be lower. Trade with Europe may moderate, but increased trade with the U.S. can be expected.

However, all is not sweetness and light. Unemployment provides the major problem. While the number of people employed in Canada has risen from year to year, except in periods of recession, the labor force has increased in size at a faster rate. This means, of course, that the unemployed have not merely increased numerically but also as a proportion of the total labor force.

"The present situation," warns the bank, "is not so much a temporary phenomenon as a sign the labor force has not yet adjusted to the changes which are taking place in the economy, an economy which, in turn, is failing to provide job opportunities for a growing labor force."

Or, put in other words, not only are many of the unemployed lacking in the skills, of a higher degree and a greater diversity, now demanded by our economy, but even if all the unemployed possessed these required skills, industry still would not require the services of all of them.

To urge the jobless to acquire new skills, and to stress the importance of those attending school continuing their studies, is certainly the wise policy, but it appears evident from the bank's warning words that we should just be deceiving ourselves if we considered this a full solution of the problem of adjusting our society to the age of automation.

Timid General

The CBC televised its customary hour-long live drama on Sunday evening. This past holiday weekend the presentation was entitled "The Conquest of Cobbletown," a light-hearted laughter-provoking play about a U.S. firm acquiring a small Canadian company and one Canadian's efforts to fight this "Yankee invasion."

There were several moments of biting satire, with Author Leslie MacFarlane laying about him impartially. One moment it was the plight of the Canadians in a women's beverage room, called upon to unite their voices to drown out "The Star-Spangled Banner" booming from the throat of one lone Yankee. "Come on our national anthem," appeals the patriotic Canadian. "Which one?" queries the realist and the living room audience chuckled "Touche."

The next it is one of the invading Yanks and a Canadian collaborator paying fitting tribute to a long list of heroic men who, throughout the ages, had stood up for the right of their countries to choose their own way of life—until the Canadian makes the unforgivable faux pas—"oh, yes, and that man, what's his name, that man with the beard." Mostly, though, the play was pure farce, a series of situations which, while mirth-provoking, obviously could never occur in real life. It was really all so silly—until one realized that this was the play which General Motors thought too hot to sponsor.

We need a fruitful period for effort in The Congo. We must stop pulling up the roots of this plant every five days to see if it is still growing. That is the way to kill the plant and I suspect that is exactly what some people have in mind.—Adlai Stevenson, ambassador to the U.N.

Starlings Blamed on Bard

Kansas City Star

There are hundreds of millions of starlings in the United States, and apparently the whole thing started with William Shakespeare.

In 1890, Eugene Schieffelin, who wanted to introduce Americans to every bird mentioned in Shakespeare's works, released 60 European starlings on New York's Central Park. The next year he brought 40 more, and from their progeny, the starlings took over the country.

For about five years the birds stayed within greater New York, but in 1905 they were nesting in Connecticut. Like a creeping menace they spread to Rhode Island in 1914, Virginia in 1930 and Washington, D.C., in 1942.

By 1929 officials for the Hoover inauguration were worrying about starlings along the parade route, and farmers in Wisconsin, Kansas and Texas were trying to keep them out of cattle feed lots. Ten years later they had reached into Mexico and Canada, and the birds numbered a billion. By 1957 they were swarming into the bolly groves of Oregon. In the winter they roosted on the dirtied courthouses and irate citizens.

Throughout the 70 years that these gregarious and aggressive birds have harassed man, experts have tried to keep them from roosting on and biting public buildings. Then, 63 persons died in an airplane crash at Boston's Logan airport. Oct. 4, 1960, suddenly, the menace of the starlings suddenly changed from dirt to death.

Investigators suggested that the crash occurred when starlings being sucked into the air-intake of a prop-jet, a plane with a jet-driven propeller, bird experts took a look at the airport and marvelled that such a disaster had not occurred sooner.

The fish and wildlife service, now engaged in something of a control program, is hoping to find a debirding scheme that can keep starlings off buildings in which they nuzzle. Between 20 and 30 different methods of discouraging the "common pest birds" that comes into the city to roost have been tried, and nearly every one has been a colossal flop.

Roman candles, balloons and loud noises work in isolated cases. Recordings of starlings in distress, screeches and fake birds shots do also. But after a few days the birds seem to treat the objects or noise as part of the fascinating city din.

Electrical wires have ripped up ultraviolet lights designed to give the birds a ghostly appearance. The starlings were supposed to frighten at each other, figuring it must be the light as if it were sunshine.

One technique that has been successful is the electric hotfoot, accomplished by attaching two wires along perches. Another is the use of nonmetallic wire at or wooden runners at a 45-degree angle to the perching surface. Trick is that the birds slide right off the roost. Applying a sticky substance also does the job. It leaves the birds with their wings, but at least the birds object to the feel of the grease on their feet.

All of these control methods are expensive.

For all the trouble the starlings cause they have their good points. They eat various agricultural pests, such as cotton beetles, and can sing like mockingbirds if they care to do so.

Choosing National Bird

St. Thomas Times-Journal

Since the Canadian Government has failed to solve the flag problem, attention to those who would find a symbol for Canada has turned to birds. There is now being carried on a clandestine search for THE Canadian bird.

National birds have not fared well in the course of History. The owls of Athens were protected by religious law and, like all other birds, could not be killed or driven from temples. Since most Greek temples were in part open to the sky, with a generous supply of dead sacrificial meat, the various stages of decay, the dignity that was Greece was considerably besputtered. In fact statues in temples had metal shields about the head to foil this obvious reason; the halo around our modern saints and angels has a lowly, but most practical origin.

The American bald eagle was a similar unfortunate choice, since it is largely a carrion-eating bird that helps itself on dead fish. The nest of the eagle could be a fine thing to look on a hot day in the noon sun.

India has recently been considering the peacock, the proud peacock as a national bird. Objections over the latter's preening manner have raised a tempest in the New Delhi press.

In Canada, the problem has so far fixed attention on the Canada Goose as the most appropriate choice. Canada in the title has much to do with this, but the Canada Goose is a wise trustworthy bird. It leaves its home every autumn for Florida and the south, is a loud cackling talker, and is not a fancy dresser. In fact its appearance by favors the goose because it is faithful to its mate, and doubtless had his eye on current divorce scandals.

Other birds have been suggested for Canada such as the Canada Jay, the White Crowned Sparrow which calls out clearly "Kennedy, Kennedy, Kennedy," and the Common Loon, with its mournful, mysterious lark. This last is found in the East and also out West; it nests on the ground, eats bugs and worms, and has a yellow breach.

Possibly birds and flags see more trouble than most Canadians realize. The English sparrow has flocked to their bird. We use their flag, why do we not choose their bird? Come now is not the same species, has a July 1st breast instead of Dominion Day, and the Easter lish bird, but is most Conservative.

Government Can Say No

Ottawa Journal

Governments, said the president of the Bank of Ontario at the Board of Commerce, must learn to say "no."

Does Mr. W. T. Grant believe that the Government does not say "no?" If he lived in Ottawa instead of Windsor, Mr. Grant might be more admiring of the government's ability to decline requests. Could it be that he is put by without "no" being said in the way of answers to the petition of some persons or groups.

Finance Minister Fleming, in reporting that he will be considering his skills in rejecting requests urged upon him by many organizations, Mr. Grant's parent body, the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, was among those coming forth with their ideas for prosperity. It doesn't take special knowledge to presume that the unsolicited and famous suggestion of the Chamber of Commerce for a tax holiday will be turned down. Some "nos" are harder to say "no" to than others.

The Government, not this one at least, should be expected to know to say "no"; Canadians, including the Chamber of Commerce, must learn to stop asking for the moon.

STRENGTH for the DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

DON'T LET 'IF' GET YOU DOWN

Do worry and anxiety ever lead you to the brink of despair? The word despair means hopelessness or the relinquishing of all happy expectation. It is a fearful word. It is enough to be feared and shunned.

But we should remember that the word despair comes from a Latin word "sperare" which means hope. Here is significant. Even despair has hope in it. In fact, despair is the twisting about of something good, something hopeful, something full of happy expectation until it has turned sour and we find ourselves sick of mind and soul.

There is never any reason for despair in a world created by a good God, presided over by the same Creator. Things can get rough. They can get so grim at times that we can't decide whether or not we can really take it. But behind everything is God. "God is light and in Him is no darkness at all" (I John 1:5). So the basics for hopeful living are built into the universe in which we find ourselves.

We may not understand why certain things happen. We may not like them. We may cry out in pain. But do not despair. The word despair is based on a lack of things means hope.

Despair is hope gone sour. Despair is hope which has fallen ill. "Hope thou in God: for I shall yet praise Him, who is the health of my countenance and my God," (Psalm 42:11).

Plans to beautify Memorial Park in Belleville were proposed to the City Parks Board by a deputation representing the Belleville Horticultural Society at the fortnightly meeting of the Parks Commission held last night in the City Hall. The Horticultural Society asked permission beds of evergreen bushes at the two northern entrances to Memorial Park and also along Canniffon Road. It was given to understand that there are other plans in mind of beautifying this park another year, but permission is asked for the present plans as the society is ready to start.

With the scarcity of lumber making it difficult at times for local contractors and carpenters to do building operations, the use of plywood as a substitute for lumber is quite likely to become popular. The cost of applying such material is less than that of ordinary lumber. The appearance of the three-ply material on the building is greater than that of lumber.

Purely Personal Prejudices: Some men look fat who are utter metabolic failures. I spent my youth trying to get fatter and now I vainly spend my middle-age trying to get thinner. Those who maintain a consistent medium weight throughout life are truly the darlings of the gods.

It is the chief mark of an unbalanced political personality that it does not believe that he can be anti-Communist without at the same time becoming pro-Fascist. I am convinced in fact that many such are grateful for Communism because it gives them the chance to disguise their Fascist tendencies in the name of "anti-communism."

The phrase "I always say" is usually preceded or followed by a statement that it would be better not to say.

When a woman marries a man of one of the weakness she eventually finds the amiability to be an accurate index of the weakness.

It may be a law of nature that "to the victor belong the spoils" but it is a law of psychology that one should not be a "good" spoils; for in a sense he becomes enslaved to what he has conquered and possessed.

Perhaps better than any criticism of canons of literature is Housman's tests of a true poem as being one you cannot remember while shaving without cutting yourself.

It is a common delusion that by describing another person as "immature" we thereby show ourselves to be more "mature" whatever that means.

Staph Germ Will Yield Reluctantly to Treatment

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

If I had my way, I suppose I'd make a hard and fast rule that no visitor in a hospital would ever be permitted to sit on a patient's bed.

This is in part for the benefit of patients, in part for benefit of the visitors and their children and all the people with whom they come in contact. After that, it is for the benefit of all of us in general. And last of all it is for the benefit of nurses, doctors and other people who work in hospitals.

Tuberculosis germs progress from person to person — but can't survive very long in between periods of landing on (or in) a person, or animal, or a moist product. For an example milk. That's why we pasteurize it!

Too much heat, or too much cold, or too much open air, or dryness, or sunshine doesn't suit the TB germ.

Not all germs are so sensitive. The tetanus germ can survive for a long, long time in rotten wood, or the litter of a barnyard. The germ doesn't grow or activity if it happens to be punched into the skin even slightly, say, a wound from a splinter, nail or (as in war) a scrap of shrapnel.

That's an example of the different types of germs and diseases, but they help. Anything that helps is worth doing — don't you think so?

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

HEALTH AND THE HAPPY MIND

"You can't pick up happiness wandering about in the street, or idling. It is sometimes good to turn back into oneself, to remember, think though and meditate.

There can be no genuine health of body without health of mind. Yet an endless number of people are concerned about the health of their bodies, while neglecting the health of their minds.

Often quoted is the famous proverb from the Old Testament "As he thinketh in his heart, so he is."

Our thoughts control us. They drive us both to health or misery, according to how we shape them. Happy, constructive thinking can save a heap of Doctor's bill. Often the doctor can tell you nothing more than to think straight and clean.

A few years back I attended the performance of a popular play. I regretted it afterward because of its sordidness. I left with a bad taste in my mind. I prefer to attend plays and pictures that lift and stimulate me rather than drag me down.

It is also far more important to keep the mind in health than the body. For the mind is the healthy the chances are that the body cannot but be the same.

You get a healthy mind by giving it the right food and nourishment.

Books and contact with interesting and instructive people help keep the mind healthy. Segregating oneself, shrinking and becoming a habitual complainer are like feeding the mind poison. And what a powerful antidote to ill health of the body is simple normality — cheerfulness! They physician can do you nothing more than to think straight and clean.

Books and contact with interesting and instructive people help keep the mind healthy. Segregating oneself, shrinking and becoming a habitual complainer are like feeding the mind poison. And what a powerful antidote to ill health of the body is simple normality — cheerfulness! They physician can do you nothing more than to think straight and clean.

From youth to later years the right kind of habits are perfect in the game of life.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Turning ponderously on its axis once a day, our lumpy, stodgy, indecent old sphere of an earth is hurtling through space at the rate of 66,000 miles per hour. Soundless through the velvet darkness of eternal night and infinite years and time, we are all sharing a rocket ride that makes the exploits of our spacemen appear a sort of side show for the children.

At 66,000 miles per hour, this earth on which stand so secure we meeting through space. In one year, we have to make our single swing around the sun through distances so vast that it is absurd to state them. And to make it, we have to travel at a speed in excess of a thousand miles a minute. Around a certain point, and once every twenty minutes, we speed at which this very moment we are all, rich and poor, wise and foolish, contented and saleagirls, members of learned societies and bowling Congoleez, peace-loving nations and the's war spongers, the old and the young, the dogs, cats, birds, beetles, are racing, 66,000 miles miles each and every hour to our destiny.

And what is our destiny?

To get once around the sun by one year from today.

Gives One Year For Break-in

George Kenneth Fox, 21, of Belleville today was sentenced to one year definite and one months indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory on conviction of a charge of breaking and entering.

Fox was arrested early last month by city police who were investigating a break-in which occurred March 31 at the Beaver Lumber Company.

Fox pleaded guilty at his trial a few weeks ago and was remanded for sentencing until today.

Police said Fox broke into the lumber company by crawling across a roof and entering himself through an opening he had forced at the top of large doors at the rear of the building. Nothing was reported taken.

Home and School Federation President Addresses Annual Dinner of District Council

By ELIZABETH A. PORT

"The Sleeping Giant Does Move" provided the theme for the annual dinner meeting of the Belleville and District Home and School Council held at the Tabernacle United Church.

One hundred and eleven members of 18 Home and School Associations in the district sat down for an evening of fellowship. It was gratifying to see so many principals, teachers and school board members present, indicative of their support of the Home and School organization and of the Belleville and District Home and School Council.

Receiving the guests were — Mrs. R. Jones, Mrs. J. Cropper, Mrs. A. R. Gariepy, Mrs. W. B. Philip, Mrs. R. Stenson, Mrs. G. Ling, Mr. L. A. Kells and Mr. A. Greatrix.

Mrs. J. Winstanley assisted by members of the council executive, provided hospitality.

Immediately following the dinner, Mrs. R. Jones, Council President, introduced the head table guests: Mr. A. Greatrix, District High School Board; Mrs. A. J. Fort, vice-president; Mr. R. Lee, vice-president; Mrs. G. Gariepy, provincial vice-president, Mr. A. E. Orr, Principal, B.C.I.V.S.; Mrs. J. Cropper, Ontario Federation president; Mrs. R. Stenson, incoming council president; Mr. L. A. Kells, Public School Board; Mrs. W. B. Philip, Peterborough Council; Rev. R. D. MacLean, St. Andrew's Church; Mrs. G. Ling, vice-president.

Mr. A. Greatrix and Mr. L. A. Kells both brought greetings from their respective school boards.

Mrs. A. R. Gariepy, also brought greetings as Provincial vice-president for area "C", in which Belleville is situated.

Mrs. Pat Downes entertained with a solo "Wouldn't It Be Lovely!" from the musical "My Fair Lady". Mrs. W. Ironside was pianist.

Mrs. Dave McDonald, dinner committee chairman, thanked her committee for their assistance and the ladies of group No. 1 of the Tabernacle W.A. under the leadership of Mrs. F. Kerr, who had catered for the dinner.

Mrs. A. J. Fort vice-president, gave a comprehensive report of the 42nd annual convention which she had attended as the official delegate for the council.

PRESIDENT SPEAKS

Mr. A. E. Orr, principal of B.C.I.V.S. introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. J. Cropper, president of the Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations.

Mrs. Cropper has just completed a tour of the province where she has seen the "grassroots" Associations of Home and School in action and she said that the picture she has seen is of a large strong organization.

There must be something to Home and School when it holds the interest of so many!

She urged that every member in every Association understand the creed, the aims and the objects of the Home and School and she stressed that continuing leadership is absolutely essential.

Home and School is at the crossroads, she stated, and now, as never before, members have a greater need for their organization, but also have the greatest opportunities in time, work and interest of the parents of school children.

"It is not the community that is over-organized; it is the people themselves . . . actually too few people doing too much work!"

There is increasing activity for both men and women in the community, but they should consider the community needs and, realistically, allot the time they have available to the tasks they consider the most important.

"I believe that every parent should give a fair share of time and effort to Home and School."

There should be only three reasons why we join Home and School, she said (1) to get to know our teachers; (2) to get to know about the school program and (3) to do something for ourselves.

TRAIN FOR PARENTHOOD

Mrs. Cropper said the real work of Home and School is, essentially, parent education ("family living"), training for better parenthood, the most responsible of professions.

Home and School can and should help our young people who, because Canada is a country of mobile population, often have to struggle with their families without benefit of paternal advice and guidance.

Home and School was organized to work with the school, in the school and for the school. No other group is organized for this purpose and, therefore, there is no overlapping with other organizations!

"We must raise the status of Home and School and we need the fathers to do this! Home and School is not a 'Mothers Club'," she said.

There is a place for everyone and a place for everyone to work in Home and School. It takes each parent doing their particular job to make the community a whole picture.

Men can and are doing a great deal for Home and School. Men should take pride in membership in an organization as large and worthwhile as Home and School! Fathers are just as interested in their children and in their children's education as mothers! The school wants and needs both parents, fathers and mothers.

Mrs. Cropper encouraged every member to take advantage of the Training Schools and the leadership training courses made available through the Councils and the Federation. Everyone can benefit from the training and, so, contribute to shared and continuing leadership in the respective associations.

In Home and School, she said, there are no barriers, everyone is welcome. "We are a unified family of people working towards a common goal. No power is stronger than parent power!"

In closing, Mrs. Cropper commented, "You belong to the most worthwhile organization in Canada; be proud of it!"

Mr. E. R. Valcamp, Quinte Secondary School Board, thanked Mrs. Cropper for her message of enthusiasm and encouragement.

Mrs. R. D. Jones, retiring Council president, in her remarks thanked every member in every association and all of the council executive for their assistance during her three-year tenure of office as council president.

INSTALLS EXECUTIVE

Mrs. J. Cropper installed the council executive for 1961-62 as follows: president Mrs. R. Stenson; vice-presidents Mrs. A. J. Fort, Mrs. W. Drew; recording secretary — Mrs. S. Whitaker; corresponding secretary — Mrs. W. Ironside; treasurer — Mr. J. Welch; executive members Mrs. F. R. Hamilton, Mrs. C. E. James, Mrs. G. Ling, Mrs. W. L. Casselman and Mr. B. Fox.

In accepting the gavel as president, Mrs. R. Stenson pledged to do her best for the good of the council and the associations.

Mrs. A. R. Gariepy, provincial vice-president, then presented the dedication for the following committee chairmen: hospitality — Mrs. J. Winstanley; membership — Mrs. R. Jones; social — Mrs. J. Green; school education — Mr. G. Hutchinson; publications — Mrs. D. McDonald; family life — Mrs. R. G. Williams; bulletins — Mrs. C. Wilson; leadership training Mrs. A. Fort; religious education — Mrs. G. Digby and health and safety — Mr. R. Lee.

A highlight of the meeting was the presentation of the beautiful Sapphire Circle, the Ontario Federation's service pin, to Mrs. R. D. Jones. Mrs. J. Cropper presented the pin on behalf of the associations of the Belleville district, in recognition of faithful and untiring service that Mrs. Jones has rendered to Home and School in this area.

Mrs. Stenson made the following announcements: (1) Association Leadership Camp, June 15-16; (2) Council Leadership Camp, June 18-21; (3) Area "C" committee meeting in Peterborough, May 31; (4). Council executive meeting on Thursday, June 15, in Picton, at the home of Mrs. W. Drew, Gladstone Avenue.

Mrs. Cropper also announced the Ontario Conference on Education in Toronto in November with a quota of 30 Home and School delegates allocated for the new membership project. "Equal Opportunities in Education" is the study guides to be sent out to the Associations for use as program material.

Mrs. S. Whitaker, on behalf of the Associations of the Belleville district, thanked Mrs. Jones and the members of the retiring council executive for the leadership and guidance they have provided.

Fire starting from an overheated wood stove yesterday destroyed the farm home of 80-year-old Kenneth Warren of Scoharie Road, three miles west of Picton. Neighbors saved the furniture in the downstairs section of the six-room house and also carried a 250-gallon fuel oil tank to safety from alongside the building. Bloomfield fire department was 30 minutes late getting to the scene when a call for help placed with a Belleville telephone operator could not be clearly understood by the operator. The firefighters drove several miles in the opposite direction along the road searching for the blaze. Mr. Warren, who lived alone, said his loss was partially covered by insurance. (Hodgson, Picton).

Fire Destroys Scoharie Home Of K. Warren

PICTON — The home of Kenneth Warren, at Scoharie, north-west of Picton, was completely destroyed by fire yesterday. The blaze started in the ceiling above the kitchen stove and was difficult to get at. It spread quickly but the flats and was beyond control when firemen from Bloomfield arrived.

The house was covered with insul-brick and this helped confined the fire as Mr. Warren's barn is only 50 feet distant and Morden Foster's barn and house just across the road. Lack of any wind also contributed in the fire being restricted to the house. Most of the contents of the house, where Mr. Warren resided alone, were lost.

Gets Applause At Party Rally

MONTAGUE, PEI (CP) — She didn't speak, but Mrs John Diefenbaker was still the unchallenged centre of attention Wednesday night at a Progressive Conservative party rally.

Party followers jammed the local high school auditorium to hear a address by Premier Walter Shaw, Fisheries Minister MacLean and Mrs Margaret Macdonald, the party's candidate in the May 21 federal by-election in Kings riding.

But the biggest applause to greet each of the speakers came when they referred to the presence of the prime minister's wife. After the speeches, some 600 persons lined up to meet Mrs. Diefenbaker.

Weddings

HOSKIN — PARK

White baskets of white Shasta chrysanthemums and yellow gladioli, interspersed with ferns formed a lovely background in Plainfield United Church, on Saturday, May 6, at 1.00 p.m. for a very pretty spring wedding, when the Reverend Robert Nichols, pastor of the church, united in marriage Ruth Adele Park, of Plainfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Park, to Alford Edmund Hoskin, also of Plainfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hoskin.

Mrs. Harry Harrison rendered the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Mr. William Weatherstone, cousin of the bride, who sang before the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer," and during the signing of the register, "I'll Walk Beside You."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her full-length bridal gown of crystal silk organza over parchment silk fashioned with fitted bodice accented with seed pearls at neck and waistline. She wore a lace Juliet cap decorated with seed pearls and rhinestones, and elbow-length veil of illusion tulle, and carried a cascade bouquet of yellow roses cresting a white Bible with trailing ivy, and single strand of pearls completed her costume.

The matron of honor was her sister, Mrs. Donald Smith, who was attired in orchid shade silk organza over taffeta with applique trim, matching picture hat, shoes and gloves. She carried a nosegay of white Shasta blooms centred with yellow rosebuds.

The two little flower girls, Miss Nancy Weatherstone, cousin of the bride, and Miss Laurel Barber, cousin of the bridegroom, were frocked alike in orchid silk organza over satin with wide sashes featuring large back bows. They wore matching hats, white shoes and gloves, and carried baskets of white Shasta 'mums.

Mr. Arthur Marshall, of Thomasburg, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Ronald Hoskin, nephew of the bridegroom, of Plainfield, ushered.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Orange Hall, where the bridal table was appointed in the traditional style with a three-tier all white wedding cake topped by a tiny bride and bridegroom beneath an arch of white roses, lily-of-the-valley, with two love birds holding wedding rings.

The guests were received by the bride's mother, wearing a gown in dusty-rose nylon lace over taffeta with black and white accessories, and corsage of white 'mums mingled with white stephanotis.

The bridegroom's mother, in navy shantung, with black and white accessories, and corsage of pink Sweetheart roses and stephanotis, assisted in the receiving line.

For travelling to eastern Ontario and Quebec, and the United States, the bride chose a cinnamon-brown suit with green and beige accessories, and corsage of yellow roses.

Guests were present from Plainfield; Roslin; Thomasburg; Belleville and Trenton.

Miscellaneous showers, one at the home of Mrs. William Weatherstone with Mrs. Donald Smith as co-hostess, and one at the home of Mrs. Grant Kerr, of Plainfield, with Mrs. Charles Kerr, as co-hostess, were held in honor of the bride, previous to her marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Alford Edmund Hoskin are pictured signing the register following their marriage in Plainfield United Church. Canada Has Many Women Alcoholics

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has 35,000 women alcoholics, Mrs W. S. Watson, president of the 6,000-member Woman's Christian Temperance Union, said Wednesday.

She blamed social pressures and a "spirit of conformity" for the spread of drinking among women.

"Those who think it is socially acceptable for women to drink overlook the problem of the alcoholic," she told the annual meeting of the Ontario WCTU.

Mrs. Watson complained that 64 per cent of young people today "take their first drink in their own homes — encouraged by their parents."

Bridge Street W.A. Sponsors Delightful 'Blossom Tea'

With the weather remaining unseasonably cool, the warm and friendly atmosphere in the Bridge Street United Church Parsonage was a delightful contrast when the Woman's Association held its annual "Blossom Tea" and bake sale, yesterday afternoon, which was charmingly convened by Mrs. D. Williams.

Everywhere the eye turned, the theme of welcome and spring flowers was evident and each of the spacious rooms was a bower of beauty with artistic arrangements — even to the adjoining sun room, where the overflow guests were received and also in the large entrance hall where Mrs. R. Greer, convenor, and Mrs. H. McBurney, were in charge of ticket sales, there was an eye-catching display of blush-pink Japonica blossoms.

Receiving the guests in the living room, which was elaborately decorated with numerous artistic bouquets of white and shaded pink tulips, pale pink carnations, interspersed with Japonica blossoms, spirea and other varied pastels, were almond, and Solomon's seal, which adorned the mantle, piano and other vantage points, were Mrs. H. M. Davis, wife of the minister, Mrs. R. F. Sherwin, wife of the assistant minister, and Mrs. Gordon Anderson, president of the organization. Here also were vases of Wedgewood china containing fragrant lily-of-the-valley.

Miles invited the patrons to the very attractive tea room which was prettily appointed with its long tea table covered with a lovely lace-edged Madeira cloth with a beautiful centrepiece of artistically-arranged spring flowers mingled with spirea, Japonica blossoms and flowering almond, flanked by tall pink candles, rising from lacey pedestals set in tri-branch silver candelabra. Gleaming silver tea services and dainty boutonnet serviettes added to this attractive setting. The buffet was elegantly decorated with a white centrepiece overflowing with spring flowers and blossoms and matching tri-branch white candelabra with pale pink candles.

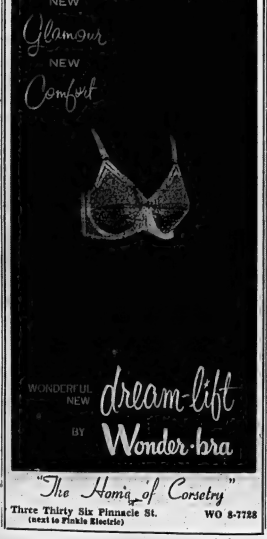
The Full Skirt Shown by Dior In Collection

LONDON (Reuters)—The full skirt, taken up rather cautiously by most British dress manufacturers, swirled magnificently Wednesday in the London wholesale collection of the Paris House of Dior.



Some daytime skirts flared definitely but unobtrusively in Wednesday's autumn collection but the fullest, for day and evening, had four deep folds starting either from the waist or from hip level, and giving swinging fullness to the hem.

These deep folds, two at the back and two at the front, replaced the sharp - edged pleats seen in the spring collection

Other trade-marks of the collection were little fur cravats tucked into the necks of suits and day dresses and big fur collars with hats in the same fur—often fox or lynx

Colors were mostly sombre, with an occasional flash of scarlet, bright pink or emerald. Browns and black were the most frequently repeated evening colors

WEDDINGS

EMERSON — SUMP

Christ Church, Belleville, was the setting recently, for a very pretty afternoon wedding when Sharon Carol Sump, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis F. Sump, became the bride of Eric Francis Emerson, of Halloway, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Emerson. Tall standards of white chrysanthemums and white gardenias adorned the chancel and altar, and white satin bows designated the guest pews. Archdeacon the Reverend J. R. Creeggan, rector of the church, assisted by the assistant rector, officiated in the ceremony.

Mr. John Croyden Wilmers, church organist, presided at the console of the organ, and accompanied the eight - choir boys who sang in the processional "O Perfect Love" and in the recessional Psalm 67, and "Brother James Air".

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. Louis F. Sump, the bride was lovely in her floor-length bridal gown of pure white organza fashioned with molded bodice having a cut-out bateau neckline of Chantilly lace, and long, pointed sheath-like sleeves; the bodice extending into a torso effect. The plain front bouffant skirt was accented at the back with a shirred-ruffled lace over skirt of lace and tulle ending in a chapel train. She wore a headdress encrusted with seed pearls, and finger-tip illusion veil, and carried a semi-cascade of pink delight roses mingled with white Shasta mums and trailing ivy. A strand of matched pearls, the gift of her bridegroom, completed her nuptial costume.

She was attended by Miss Gail Brown, of Tweed as maid of honor; by her sister, Miss Beverley Sump, as bridesmaid, and by Anna Emerson, sister of the bridegroom, as junior bridesmaid. All were gowned alike in mauve tafeta overlaid with white nylon embroidered with cut velvet, having matching cummerbunds ending in looped back bows. The very bouffant skirts were fashioned with scalloped hems. They were matching mauve shoes and wore pearl pendants with matching earrings, gifts of the bride, and carried semi-cascades of mauve and white mums assorted with mauve bells and ivy. Their headdresses were in floral design of real mauve and white mums.

Mr. John Emerson, of Halloway, attended his brother as groomsman, while Messrs. Raymond Emerson of Halloway, brother of the bridegroom, and Merrill Brown, of Tweed, were ushers.

The reception was held at Christ Church parish hall, where the guests were received by the bride's mother, who chose for her daughter's marriage, a two-piece ensemble in coral shade of imported wool, with hat and gloves, shoes and purse in coffee tone, and corsage of white feathered carnations. The bridegroom's mother was in willow-green with three-quarter coat over her sheath gown of matching lace, with pink hat and gloves, beige accessories and pink feathered carnation corsage.

The bride's table was appointed with white linen damask, and centred by a three-tier, pillared wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom, and flanked by crystal candelabra and tall white candles. The floral bouquets of the bridal attendants completed the lovely setting. The guest tables also were centred by bouquets of yellow mums.

For the wedding trip to Marlette, Michigan, via Stratford and Sarnia, the bride travelled in a light-grey wool suit with black suede accessories, mauve glove and hat, and corsage of mauve and white mums.

The bride, previous to her marriage, was honored at a kitchen shower held at Point Anne Orange Hall with Misses Gail Brown, Shirley Ashley and June Reid as hostesses. The young couple were also entertained at a party held by friends and relatives in Marlette, Michigan, when they were the recipients of an electric toaster and a gift of money. Friends of the bridegroom presented him with a floor lamp, smoker, canister set and sani-can, prior to his marriage. They were also honored at a community shower in Halloway where they received a combination china cabinet, bookcase, end table and bedspread.

Mr. and Mrs. Emerson are residing at 24 Catherine Street, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Francis Emerson are shown cutting the wedding cake following their recent marriage in Christ Church, Belleville. The bride is the former Miss Sharon Carol Sump, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis F. Sump, of Belleville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Emerson, of Halloway, Ontario. IVANHOE W.I.

The May meeting of Ivanhoe W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. William French with a good attendance of members and visitors.

The president, Mrs. B. Haggerty, presided. Business was dealt with and delegates to the district annual at Bancroft, on June 1st, were appointed.

Mrs. Haggerty gave a report of the presidents' conference in Guelph which she had attended.

Mrs. MacCrimmon, district president, was introduced and gave an interesting talk to the ladies.

After the singing of the National Anthem, Mrs. French and her assistants served a dainty lunch, and a social hair hour was enjoyed.

Unbaked Cookies

By Mary Moore

There is a never-ending stream of requests from you for unbaked cookies. I have a windfall of them for unbaked cookie addicts, garnered from hostesses who entertained for Mary before the wedding.

Katie Wannop gave her a shower. Mrs. Wannop is an expert cook and made an excellent variety of cookies for that party. I went into a huddle with her and asked if I might have the recipes and she graciously agreed.

MRS. WANNOP'S MARSHMALLOW SQUARES:

Forty graham wafers, rolled finely, 30 marshmallows, cut up, 1 can sweetened condensed milk, 12 glace cherries, cut 1-2 cup chopped nuts, 1-2 cup dates, cut finely. Mix those 6 ingredients together. Sprinkle coconut on bottom of 9 x 12" pan. Put all mixture in and press down. Sprinkle cocoanut on top and chill and store in refrigerator before cutting into squares.

MRS. WANNOP'S DATE BALLS:

Mix 1 cup sugar and 2 eggs and beat well, add three to 4 teaspoon melted butter in heavy frying pan. Then add 1 pound finely chopped dates. Stir over medium heat until well blended (6 minutes). Remove from heat and add 1 teaspoon vanilla and 2 cups rice krispies. Shape into balls and roll in cocoanut. Allow to harden.

MRS. WANNOP'S CHOCOLATE STACKS:

Stir over low heat to dissolve 2 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons sugar and 1 tablespoon milk. Remove from heat. Then add 3 tablespoons dried milk powder, 3 tablespoons (pressed down) Sultana raisins, 1 cup cornflakes (not crushed), 1-3 teaspoon vanilla. Mix well. Drop from measuring teaspoon on to waxed paper pressing firmly together to make tall but tiny stacks or mounds. These can be pressed together with moistened fingers to make ingredients adhere. This amount makes 24 crunchy sweet bite-size morsels. Chill until they have hardened.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

THURSDAY

DONUA'S CHOCOLATE SLICES:

("Donga" was her grandchildren's way of pronouncing "Grandma" and has stuck through the years. She is my brother's beloved mother-in-law.). Melt in double boiler 1-2 cup butter (or margarine or shortening), and add 4 tablespoons sugar, 4 tablespoons cocoa and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Beat in 2 eggs. Cook gently, stirring until thick — about 3 minutes. Remove from heat and add 30 arrowroot biscuits into (and I quote) "5-cent" pieces, which means piece by piece rather than second threat roughly 3-4" in diameter. Also add 1-2 or 1 cup chopped walnuts or use 1 cup cocoanut or chopped almonds. Press firmly into shallow pan to 1-2" thickness. Frost top with butter icing flavored with lemon juice. Let stand in a couple of days."

ACTRESS IS FINE.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) Actress June Allyson is recovering from her second throat operation within a month. Her physician said her condition is fine after Tuesday's surgery, and added: "It was just what we expected, a polyp. Everything went well and she'll be out in a couple of days."

Successful Living

By Doris Clark

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Stepson Is Insolent

DORIS CLARK

I am a second wife and have what I feel is unusual "stepmother trouble." It is not with my stepson primarily, but with his maternal grandfather. This man deeply resented his son-in-law's second marriage, less than two years after the wife's death. He takes it out on me and is turning the boy against me.

Each week when the boy returns from seeing his grandparents, he taunts me with: "You're not my mother. I don't have to mind you." "You've no business in the house, taking my mother's place." "You not ever going to like you."

Both my husband and I have pleaded with the grandfather, trying to show him that he is ruining the boy's chances for a happy home life, but he just freezes up and won't discuss it. Can you advise me?—STEPMOTHER.

DEAR STEPMOTHER:—You can win. When the boy taunts you, he is testing out the idea Foxy Grandpa has put into his head. Your reaction then really counts.

He is voicing a question and waiting for an answer. Are you my mother? Do I have to mind you? he is really asking. Deep down he awaits the answer which means he is still secure. You are indeed the mother he has now; the person who loves and takes care of him as well as the person he "minds."

If you feel apologetic or uncertain, this will get across —and your boy will be on his way to emotional disturbance. Your husband and you must present a united front. No apologies, even to yourselves. No pleading with anybody. Be firm, give love, and have fun with your boy.

He will gradually settle into the new order of things and relax.

DEAR DORIS:—We have been married four years and my husband does not want any children. He keeps saying we can have some in a couple of years, but the time never seems to arrive. I am very concerned about this and am sure that he would love children once they arrived.

Is there anything I can do to change his attitude? (I think starting a family with any sort of deception is degrading, but am almost willing to do anything!—WIFE'S END.

DEAR WIFE'S END:—What is he waiting for? A bigger income? A steadier frame of mind? Find this out.

Sometimes exposure to friends who are raising attractive youngsters does the trick. A man who has never known any children intimately often has to be shown.

Any deception is fatal or pitiable. Don't do it. But the years are slipping away and unless there are serious difficulties in the way, you should be starting your family while you can. Next time you talk, show him the calendar!

(Doris Clark will be glad to help you with your problems. Write to her care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Felix H. — She fell for a sales talk and now I'm stuck.

Mrs. R. H. — I'm convinced he'll thank me some day. He'll have poise.

Felix H. — Oh, woe is me! My mother signed me up for a season of dancing lessons. I'm 13, and we live in a town where Monsieur Blanc has just opened up a dancing school in the golf club. When my aunt registered my cousin there, she sent the man over to my house and my mother was an easy mark. I'm supposed to show up every Saturday in a blue suit and black shoes and learn social dancing.

After the first lesson, I don't want to continue. I had to hold a girl's hand by two fingers, lead her around and bow! I felt like a sissy. My dad said he took "six easy lessons" when he was 25. Why can't I?

Mrs. R. H. — Felix will be glad I'm insisting on his attendance at this class now. It happened to see him a few weeks ago at his cousin's birthday party. He was "out" of everything and amused himself by throwing pretzels across the room! He couldn't dance or get himself to talk to a girl. And I saw the difference in those boys and girls who'd taken Monsieur Blanc's course last year. They knew how to act and had more fun.

It's true my husband took lessons later in life. But to this day he still must figure out which foot goes where, and count one-two-three for a waltz. I want it to be second nature for Felix. Besides, he'll learn etiquette and social grace.

The Council — Surely Mrs. H. knows that some men look Six Lessons from Mme. LaZonga, and still never learned to conga. She must be prepared for Felix, rebellious and self-conscious, to emerge from the course with the same two left feet he had at the start. We commend her intent, but warn her that Felix may still prefer to play catch with pretzels at parties, then to tango.

There'll always be the desperate Roviser, a teen-ager's mother, who lives a long and then circuitous among boys like Felix, saying "Course dancing is fun! Won'll start!" And the response will be, "He will," accompanied by embarrassed blues set to expensive music.

No, this sort of drill must be wasted by Felix. Maybe a year or so of wallflowering will help, watching boys and girls who are "good at it" whirling about with ease.

We suggest a compromise. One lesson isn't a fair trial, Felix. Ask your mother bluntly where's move than dancing involved. There's a whole social situation to grow acclimated to: skilling up in mixed company and learning the amenities with girls so that holding coats, opening doors, offering an arm, etc., all become automatic. So stick it out for half a season anyway. Then you'll either love it or you'll ask Monsieur for credit toward 1962 or even 1963 when you can face the "enemy" anew.

But we must assure you, both that the social graces aren't sissy. You can develop your skill in sports and outdoor rought-and-tumble, and there'll still be a need in your life for know-how and poise at social gatherings. A heavyweight champion of the world, Gene Tunney, was as much at home among Social Registerites as in the ring, and married a debutante from the finger-bowl set.

And to Mrs. H.: you're having the usual trouble that comes from offering a boy a treat you want for him, long before he wants it — as he surely will eventually — for himself.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

There is one sin which is most difficult to dislodge. This is so because everybody denounces it and hardly anyone confesses it. It is the sin of prejudices.

Or if we do own it, we generally smile away our prejudices as something not very serious at all.

Prejudice begins where charity or love or fear begin — in our homes. It is not so much taught as it is caught from the home and from parents who shelter us in childhood. Someone has aptly said: "We are tattooed with the beliefs of our tribe when we are in the cradle."

Parents have a way of blanching their proxy agents for the misdeeds or spiritual deformities of their children. Either the schools or the clubs, the churches, or the synagogues become the targets for blame. Delinquent parents create delinquent children.

And so with our prejudices. Our children soak up our hates and our peeves. And forever after they will bruise and abuse innocent people because of parents who were thoughtless.

The trouble is that our homes are no longer the vital centre of our lives. Church attendance may be on the upgrade, but family life seems to be on the decline. No one man may be indispensable but for the good society good homes are. We need a place where we foster the uniqueness of each personality, where love can take root and blossom forth all over our towns and communities. We need a place where our rights and duties are recognized, where our differences are respected. We need a place where we can be in the minority and still survive creatively. This is what a good home provides.

Democratic life requires a recognition that at some point in our lives every one of us belongs to a minority. Sometimes along the line, whether it concerns our religious, political, philosophical, economic or cultural interests, every man should be able to be proud of his right to be different. And without penalty. When he has caught this attitude from his home, he will infect everyone he meets with the same spirit.

The trouble with some of us is that we are abysmally ignorant of other people besides ourselves. Someone has recently said: "To have a prejudice is to be down on something you are not up on". But ignorance should be no excuse. In a free society, if we cherish freedom, we must learn to exercise our minds a little more than we do. We must get to know the hopes and the dreams, the goals and the platforms of people who differ from us.

The poet, Robert Frost, tells of a New England farmer who was patching his stone walls when the wicker weather had disintegrated. As he was lying up his stones, he looked up and said: "Something there is that doesn't love a wall". That Something is God!

Tend your own garden. But let your neighbor's grow as well.

Challenging Talk Given At Reserve

DESERONTO — The challenge of the 22nd verse of the first chapter of St. James was given to an overflowing congregation attending services at Christ Church, Tyendinaga Reserve by the rector, the Rev. Edward Wrightson. The church service was preceded by a commemorative service at the historic cairn marking the arrival of the first Mohawk Indians in this area.

This out-door ceremony included the traditional carrying of the canoe from the Bay of Quinte; the placing of the altar cloth, on the upturned vessel on which the Queen Ann silver communion set was placed.

THANKSGIVING HYMNS

The vested choir sang hymns of thanksgiving in Mohawk and Clayton John read a brief history of the Reserve. Members of the Belleville detachment of Royal Canadian Mounted Police also took part.

The Rev. Mr. Wrightson deplored the modern day trend of separating religion from daily living. He urged his congregation to "be doers of the word and not listeners only deceiving yourselves". He said that when worshippers heard the 'Golden Rule' and the word of God and then left church to follow their own way they were deceiving themselves.

Continuing he asserted, "We think there must be a special time for religion. We feel that religion has no part in buying and selling; when we talk to our neighbor or when ordinary things are taking our attention. 'Religion has to do with all things.' We must do everything for the glory of God".

The rector warned it is a dangerous thing to get into the habit when one can listen to the commandments without obeying them; he have the right pathway pointed out and then to walk one's own way; to have the Grace of God offered in the sacraments and then refuse to imitate Him and to follow His commandments.

Wild Rock Kennels, Tweed, established a record on May 20, when its Miniature Pinscher "Champion Airlane Meteor of Wild Rock" was judged "Best in Show" at the Barrie Kennel Club Show. This is the first time in Canada that a Miniature Pinscher was ever judged "Best in Show." A well known American judge, Edwin L. Pickhardt, gave "Ginny", as the dog is known, the Best of Breed, first in Group 5 and Best in Show wins. Shown in the above picture, from left to right, are Judge Pickhardt, Mrs. R. A. Hewitt of Wild Rock Kennels, who has handled "Ginny" throughout her show career, and the president of the Barrie Kennel Club, Frank Jones. Barrie is recognized as being the best show in Ontario and has won this award for three years in a row. There were just over 380 dogs entered in the Barrie show this year, consisting of top American and Canadian champion dogs. Ginny is 18 months old, finished her championship title before she was a year old and last year was one of the top winning pups of any breed in Canada. (Photo by R. A. Hewitt of Tweed).

"Religion is not easy nor comfortable," the Rev. Mr. Wrightson went on, "Hearing the word is not a means and it is not an end, but it is a signpost showing us the way. It is not simple to hear the Word of God and then to go out in daily life and practise it".

The rector likened those who are hearers and not doers to those who built their house on sand. He warned that those who are not doers have their souls in constant danger.

As a help to his listeners he enumerated a list of ways that would aid in starting on the way to be "doers of the word and not listeners".

FARM ACCIDENTS

A survey by the Ontario agriculture department during 1959-60 showed that of 7,895 reported farm accidents, 280 were fatal.

Six Children Receive Rite Of Baptism

JOHNSTOWN — At 2.30 p.m. on Mother's Day Sunday, a baptismal service was held at Johnstown Church, with Rev. J. T. Irwin, of King St. Church, officiating. There were around 70 present at this service.

Six babies baptized were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Harry's daughter, Catharine Elaine Harry; Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Hardge's son, John Winfield Hardge; Mr. and Mrs. Everett Harry's son, Charles Mikel Harry; Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Harry's son, Donald Gerald Harry; Mr. and Mrs. Maitland Hardge's daughter, Elaine Margaret Harder, and Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Harry's daughter, Marylea Dianne Harry.

The junior choir sang, "See Israel's Gentle Shepherd Stands".

Mr. Thrasher spoke on the meaning of 'baptism'.

QUESTION BOX

Question — When you pass a woman on the street, and she smiles and nods and keeps on going, should you walk up to her and stop and talk with her for a few minutes, or should you return her nod and keep on going too? — Mr. E. G. V., New York, N.Y.

Answer — If greeting a woman on the street, assuming she has bowed first, lift your hat, smile, say "How-do-you-do?" and keep going. Unless she stops. If she does, keep your hat off until your chat is over, that is if the weather is fine. If it's stormy, or a cold day, be sensible and put your hat back on.

Question — I am planning to give a large cocktail party for friends who are moving to Mexico. I would like to indicate this on my invitations, but don't know how to word them. Would it be proper to let guests know in some way that the party is in this couple's honor, even though some of the people I want to invite don't know them? Could I use plain informal note paper and draw a sombrero or something like that to indicate that it (the party) is to have a Mexican background.—Mrs. M. D. M., Milford, Conn.

Answer — May I suggest the use of the small, fold-over card for your purpose? If your name and address is engraved on the outside of the card, write at the top "In compliment to Mr. and Mrs. John Phillip Green." On the inside, write the centre, "Cocktails, Friday, May 26th, 5 to 7 o'clock." If you wish an acknowledgement, it is correct to place the initials R.s.v.p. (from the French, "Repondez s'il vous plait," meaning "answer, if you please") in the lower left-hand corner.

My reason for not suggesting that you carry out the Mexican motif on the invitations is that, as you say, some of the people being invited don't know this couple, so it would mean nothing to them, and would only confuse. When your guests arrive, it will be time enough to let them see Mexican decorations, if you wish, and then explain the reason for the party. By the way, if you do not have the engraved, fold-over cards, it is perfectly correct to hand-write your names in the centre, and address in the lower right-hand corner of the front of the card.

must be the prime consideration of the legislature," he said, and the elimination of the death penalty took away society's most "efficient weapon."

Canadian society, he said, lacks at present the degree of maturity needed for abolition of the death penalty.

The vote, ending two days of debate on the bill, was sprinkled with unusual features.

The Liberals, apparently decided on a free vote as far as their own party was concerned, added confusion to the counting by standing in no particular sequence to record their individual decisions.

The vote—called for by Mr. Fulton—originally was recorded as 131 to 71. Speaker Roland Michener announced at the end of the session that the vote had been "incorrectly added" and that it was 130 to 71.

The CCF voted with the Conservatives. Both CCF Leader Argue and Opposition Leader Pearson were absent when the vote was taken.

NOT ABOLITIONIST

Mr. Fulton said the bill is "not an abolitionist measure or a first step toward abolition, but a bill for the purpose of bringing the present position with regard to capital punishment into line with present-day ideas of crime and punishment."

"What the bill does is to divide murder into two categories, namely capital murder and non-capital murder."

The bill retains the death penalty for "capital murder," cases involving deliberate slayings or those comitted during a crime of violence. It provides a mandatory life-imprisonment sentence for "non-capital" murders and for juveniles under 18 convicted of capital murder.

No change is proposed in the method of execution—hanging—and there was no mention in the debate on how long a "life sentence" should run. Mr. Fulton said those given such a sentence would be eligible for parole, after careful and exhaustive study of individual cases.

Mr. Fulton called for the recorded vote—saying the country would want to see the extent to which MPs voted on the question. He turned down a Liberal request that the bill be passed to a Commons committee for further study, but agreed to put off clause-by-clause consideration until Monday.

MOST FAVOR IT

Thirty MPs — seven Liberals two CCF and 21 Conservatives —spoke during the two-day debate. Of the eight who spoke Wednesday most were in favor of the bill.

Grant Campbell (PC — Stormont) said the bill would become a model for legislatures in other countries.

Liberals voting with the government included: Paul Martin, Essex East; J. R. Garland, Nipissing; J. W. Pickersgill, Bonavista-Twillingate; William Benidickson, Kenora-Rainy River; Paul Hellyer, Toronto Trinity; Jody LaMarsh, Niagara Falls; W. M. McMillan, Welland; Osias J. Godin, Nickel Bit.

Liberals opposed to the legislation included: Jean C. Richard, Ottawa East; J. J. Habel, Cochrane; Rodger Mitchell, Sudbury; Paul Tardif, Russell.

U.S. Aid Must Reach Masses Lyndon Johnson's Message After Visit to Asian Lands

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is building up the realization that clean-hands foreign aid must reach the masses in backward countries to give them a reason for preferring the West to communism.

This was the message Vice-President Johnson brought back with him Wednesday from a 15-day tour through seven Asian countries.

Johnson said:

"Given something for which to fight, the people jet Asia will man the ramparts of freedom and they will man them with valor. But the people do not fight in steaming jungles to preserve hunger and squalor and oppression."

Johnson made clear the Asian leaders now understand that U.S. economic aid must be matched by sacrifices and reforms by the receiving states to make sure the benefits "go directly to the masses rather than to the dictators and bureaucrats."

President Eisenhower and State Secretary Dulles talked of helping the masses around the world with foreign aid.

But the need to do so takes on new urgency as Russia and Communist China grow stronger and increase their pressure on the backward countries, particularly in Southeast Asia.

The thought realized with a shock—in Laos—that just dumping aid, particularly if it is mostly military aid, is not enough.

There the U.S. government, supporting a right-wing regime, gave mostly military aid. The Communists, posing as fighters for a better life, began to sweep the country.

This writer believes that if their better than communism, the U.S. government made public all the information Laos it would show that there were hundreds, perhaps thousands, of desertions from the American-backed regime to the Communists.

This is what happened in Indochina where the French, who wound up losing half the country to communism, refused to give the Vietnamese their freedom or put in reforms for their benefit.

Nor is it enough to dump foreign aid of the economic kind into a backward country without some assured program for putting it to the benefit of the masses.

For example: In South Korea the Syngman Rhee regime, overthrew the elected regime which had the United States only backed but helped.

South Korean military leaders said the overthrow was necessary in order to end "corruption" and other things.

One veteran Associated Press reporter from the Orient told this reporter of what happened to some American aid:

"Millions of dollars are a good example. The farmers badly needed fertilizer. The United States shipped them over at fairly low costs. But when they got there they were divided into a number of people, each of whom made some profit on the deal.

"By the time they reached the farmers, for whom they were intended, the price was such they couldn't afford the high price."

Progress which goes to the enrichment of a few powerful families is not going to persuade the people to support the West or get richer and the poor get poorer according to the West Johnson reported that if their

Reactor Vessel for Power Plant Safe Says Official

OTTAWA (CP)—J. F. McRae, chairman of the board of the Canadian General Electric Company Limited, says there is no basis to statements by a Montreal engineer questioning the safety features of Canadian-designed atomic power plants.

Mr. McRae told the Commons research committee Wednesday that he "takes issue" with statements by Winnett Boyd that a lower margin of safety has been applied in the construction of pressure tubes to be used in two Canadian power plants now under construction.

Appearing before the committee as president of the newly formed Canadian Nuclear Association, Mr. McRae said Canadian General Electric, which is building the reactor vessel for the power plant, "has leaned over backwards to ensure safety."

His company, he said, would not put its nameplate on a reactor vessel unless it was convinced that it was safe. The pressure tubes were designed to withstand a pressure of 1,000 pounds per square inch but tested safely at 1,500 pounds.

ARE 'SUPER-SAFE'

"We're not taking any chances," he said. "The pressure tubes are super-safe."

The safety precautions taken in the construction of the pressure tubes are typical of all safety precautions, he said.

Mr. McRae forecast that investment in Canadian atomic power plants will total $4,000,000,000 by 1980.

He also said that the newly-formed association, composed of representatives of industry, public utilities and institutions interested in promoting Canada's estimated $4,000,000,000 by 1980

Butler's 'Shame About Spain' Speech Raises U.K. Eyebrows

By ROD CURRIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

R. A. Butler's "shame about Spain" speech seems to have raised British eyebrows more because of the time, the place and the speaker than because of what Butler actually said.

The home secretary and his wife are in Spain on vacation and, Butler said, he didn't expect to be making any speeches.

But in Madrid the Spanish foreign minister, Fernando Castiella, blames a party for the Butlers, greeted the British minister in a personal vein and no doubt decided him to stroll along the same lines.

However, Mr. Butler, speaking off the cuff and emphasizing that his visit was "purely private," took as his subject Spain's relations with the west Then Prime Minister Anthony Eden later, visits Spain For his Butler expressed "a true anti-fascism to affirm again the ideals he had always sustained that Spain should be reincorporated in the Western world."

Since those years the attitude of Western countries has changed and Spain is a member of the United Nations and the Organization of European Economic Co-operation.

However, the authoritarian nature of the Franco regime prevents Spain from joining the European political assemblies. Some of the NATO countries would look askance at a suggestion that Spain join on the grounds that the dictatorial government could not honestly be described as "strengthening of free institutions" which is proclaimed as a common aim of the NATO treaty.

But Portugal, ruled by another authoritarian regime, already is a member.

The object of Lord Home's visit has never been disclosed. Labor members have strongly protested against it.

All New Hydro Wall Sockets To Be 3-Wire

TORONTO — New electrical installations made after June 1 in Ontario must have three-contact receptacles for use with three-pronged plugs, Keith Bellamy, Ontario's Hydro's chief electrical inspector, announced today.

The new safety regulation will not affect installations already completed, but will apply to all renovations, additions and replacements made after June 1. Under The Power Commission Act, Ontario Hydro is responsible for making and administering rules and regulations concerning electrical installations in the province.

"This is another step in a safety program to provide for the grounding of portable appliances in all electrical wiring systems in the province," Mr. Bellamy said. "The number of appliances with three - wire cords is increasing and we are preparing for the day when manufacturers will have a complete line of appliances equipped with three-wire cords and plugs. Until then, of course, householders can continue to use standard two-pronged plugs in three-contact grounding receptacles".

Mr. Bellamy warned against cutting the grounding prong off a three-wire plug so that it can be used in a two-contact, non-grounding receptacle.

This practice is inadvisable because the grounding prong is a safety feature designed as protection about anything go wrong with the appliance.

Similarly the use of three-to-two adapters removes the protection provided by the grounding and would be against the enormity of the police and military preparations and the disciplined silence in the press coverage of their campaign to set segregation at bay terminals in the southern United States.

The 16 reporters and cameramen on board the bus for the entire journey numbered among the "Freedom Riders."

"This is not a normal situation," protested Rev. James Lawson of Nashville, Tenn., a Negro, who headed the group. "It does not carry out the purposes of our project. We are not travelling as private citizens but as protesters of a government. We would rather be without all this protection. We are not seeking violence, but if it is coming we are prepared to accept it and absorb it."

Despite their disappointment at the convoy . type journey across western Alabama and into the heart of Mississippi, the group received a good humor throughout the seven-hour trip and spent their time singing, reading the Bible and being interviewed by the press representatives who clogged the aisles of the bus.

They ignored the occasional crowds of whites who appeared at crossroads and in several towns along the route to shout "Go home, niggers" and were Sandwiches Gags. In a few isolated areas, they exchanged waved greeting with Negro families sitting on the porches of tarpaper shacks or Negro field hands distracted from their work by the wails of the sirens.

For the most part, however, the people, both white and negro, who watched the convoy speed by at speeds ranging from 60 to 70 miles an hour were merely curious and showed little reaction.

The only incident of any magnitude aboard the bus developed about an hour before it arrived in Jackson, when Rev. C. T. Vivian, a Negro "Freedom Rider" clergyman from Nashville, twice asked permission to get off and visit a rest room.

Each time his request was turned down by Lt.-Col. Gillespie Montgomery, the ranking national guard officer on the bus and Attorney-General Sexton, who directed a bayonet-brandishing policeman to return the Negro passenger to his seat.

Joseph Scanlon, a reporter with the Toronto Star, who changed angry words with the Negro on the union station lunch counter's defence. Scanlon also was unsuccessful in getting the bus to stop but was not ordered back to his seat.

'Freedom Riders' Must Rank Among Heavily Protected Passengers Says Reporter

Here is an eyewitness account of a "freedom riders" bus trip through Montgomery, Ala., to Jackson, Miss., as told to Associated Press reporter ..... who bought his ticket and made the 253-mile trip with the "Freedom Riders" are an integrationist group testing bus station segregation in the United States South.

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — No matter what else befalls them, the 12 "Freedom Riders" who went by bus Wednesday from Montgomery, Ala., to Jackson, Miss., must rank among the most heavily protected and most extensively interviewed passengers in the history of inter-state commerce.

The bubble-domed Trailways bus that transported the nine Negro men, two Negro women and one white man on the 253-mile trip was escorted to the Mississippi line by a convoy of 42 cars bearing state National Guardsmen in battle dress, unarmed state troopers and assorted reporters, photographers, radio announcers and television cameramen.

When the bus reached the state line at Scratch Hill, Ala., a similar and even more impressive array of Mississippi guardsmen and state troopers took over.

National Guard reconnaissance planes and helicopters hovered overhead throughout the entire trip.

Upon their eventual arrest in the Jackson bus station, the segregation - defying riders expressed some resentment against the enormity of the police and military preparations and the disciplined silence in the press coverage of their campaign to set segregation at bay terminals in the southern United States.

The 16 reporters and cameramen on board the bus for the entire journey numbered among the "Freedom Riders."

"This is not a normal situation," protested Rev. James Lawson of Nashville, Tenn., a Negro, who headed the group. "It does not carry out the purposes of our project. We are not travelling as private citizens but as protesters of a government. We would rather be without all this protection. We are not seeking violence, but if it is coming we are prepared to accept it and absorb it."

Despite their disappointment at the convoy . type journey across western Alabama and into the heart of Mississippi, the group received a good humor throughout the seven-hour trip and spent their time singing, reading the Bible and being interviewed by the press representatives who clogged the aisles of the bus.

They ignored the occasional crowds of whites who appeared at crossroads and in several towns along the route to shout "Go home, niggers" and were Sandwiches Gags. In a few isolated areas, they exchanged waved greeting with Negro families sitting on the porches of tarpaper shacks or Negro field hands distracted from their work by the wails of the sirens.

For the most part, however, the people, both white and negro, who watched the convoy speed by at speeds ranging from 60 to 70 miles an hour were merely curious and showed little reaction.

The only incident of any magnitude aboard the bus developed about an hour before it arrived in Jackson, when Rev. C. T. Vivian, a Negro "Freedom Rider" clergyman from Nashville, twice asked permission to get off and visit a rest room.

Foreign Airlines Accused Of 'Imperialist Manoeuvres'

HAVANA (CP)—The International Students Union Wednesday night accused foreign airlines of "imperialist manoeuvres" aimed at obstructing the Cuban revolution.

The union said the action by the airlines, unnamed in its statement, made Latin American countries "incapable of reaching this Cuban capital for the conference. The first plenary session would not be held until Friday night, the union stated.

Cuban President Osvaldo Dorticos formally opened the conference Tuesday night.

The union's statement said that airline offices declared all flights to Havana were booked solid "in order to prevent delegates from attending the conference."

The statement said the action was an attempt to "isolate the Cuban revolution from the rest of Latin America."

The delegates were also withheld that aircraft required customs as a measure to cut passenger space, the statement said.

The challenging steps were taken because the first item on the union agenda is a declaration of solidarity with the Cuban people, the union stated.

Meanwhile, Armed Forces Minister Raul Castro, younger brother of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro, says the Cuban revolution is not for export.

"We are not exporting revolutions because that would be getting mixed up in problems of other countries," he told a group of foreign visitors.

Deciding Match May Be Fought In PES Riding

MONTAGUE, P.E.I. (CP) — Next week's federal byelection in the eastern Prince Edward Island riding of Kings could possibly be the deciding match in the political rivalry of Thomas J. Kickham and Macdonald of nearby Cardigan.

This time, Mr. Kickham, 60, a farmer and stock dealer who twice held the seat for the Liberals, is running against Mrs. Margaret Macdonald, wife of the late Progressive Conservative member, John A. Macdonald, who died in office last December.

The two men contested the seat in the general elections of 1949, 1953, 1957 and 1958 with Mr. Kickham winning the first two and Mr. Macdonald the next two. But none of the victories were decisive. The biggest was Mr. Macdonald's 1,134 majority in 1957.

Aside from personalities, the issues in the May 29 voting are traditional ones in Island politics: the causeway and government-run ferries, fishing and farm programs.

Liberal Leader Pearson, on a recent tour of the riding, said the PC government was stalling on the causeway. A part of the plan to link the Island with New Brunswick, nine miles away, was started more than four years ago and still is unfinished, he said. A Liberal government would take immediate action, he said.

The Conservatives say the Liberals had 25 years in office to get cracking on the causeway but accomplished nothing.

Mrs. Macdonald and the Commons' other three Island members, all Conservatives, have plugged hard on the deal they got in the latest federal-provincial tax-sharing arrangements.

It means an extra $10,000,000 before 1957, they say. They also point up the recent announcement of subsidies to the shipbuilding industry. This is expected to assist the Island's inshore fishery.

The riding is a weathervane of federal politics on the Island. Since Confederation the Liberals have won 12 elections and the Conservatives nine, but the 1930 the winning candidate has always been a member of the party which subsequently formed the government.

Both parties have brought in their big guns. Lester B. Pearson, J. W. Pickersgill, former cabinet minister, and Maritimes MPs have spoken or are slated to speak.

Mrs. Jim Diefenbaker spent 1½ days on the Island this week. Another visitor on behalf of Mrs. Macdonald and Mrs. Jean Casselman, member of the Ontario riding of Dundas-Dundas, who successfully sought office several years ago after her MP husband died in office.

Cuban Guajiros in, Out Of Prison Believe Only Intervention Would Help

Editors note: Associated Press correspondent Robert Berrelles was arrested in Havana by Cuban intelligence agents April 17 as a rebel invasion force hit the beach on Cuba's south coast. He spent the next 3½ weeks in Cuban prisons packed with Premier Fidel Castro's enemies, who spoke to him freely. This is the second of three articles on Cuba by Berrelles, now back in his native United States

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

NEW YORK (AP)—The Cuban guajiro, or peasant, often expresses his deepest sentiments in ballads called "decimas guajiras." And interest about love or current events

In Havana's La Cabana military fortress, where I was imprisoned earlier this month, scores of guajiros were among the hundreds of inmates. Among them they had composed a ballad called the Song to Intervention, or Let the Interventionists Come.

The song reflected the prevailing hope among many Cubans inside and outside Premier Fidel Castro's prisons that only direct US intervention or political action by the Organization of American States would liberate them from the Cuban dictator's socialist regime.

Most of the prisoners had lost hope in internal opposition to overthrow the government in the immediate future. They blamed the abortive April 17 invasion for destroying a burgeoning underground which will be difficult to restore.

It was difficult to convince the Cubans in prison that direct American intervention might not come.

"What's the matter with the American are you anyway?" they would ask.

Not all prisoners were for intervention. Pierce arguments developed between those who read it and those seeing it as the only way out of their problem. The prison population at La Cabana included doctors, lawyers, professional men and even entire corps of deans of Villanueva University, a Roman Catholic school.

A small group came to me and asked my views.

"If the Americans come, will they come as conquerors or liberators?" asked one youth. "It is important to know this precisely because a lot of people here do not seem to comprehend the political significance of an intervention."

Another said "intervention is the only way Cuba can get out. It suits the moral cowards who delight in welcome another Platt Amendment just in the interests of freedom."

The Platt Amendment gave the United States power to intervene in the affairs of Cuba if necessary, it was abrogated by mutual agreement in 1934.

The intervention group in prison questioned me closely on how U.S. might view a new government, supposedly replacing Castro's, that would continue some of Castro's social reforms. They were particularly curious about possible U.S. reaction to retention of the nationalized status of public utilities, of a rural agrarian reform program and a continuation of diplomatic relations with Russia.

"You should know," one said, "that communism was of no lowest ebb in Cuba when we had relations with Russia, in the administration of President Ramon Gran San Martin we had many social reforms and he cleaned out the Communists from labor and even the government."

Even among pro-Interventionists in La Cabana a few agreed it was necessary to determine quickly the nature of any intervention.

A reactionary and vindictive intervention could destroy the legitimate liberal reform programs in our country and in the rest of the Americas," one student said.

The ballad about intervention contained one line that goes: "Let them come, we have done with us? Leave the hammer and sickle that has made us so sad."

A rebel army captain often met in a corner and sadly sang the ballad to himself. He had fought in many of the big revolutionary battles with Castro and did not know why he was in jail.

Once I asked how he felt about the political aspects of an intervention by outside forces.

"Let it come. All I want is to get out of here and go home," he said softly, "You can't trust anyone."

Police Work May Assist Youth Director

FREDERICTON (CP)—New Brunswick's director of youth is a quiet-spoken former Mountie who feels his police experience will be a help in his new job.

John T. Murrant, 32, took on the position last September in the new provincial department of youth and welfare after 10 years in the RCMP.

Explaining that he became interested in young people's problems as a Mountie, organizing sports to keep youngsters out of trouble, he said:

"Not too many people realize that the main function of the RCMP is to prevent crime before it happens rather than to catch those who break the law."

Son of a commercial fisherman at Port Morien, N.S., John worked as a boy beside his father on the Murrant boat. At 17 he went to Halifax to work.

At one time he held jobs driving a truck in the daytime, chauffeuring a priest at night, playing piano and saxophone in an orchestra and bossing a gang of 20 stevedores.

Then he joined a Nova Scotia bus company and worked his way up to provincial traffic representative.

In 1950 he joined the RCMP.

New Brazilian Capital Fast Becoming Beautiful City of Half a Million

During a tour of South America, Russell Elman of the Canadian Press, visited Brazil's new capital. In this story he tells of the mushrooming growth of Brasilia.

By RUSSELL ELMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

BRASILIA (CP)—No longer a statesman's ideal, a politician's gimmick, an architect's blueprint, Brazil's new capital today is a functioning reality.

Since January it has been the home of the president, of Congress, and of more than 26,000 civil servants and their families. And each week as the contractors complete new offices and apartments of glass and reinforced concrete, hundreds of additional residents arrive from the old capital of Rio de Janeiro.

From the distance the Brasilia skyline with its clusters of multi - storied buildings now gives the impression of a big city. It no longer is a collection of architectural showpieces, though construction will continue for many years before it reaches its planned final population of 500,000.

Nor is the infant capital still an outpost in the wilderness of the hot, red Goias plains, 700 miles northwest of Rio. There are frequent flights, and several direct daily buses over new paved highways to both Rio and Sao Paulo. A new dirt road has been carved 1,500 miles north to Belem at the mouth of the Amazon.

MINISTERS IN RIO

Early each morning buses speed along the city's new highways carrying white collar workers from their apartments in self-contained neighborhood "superblocks" to the tall new government offices. Fifty cabinet officials sit at their desks, carpenters and interior decorators are still at work on the buildings.

In the glass-encased executive offices a long line of visitors wait to call on President Janio Quadros, now living in the futuristic Palace of the Dawn on Brasilia's artificially-created lakeside. By taking up residence in Brasilia immediately following his inauguration, he guaranteed its survival.

While president and Congress have moved en bloc to Brasilia, few ministries have yet completed the transfer, a process expected to take several years. The foreign ministry and his staff remain in Rio, and only several foreign countries have opened embassies in the new capital—among them the United States.

CANADA HAS SITE

Canada has a site in the diplomatic enclave and has obtained space in an apartment block for a temporary chancery until a permanent embassy is built. Design for the embassy, a prestige building to conform with Brasilia's high architectural standards, will likely be submitted to an open architectural competition in Canada. Meanwhile, the Canadian Embassy remains in downtown Rio with no shift anticipated until at least the Brazilian foreign ministry announces its move.

A work force of 35,000, mostly imported from the impoverished, drought-stricken northeast, work from dawn to dusk on new bank headquarters, shopping and cultural centres, hospitals, hotels and residences. Every building plan must be approved by chief architect Oscar Niemeyer and conform to the master city plan drawn up by Lucio Costa. The plan incorporates a novel sociological pattern for suburbs by including all class groups in each neighborhood a super block instead of dividing suburbs by economic standards.

Meanwhile, the government has ordered the evacuation and demolition of Nucleo Bandeirante, better known as "Free City," the pioneering campsite during the first four years of construction. It is a rowdy, makeshift place with wooden houses, dirt streets, saloons, little sanitation and overcrowding.

BUILD SATELLITES

Plans call for building of satellite towns within the Federal District, but outside the city of Brasilia, to house non-government workers. In these areas, there will be no government control over building designs and already real estate companies in Sao Paulo, Rio and as far as Lisbon, are selling plots in the new satellite "Jardins."

In the old capital and in bustling Sao Paulo, however, the debate continues whether Brasilia ought ever to have been conceived. Critics argue that a near-insolvent Brazil cannot afford the billions of dollars price tag both to build the capital and to run the country by remote control, as it were, during the construction stage. They dispute whether the capital will help open up the interior and claim that Brasilia serves only as a monument which will write the name of its founder, former president Juscelino Kubitschek, into the annals of history.

But in crowded favelas high above rosy Copacabana Beach and in the new Brazilian town of Alto Peraca, Brasilia is seen as a unifying symbol heralding Brazil's destiny as one of the world's great powers. The poor, the illiterate, the nationalist-minded pioneers do not measure its worth in cruzeiros and politics.

Viewers Are Sure to Miss Some Old Favorites in Fall

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

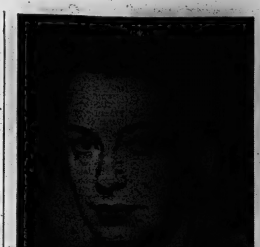
NEW YORK (AP)—U.S. television channels are due for drastic dredging operations during the summer and when the new season opens in September viewers are sure to miss some of their old favorites.

Network schedules for fall now are well filled and, by my count, at least 36 weekly entertainment programs out of some 109 current shows will be missing.

Among them will be such well-established favorites as the Groucho Marx, Ernie Ford, Loretta Young, June Allyson and Shirley Temple shows.

Several horse-operas will bow out: Wyatt Earp, Bat Masterson, Sugarfoot, West, The Deputy, The Rebel, Gunslinger and Whispering Smith.

OFF GOES COMEDY



Mortality will be high among the situation comedies, too. Departing are The Tom Ewell Show, Bringing Up Buddy, The Tab Hunter Show, Peter Loves Mary, and Guestward Ho.

Peter Gunn disappears after three season: Michael Shayne after one. The End, too, is in sight for The Law and Mr. Jones and Harrigan and Son. CBS will knock off its Way debut.

AT THE PARK — Gordon Scott as Turra Pasha in "Tarzan's Fight for Life", co-starring thrilling new adventures of the famous King of the Jungle. AT THE PARK — Deborah Kerr co-stars with Stewart Granger and Richard Carlson in MGM's mighty romantic adventure filmed entirely in the wilds of Africa in Technicolor, "King Solomon's Mines". of the greatest successes in recent show business, but also because they have always displayed the greatest of affability onstage.

The major issue appears to be this:

Dave Guard, the brewer of leader of the trio, wants to aim toward better music. Bob Shane and Nick Reynolds, plus the trio's manager, Frank Werber, want to stick to the pop songs that made them famous (their biggest hit Tom Dooley).

IT'S A PROBLEM

Speaking from his home, Guard said: "Our problem is a matter of ambition—where I want to go and how we get there . . . I want to make good music. The other two aren't dedicated musicians . . . I feel very strongly about this; otherwise I wouldn't be turning away a huge guarantee."

Speaking for the other camp was Manager Werber: "It's a matter of selection of material. Dave feels his whole interest is music, and he is very scholarly about it. The other two are more happy-go-lucky. They'd rather do the simple songs. When we started out, the organization was fairly democratic. But it has got to the point of Dave forcing his will, so to speak."

They are lined up with big money dates until Nov. 2. What then?

Mr. Shane and Reynolds say they'll take another partner and continue as the Kingston trio. They claim the name belongs to a California corporation of which they are part.

Guard also claims right to the title.

'Conflict of Interests' Said Breaking Up Kingston Trio

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Why would three young fellows take the axe to a golden goose that has been bringing them $1,000,000 a year?

That's what folks have been asking since the announcement that the Kingston Trio is breaking up. The news came with a terse "conflict of interests" explanation, which didn't explain much.

The split is puzzling not only because the Kingstons are one wise I wouldn't be turning

New Sports Scandal Looms

NEW YORK (AP)—An additional tie with possible college football game-fixing was established today as college basketball rested under new revelations that mushroomed the scandal countdown to 28 players, 17 schools and 29 games.

The probe is continuing, said District Attorney Frank S. Hogan as he made the new disclosures. In addition to the New York action, North Carolina authorities have charged three North Carolina State basketball players with accepting bribes to shave points.

Present revelations may only have scratched the surface, officials indicated. The current inquiry threatens to dwarf the 1951 mess which implicated 33 players from seven colleges.

Three player—one from New York University and two from St. John's University, New York —were named as bribe - takers by Hogan. Two—one from the state university of Iowa and one from Dayton University—were named as intermediaries. And seven from six colleges—St. Bonaventure, Colorado, St. John's, Seattle, Niagara and Bradley—were said by Hogan to have received and rejected but failed to report bribe offers.

Hogan emphasized there is no criminal penalty for failure to report a bribe offer. He added, however, that such a failure might violate the regulations of individual schools.

HACKEN INDICTED

The New York County district attorney revealed the new list of involved players in announcing the indictment of Joseph Hacken, 48, of New York on 17 counts of bribery in the corruption of basketball players and one count of conspiracy. He also named David Budin, a former physical education teacher at a Brooklyn junior high school, as a co-conspirator.

Budin had been mentioned in the attempt to fix the Michigan-Oregon football game last Sept. 30.

Hacken and Aaron Wagman, a convicted New York football fixer, were arrested March 17 when Hogan first broke open the new basketball scandals. Wagman is in prison, in lieu of $60,000 bail, awaiting trial.

Raymond Peprocky of New York University was said by Hogan to have accepted $1,300 from Hacken to fix four games last season. Michael Parenti and William Chrystal of St. John's were named by Hogan as having allegedly received $4,450 each to fix five games during the 1956-57 season, the last season for both players.

Previously Hogan had named players from Seton Hall, St. Joseph's and Philadelphia, the University of Connecticut, the University of Tennessee, Lasalle of Philadelphia, Mississippi State and NTRTH Carolina.

Red Star Blasts Brundage

MOSCOW (AP)—Pyotr Bolotnikov, Russia's Olympic 10,000-metre run champion, charged Wednesday that Avery Brundage wants to cut the scope of the Olympic Games because Communist athletes are winning too many championships.

Soviet sports figures and newspapers have been critical of Brundage's proposals, made five months ago, especially his suggestion that Olympic champions should be banned from future games. Bolotnikov made his accusation in an article for the official newspaper, Soviet Sports.

Brundage, the American president of the International Olympic Committee, suggested banning Olympic champions last Oct. 19. He said such a restriction might open the Games to more people and lessen the chances of athletes "making a career out of sports."

'Soft, Synthetic' Says Runner

American Life Criticized

LONDON (Reuters) — Australian Herb Elliott, the world's fastest miler, today criticized Americans for their "soft, synthetic" way of life.

The 23-year - old track star, now a student at Cambridge, unleashed his attack on American flabbiness in his autobiography, The Golden Mile, published today.

"I hope all my American friends will not be offended," Elliott says in the book, "but I believe in frankness and it's a fact that the warm, soft, synthetic existence Americans lead poses a real doubt about their future."

"A people who so thoroughly mollycoddle themselves must become weaker, spiritually and physically," Elliott predicts in the book, written with Alan Trengrove and published by the British firm of Cassell.

"The fact that the Americans have not produced many outstanding distance runners is directly attributable to their soft way of life," Elliott says. "They are not a hardy race of people, whereas the Australians, Norwegians, Russians and English are."

"Having reached its pinnacle as it were," Elliott says, "American life lacks the aggression and initiative of smaller countries who love nothing better than succeeding on a real underdog in knocking her off her perch."

CAMBRIDGE (AP)—Herb Elliott Wednesday turned down an invitation to run in Moscow, saying "I must spend some time with my family."

The Russians wanted Elliott for an international meet planned for July 1. This is just after the end of term at Cambridge University, where Elliott is studying for a science degree.

ADVANCE IN TOURNEY

PARIS (AP) — Top-seeded Darlene Hard of Montebello, Calif. and Maria Bueno of Brazil Wednesday defeated South Africa's Margaret Hunt and Lynn Hutchins 6-1, 6-1 in a quarter - final women's doubles match of the French tennis championships. Sandra Reynolds and Renee Schuurman, South Africa, beat Deidre Catt and Ann Haydon, Britain, 7-5, 6-4. Jan Lehane and Lesley Turner, Australia, beat Edda Buding, Germany, and Christine Truman, Britain, 6-4, 6-2.

This Cheque Bounced, Back Home

LOS ANGELES (AP)

The Los Angeles Angels and the New York Yankees can balance their bank books today with what was a missing $50,000 check.

It was disclosed that the Angels' treasurer, Francis X. Leary, unaccountably lost the check, made out by the Angels and non-negotiable, while attending a Los Angeles Dodger - Milwaukee game in Memorial Coliseum here May 15.

A youthful fan found it and sent it back to the Angels.

General manager Fred Haney of the Los Angeles club, quite unperturbed about it, said the check was a routine bookkeeping deal which involved the recent player swap with New York which sent Bob Cerv and Tex Clevenger to the Yankees for Ryne Duren and other players.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The Joyce Real Estaters, the city's newest entry in the Belleville District Softball League, get their baptism of fire tonight at the Fair Grounds when they meet the Trenton RCAF Flyers.

And Manager Bill Shaw, the "Casey Stengel" of Point Anne almost since the days when Pat Marsolo wore a brush-shirt and carried a tomahawk, has gathered himself a lusty crew of ball-hawks that should do themselves right well in the upcoming tussles.

The roll-call as handed to this department at least settles the rumor-dust as to what team Bobby Hull would cast in his lot. His name heads the Joyce pitching staff and when not doing mound duty Young Marce Robert will do some fly-chasing in the outfield.

And Bobby has been known to park the ball in the faraway places by virtue of a well-swung shillalagh, and that should help the Joyces no end when clouts are needed.

Also scheduled for mound duty is Ron Wannamaker, a likely lad with top-bracket softball experience. Other members of the Joyce squad are Ellis, up from the 1960 Belle Cleaners of the Commercial League and Frank Walker, an RCAF checker, who comes with a good record.

The Joyce infield, on paper at least, should rank with some of the best. Claude Carr will be under the plate umpire's nose, with reliable Chuck Kingston on first. Cary Coyne, muff-ned, will be at the keystone position, with Jackie Elliott, Jr., handling the shortstop chores. Cay Keith, well known Trenton infielder, will be at the hot corner and he rounds out what should be a smart defensive outfit.

Bert Faulkner, 1960 Bobcat, who won the league batting championship, is the boss outer gardner. Assisting will be Doug Soule, Pete Weston, Pug Kellar and Ralph Boomhower, with Bobby Hull, as was noted, available for duty when not pitching.

Veteran Jack Elliott who ventured many a Point Anne softball piece, is one of Manager Shaw's coaching staff, and will be pressed into playing service if needed. Harry Morgan, past president of the league, is the second member of the Joyce coaching ensemble.

The Trenton Flyers despite their setback at the hands of Fiche Wells in their opener Tuesday night, got a few early-season wrinkles out of their collective system. According to the line-up the Flyer coaches did some experimenting with players and it won't be long before the flyboys round into a strong club.

Manager Don MacAllister and Coach Lloyd Lobb have a pitching staff that should be heard from. Bob Bellerfield, Howard Coles, former Trenton mound ace, and Corky Carpenddon form the right-hander crew and they are augmented by Ken Kibbiewhite, one of the better southpaws in the league.

Roger Drake and Doug Alexander have been recalled from the defunct Trenton club and they will be assisted in the infield by Ron Smith and Oil Girard. John Hughes, Don Cole and John "Bud" Labey head an eight-man outfield collection.

It should be a tidy tussle. Game at 8.15.

The league made no mistake in using the Fair Grounds main diamond for the 1961 activities. It is made to order for the long-ball hitters with the outfield "acres" stretching far into the distance.

Looking at the Bobcats-Cobourg game the other afternoon from the press-box atop the grandstand, it was clearly evident that outfielders must needs exercise all their powers of judgment when those long flies blast outwards from the batters' box.

An otherwise easy out which goes over the head of an erring outfielder could be as much a home run as a ball blasted clean out of the park.

The general belief of softball observers here is that the league will be a tight, compact affair. There is strong potential in all five clubs and when they round into mid-season form, fans should see some of the best softball offered here in quite a while.

Some of the clubs may be a trifle weak in some departments than others but on paper at least, the loop looks like a well-balanced circuit. And that is the way it should be.

Drop Pair To Orioles

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

That one-two combination of Detroit and Cleveland on top may be a surprise in the American League race, but the real shocker has to be the ninth place flop of Chicago White Sox.

Manager Al Lopez' old guys were slumping as a pennant crew, but still they figured to be challenging the leaders.

The pitching staff, with Early Wynn, Billy Pierce, Cal McLish, Bob Shaw and Herb Score as starters, had more gray beards than fuzzy cheeks, but it still looked good enough with some hitting support.

So what happens? The Sox tumbled from fourth to last with a seven - game slump, their longest in five years. And after winning six of nine, they now have lost four of their last eight games—with no starter turning in a complete game.

LOST FIVE STRAIGHT

The White Sox dropped their fifth in a row at Baltimore Wednesday night as the Orioles twice came from behind for a 3-1 and 5-4 two - night doubleheader sweep. That left Chicago just .007 percentage points shy of plunking into the cellar at 12½ games out of first.

Detroit, meanwhile, retained a 4½ - game lead by beating Minnesota Twins 3-4 while Cleveland also lost a pair, place Los Angeles Angels 7-1. It was the Indians' seventh success in eight games. New York beat Boston 3-2 and Kansas City knocked off Washington 5-2.

The Orioles, just a half-game behind third place New York, beat Shaw in the opener on a tie-breaking homer by Gus Triandos in the seventh inning. Skinny Brown was the winner with a shaky 7-6 job as Sox manager just one run for the fourth straight game.

A home run also decided the nightcap. Ron Hansen's three-run shot brought the Birds from behind in the eighth after Lopez, who started reliever Russ Kemmerer out of desperation, threw in the three top men in his bullpen brigade—Turk Lown, Frank Baumann and Gerry Staley. Lown put the lying run on base, Baumann, the loser, put on the winning run and Staley gave up the homer. Score: Sox 4 with six-innings of three - hit shutout relief.

SHUTOUT STRING BROKEN

Al Kaline and Rocky Colavito each hammered home runs and drove in two runs for the Tigers. Both homers were off Leer Cain 11-0 starter, who pushed his shutout string through 20 innings before Kaline unloaded in the third.

Don Mossi stayed unbeaten and won his fifth, but gave up a two-run homer by Zoilo Versalles and needed Bill Fischer's relief to save it.

Fischer got Harmon Killebrew to hit into a doubleplay and struck out Jim Lemon when he hurried in with two on and none out in the seventh. Killebrew hit a two-run homer in the ninth, but Fischer finished it by again fanning Lemon.

Cary Bell won his second in four decisions with a four-hitter for the Indians, striking out 10 and blanking the Angels on one hit until Leon Wagner homered in the seventh.

Johnny Romano hit a home run for the Indians, who then chased Jerry Casale with a four-run third.

FRANCONA HURT

The Francona singled in two runs in the big inning, but was knocked out when he crashed into Los Angeles first baseman Ted Kluszewski. Tito walked off on his own, but was placed under observation.

A bases-loaded walk by Pete Burnside capped a two - run comeback in the ninth for the Angels and tagged the loss on Johnny Cakher. Bill Kunkel won his first in relief. Jim Archer, a reliever turned starter on orders from As owner Charles Finley, allowed the Senators only one earned run, but trailed 5-1 after pitching seven innings.

The Yankees did it on a two-out single by Tony Kubek in the ninth that beat Chet Nichols. Ralph Terry gave up only three hits, but one was a lying homer by Perry Roscar in the eighth. Roger Maris hit a two - run homer off Borton starter Gene Conley.

CAHA Annual

Junior A Clubs Strength Equalized

FORT ARTHUR (CP) — The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association's annual meeting ties three days of heavy business sessions.

Regulations for playoff hockey were in the spotlight Wednesday as the association adopted resolutions aimed at giving some junior clubs more of a fighting chance in playoffs.

The main impact was felt by the Prairie provinces as the CAHA moved to strengthen Thunder Bay and British Columbia playoff hopes in Memorial Cup playoffs.

Alberta and Saskatchewan get a source of free junior player material as the introduction of junior A hockey to B.C. prompted the CAHA to place that province under the same import - restriction regulation governing the rest of Canada. Each junior A team is restricted to two imports from another CAHA branch.

Saskatchewan and Alberta teams no longer will be permitted to pick up three players from their own branches' rosters. They must in inter - branch Memorial Cup playoffs.

STILL CAN USE

The western Memorial Cup representative still is permitted to dispose of one pickup, three from within the team's own CAHA branch and three from elsewhere in the West.

Two teams without a junior A club will be in play, Edmonton Oil Kings and the Montreal-Provincial Junior Canadiens will be allowed to continue competing for the Memorial Cup.

The Ontario Hockey Association winner, as in the past, will receive no extra player help. The Ottawa district, Maritimes and Quebec branches and the Northern Ontario Hockey Association still are allowed six pickups from within their respective branches in the West.

ANNOUNCES RECEIPTS

Playoff gate receipts from Memorial Cup competition in 1961 were announced.

Edmonton Oil Kings, who lost to St. Michael's College Majors of Toronto in the final, took in net receipts totalling $25,311 in four series. St. Mike's collected $17,000 in two series.

The six - game Memorial Cup final showed gross receipts of $81,387. The two clubs split $32,907 after expenses and the 15-per - cent CAHA cut.

The CAHA collected a total of $21,253 from eight Memorial Cup series across Canada.

'Knockouts Look Good On Television'-Archie

NEW YORK (AP)—Archie Moore breezed into town Wednesday, weighing "in the 180s" and predicted Ghilie Rinaldi will see "more of Moore" June 10 than when the Italian beat Archie last October in Rome.

"I'm not going to underrate Mr. Rinaldi," said Archie, "I will do my level best to win and to win by a knockout because a boxer in a championship match looks so nice on television."

Moore's share of the world lightheavyweight title he is recognized in New York, Massachusetts and Europe and Harold Johnson of the National Boxing Association champ) will be at stake. The Italian won a decision over Archie last Oct. 29 in an overthe-weight bout.

They signed the official contracts for the 15-round match Wednesday.

Moore gets a $100,000 guarantee of 40 per cent of the receipts including TV, plus $12,000 training expenses. Rinaldi gets a $25,000 guarantee and his transportation from Italy. The TV rights have been sold to ABC for $150,000.

Moore was the star of a luncheon meeting. He said:

"Let bygones be bygones. I hold no malice toward Rinaldi or the judges. If he wins a decision over me I will be the first to run to his corner and congratulate him. If I knock him out, I will be the first to render first aid."

He closed his formal speech by recalling an inscription he had read on a Tombstone in Tombstone, Ariz.

"What you are, I once was. What I am, you soon will be. Remember me."

Giants Pad Lead, Bucs In Second

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Right hander Larry Jackson, in his first starter at the box of times, overcame a spring training injury and a three game losing streak Wednesday night as St. Louis Cardinals knocked Los Angeles Dodgers out of second place in the National League.

Jackson was put out of action this spring when his jaw was fractured by a broken bat swung by Duke Snider of the Dodgers in an exhibition game. That sidelined him the first two weeks of the season. When he did come back, Jackson lost three in a row.

He finally made it Wednesday night with a 7-4 victory over Los Angeles.

San Francisco padded its lead to a full game with a 5-4 victory at Cincinnati while Pittsburgh Pirates took over second place by beating Chicago Cubs 7-3. Last place Philadelphia beat Milwaukee 7-1.

GAVE EIGHT HITS

Jackson, now 15-6 lifetime against the Dodgers, gave up eight hits and seven walks, but left a dozen Dodgers stranded. Relief ace Lindy McDaniel finally nailed it, striking out Tommy Davis with the bases loaded in the ninth.

The ninth-place Cards, winning their second in a row, scored once in the first on Bill White's home run and then beat Roger Craig (3-3) with two in the second on singles by Stan Musial, Bill Spencer and Alex Grammas and a force out by Hal Smith. Jackson doubled home two more in the sixth.

Winner Mike McCormick (3-2) of the Giants and the Reds' Jim O'Toole (4-4), a pair of young southpaws, dueled through six scoreless innings before San Francisco scored three unearned runs in the seventh. The Giants wrapped it up with two more in the eighth, one unearned, with Jim Davenport's error by coaching the clincher, Frank Robinson homered in the seventh for the Reds and Vada Pinson tagged a three-run homer in the eighth off McCormick before reliever Bob Bolin saved it.

Art Mahaffey (5-4) beat the Braves with a four-hitter. It was the seventh complete game —one in the majors—in eight starts for the young right hander who claims all but three of the Phils' eight victories in their last 21 games. Jim Woods and Clarence Smith hammered homers for Philadelphia, with Smith's two-run shot triggering a six-run fourth that beat Don Nottebart (2-3).

Glen Hobbie mopped up with a perfect 2 1-3 innings of relief for the Pirates as Wilmer Mizell (4-1) beat the Cubs for the 14th time in 15 decisions. Dick Ellsworth (1-4) was the loser, getting up a pair of homers by Roberto Clemente that drove in four Pittsburgh runs. Dick Stuart also homered for the Pirates while Jerry Kindall and Billy Williams hit home runs for the Cubs.

Bobcats Wallop Walts

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Bellevile Bobcats broke up a 3-3 ball game with five runs in the sixth inning and went on from there to defeat the Picton Walts 8-3 in Picton last night for their second win in as many B. and D. softball league starts.

The game was halted with two out and a man on first in the top of the ninth inning because of a ten o'clock curfew in Picton.

Picton opened the scoring with a pair of runs in the third inning but their lead was short-lived. The 'Cats tied it in the fourth paving the way for their big sixth-inning explosion.

Johnny Batchelor's long blast was lost in the poor left field lights. A Wally Cousins' bass hit and a misplayed fielder's choice on Green's secondary drive filled the bases with still none out. Jim Morton struck out to retire the second run, Cousins scored on an error to make it 5-3 and Crawford's solid single plated two more.

Roger Chapman was charged with the loss allowing eight hits, striking out ten and walking four. He was relieved at this point by Bob Lake, who was tagged for two hits, including Goegan's homer in the eighth that, like Batchelor's, barfled the left fielder.

Portsider Bobby Green buried the victory, although giving the way to Bob Hunter in the seventh. Green gave up all four Picton hits and but for control trouble in spots, was in command most of the way. He nipped eight on strikes while passing seven. Hunter was perfect in relief.

Bobcats' earlier runs registered on consecutive singles by Hall, John Batchelor and Ken Brown, the first hits off Chapman, and an error.

The second of Mulholland's three walks and one of Keith Stacey's three sacrifices set up Picton's runs in the third. Hard hit back-to-back doubles by Bob Heffernan and Marve Stacey scored the runners.

Another double by Stacey, sandwiched between two walks, led to the losers' final tally and chased Green in the seventh. Pat Marsele, who batted for Lake in the eighth, pitched to three Bellevile batters before the ensuing ballad activity in the ninth.

Mayor H. J. McFarland officially opened the Walts' home schedule with a sharp infield hit by umpire Norman Scott's pitching while sporting Walt Fraser was behind the plate.

Johnny Batchelor with a homer and single, and Floyd Crawford with a double, single and two walks, paced the Bobcat batters. Flori Goegan had his circuit clout while base hits went to Ted Batchelor, Doug Hall, "Wiener" Brown, Earl Cousins and Jim Mulholland.

SPEAKS OF WEAPONS

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Sir Julian Huxley, the British biologist, Wednesday night disputed the usual definition of nuclear weapons. "Our government leaders call them 'deterrents.'" Sir Julian told a Yale group, "but I prefer to call them 'detergents' because we must not forget their awesome capability of literally cleaning us off the globe."

INQUEST

Constable Hall testified that he told her that "I have some trouble." He told her also that a McNevin boy had been kidnapped and was being held for ransom.

Her husband had told her that a ransom note had fallen from the envelope of his mail.

When she asked him why he was so upset, he told her husband had told her that the funny part of the whole thing was that the McNevin boy had been in his car the evening before.

TOOK HIM TO GAME

She said her husband had told her the McNevin boy had jumped into his car and had asked to take him to a hockey game.

Continuing, Mrs. Williamson said she had phoned her husband about 5:15 Tuesday afternoon when he had returned. He began acting agitated.

They had watchful TV after supper, following which her husband had asked to be left alone in the house while he went to a telephone call. During the early evening her husband had made several trips to the basement.

Mrs. Williamson said while she was getting ready for bed she heard a loud crash from the basement. Her son Tommy run out and asked if everything was all right. Her husband told him to go back to bed.

Minutes later, however, when she was reading to her daughter in bed she heard a gunshot. She ran down stairs and found her husband lying on the basement floor.

IN GRADE V

Mrs. McNevin said Tommy was in grade five at school; that he was a member of the Squirt hockey team and was a member of the 6th Belleville cub pack.

On the 17th of March about 6.30 in the evening she had answered the telephone in their home when a man had asked to speak with Tommy. He did not identify himself but she had heard Tommy say over the telephone, "I know now, I've only four blocks away."

Later she had asked her son what the call was all about and he had replied that the hockey game was being arranged at Point Anne and he was going there.

The following Monday she had questioned Tommy about the hockey game and he had replied he had not forgotten.

She said she had not been home when Tommy left to play hockey. Her son, her younger son, Robert, had asked if he could go to the hockey game. Mrs. McNevin said she had refused because Robert had been sick.

General Tendencies: This is a day and night when it is necessary that you accept delays and obstacles in a truly philosophical frame of mind. Don't try to push things. Let them work themselves out, merely do the essential work required of you. Make a point to replace possible depression by smiling and showing your gentle characteristics. Be truly co-operative now.

Aries (aMrch 21 to April 19) Avoid any outside activities if they are apt to be confusing or upsetting. Look to pleasing associates so that better relations are possible and you get your credit higher. Work is the keynote for day and evening. Be pleasant.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Step out of dull routine now and join the progressive world of affairs where you can contact clever and successful persons. Make big headway fast. P.M. a friend can be rather trying, but be patient since he, or she, may be ill.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) It is possible to have a lovely time today, despite one who tries to get in your way. P.M. Be a stoic, even though you may be unhappy over some quarrel with mate. Don't add fuel to the fire or you may regret it later.

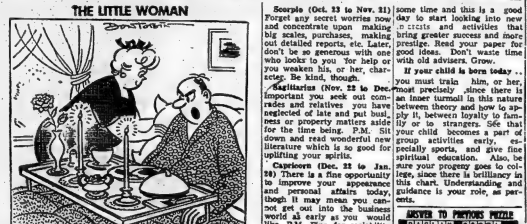
Moon Children (June 22 to July 23) You may have to sacrifice some worldly activity today in the interest of getting affairs to appearances improved but it is eminently worthwhile to do so. However, be sure you are considerate with everyone with whom you deal.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) Avoid that worrisome individual today and go after the data that you need vitally at this time. And if a co-worker tries to annoy you, be adamant. P.M. Be very devoted with honest pal and good relative who truly love you.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take care you do not fly off to some unnecessary amusement and leave your cares behind you. Get busy getting caught up on work, handling all real estate affairs, putting them in better order and striving for greater efficiency in the future.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Rely on yourself today with regard to any personal or business matters, even though close ties try to force you to do things their way. P.M. Take health treatments you need. Improve appearance.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Forget any secret worries now and concentrate upon making big scales, purchases, making out detailed reports, etc. Later, don't be so generous with one who looks to you for help or you weaken his, or her, character. Be kind, though.



Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Important you seek out comrades and relatives you have neglected of late and put business or property matters aside for the time being. P.M. Sit down and read wonderful new literature which is so good for uplifting your spirits.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) There is a fine opportunity to improve your appearance and personal affairs today, though it may mean you cannot get out into the business world as early as you would like. P.M. Fine for sociability with good friends.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Every opportunity is yours now to get ahead in your career through fine, new friends you made recently. However, steer clear of that Big-wig who is in an angry mood and wants a whipping boy. Be co-operative, kind and very alert.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) You have been in a rut for some time and this is a good day to start looking into new projects and activities that bring greater success and more prestige. Read your paper for good ideas. Don't waste time with old advisers. Grow.

If your child is born today . . you must train him, or her, most precisely since there is an inner turmoil in this nature between theory and how to apply it, between loyalty to family or to strangers, idea that your child becomes a part of group activities early, especially sports, and give fine spiritual education. Also, be sure your progeny goes to college, since there is brilliancy in this chart. Understanding and guidance is your role, as parents.

Scouting activities

BY CHRIS F. BEGGAT

7TH BELLEVILLE

The annual father and son banquet was held in St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill parish hall with about 125 attending.

Grace was said by Rev. K. A. Page, followed by a delicious turkey dinner served by the Boy Scouts' Auxiliary under the convenorship of Mrs. W. Bishop.

Bill Mallory proposed a toast to the fathers, replied to by Mr. Stan Wiggins. Chairman Douglas Fort then introduced the head table: Cub Jim Murray, Rover Skipper Alf Murray, Squire Peter Murray, Mr. Dan Stewart, S.M. Phil Stewart, Scout Robert Fort, Cub Charles Fort, D.C. Phil Allcorn, Gregorie Parkhurst, Rev. Arthur Page, group padre; Scout Paul Hunter, C.M. Lee Trip, Cub David Henderson, Peoples' Warden Mr. Fred Bradley welcomed the group to St. Margaret's. Chairman Fort reported on the activities of the group during the past year with a resume of plans for the future. The District Commissioner reported on the progress of the district during the past year.

A skit was presented by the Scouts, and songs by the Rover Crew. Merrill Gordon led a sing song. The ladies were thanked by David Beresford.

PROFICIENCY BADGES

Cubs receiving badges were Peter Bishop, swimmer; Bill Mallory, team players; John Sillitoe, toymaker; Brian Acton, house orderly; Charles Fort, toymaker.

Scouts: Mike Hume, artist and religion and life; T/L. Arthur Alyea, engineers and ventures; Peter Murray and Murray Angus both received the ambulance badge, the last badge required by these boys for Queen's Scout.

Thank you Mr. Fort for this report on your banquet.

THREE NEW BADGES

Scouts will now be able to work for a "Skin Diver" and a "Model Railroader" badge. Wolf Cubs will now have fourteen proficiency badges open to them with the addition of "Pet Keeper" badge.

NEW PRESIDENT

Mr. R. C. Berkinshaw, C.B.E., LL.D., Chairman of the Board, Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. of Canada Ltd., has been elected president of the National Council, Boy Scouts of Canada. A former scoutmaster, he succeeds Mr. Rhys M. Sale who served as president for the past eight years.

U.S. ASTRONAUT EX-SCOUT

Astronaut Alan Shepard, who recently made history as the first American to travel into space, is a former Boy Scout. As a matter of fact five out of the seven astronauts in the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration's "Project Mercury" have been Boy Scouts. The other four are Carpenter, Cooper, Grissom and Schirra. Among them the five have five sons in the Scout Movement.

THREE NEW STAMPS

A set of two new postage stamps, 8 cents and 25 cents, was issued last month by the Government of Trinidad and Tobago to commemorate the Second Caribbean Scout Jamboree. The design, common to both values, shows four Scouts against a background of a map of Trinidad and Tobago and symbolizes the Jamboree motto of "Unity." A medallion portrait of Her Majesty the Queen surrounds a picture of the Gold Wolf Scout award, of which the Queen is the only holder.

West Germany also issued a Scout stamp last month. It is a 10 pf. green honoring the Scouts of Germany. "The Pathfinders," as they are called, St. George, patron saint of Boy Scouts, is portrayed on the stamp, astride a horse and slaying a dragon.

lem of racial relations in a mixed state will permit understanding and appreciation of the South African program," it said.

In Europe, a West German newspaper found a parallel between wartime Nazi persecution of Jews and the actions of Montgomery police in the Alabama riots.

The Bonn newspaper General Anzeiger was one of many European commentators to speak out Wednesday against distorted segregationists in the southern U.S.

It said Montgomery police "watched the outrages of the (white) mob as impatiently as German fireguards did in the infamed Crystal Night when the synagogues were burned" by the Nazis.

NEGRO LEADERS

lanta, Ga., said his organization would pay no attention to the attorney-general's appeal for a cooling-off period.

The Negro minister said his group would continue its efforts and would try to broaden them.

The "Freedom Riders" were booked with breach of peace and disobeying an officer. The breach of peace charge resulted from a 1930 statute which the Mississippi legislature passed as an anti-integration measure.

They are expected to be tried in municipal court Friday.

TOOK IN WAGON

When each bus arrived, police ordered the "Freedom Riders" to leave the bus terminal. When the order was ignored, police hustled them into a waiting police wagon.

In Washington, bills were introduced in Congress by Mississippi legislators banning "Freedom Rides." Senator John Stennis, Democrat, offered a bill in the Senate making it a federal offence to ride interstate transportation with the purpose of inciting a riot. A similar bill was introduced in the House of Representatives.

2 DIE, TRUCK GOES ON

2 DIE, TRUCK GOES ON — Two school children on their way home from classes were killed Wednesday when hit by a truck that did not stop. They were Gary Howard, 9, and Terrence Ferguson, 8. Dorion is 25 miles west of Montreal.

KENNEDY ASKS FOREIGN AID OVERHAUL

Freedom Riders Go On Trial In Jackson City

Integrationists Continue Assaults

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Segregation — defying "Freedom Riders" were scheduled to go on trial in Jackson City court today as integrationists continued their massive assault on "Jim Crow" barriers throughout the deep South.

Trial of the 27 "Freedom Riders" on charges and two whites—is set for 6 p. m. in the same courtroom where earlier this year other Negroes were convicted for attempts to integrate Jackson's main public library and city bus system.

At the same time, Atlanta integrationists, club-swinging policemen using trained dogs dispersed a large crowd of hymn-singing Negroes outside the courthouse building.

The 27 "Freedom Riders" were arrested Wednesday after they left a bus terminal here and used the previous integration attempts as bases. They face an additional charge of disobeying an officer. If convicted of both charges, they face a maximum six-month jail term and $500 fine.

TENNIS RACKETS

The avowed purpose of the "Freedom Riders" is to test their constitutional rights. The U.S. Constitution guarantees the freedom of all citizens to move from one state to another.

A long series of Supreme Court decisions going as far back as 1946 ruled out racial segregation practices in public transportation — and elsewhere — "artificial" devices designed to circumvent constitutional guarantees of equality for all citizens.

In New Orleans, the announced destination of all prevailing "Freedom Rides" the city council adopted a resolution declaring police to escort the integrationists and other "agitators" non-stop through the city limits. Attorney Richard Dowling said he would charge any participating group with violation of a state law similar to the Mississippi anti - integration statute, if convicted.

GUNS, MOUNTIES AND GOOFBALLS DEBATE SUBJECTS

Members Range Over Wide Area

OTTAWA (CP)—Guns, goofballs and accusations of sneaky snooping by RCMP undercover agents came under Commons scrutiny Thursday.

The oddball combination was dished out as MPs considered the $46,287,482 spending estimates of the justice department. Consideration continues today.

The question of illegal use of firearms was brought up by Liberal members Raymond Eudes, Montreal Hochelaga, and J. P. Deschatelets, Montreal Maisonneuve-Rosemont.

Constant play on crime by movies, television and newspapers was partly to blame for which it seemed an everyday occurrence to use firearms, said Mr. Eudes, in Montreal alone there were 2,000 persons in illegal possession of weapons.

Mr. Deschatelets asked for an amendment to the Criminal Code providing a jail sentence with no alternative fine for any person convicted of being arrested with firearms in his possession. Further action.

Justice Minister Fulton agreed there is room for improvement in the Criminal Code in this respect but so far it had been impossible to work out a uniform system among the provinces. The provinces, he said, should look to their own responsibilities in this field, such as licensing of stores selling firearms.

Both Montreal members suggested the use of goofballs — "pep" pills acquired illegally — be brought under control of the Narcotics Act. Police have legislation governing barbiturates with the amendment in the next week—along with measures dealing with narcotics, said Mr. Fulton. Criminal Code provisions involving sex offences.

George Valade, MP — Montreal Ste. Marie), a pharmacist, asked Mr. Fulton to do something about "sneaky" RCMP undercover agents who appear in drugstores posing as drug retailers in Quebec posing as buyers of drugs. Many of these were without prescriptions, the agents told the druggists, and they were glad they were able from out of town and needed the drugs immediately.

Mr. Valade said two Sherbrooke druggists who had taken the bait on the spot were charged and fined. The justice department, he said, was using people to incite honest persons to break the law.

Conservative Douglas Jung, Chinese-Canadian member for Vancouver Centre, predicted an end to the immunity granted Chinese who entered Canada illegally as a result of an immigration racket. The immunity granted on the U.S. to Can. e could

Prime Minister Says Americans Know Too Little About Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Thursday Americans don't know enough about Canada and are inclined to take Canadians for granted.

Giving a press conference to a group of visiting United Nations correspondents, the prime minister ranged over a number of world issues but concentrated mainly on questions about aleged anti-Americanism in Canada.

"We know a great deal more about you than you know about us," he told the visitors from other nations. "Our reporters mentioned Thursday that their United Nations General Assembly last September, when Mr. Diefenbaker was the first major Western leader to answer Soviet Premier Khrushchev's charges about Western colonialism.

But the prime minister said he had checked U.S. newspapers and found only two had given comprehensive coverage to his remarks on colonialism.

Experts Link Williamson With Ransom Note Writing, Presence at Death Scene

Thomas Warren Williamson, intermediary in the $25,000 ransom demand in the kidnapping death of 10-year-old Tommy McNevin, was the author of the ransom notes and was also present at the death scene in the Sidney township swamp where the boy's body was found last March 22.

That Mr. Williamson, who committed suicide in the basement of his Southdowner Avenue home, was the writer of the ransom notes was stated today by Mr. Arthur Wilcox, document expert from the Attorney-General's laboratory as he gave testimony at the coroner's inquest looking into the McNevin slaying.

Mr. Wilcox told the hearing that all three ransom notes were written by the same person and that in his opinion had been the work of Mr. Williamson.

His opinion had been arrived at by examination of the ransom notes and comparing them with printed handwriting specimens found in Mr. Williamson's flat.

Mr. Wilcox was one of two laboratory experts heard at the morning's session of the inquiry, who linked Mr. Williamson with the kidnapping.

Mr. John Funk, biologist with the attorney general's department laboratory, told the jury that rope fibres found in the pocket of Mr. Williamson's coat were of the same type as from the rope which bound the McNevin boy's feet before he died.

Also fungus growth found on the tree to which the boy was bound was similar to that found in the cuffs of Mr. Williamson's trousers. Blood found on the trousers was of the same type as that of Tommy McNevin.

And also at this morning's hearing the jury was told that a white station wagon similar to that owned by Mr. Williamson had been seen parked on the trail leading off the Sidney township sideroad to where

Frost Gains Support of N.Y. State in Crime Conference

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Frost of Ontario said today that he has gained New York State support for next week's international crime conference and said he will sit in on the meetings himself.

Two state representatives will be on hand for the three-day conference, Mr. Frost said.

Magistrate C. O. Bick, chairman of the Metropolitan Toronto police commission, called the conference while reports of U.S.-Canada links in prostitution and narcotics rings were at a high pitch.

Its aim is to establish the extent of crime connections between Canada and the neighboring state and to probe for weaknesses in law — if any — in treatment and study ways of correcting them.

The premier's announcement followed a telephone conversation with Malcolm Wilson, New York's lieutenant-governor. Mr. Frost said Wilson "offered complete co-operation on the lawand-order aspects and he did the same on behalf of Ontario."

The premier said he also talked by phone to RCMP Commissioner G. W. Harvison of Ottawa to ask whether any situation in the province, requiring the co-operation of Canada's police forces, had caused embarrassment or difficulties. He said he was assured no such situation has developed.

The premier said next week's conference, opening Wednesday, will be attended by representatives of the U.S. agencies—the federal bureau of narcotics and customs, internal revenue service and treasury department—as well as the New York detective force.

Canada will be represented by the RCMP commissioner, the national revenue department's customs branch and the

Margaret's Child Will Be Fifth in Line for Throne

LONDON (Reuters) — Britons today cheered the news that Princess Margaret is expecting a baby and was told the prospect that boy — or girl — would become fifth in line to the throne as a consequence.

The London Daily Herald was in front with the news. A question of "What shall we call the baby?" but here it's a case of "What shall we call the father?" This referred to a possible name for Margaret's husband, Antony Armstrong-Jones.

As things now stand, the baby Princess Margaret is expecting in November—will be in line for the throne behind Margaret, the Queen's three children and Princess Margaret. Several British newspapers described the situation as a "revolutionary." British newspapers point out that the Queen could give titles to either Armstrong - Jones or the children of Margaret and her sister. Or she could make Margaret a duchess, thus a u t o m a t i c a l l y making her children "lords" or "ladies."

The announcement that Margaret was expecting was made by Buckingham Palace from her home at Kensington Palace. The princess today began a period free of public engagements — which last was a visit Thursday to a London hospital.

Margaret, 30, married 31-year. old former society photographer Armstrong-Jones in 1960. Before it was the first marriage of a princess since the daughter of King George lived in more than 400 years.

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express said in an editorial that the British people are happy the princess will now share the satisfaction of motherhood. The Express notes that the fifth in line to the throne should be a child of a commoner.

"For that accords with the spirit of the times."

Light Vote in Leeds Could Make Closest Race in Years

BROCKVILLE (CP) — The Progressive Conservative stronghold of Leeds goes to the Polls Monday along with three other Ontario by-elections across the country and an anticipated light vote could make for one of the closest races in years.

Only twice—in 1940 and 1949—has the Liberal candidate won in the Eastern Ontario riding.

But they've been campaigning this time and there are some predictions that a slim vote would work in their favor. The advance poll turned up only 191 votes in Brockville, 12 in Athens, two in Smiths Falls and none in the resort town of Gananoque.

It's a straight two-way fight between Liberal John R. Mathews, Brockville lawyer and father of six, and Progressive Conservative Harold Stewart for the seat left vacant by the death last December of Progressive Conservative Mr. Matheson, Brockville lawyer and father of six, has been a familiar figure around the riding meeting voters despite a physical handicap. He never head wound during Second World War service paralyzed him from the hips down and he can walk only with the aid of crutches or canes.

He's been helped by Liberal Leader Pearson, who spent a day touring Leeds from Smiths Falls to Gananoque and from

SUSPECTED SPY IS DISMISSED, RE-ARRESTED

Crown Prefers Special Charges

MONTREAL (CP) — Tomasz Biernacki, the 37-year-old Polish engineer arrested as a suspected spy, had a fleeting breath of freedom in the courtroom Thursday.

He left a week preliminary hearing wound up with a dismissal of all five charges against him.

But seconds after the judgment was delivered, police announced a preferred indictment had been returned against the tall handsome hydraulics expert, sending him directly to jail.

Biernacki, whose wife and two children are in Poland, took the announcement in his stride, for it promised a speedy trial.

Today he is to be formally re-arraigned on the charges. It was believed his trial may open in two or three days.

Crown Prosecutor Jean Michaud obtained the preferred indictment after Biernacki's Wednesday from Attorney-General Georges Lapalme of Quebec.

He said in court the decision to prefer charges instead of dismissing the charges against Biernacki "could have been anticipated."

TERMS CASE 'SERIOUS'

It was, he said, "based on a point of law" that the case was "too serious" to end that way.

The preferred indictment, it is used rarely, eliminates the preliminary stage of judicial procedure.

Mr. Michaud explained why the Crown had not made the move immediately after Biernacki's arrest here by RCMP April 9, said the Crown felt it had a good case and might as well take it through regular channels.

It was no case of double jeopardy—being tried twice for the same crime—since Biernacki's case had not reached the trial stage.

Biernacki, who came to Canada in May, 1960, to work as a 13,000-a-year engineer with a Montreal firm, is charged with obtaining, collecting and receiving information that might be harmful to Canada, attempting to communicate the information to a foreign power; attempting to collect information by conspiracy to setting up a spy ring.

The charges were made under the Official Secrets Act.

Judge Shorteno said he dismissed the charges because information the Crown showed Biernacki had collected was not secret.

DIES FROM BURNS

OTTAWA (CP) — Ernest Lafontaine, 55, died in hospital here Thursday from burns he suffered Wednesday in an explosion in the basement of his home at Grand Renous, Que., 80 miles north of Ottawa. Police said the blast, which was during electrical work in the basement of his home, ripped the home and general store when fumes from the seepage of gasoline in a nearby underground tank blew up.

Wants Billions For '62 Program, New Loan System

Paramount Importance For West Protection

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy asked Congress today to overhaul drastically the foreign aid program and provide $4,750,000,000 in aid funds for next year as well as a multi-billion dollar loan system for future years.

Kennedy said the proposed long-range program is of "paramount importance" for protection of the Western world against the Communist threat.

The president made his proposal in a letter to Congress transmitting the legislation he wants enacted.

Many of influential legislators have shown coolness to parts of the Kennedy package, however, and what type of bill Congress will finally approve remains uncertain.

In what would be the most drastic shakeup in the aid program since it got under way on a large scale after the Second World War, Kennedy proposed establishment of a single aid organization to administer practically all separate units.

The new master aid agency he calls the Development Loan Agency for International Development. It would have an undersecretary of state rank and would report to the secretary of state and the president.

TO SEPARATE PROGRAMS

Under Kennedy's bill, arms aid would be separated from economic aid in the future, and both be treated as part of the regular U.S. defense budget.

Kennedy asked $1,750,000,000 for the program in the fiscal year starting July 1.

$1,880,000,000 for economic aid to countries around the world. He said this is a minimum because for a "presidential contingency fund" for flexible use in emergencies such as recent developments in Southeast Asia, twice the amount requested last year for that purpose earlier.

$1,350,000,000 for arms assistance. That is the amount Kennedy mentioned in Thursday's message which outlined much of the program presented today.

$900,000,000 in b o r r o w i n g authority for funds to make long-term loans for major economic development projects.

$200,000,000 for aid to Latin America from repayments by foreign countries on previous loan programs and to be reused for new projects. Kennedy also asked for authority to use such funds for the same purpose in future years, $100,000,000 annually.

For the four years starting May 31st, 1961 Kennedy asked $1,600,000,000 a year in further borrowing authority for loans for economic development loans.

BIG BORROWING URGED

This plus the $800,000,000 for the coming year would bring the Development Borrowing authority to $7,200,000,000 over the next five years.

LEAVE CUBA

HAVANA (Reuters)—A total of 109 brothers and seminarists of La Salle Christian Schools left Cuba by air Thursday for Miami en route to Panama, the Central American headquarters of the Roman Catholic order. Pupils of La Salle's three Havana schools and those in Sandago de Cuba, all now taken over by the government, are off the departing brothers and seminarists, who included Spaniards, Mexicans and Frenchmen, but no Cubans.

ned said:

"Real progress in economic development cannot be achieved by annual, short-term dispensations of aid and uncertainty as to future intentions . . . The technical assistance is also essential to our new approach to encouraging assistance to the effectiveness of that approach."

The long-term borrowing authority could be used to make loans repayable in up to 50 years, at low rates or no interest charge.

Derelict Bodies of Slain Women Found in Car on Deserted Lane

PLAINFIELD, N.J. (AP) — The partly disrobed bodies of two suburban housewives who were found early today with the white Cadillac in which they had been abducted. One woman was strangled and the other was shot to death in the car over by the big car as she apparently tried to make a break for freedom.

Several hours later police arrested two young men and charged them on suspicion of murder. Detective Daniel Hennessy said both denied any part of the crime.

The dead were Mrs. Elliot Ewell, 49, of Westfield, wife of the executive vice-president of the Mack Truck Company here, and Mrs. Robert Tyson, 39, of Plainfield, whose husband is a New York stockbroker and also an executive with Mack.

The suspects are Lorelle Parks, 22, and Joseph Maxey, 23, employees of an auto sales firm in Plainfield.

Hennessy said the keys to the Cadillac as well as a wallet belonging to one of the women were found in Parks' pocket.

Mrs. Ewell was found under the right front wheel of the car. Detectives said she must have been run over by the big limousine. Mrs. Tyson's body was on the floor in the back of the car, with a blanket covering her head.

Detectives said Mrs. Ewell was shot from the front seat and her red silk dress was pulled over her head. She had no shoes on.

Mrs. Tyson's clothing was torn off and she was half undressed, police said.

Two patrolmen discovered the car with the bodies in a small wooded lane. Police were called by a cab driver, Wilbur Morris, who witnessed the abduction shortly after 1 a.m.

Police gave the following account:

The two women were riding in Mrs. Ewell's car with her son, James, 23, at the wheel, when the engine stalled near the Plainfield water works. James went to the water company to call a cab and then walked away. Police said he had had an argument earlier with his mother.

Morris was sent to the scene by the cab company. He worked on the engine and got it started. Meanwhile, two young Negroes drove up in a black car and stopped.

Mrs. Ewell asked Morris to drive her home and to call another cab for Mrs. Tyson. As Morris entered his cab to turn around, he noticed one of the men enter Mrs. Ewell's car and drive off. The second Negro followed in his own car.

Morris notified police on the cab radio.

Schools Plan Next Year's Night Programs

Periodically interested citizens raise the point that valuable school buildings should be kept in operation day and night. To a considerable extent in Belleville this policy is followed. From October to March every year, night school classes are held in the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School and Moira Secondary School.

This past year some 700 students, on the equivalent of a full school enrolment, registered in Belleville night school classes. The subjects offered for study were as follows: Algebra (Grade XII), Art, Auto Mechanics, Bookkeeping, Bricklaying, Business Elementary (Grade XII) Drafting, Electronics, English for New Canadians, Gasoline Engines, Machine Shop, Millinery, Sewing, Shorthand, Typewriting, Stationary Engineering, Small Engines (Air-cooled), V.L.A. Home Construction, Welding and Woodworking.

In addition, in co-operation with various voluntary organizations, a number of special courses were conducted in the school building series of public lectures in Public Speaking, Parent-Child Training, and university extension studies.

At the present time the principals are planning next year's night school program. They would welcome suggestions for additional courses. Interest commendation, stating and enrolment periods, suggested courses will be offered. If at least fifteen people register every effort would be made to conduct a course.

Adult education is an important part of the secondary schools' responsibility; in Belleville and district we are being well used to that end.

L. Digby Named President of New Party Group

A meeting was held Wednesday night at the Engineers' Hall for the purpose of forming a co-ordinating committee for the New Party in the South Hastings riding.

Representatives from the various local unions and from the South Hastings Federal CCF Association were in attendance at the closed meeting, as were members from the Prince Edward - Lennox and the Hastings-Frontenac ridings.

The guest speaker for the evening was Councillor Fred Young of North York Township Council who outlined the background of the formation of the New Party and the necessity for the new political alignment to counteract the two old line parties.

The election of officers which was conducted by Fred Young resulted in the following New Party Co-Ordinating Committee being formed for the South Hastings riding: president, Les Digby of Belleville; secretary-treasurer, Ian Reilly of Frankford, and vice-presidents Herb Polsfut and Don Burshaw, both of Belleville.

Plans were made for a public meeting to be held during the early month to launch the New Party in South Hastings riding. It is hoped that a prominent speaker for this meeting, the date for which will be announced later.

Earlier in the day one of the slickest parliamentary plots in recent years brought down the wrath of Mr. Fulton on Chesley W. Carter (L—Burin-Burgeo).

Mr. Carter had a bill introduced in the last session to amend the Fisheries Act and then have it withdrawn. The bill, Mr. Carter's idea was that the Liberals could try to amend the act by licensing clauses they deemed to be in conflict with the Bill of Rights.

The Opposition maintains this forced the government to amend the act itself, which it has done —though not to Mr. Carter's satisfaction.

Mr. Fulton described Mr. Carter's bill as a "monstrosity" and an "absurdity" and charged that the Newfoundland MP had resorted to "subterfuge" "trust representation" and "abuse" in parliamentary processes.

In the Senate, Liberal Senator David Croll of Ontario lambasted Canada's tariff structure for what he described as discriminating against a "minority group in filling executive posts." He cited particularly banks, which he said operate under charters companies for "failing" to allow men and women of minority groups to fill managerial and executive posts.

Senator Harold Connolly said dictatorial powers in a government bill on tariffs should be struck out for the good of Parliament "and the consumers who will pay more for the same without any right of appeal."

Dacre, Denbigh Had Snowfall Of 3 Inches

Communities in the northern part of Hastings experienced snow over the past night. From just a trace of snow flurries at Trenton the snowfall mounted from one inch recorded at Tweed, through an inch and a half at Bancroft, up to three inches at Dacre and Denbigh. The latter collection service of the Department of Lands and Forests at Tweed reports.

Temperatures throughout the area were around the degree Fahrenheit with no trace of frost. The mercury dipped last night, however, with a low of 33 degrees predicted for Kilmarnock, although 32 degrees is predicted for the Bay of Quinte district.

To date in the Belleville area the mean temperature for the month of May is one degree slightly above the 25-year average, 53.3 degrees, as compared with 52.3 degrees. The monthly mean is about seven degrees below that for 1960, however.

Fire Destroys Trailer Home In Frankford

FRANKFORD — The trailer home of Mr. and Mrs. Thompkins on Park Street was totally destroyed by fire here this morning at about 9:30 o'clock when Thompkins, an elderly man who lives alone, heard the fire singed by the fire, which apparently started from an overheated gas pipe.

The Frankford fire department answered the alarm but were able to do little other than to protect nearby buildings from the flames. Fire Chief Mervin Defoe said that although the trailer and its contents were a total loss it was not possible to give an immediate estimate of the amount of damage incurred. It was not known whether Mr. Thompkin's trailer was covered by insurance.

Fraser Says New Federal Building May Come in '62

TRENTON—Councillor D. R. Fraser, speaking to members of the Kiwanis Club last night, said there was every indication that the federal government would acquire land for a new federal building in Trenton this year and that the building would be constructed in 1962.

He said that two sites for the building were being considered by federal authorities. Under consideration, he said, is the property owned by Dr. J. W. Kelsey on Dundas Street, West, and the property at the corner of Queen and King Streets, on which Cambridge Hall now stands. The latter is owned by the Anglican parish of St. George's Church. Town council has had verbal assurance from this church body that Trenton will have a new post office within a 24-month period, said Councillor Fraser.

He also said that council had been in touch with Ottawa on plans to reconstruct and repave Dundas Street, and the town's sidewalks. He said that the ratepayers did not have the right to vote on the sidewalk question but that council would be necessary to cope with the increased traffic usually in the educational field, for the next five years. He added that while council had voted to go ahead with plans for the construction of a new central fire hall, he thought the decision might be reconsidered considering the town's immediate economic needs. He said that it is unlikely at the present necessary to man a new hall if would, since the decision about going ahead with plans to construct the hall. Councillor Fraser said that he was not be afraid to predict that the town's tax rate would take a five-mill jump in 1962.

Councillor Fraser said that council had the services of a street sweeper and that from next Tuesday on all streets should be cleaner. The downtown area will be swept three times a week, while residential streets will come in for periodic sweeping.

$10,000 SURVEY

Commenting on the current traffic survey being carried out in town by A. D. Margison and Associates, he said that the survey would cost $10,000, but that the province would pay $5,000 of the fee. The firm will make recommendations to the traffic committee. Some traffic may be rerouted and parking facilities changed. Once the traffic survey has been completed, the provincial government may agree to absorbing one-third of the cost of a complete repaving program for the town. This would cost some $600,000, said the councillor.

Councillor Fraser said that the Sidney Street overhead crossing should be started by July. Originally this work was planned to come under the winter works program, but council applied to the federal government for an alternate arrangement whereby the government pays 18 per cent of the cost of installation. A sewer on Front Street will be installed under the same arrangement. The Sidney Street sewer installation will make possible the commencement of work on the federal-provincial government sponsored sub-division on North Street. This work should commence by 1962. The subdivision will provide 300 additional homes.

Councillor Fraser said that evidence of inefficiency on the part of former engineering departments, regarding sewer and storm sewer installations on Division Street, had been uncovered by the work which is now going on there at the present time. He said that the obvious conclusion was that it paid the town to engage a qualified engineer at what the ratepayer might consider a high salary.

The councillor said that it was quite evident that the two-year term for mayor and councillors, instituted by the town last year, was paying off. He said that it cost the town money to "educate" councillors to make intelligent decisions.

Kiwanians Will Clear Brush At Waupoos

TRENTON — Reporting on activities in the boys' and girls' committee of the Kiwanis Club, at last night's meeting, Geoffrey Robinson said that arrangements had been made for club members to clear out underbrush at the Girl Guide camp at Waupoos, on June 4. The work, which also involves a cleanup out to the camp through the underbrush, will take several sessions.

Mr. Robinson said that up-to-date lists of boys and girls eligible to attend the Boys' Camp Army camp at Roblin Lake, were being prepared.

The Kiwanis Bicycle Road-eo will be held in the Community gardens on June 9.

Mr. Robinson also reported that two Elmer flags had been taken down from elementary schools this morning. No fires or accidents in which school children were involved. One flag will be replaced next week.

Eight high school students were entertained at dinner by the club during the month and by the firemen on a tour of the Erie Resistor plant at Picton. Other arrangements are being made for interested students and one Queen's University student to work at the plant this summer.

The Kiwanis Club has given $100 to the Trenton Memorial Hospital for the town's grade 1 and 2 student safety committee. The committee will continue to operate.

Fire chairmen reporting included Walter Lachine, agriculture; Norman Campey, church service; Ron Jeffery, vocational guidance; and Ted Parker, inter-club activity.

South Africa's Withdrawal Was Inevitable

TRENTON — Speaking to members of the Lions Club last night, Angus Cranston of the Bata Shoe Company of Canada, who lived for a number of years in South Africa, said that the withdrawal of the Union of South Africa from the British commonwealth was inevitable. He said that the decision had represented interference with the country's racial policies by other commonwealth nations.

Mr. Cranston said that apartheid was not a new thing in South Africa, and that whites and blacks generally agreed that separation in certain areas was a good thing. Blacks are being trained to govern their own areas of the country in a manner consistent with their own customs and traditions. He said that a great deal of the trouble in South Africa was caused by politicians of other nations, and that the country had withdrawn from the commonwealth to vindicate its national honor, feeling that other members of the commonwealth were "meddling in its domestic affairs."

Little Girl Fatally Hurt By Truck

TRENTON — Two-year-old Mary Lynn Loucks of 29 Weeks Ave. died last night in Kingston General Hospital, where she had been taken by ambulance following the accident at the corner of Weeks and Byron Street.

At 3.30 p.m. yesterday, the child was playing with children several blocks from her home when she was struck by a panel truck police said was driven by Jodfre LaFleur, 45, of Trenton. She was taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital and later removed to the Kingston hospital.

The child was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Edward Loucks.

Sgt. Bruce Westfall of the Trenton police department is in charge of the investigation.

The accident occurred within a block of the scene of an accident in which four-year-old Timothy Fowler died in October 1960.

Coroner Dr. J. V. Byrne of Trenton said this morning that he would not know if an inquest would be held until after he had consulted with the Crown Attorney next Tuesday. Dr. Byrne said that the child suffered multiple fractures, including a skull fracture.

Remove Tanker

TRENTON — A CNR tanker was removed from the Trent Canal yesterday after its cargo of gasoline was burned by wrecking crews. Earlier three tankers were pulled out of the area of Lock No. 1. The canal is open to traffic. Thirty-four cars of an eastbound CNR freight train were derailed last week in the bridge spanning the Trent River.

In New York, C.O.R.E. announced it was dispatching field secretaries to New Orleans, Jackson and Montgomery. A spokesman said the C.O.R.E. executives would assist in preparing additional attempts to crack segregation barriers.

Senator James Eastland (Dem., Miss.) charged in the Senate Thursday that "outside freedom Riders" were planned in Europe and "masterminded" by C.O.R.E. He said they were designed to embarrass President Kennedy on the eve of his visit at Vienna with Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

CYPRUS CONNECTION

The senator charged that some of the top echelon of C.O.R.E. are persons with long records of association with Communist forces.

Eastland also attacked United Auto Workers Union President Walter Reuther, whom he said was one of several union chieftains on C.O.R.E.'s "directorate."

The AFL-CIO industrial union president headed the Reuther Thursday donated $5,000 to C.O.R.E. to help defray "Freedom Rider" expenses.

OSD Girl Guides Presented With First Class Badges By Ontario Commissioner

Yesterday was a red letter day for the ninety-two Guides and Brownies of the Ontario School for the Deaf occasioned by the presence of Mrs. B. Clysdale, Ontario Girl Guide Commissioner. Mrs. Clysdale graciously consented to visit the school to present first class badges to eight Guides and girls in the history of the O.S.D. Guide Company to complete the first class test.

Accompanying Mrs. Clysdale were Mrs. A. McLean Haig, Quinte Area Commissioner, Mrs. D. Sparrow, Belleville District Commissioner, and Mrs. R. Settle, Belleville West District Commissioner. Other guests were Mrs. T. Granam and Mrs. B. Moore, housemothers and members of the Belleville Weo Local Association and Miss Dorothy Cooper, Assistant Superintendent of the O.S.D.

Mrs. Clysdale began her visit with the Brownies of Pack 10, with Brown Owl, Miss L. Sibanis, and Tawny Owls Miss J. Anglin and Miss D. Dennis; and Pack 11, with Brown Owl Miss J. Fox and Tawny Owls Miss S. Cockburn and Miss R. Wilson. The brief Brownie meeting was held on the Junior School lawn, and opened as is customary, with the Brownies excitedly "seeking" Brown Owl from her sleep under the Toadstool, before they proceeded with their Patsy Ring and Sit songs. Mrs. Clysdale was officially welcomed by the Pack with an enthusiastic Grand Howl. There followed games, enjoyed by Brownies and visitors alike in the pleasant open air, and finally the Brownie closing.

At the Guide hall, two Guide Companies eagerly awaited the visitors — Company 6, with Captain Gail Williamson, and Lieutenants Mrs. E. E. Lewis and Miss P. Hanley; and Company 10 with Captain Mrs. W. J. Ryan, and Lieutenants Miss J. Rose and Miss J. Van Bastel. The Guide meeting opened with Roll Call and Horseshoe formation, and Color raising. Company Leader Jean Shaw led the company in repeating the Guide Promise, and Miss Clysdale spoke briefly of her happiness in visiting the Guides and complimented them on their enthusiasm and good appearance. She then proceeded with the highlight of the meeting - the presentation of First Class Badges to the first O.S.D. Guides to complete this important test - Annabelle Cronk, Mary Nicksy, Judy Ann Wilson, Spark, Ann Todd, Patsy Trask, Gail Williamson and Judy Ann Wilson. Mrs. Clysdale also presented Religion and Life Blems to Susan Cooper, Ruth Guy, Margaret Jane Gregg, Joan Bestvik, June Plaks, Carol Macleod, Lillone Lortie, Norma Wojcik and Raymonde LeBrun.

Mrs. A. McLean Haig, Quinte Area Commissioner, next presented Athlete Badges to Jackie House, Raymonde LeBrun, Barbara Caron, Susan Cooper, Carol MacLeod, Margaret Jane Gregg, Joan Bestvik, June Plaks, Lillone Lortie, Patsy Trask, Annabelle Cronk and Mary Nicksy of the 6th Belleville, and to Anita Ville, Ann Tye, Sharon Duffin, Dale Chaposki, Janice Bancarz, Marilyn Harrison, Donna Burford and Linda Hagen of the 10th Belleville. Mrs. Haig also presented Gymnast badges to Susan Cooper and Dale Bancarz.

Mrs. D. Siewart, Belleville Division Commissioner, presented Keep Fit badges to Carol MacLeod, Raymonde LeBrun, Susan Cooper, Gail Williamson, Patsy Trask, Judy Ann Wilson, Annabelle Cronk and Mary Nicksy of the 6th Company, and to Anita Ville, Sharon Duffin, Diane Chapeski, Angela Hagen, Janice Bancarz and Donna Burford of the 10th Company, and a Second Class badge to Norma Wojcik of the 6th Company.

Mrs. R. Settle, District Commissioner for Belleville West presented Health badges to Annabelle Cronk, Mary Nicksy, Jean Shaw, Beth Spark, Susan Cooper, Carol MacLeod, Gail Williamson, Norma Wojcik and Ann Todd of Company 6.

The presentations completed, senior Guides then came acted out a skit on the life of Lord Baden-Powell, founder of Guides and Scouts. This skit had been developed by the Pack to teach the history of Guiding, one of the more difficult parts of the First Class test for deaf Guides, and although done with a minimum of props and costume, was delightfully entertaining as well as instructive.

All too soon the allotted time passed, and the Guide meeting was brought to a close with Taps. It will be a meeting long remembered for the warmth and enthusiasm of Mrs. Clysdale, whose presence made memorable the happiness of the Guides who attained First Class by prodigious effort, both of their own, and of their Guiders, who work so long and tirelessly to present the full Guide program out at the Ontario School for the Deaf.

Prior to the afternoon activities at the O.S.D., Mrs. Clysdale was the guest of the Quinte Area Girl Guides at a luncheon held at Hotel Quinte. Those attending from Belleville included Mrs. M. E. Branscombe, the beloved 'Grandmother' of Belleville Gulding, who gave Guiding its excellent beginnings here years ago; Mrs. A. Lawrence Gray; Mrs. Eva Baker, Quinte Area Camp adviser; Mrs. M. Moore, Quinte Area chairman of training; Mrs. R. Settle, Belleville, Quinte Area public relations chairman; Division Commissioners Mrs. D. Ferguson, Mrs. W. D. McArthur, Mrs. C. R. Johnston and Mrs. D. Siewart, and District Commissioners Mrs. H. T. Floyd, Mrs. B. R. Hamblin, Mrs. T. S. Hay, Mrs. D. C. McAvlier, Mrs. R. Settle, Mrs. G. Smith and Mrs. J. A. Wright.

The problems of setting up towers and supply lines of all kinds, served by tractors, helicopters, airplanes, scows, etc. and to maintain same for the people of Canada.

Archie Grant, president of the Toronto Club, explained the details of the annual meeting for the retired employees to be held in Barrie on June 6th, this being the 17th annual dinner held there. CARS Branch Meets at Y

The May meeting of Quinte Branch of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society was held at the YMCA this week. Miss Margaret Miller, physiotherapist, reported that her case load is steadily increasing after the period when the branch had been without a physiotherapist. She expects that early in the fall a treatment room will be ready at the Picton hospital. This new facility will make her work with patients in the Prince Edward district easier and more efficient. The Society is proud of the way Miss Miller, who is a native of Lougthier, Mr. Fred McGraw, retired chief claims agent, will be the guest speaker at the dinner.

Mrs. Lionel Train, recently retired chief despatcher at Belleville with over 30 years of service, was present, it being his first meeting since retirement. Mr. Bing Takes A Swing

Rudolph Bing, the general manager of the New York Metropolitan Opera Company, is not an individual with a reputation for timidity. Nevertheless, Mr. Bing's battles with prima donnas and their masculine equivalents may not have adequately prepared him for the storm which may break around his ears as the result of his most recent pronouncement. In Detroit he revealed that he had "told our friends in Atlanta and Dallas that we can no longer afford to play to segregated audiences."

Mr. Bing, we are afraid, is guilty of some slight exaggeration. There is, alas, no sign that the majority of citizens of the United States, or indeed of Canada, are so wrought up over the indignities heaped on the Negroes by Jim Crow laws in the southern states that they are prepared to penalize the Met, or any other organization, which when south of the Mason-Dixon line abides by the old adage of "when in Rome, do as the Romans do."

The Met, from the financial standpoint, could easily "afford" to continue to play to segregated audiences in the south. It might, perhaps, meet with some contract difficulties with singers who skins are colored, but it could, we suspect, survive such a controversy with relative ease.

The plain truth seems to be that Mr. Bing, a forthright individual, is not doing what he is forced to do but is setting out to do what, to him, appears proper and just.

We would be among the last to assail any man for such a stand and we applaud, rather than deplore, Mr. Bing's pronouncement. If it strikes us that if there were more men and women like Mr. Bing's stamp of character and fibre, tremendous economic pressure could be brought upon the South's white segregationists, without at any time exposing any person to their malice and penchant for violent reprisals.

The path to which Mr. Bing has pointed may not be an heroic one as that followed by the riders in Freedom Riders, but it might very well prove much more effective, if only there were enough people prepared to follow it.

We doubt, though, whether there are. For instance, among those Canadians who pay vigorous lip service to the cause of integration there must be many who annually visit Florida during the winter months. How many of those will stay home until Florida wipes away all traces of segregation?

The unfortunate truth is that, in the Southern States as in many other parts of the globe, those who seek freedom are going to have to fight for it, and pay a price in their own blood.

At best, those who think like Mr. Bing can do not more than lend them somewhat feeble assistance in the field of social and economic pressure, but the value of such allies in boosting morale amongst those "on active service" in the South should not be overlooked or under-estimated.

Responsibility of Citizen Comes First

The current furor at Queen's Park over possible evidence existing which would prove that a cabinet minister is in cahoots with organised crime is considerable to say the least. The government has, as is proper, requested that the opposition parties, which claim to have this evidence, turn it over to the police.

The opposition, on the other hand, claim that this is just a government manoeuvre so that any evidence of such activity may be covered up. Many people disagree on this. If a citizen, and this applies to our representatives even though a few may consider themselves to be a class apart from all others, comes upon evidence of a crime either before the fact or after the fact, it is his responsibility as a citizen to make this evidence available to the police.

If the opposition really has such evidence they have already tarried overlong in doing this. If their tardiness is occasioned by a fear of official shilly-shallying or covering up of the facts they can protect the public's interest, for which they are dually responsible both as citizens and elected representatives. There is no reason why the evidence cannot be made public at the same time it is presented to the police.

Public opinion in the province would force an investigation if such "were warranted by evidence made public.

I now have a new theory on what happened to the snakes when St. Patrick drove them out of Ireland. They all came back to New York and became judges.—Playwright Brendan Behan, barred by a New York justice from marching in the St. Patrick's Day parade.

Letter To The Editor

Fears Fluoridation Will Bring Disease

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

Councils has approved plans to have our present water supply fluoridated.

I question very strongly this procedure on the grounds that I have been reading in different periodicals the opposition to this very thing. One periodical in particular claims that a new disease is appearing throughout the land. It is poisoning from drinking artificially fluoridated water. The symptoms were described in a radio address by G.L. Waldbott, MD, FACP, an address that should arouse the people up to the insidious nature of this high pressure propaganda for fluoridation.

Dr. Waldbott's findings are the result of a study of eighteen cases of this previously unknown disease. It is characterized by "rheumatic stiffness of the spine, brain damage, lack of control of arms and legs, certain stomach disturbances and failing eyesight.

The doctor declares that leading specialists could find no cause for the symptoms in their eighteen patients. Yet in every case, elimination of fluoridated water cured the disease completely. In foreign medical literature similar symptoms are described and the connection to fluorine poisoning. One of these says this problem may be yours. The high pressure people may fast talk your city fathers into fluoridating your own water supply. Should this legislation be some day rammed down the throat of your community, you will be lucky to have a well to tap your property. If not, you'd better start digging unless you want to end up with a tuberculosis or a softening of the brain.

Fluoridation of our community water system can well become their (the Reds') most deadly weapon for our sure physical and mental destruction. When the hour marked on their program strikes it can be their most potent weapon for quick liquidation — under the pretexts of healthy teeth for children.

Nobody will deny that among the advocates of fluoridation are to be found many sincere people. Nobody will deny the right of any individual to campaign for fluoridated water if he believes it to be beneficial. But we remind them of another legendary character who was right and we pray that his epitaph may not one day be theirs as well as ours.

"Here lies the body of William J.
Who died maintaining his right of way
He was right—dead right as he passed along
But he's just as dead as if he'd been wrong."

Tory Really Proud Title

Brantford Expositor

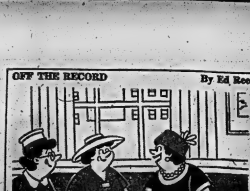
Having regard for the facts of political life in Great Britain, the next edition of The Concise Oxford Dictionary should (and doubtless will) make certain revised corrections in its definition of "Tory".

For a great many people, "Tory" has always been a political term of abuse. The ignorant, the envious and the malicious, they say, who have used the term as one of disdain or opprobrium.

But the word didn't get off to a particularly auspicious start. It was an Irish name from "toraighe" (meaning pursuer) which became misapplied and Irish outlaws came to be outlaws or robbers. (One can appreciate with what glee the opposite Whigs or Grits, now known socially as Liberals, pounced upon the Tories).

But it achieved respectability when it came to mean those who opposed the exclusion of the Duke of York (later James II), favored the royal Stuarts for a long time, but finally gave allegiance to King George the Third, in the American Colonies at the time of the Revolution, Tories were those, among them our United Empire Loyalists, who opposed the rebels.

The Concise Oxford is lamentably inadequate when it omits the latter reference but makes a point of saying that the "stories" (to whom it does not even give the courtesy of a capital letter!) "opposed the Reform Bill of 1832" and were succeeded by the Conservatives.



Well, history has come full circle.

Here present Prime Minister of the United Kingdom, Mr. Harold Macmillan, is an unabashed Tory, He had little but contempt for the rump-sitting Baldwinites the called them 'second-class browers and company promoters'!, and he had still less respect for the Neville Chamberlainites and their Munich muddle about. It is fitting as to them let it be said, they inherited from the short-sighted wisdom of the Baldwin triumph.

Macmillan was and is of the same strong company as Sir Winston Churchill and Sir Anthony Eden, whom he succeeded. They and others, to dissociate themselves from those who, they feel, brought conservatism into some compromise, have revived the label "Tory".

It seems it is a good thing. "Tory" is a newspaper headline writer's joy, whereas "Conservative" is hard to fit and preserve us! our Canadian "Progressive Conservative" is so jug-handled that it usually ends up, even in official Hansard, as "Progressive" which could mean police constable (no offence to the latter) or price controller or polywog eastner.

To his immense credit, after he was thrown out of office by Hon. George Drew tried to get rid of the ridiculous "Progressive" label, but Conservative it had to be. John Bracken, who, like young Lochinvar, came out of the West (and went back, too). In this Mr. Drew was not successful. His successor, Prime Minister Diefenbaker, has been so occupied with other things, such as the Bill of Rights, that he hasn't got around to that P.C. tag yet. But let's hope he soon will.

"I always say if you can't find something nice to say about a person - - - that's the person to talk about."

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

May 26th, 1941.

In the presence of Commissioner Mrs. L. B. Riggs and Mrs. M. E. Branscombe and a full complement of the company, three leaders of the Seventh Belleville Company, Girl Guides, the Misses Dorothy Lucas, Rita Coleman and Ruth Peddar will be dedicated officially at a special ceremony at Centre Street Mission Hall. Dedication ceremonies will be performed by Captain Audrey Licence, commanding officer of the troop, assisted by Lieut. Margaret Forster. Following the dedication ceremonies, six new members of the company will be enrolled.

Work in refitting and preparing the former Robb Organ Company buildings in the northwest part of the city and which have been leased to the Bristol Aircraft Corporation of Canada, Ltd., for its new Canadian subsidiary for the Aircraft Products Company is going along satisfactorily, it was learned today. The new plant which is expected to go into production sometime in July or will manufacture the new plastic veneer parts for airplanes. As soon as the buildings are ready for occupancy, boilers and machinery installed and other machinery will be installed.

With a scarcity of labor existing in the Belleville area, laborers are beginning to be critical of the wages they accept, according to Mr. W. D. Ross, superintendent of the local Employment Service. This is in direct contrast to the situation prevalent a few years ago, when the local office was deluged with men willing to accept almost any kind of employment.

30 YEARS AGO

St. Paul's Church in Foster Ward, which is part of St. Thomas' Parish is undergoing alterations and repairs. The building will be stuccoed and the interior will be decorated, electric fixtures will also be installed. The work is being done free of all charge by a man of experience in such matters, living in the vicinity. Their co-operation is highly commendable.

STRENGTH for the DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

DAY BY DAY

"And as ye go, preach . . ." (Matt. 10:7).

It was with this injunction that Jesus sent forth certain of His disciples. They probably little realized that these simple words would ring down across the ages to inspire untold multitudes of Christian believers. As we go forth into life, we are to preach. This does not mean that we are to prepare sermons (save those who are ordained and set aside to do so), or waylay our friends on all occasions and talk religion to them. It does not mean that we are to make pests of ourselves by continually harping on our chief interest, our religious faith, and telling others about it.

"And as ye go, preach . . ." Every believing Christian as he goes through life should preach — that is, set forth a message of Christian goodness and hope that others may see and lay hold on unto new and better life.

"As ye go, preach . . ." Not by word of mouth alone, but by the silent influence of a life lived in accordance with the principles of the Gospel of Christ. Not by the spoken word alone, but by the unspoken word of a life that is in harmony with the Spirit of God. Not by the preaching of the lips alone, but by the preaching of the life.

"As ye go, preach . . ." Inquest Testimony Deals With Role of Williamson In McNevin Kidnap Case

At least another 12 witnesses are still expected to take the stand before the inquiry into the kidnapping death of 10-year-old Tommy McNevin continues at the Hastings County Courthouse.

The coroner's inquest into the death of the young Bellville boy commenced Thursday morning before Coroner Dr. Donald Warren of Hamilton with up to 37 witnesses expected to give testimony. Twenty witnesses were called yesterday and the hearing is expected to last at least until Friday afternoon.

The McNevin boy disappeared March 20th when he left home after school to play hockey. He was not seen alive again by his family.

Two days later provincial police found the boy's body trussed to a tree in a lonely swamp along a Sidney township sideroad eight miles northwest of the city. Police said the boy died of exposure.

BOY'S FATHER HEARD

The coroner's jury heard testimony from the boy's father, a police inspector and Mrs. Warren Williamson, widow of a Warren Williamson.

Witnesses on the Thursday hearing included Mr. and Mrs. Donald McNevin, parents of the dead boy, their two sons, Donald Jr. 30, and Peter 17, and Mrs. Williamson, widow of Warren Williamson, who appeared as intermediary in the $25,000 ransom demand from the McNevin family.

On the second day following the kidnapping, Mr. Williamson committed suicide by shooting himself in the basement of his home.

NOTE NOT RELEASED

Coroner's suicide note found beside the body have not been released by police but it was stated the note did not associate him with the kidnapping.

During her testimony Mrs. Williamson told of uneasiness on the part of her husband the day following the kidnapping. That evening at supper she said her husband had asked not to be disturbed while he made a telephone call to the kitchen.

Later, while putting her daughter to bed she heard a shot and went to the basement to find her husband dead.

Yesterday's testimony dealt almost entirely with Mr. Williamson's part as intermediary in the kidnap death with questioning centering around ransom notes which he said he had found in his car. Close to the inquiry was also made into the Williamson family finances but Mrs. Williamson told the inquiry she had noticed no differences.

However, the premiums on a life insurance carried by Mr. Williamson had been allowed to lapse last fall.

HAD DRAWING ACCOUNT

Also questioned by police officials of the T. and W. Products, the firm of which Mr. Williamson was a member, revealed that Mr. Williamson had shown some reluctance to embark on a direct selling program instituted in March of this year.

Until that time Mr. Williamson had been paid on a drawing basis ranging from $100 to $200 per week.

As the first afternoon witness Donald McNevin, father of the dead boy, told of Mr. Williamson coming to his home on the Tuesday morning following the boy's disappearance on the Monday evening. He had found a ransom demand which he said he found in his car.

There had been difficulty in deciphering the notes and the witness said that Williamson proved to be of little assistance in making them out. Mr. McNevin's two sons, and Mrs. Mr. Williamson appeared very nervous.

An address 241 Ann Street was referred to in one of the ransom notes received by Mr. McNevin. However, when the McNevin family endeavored to learn the names of persons living in that area Mr. Williamson said he knew no one on that street.

Later testimony by Lewis Andrews, resident of the Ann Street area referred to revealed Mr. Williamson had delivered commission cards at his home while a scouting official also living nearby and his witness said it was reasonable to expect Mr. Williamson had also visited this man.

RELATED STORY

Mrs. Williamson recounted Mr. Williamson's story of having picked up his son Bridge Street on the previous afternoon when the boy had left school early to play a hockey game. Mr. Williamson had said when he learned the game was in Point Anne he had driven the boy back to Charles and Bridge Street so he would not miss his ride.

During her testimony, Mrs. Williamson said her husband had not come home until after 6 o'clock on the Thursday evening giving as the reason that he had been mailing a parcel to the United States.

Tuesday morning, however, at the McNevin home, Mrs. Williamson had made no mention of the parcel, but said after letting the McNevin boy out of the car, had gone briefly to the Williamson home.

Peter McNevin identified a hockey stick which he said was the one Tommy had taken away with him when he left home to play hockey.

GIVEN MUSIC LESSON

Miss Gertrude Simmons, Point Anne music teacher, said she had given Tommy a piano lesson at the McNevin home from 3:30 to 4:00 on the Monday afternoon after he came home from school.

Donald Green, age 10, the last witness, said he was waiting for Tommy McNevin at the corner of Bridge and Charles Streets, but that he saw Tommy McNevin walking toward a car but could not identify the man.

Leonard Coughlin, Bell Telephone cable splicer, also saw Tommy McNevin at the corner of Charles and Bridge Sts. on March 20th.

Philip Drum, CNR brakeman, said the boy had disappeared as he was crossing the tracks at the same corner about 4.35.

Provincial Constable Donald Master with Williamson at Tabersgale, said he did not hear Mr. Williamson say he had never called the McNevin home regarding a hockey game.

MADE LIMITED COMPANY

Robert Toushie, co-partner with Mr. Williamson and Mr. and W. Products Ltd., said Mr. Williamson had a representation of the company in June of last year when it was made a limited company.

Besides Mr. Toushie and Mr. Williamson, other executives of the firm were, Cliff Shappee, secretary-treasurer, and shareholders Charles Lawder and L. F. Radonicich, both Belleville residents.

He said the company had run into difficulties in some areas, but that future prospects were bright.

During March of this year sales districts had been set up in Ottawa but Williamson told the inquiry she had noticed no differences.

However, the premiums on a life insurance carried by Mr. Williamson had been allowed to lapse last fall.

HAD DRAWING ACCOUNT

Also questioned by police officials of the T. and W. Products, the firm of which Mr. Williamson was a member, revealed that Mr. Williamson had shown some reluctance to embark on a direct selling program instituted in March of this year.

Until that time Mr. Williamson had been paid on a drawing basis ranging from $100 to $200 per week.

ADDRESSES DELEGATES

Mrs. Lymburner addressed the meeting on the theme, "Unhomes we manage are the backbone of our community. Without good homes everything else is ideas. The beginning of the W. I. in Stony Creek 65 years ago showed the power of an idea, the power of one woman. The power of an individual who can produce a good idea of leadership. Don't be selfish with ideas, give them to others."

She said the purpose of the conference is to get people of different provinces to know each other. There is a great need to know people in other countries and through the medium of communications the world is getting smaller. Sometimes a failure can be one's greatest success and often out of failures one learns the greatest lesson and is able to build a stronger foundation for the future. She said to gear programs to modern times but never to lose sight of the Women's Institute objectives of helping to discover and develop leaders and make better and happier citizens.

Miss Helen McKercher, director of Home Economics Service, Department of Agriculture spoke briefly. She said 1700 women took the course, "Ways to Live." During the past year ten new Institutes were organized, 8 were active and 1 junior.

On Friday morning Mr. Stephen Dewdney, director of the Citizenship division for community organizations, Department of Education spoke to the delegates on "citizenship in a democratic world". He pointed out that as an Institute job is a citizenship job as the women are expected to improve things in their organization as well as their community.

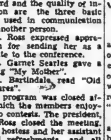
In outlining the various forms of education from earliest times to the present, he compared the rights of the individual in each. In the organizations of today, people can learn the processes of democracy, therefore the organizations are like the schools of democratic citizenship.

POWER OF COMMUNICATION

Friday afternoon Professor Earl Heasman, Department of Extension Education O.A.C. gave an address on communication problems.

He told delegates that the public often don't get what it wishes and that which has already been established in their minds. "Communication must be a two-way affair", he said. "The thought must reach from the speaker to the listener and the receiver must then be able to understand what is being said.

Facial expression, the spoken word and the quality of intonation are the three basic forms used in communication with another person.



Mrs. Ross expressed appreciation for having the to be a delegate to the conference.

Mrs. Garnet Searles gave a reading "An Mother".

After registering on Wednesday afternoon, the delegates enjoyed a tour of the College and visited the Institute's institute.

Mrs. L. G. Lymburner, president of the F.W.I.O., presided at the Thursday morning session. One of the challenge is great in modern times for leaders of organizations, especially women, because Mrs. Williams asked to do more things and to do many more things so that they might devote more time for the betterment of their communities. The slogan of today do not work alone, but search out the abilities of those around them and develop that ability and enlist that person's support in the work they are doing.

WELCOMES DELEGATES

'Hope of the Future' Talk At WMS 50th Anniversary

Carmel W.M.S. held its 50th anniversary recently, with the president, Mrs. S. Homan, and Miss Marguerite Hicks, vice-president, greeting the guests.

The church was decorated for the occasion with yellow and blue chrysanthemums and gladioli and the WMS crest.

Miss Ruth Brintnell presided at the meeting. Mrs. R. Homan opened the worship service with a hymn.

Mrs. S. Homan welcomed all who had come to the anniversary and paid tribute to those women who started this auxiliary 50 years ago. She welcomed the members, both past and present, and all visitors and well wishers who had come to commemorate this occasion.

The two lovely bouquets at the altar were presented in memory of the late Mrs. C. Reid by her granddaughter, Mrs. Don Williams of Belleville, and in memory of the late Mrs. Frank Hicks by her family.

PRESIDENT'S REMARKS

Mrs. Homan said: "If we were to attempt to look ahead 50 years it would seem a long, long time, and we would have to be a real prophet to see what kind of a world it would be then, but will not be here then. However, there are those present here today who can look back 50 years and while it is a long time, memory spans the years."

She went on to say: "We pray that we may always remember the things that are helpful and constructive and worth while and that pausing on and so tonight we honor those who have gone before and laid the foundations for the work of the WMS in this congregation.

"We strive with God's help to keep alive that missionary spirit and support those who have gone forth in His name."

"We look to the future and as we do so we can think of no better way than to point out to us by the late King George VI, in his memorable Christmas broadcast when he said, 'Put your hand in the hand of God and it shall be to you better than the light and safer than the known way'."

Miss Brintnell read from the Scripture from Corinthians 1, chapter 13, and Mrs. Percy Reynolds gave the meditation on the Scripture, Mrs. John Homan feddlers the address.

Successful Living

By Doris Clark

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Should Say 'Thanks'

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—I am being married next month on a shoe string. My wife and I will both be working until we can get some of the things we need.

A friend of my mother's has generously offered us her summer cottage in the Laurentians for our honeymoon. It is a very quiet spot on the edge of a lake. We will have to chop wood, stoke fires, haul water and do all our own housekeeping. This is such a grand chance for both of us that I know we will love it.

The trouble is, how can I pay for such a thing? Even if I had the money, she wouldn't accept it. I feel embarrassed, even as I feel grateful.—GEORGE.

DEAR GEORGIE:—Lucky you! Many a pampered society girl would give her eye teeth for the kind of fun you are going to have—if she only knew it!

Pay for it in spoken thanks and thoughtful care of the cottage. In postcards written while you are there, telling how you are enjoying it. Then be observant enough to notice something the cottage lacks and supply it. Nothing grand—that's not the idea.

Maybe you could make something like a deluxe wood box, or supply a piece or two of barbecue equipment, or sporty floating coffee mugs. Thoughtfulness is in the appropriate gift—which takes thought more than money.

DEAR DORIS:—My aged father-in-law is staying with us. We all know that, due to his age, and present working opportunities, he will never work again.

Although I now have the space and my children are a little older, I intensely dislike having him, even though he is very thoughtful and does not interfere. It's just that I have an audience watching the rearing of my children and hearing everything that my husband and I say or do, so that I never seem to relax at all.

Must I go on like this? My spiritual adviser simply said that those who bear the crosses God sends them will be blessed. Will the strain it puts upon me affect my health and the well-being of my family? How does one say to a nice person, "I do not want you here?"—BURDENED.

DEAR BURDENED:—You can't tell him you don't want him. Yet the strain you are under can affect your whole family.

He minds your business because he has none of his own. This provides one clue to a solution. The curse of old age is inactivity, so provide him with things to do.

Could you set up a work bench in the basement where he could be happily engaged in carpentry or painting? What about a full-sized gardening project for the summer? Then for bad weather, bounce individual television set in his room. He might appreciate diversion away from noisy children more than you know.

The other way is to find a home for him where other aged people are boarded and have a chance to get together. We all need the friendship of contemporaries. You may at first reject this, but it bears consideration.

In either case the problem calls for a conference between you, your husband and your father-in-law; not on the basis of "We don't want you," but that "we must do what is best for us all."

DEAR DORIS:—My husband died two years ago, leaving me a small regular pension to live on. I can't live on it, but cannot afford any extras. Never a meal and a show with my friends; never a trip, even a short one. No new clothes.

I think I could be much happier if I had a job. I would have some extra money for things and the time would pass more quickly. But I am 56. Do you think I have a chance? —PENNILESS.

DEAR PENNILESS:—You are not so penniless as some widows I know! Some have been forced to take work, any old thing, to keep the cash coming in.

You can choose, and this not at all hopeless. There are several ways of going about it. If you are a typist, you could rent a typewriter and advertise for copy work. If you like babies, you could try your hand at baby sitting. If you can cook, you could start baking superdooper cookies in your own home and offering them to a friend or two. It is amazing how the news gets around when there's a new caterer in the neighborhood.

For ideas, talk to the women's division at your local branch of the National Employment Service. And don't discourage easily. Stick-to-it-iveness is what you'll need.

(Doris Clark will be glad to help you with your problems. Write to her care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Pastor, Wife Feted on 40th Anniversary

MARMORA — The congregations of Marmora and Beaver Creek Free Methodist Church met on Wednesday evening to pay tribute to their pastor and his wife, the Rev. and Mrs. Percy O. Miller on their 40th wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Russell Wells opened their spacious home for the assembly of over 100.

Relatives and friends were present from Cordova, Campbellford, Hagaman, Peterboro, ough, Picton, Perth, and Vencher.

Mrs. Roscoe of Cordova and Mrs. Riddall of Campbellford poured tea. The table was appointed in damask and centred with a 3-tier wedding cake made by Mrs. Stewart Hardy.

The Rev. N. Roscoe, the Rev. Kay and the Rev. Riddall of Campbellford each spoke of Mr. and Mrs. Miller's fulfillment of their call to duty in the ministry of the church.

Mrs. Everett Barrons read an address which took the form of "This is Your Life." This showed that Mr. Miller had moved to Illinois from Picton with his family and as a youth, he was an adept horse trainer on ranches. After serving overseas in World War I he returned to Picton and there married Miss Gladys Eaton and studied for the ministry. Mrs. Miller is a fluent speaker and often takes the service for her husband.

They were presented with a purse of money, a wagon and a gilding lawn chair, from the congregations.

Major Percy J. Gray on behalf of Marmora Branch Canadian Legion brought greetings to Mr. and Mrs. Miller and presented them with a cheque. Mr. Miller was past Pres. of Marmora Legion for several years.

Several other gifts were received from relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller have two children, a son Kenneth Miller, Brisbane and a daughter, Mrs. Wesley (Lois) Martin, Barrie and four grandchildren.

CGIT Entertains WMS, E.A. A.A. at Affiliation Presentations

WELLINGTON — Following the regular meeting of the C.G.I.T. in the United Church Sunday School rooms Tuesday evening, they entertained the W.M.S., Evening Auxiliary and Afternoon Auxiliary, and their mothers.

This meeting opened with their purpose, motto and a hymn. The president, Carol Allison, gave quotes a hearty welcome. A sing-song followed, accompanied by Mrs. Jack McNeill.

Six girls, Carol Allison, Velma Vanderwater, Connie Boyce, Jane Singleton, Rhonda Fox and Beverley Hicks, read a play. The scene was on the deck of a ship, two weeks at sea, bound for India. It was a discussion between the Canadians and an Indian girl regarding home after attending college here for two years. This was followed by a question and discussion period, all taking part.

What are some of the factors that influence the civilization in the east? Some of the answers; but no solutions were: customs, religions, the newest of the Western Hemisphere, lack of interest, not wanting to learn their ways and so on. Let all remember that real missionary work begins in the home and community. The whole group sang several songs from different countries, "Choral Reading," "All Through the Night," "Each Man is My Brother." Velma Vanderwater sang a verse as a solo, "To God be The Glory" and "Amen, Amen, Amen." The theme this year is "into All the World Together."

RE-AFFILIATION SERVICE

An interesting re-affiliation service was held. Those taking part were: Mrs. J. Hart, leader of CGIT, Mrs. C. B. Hicks, representative of WMS Presbyterial, Carol Allison and Velma Vanderwater.

This has been a busy year for the CGIT. They have worked hard to complete a mission study on the theme mentioned above. They raised a considerable sum of money for the mission work of the church by selling chocolates, holding a bazaar and tea; they washed and waxed the Sunday school floors; at Christmas sang and presented gifts to shut-ins; gave flowers at Easter; some of the crafts work was the presentation of eight aluminum trays, hammered with the church crest.

Some of the money is helping to support: (1) interdenominational work carried on at the Christian College of Rural Life in Allahabad; (2) Yonsei, new interdenominational Christian university, 157 nurses were enrolled last year, special departments for amputees, physiotherapy and chest surgery. (3) The Eyrallan in Tokyo is a community centre, which provides day care for children of working mothers, nurses visit homes and give courses in child care. (4) Ravemco, Radio Visual Education, Mass Communications Committee. It is an agency for the purpose of spreading the gospel by radio, television, films, records and drama. It reaches Christians and non-Christians alike.

AFFILIATION GIFT

Mrs. Hicks presented the Seal to the president. After the call to worship the affiliation gift was presented to Mrs. Hicks.

The singing of the CGIT hymn and the benediction closed an interesting program.

Miss Audrey Pettingell, on behalf of the guests, thanked the leaders, Mrs. Dart and Mrs. MacKenzie and the girls for the fine work they are doing. These young girls will make splendid leaders tomorrow. May it always continue.

With all seated in a large circle the girls served coffee and fruit bread. All enjoyed a social half hour.

Hillier School Children Enjoy Ottawa Visit

WELLINGTON — There are some proud school children in Hillier township today. The main topic of their conversation is what they liked about their trip to Ottawa. Mrs. Gladys McPaul, teacher at Niles Corners; Mrs. Marjorie Graham, S.S. 8, Hillier, and Mrs. Velma Matthews, S.S. 8, Valena Matthews' School, chartered a bus to take their senior pupils to Ottawa last Friday. Mrs. Harold Adams of Hillier, accompanied them and enjoyed the trip, too.

The bus picked up the passengers in Hillier and travelled via Tweed and No. 7 Highway to Ottawa. By pre-arrangement, the party was met at the Parliament Buildings by Mr. Milligan, MP. He proved to be a most interesting and considerate guide, as they journeyed the buildings, listened to a cabinet meeting and viewed the city from the Peace Tower.

All were most interested in the visit to the mint. Here they watched money being made. One thrill was holding a real gold coin, only one hundred new silver dollars.

The tulip display at the Experimental Farm was beautiful. The National Art Gallery, recently visited by Mrs. J. F. Kennedy, was also visited.

Much country was viewed as the bus returned home on the southern route to 401 Highway. It was late when they arrived back in Hillier, but all agreed, even the tired teachers, that this was one lesson, learned by seeing, that would never be forgotten.

Mr. Thomas Bridges auctioned off a few articles, which were purchased by Mrs. Forde Stapley, Mr. Glenn Clarke and Mr. Tony Svoboda. Mrs. Glenn Clarke and Miss Ramona Clarke sang with a duet. Mr. Bruce Stapley showed a number of lovely colored films and Mr. Dyson closed the meeting.

Family Day Observed At Church

JOHNSTOWN — "Christian Family Day" was observed at Johnstown Church on Sunday morning with Mrs. Alec Vandervoort at the piano.

The junior choir sang, "O Worship the King" as they walked up the aisle to take their places in the choir loft.

Mr. Brian Thrasher was in the pulpit, accompanied by Mr. Glenn Stickle, the superintendent of the Johnstown Sunday School.

Mr. Stickle led in prayer and also led the responsive reading. Master Herbert Huffman read the Old Testament Scripture reading found in Malachi 2: 2-12. Miss Rosemary Bush read the New Testament Scripture lesson found in St. Matthew 25: 14-28.

The president, Dianne Prest, presided over the program, which had been prepared by Sheila Clarke and Sharon White and opened the meeting with the singing of a hymn, the hymn, "He Leadeth Me."

The Scripture lesson, 113 Psalm was read by Carol White and following this, Mary Ann Prest read a story about "Norma and Her Little Brother." Their parents had been away on two children were taken to a Mission Hospital to be cared for. Soon their little boy died, and Norma was later taken to a children's home.

A poem, "Creation," was read by Gerald Stapley. A duet by Sharon White and Carol Stapley and dedicated with a prayer read by Lloyd Clancy.

A group of the senior pupils took part in singing, "Lord of the Harvest." Sheila Hall was playing their accompaniment.

The chapter, "The Little Flower," from the book Stories for Boys was presented by the leader, Mrs. M. Clancy. The two children, "Tandi" and "Jabulani" lived in a village about 30 miles from Johannesburg.

Jabulanis lived in a large hut and the missionary held services there. Tandi's home was small, but they had a little church. Each week the missionary had asked Tandi's mother to be one of the Sunday School teachers.

After the service the missionary gave each child a small picture, which was greatly prized.

Mrs. Clancy divided the children into two groups, according to age, and a short recreation period, with games and contests was enjoyed.

"World Friends" papers were distributed by Wayne McMullen and Kenneth Danford.

Knows Many Of Druggists In Nova Scotia

HALIFAX (CP)—Few people can say they know almost every druggist in Nova Scotia, but one person who can is Jessie I. MacKinnon, retiring and dispensing at the Maritime College of Pharmacy since 1926, the year she graduated from the college.

During this period she has taught more than 80 per cent of the 925 registered pharmacists in the province and a large group of certified drug clerks who study by correspondence.

Her many years of service were formally acknowledged when she was awarded an honorary degree by Dalhousie University.

Miss MacKnight says students today are as capable and diligent as they were when she began teaching She studies their work all the more because they have so many outside interests to distract them.

She says today's graduates must deal with much more than drugs because the modern pharmacy has become somewhat of a drugstore.

Although the front of the store is rapidly changing to meet public demand the basic drug counter is much the same as it always was.

Miss MacKnight, a native of Pictou, NS, is also assistant to the registrar of the Board of Canadian and American Society of Hospital Pharmacists

During a tour of South America, Russell Seitzinger, The Canadian Press found wide interest in oil developments. In the story he discusses policies of the various governments and their efforts to promote petroleum resources.

By RUSSELL ELMAN

Canadian Press Staff Writer

RIO PAULO, Brazil (CP) — It's becoming good fashion among Brazilians to pin a little gold oil derrick on their lapels.

The derrick — trademark of the government-sponsored Petrobras—has become something of a popular national symbol in this coffee - rich but oil - poor country's quest for petroleum.

In nearly every country in the 10 South American republics, the development of domestic petroleum industries today is a hot political issue charged with economic nationalism. Economics may crumble, governments topple and even borders erupt if national sensitivities exceed reasonableness in the fight for oil.

No country is more touchy on the question of its lack of oil than Brazil—so richly endowed with natural resources of almost every other variety. Despite continuing explorations into the farthest regions of this vast country, Brazil has been able to produce less than 40 per cent of her rapidly-expanding oil requirements. The annual petroleum import bill runs around $240,000,000.

KEEPS TIGHT CONTROL

Traditionally reluctant to permit foreign interests develop her resources, the Brazilian government keeps strict control over the oil industry. The monopolistic Petrobras is responsible for domestic production, imports and marketing, allowing foreign oil companies to act only as retailers.

Recently a government decision to alter the special oil import exchange rate which set in effect removed an oil subsidy and doubled the price of imported oil — was felt immediately across the country by a general price rise in transportation and in all imported commodities—especially food.

In recent years Brazil has enlarged its big for oil beyond its own resources and is seeking to exploit reserves in neighboring, underdeveloped Bolivia — giving rise to a suspicion in some Bolivian circles of Brazilian "economic imperialism." The new Brazilian government of President Julio Quadros has begun taking new ground by seeking oil directly from Communist countries.

Argentina's oil story begins like Brazil's, but its latest chapters differ. Since the overthrow in 1955 of dictator Juan Peron, whose ultra - nationalist policies excluded or scared off foreign investment, the government has changed its attitude toward attracting outside capital to explore and produce oil in the country's serious financial problems.

There is no shortage of oil at the Caribbean end of the continent in Venezuela, the world's third biggest producer with daily production around 2,850,000 barrels. For every oil well in Lake Maracaibo a skyscraper seems to have bloomed in Caracas, but the prosperity of a few rich in the capital has not been shared by the country at large.

While foreign companies have developed the Venezuelan oil industry, the government now retains the mineral rights to all new development and taxes 65 per cent of the profits. Yet, despite good intentions the government of Romulo Betancourt may find Venezuela's power and potential oil wealth insufficient, and even an embarrassment, in coping with mounting social and political problems for a fairer distribution of the country's riches.

In other South American republics, foreign oil companies have largely been responsible for oil development. In Colombia, the continent's second largest producer, private and national companies work side by side. British and American companies have developed Ecuador's petroleum reserves, and American and Brazilian interests are prominent in Bolivia.

In Peru, however, a threat of nationalization has been hanging over the American - owned oil fields of Talara, an area which has been the source of a bitter border dispute with Ecuador. And at the southern tip of the continent, Chile is [illegible] Argentina dispute-

FIREMEN BUSY

Madoc firemen were busy during the week with several small fires and one in which one house was completely gutted. The home of Mr. and Mrs. George Burnside at Moira Lake was completely destroyed. The fire was believed to have started from a grass fire. Because of the location, by the time the Madoc fire department arrived, it was too late to save the house. Some fishermen nearby had noticed the fire, and managed to carry most of the contents to safety. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

The two minor alarms were chimney on fire, one in the home of Mr. Gavin Adams, and the other, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Taylor. They were both quickly extinguished, without loss of property.

Sunday School League

Self-Discipline Important

By ROY L. SMITH

The Old Testament book of Proverbs is a man's book, written by men for men. This explains the fact that its warning are directed to young men, and that women are represented as the seducers. Modern life, on the other hand, is busy building up walls designed to protect women against the capability, the lust, and the rapacity of men.

IN WAR TO THE DEATH

Three times within a single week great audiences in our city were addressed by important Americans who had only recently returned from areas where they had been permitted to study educational systems, factories, agricultural co-operatives and communist industrial methods. At some time during his address, each one of the three speakers warned us, as his fellow Americans, that we are in a competition to the death, and we can lose!"

The Uniform Sunday School Lesson for May 28: "THE VIRTUE OF SELF-DISCIPLINE." Genesis 26:12-32; Proverbs 5: 7-14; 6:20-35; 16:32; 17:27; 20:11; 22:19-21, 30-36.

When the might and numbers of China are added to those of Russia, the total menace of it all becomes little less than terrifying. The economic war which is being waged against the West is vastly more frightening than any military threat.

IT'S A MATTER OF DISCIPLINE

According to the reports brought out by well-informed and impartial observers, the strength of Russia (as also of China) rests on the underlying discipline that has been imposed upon the common people. It is being said that not every act of every individual is restricted and directed by the government. The entire nation is overrated as though it were one vast factory. Workers are trained for the tasks for which the government needs them, regardless of their wishes. They would enjoy doing. They are moved about at the will of the government, to assist in the achievement of national goals set by a small circle of dictators at the top. The success of the communist powers lies in the fact that they are able to bring all the creative and constructive capacities of the nation to bear upon any task, at any time, that the government decrees.

The secret of it all lies in the fact that the individual Russian (or Chinese) accepts the disciplines his government imposes upon him. This means that the government operates as though it were a single machine under the control of a single operator. The power that is generated is tremendous.

ABSTINENCE OBLIGATORY

One of the striking aspects of this disciplinary system is the way it reaches down into the private lives of individuals, dictating their personal habits and decisions. Russian university students, for example, are chosen for their university careers while still in high school. Thereafter, their careers are laid during their university years. But if a Russian youth betrays evidence of the use of intoxicants, he is demoted to the lesser ranks, and may even be cast off to the salt mines of Siberia.

In similar fashion sexuality is frowned upon, the result being that there is a complete abstinence of promiscuity indeed among Russian and Chinese university students.

DRINKERS VS. ABSTAINERS

In a single word, the competition between the communist powers and the western democracies is a contest between abstainers for the most part and drinkers.

It is a fact, of course, that qualities of vigour are commended by the Russian government officials, at state functions, and elsewhere, but as far as the workers and the students are concerned, any use of alcohol is frowned upon. If dependable statistics were available, it would probably be discovered that the per capita consumption of alcohol in Russia and China was the lowest on earth.

Just as a drinking craftsman cannot compete with one who is entirely sober, so also it is impossible for a drunken nation to compete with a sober nation.

The American people can well depend on their military powers to do their duty, and to defend the nation. But even our military leaders would prefer to defend a people who cannot discipline themselves.

Six Quebec Nuns Cling To Congo Mission School Despite Tribal Warfare

By PETER BUCKLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MWENE-DITU, The Congo (CP) — Six Quebec nuns are clinging to their mission school in this Baluba stronghold despite increasing tribal warfare, pitched army battles and dwindling supplies.

"Our work is here," said Sister Saint Coeur de Marie, the petite superior of the white-robed community. "We cannot leave."

It was the first Canadian, apart from members of the nuns' own community, to visit the mission since 1956. The chance to show a visitor from Canada through the crowded school brought excited flushes to their faces.

But the smiles dimmed as they told me quietly about days of tension, of a priest's murder, of food and drug shortages. And a Ghanaian army officer serving with the United Nations here recalled fierce battles and possible cannibalism.

This town of 25,000 in unpainted wooden houses or grass-roofed native huts lies about 100 miles south of Bakwanga, capital of the "autonomous state of South Kasai," and is the second largest in the Baluba territory on the grassy central plain of the Congo.

OTHERS AT KAMINA

About 50 miles southeast of Mwene-Ditu, nine other Canadians teach at Kaniama in northwestern Katanga. They are understood to be living quietly and without incident.

"You should have seen it before," said the sister superior here, using the same expression heard throughout The Congo to describe the situation before independence and the disorders which followed. The Congo is country.

"We had so many plans to improve and expand our buildings. Everything was peaceful, the people were kind. And the Baluba are smart—I think the smartest in The Congo—so it was a pleasure to teach them."

Their mission comprises low, red-brick buildings on the city's edge. Some are topped with corrugated metal roofs, but the principal structure still study is mud-floored classes under grass roofs which leak during the frequent tropical rains.

There are 1,300 students at the mission, mostly girls and kindergarten children. To teach that number, there are the six Canadians, a Belgian nun, and about a dozen Congolese women who give primary education themselves. At an adjacent boys' school, another 2,000 pupils are taught by a handful of priests and Congolese men.

ALL FROM QUEBEC

The nuns at both Mwene-Ditu and Kaniama are members of the Missionary Sisters of Christ the King, whose motherhouse is in Gaspe. All are from Quebec province.

The sisters Sister Saint Coeur de Marie, the former France Bernard of Maria, in and Gaspe, the others at Mwene-Ditu are:

Sister Maria Goretti, the former Thais Goudreau of Ile de la Madeleine; Sister Marie Bourgeois, Bernise Cossette of Montreal; Sister Marie de la Protection, Aziride Coulombe of Cloredorme; Sister Marie de la Salette, Ireon Lachance of Rimouski; and Sister Marie de St. Pie X, Estelle Bourdages of Bonaventure.

At Kaniama, the nuns are Sister Marie Gertrude, the former Yolande Perry of Desrosiers; Sister Marie de l'Ange Gardien, Angeline Boisconeau of Richmond; and Sister Marie Conciliatrice, Helene Chabot of Ste. Elisabeth de Warwick.

Sister Marie de Massabie, Suzanne Perrault of Montreal; Sister Marie de St. Honore, Suzette Palardeau of St. Ambert; Sister St. Jean Eudes, Louise Poirier of St. Simeon; Sister Marie Medaricie, Celine Mercier of Ste. Hyacinthe; Sister Marie Monique, Monique Boisvert of Actonvale; and Sister Marie de Jesus, Giselle Beauchemin of Rouyn.

PROTECTED BY TROOPS

When my single-engine plane landed at Mwene-Ditu's grass airstrip, Ghanaian troops encircled it and aimed their steel-helmeted heads at me.

A British major, seconded to the Ghanaian army and in charge of UN troops in a wide area around this city, described the growing tension.

"We had three men taken a couple of weeks ago and I'm convinced they were eaten," he said. Then he pointed to an unkempt Congolese soldier at the roadside as we drove by and added: "He was one of the ones who did it. We have most of them picked out.

A week before, seven Congolese soldiers—members of the army of Baluba "King" Albert Kalonji—were killed and two Ghanaians wounded. Another Ghanaian and three Kalonjists were wounded in a battle the night before my visit. The air carried wafts of smoke from burning fields and villages.

The nuns themselves say they now go their way unmolested.

"We've always gotten along well with the people," the sister superior said. "I think our reputation is good with them is in your head," the superior said.

In a tour of the classrooms, I saw monitors leading their pupils through French lessons and mathematics. One woman selling a crude bench, her own baby on her lap, and instructed a group of youngsters in the alphabet.

Under a tree nearby, another tried to keep nearly 100 toddlers occupied.

NO TRIPS HOME

None of the nuns has returned to Canada since arrival. The superior explained:

"A person's first year here never seems too hot. After that it becomes worse and worse. Maybe it's because we're tired —our persons it's the lack of any change in the climate. The heat is always with us."

Recently there have been shortages of flour, vegetables and meat at various times. And it more serious for long - time

CANADIAN SCHOOL SITE

—Six Canadian nuns operate a mission school at Mwene-Ditu, a town of 25,000 in The Congo's Kasai province.

Nine other Canadian nuns operate another school at Kaniama, about 80 miles southwest of Mwene-Ditu. There are about 1,300 students at the Mwene-Ditu school. (CP Newsmap.)

Later United Nations representatives demanded that the nuns leave, even threatening to evacuate them forcibly.

TOLD TO STAY

"But we refused to go," Sister Saint Coeur de Marie said. "We asked the mother-house whether we should stay and the answer was that we should unless there was real danger

The nuns maintained firmly that the incidents did not represent "real danger."

The mission school carries the stamp of long, tiring work.

"It was all brush when we started in 1954—brush as high

Recently there have been shortages of flour, vegetables and meat at various times. And it more serious for long - time Congo residents, a shortage of such drugs as malaria suppressants.

The nuns remain thoroughly Canadian. The familiar accent of French-Quebec is still strong, and the whole city knows their nationality.

When I protested to Sister Maria Foretti about the lavish lunch prepared for their visitor from me a g r e stocks, she clasped her plump hands together and looked sternly at me.

"But after all, could we do anything less for a Canadian?" she asked earnestly.

Number Involved in Criminal Code Offences Decreases in Last Year Report Shows

OTTAWA (CP) — The first decrease in many years in the number of juveniles involved in criminal offences is noted in the RCMP's annual report for the year ended March 31, 1960, made public Thursday.

The number involved in Criminal Code offences totalled 16,055, a decrease of 300 or 1.8 per cent from the previous year.

Commenting on this aspect of his report, Commissioner C. W. Harvison said:

"While it is too early to regard this decrease — the first in many years — as indicating a trend, the fact that it occurred despite an over - all increase in crime allows for some cautious optimism."

The RCMP investigates breaches of the federal Criminal Code in the provinces, acts as the provincial police force in all provinces except Ontario and Quebec and has contracts to police more than 200 cities, towns and municipal districts.

Commissioner Harvison said the small increase of 1.1 per cent in Criminal Code cases in 1959-60 could not be interpreted too optimistically.

WAS BIG FACTOR

There was a big decrease in cases of perjury and false evidence and in connection with distribution of oil and gas dividends to the province's residents. Discounting these, the country's Criminal Code cases would have shown an overall increase of 5.3 per cent, in line with the trend of past years.

The number of murder cases increased to 48 from 36 and those of manslaughter declined. Driving to 6,401 from 6,250. Safe-cracking — an attempt to be classed by 49 in the year after a decrease of 124 the previous year.

The amount of bootleg liquor seized was down.

Investigation of one syndicate operating in Ontario and Quebec was reported. Its gross returns was calculated that 7,500 gallons of illicit spirits were sold at $16 to $18 a gallon, with the syndicate recording sales of $120,000 to $135,000 for $45,360. The federal government's revenue loss in excise tax was $45,360.

The number of cases handled by the force's narcotic squad, the Drug Act was eight- per - cent higher than the previous year.

Ben-Gurion Will Visit Quebec, Leaves Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — David Ben-Gurion, premier and guiding spirit of the 13 - year - old Republic of Israel, came to the end of his state visit to Ottawa today.

The 74 - year - old statesman was scheduled to fly to Quebec City to meet Premier Lesage and then spend the weekend in Montreal before flying to New York to confer with UN Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold and President Kennedy.

The Ottawa Jewish Community Council presented him Thursday with a silver cigaret box, engraved with the coats of arms of Canada and the provinces, and a book of signatures of 450 Jewish children.

He also received a flowery address of welcome by Mayor Charlotte Whitton, who called him a true Lion of Judah and the David who slew Palestine's Goliath of long centuries of bondage, deprivation, discrimination and persecution.

From Prime Minister Diefenbaker, he received praise as the valiant nation - builder, of modern Israel and upholder of parliamentary democracy.

Mr. Ben-Gurion, in turn told a press conference he was overwhelmed by the warmth of his welcome in Canada.

He was impressed, he said, with Canada's openness to do everything possible to preserve peace.

BELIEVE IN REDEMPTION

Jews the world over believed in the ultimate attainment of the ancient prophets' promise of the redemption of humanity. Peace would be achieved among nations and people never again would lift the sword against each other.

Canada, he added, with its English and French cultures, was a living example of what can be achieved.

"The best lesson you can give to humanity is that," he declared, "it is the most important thing that humanity needs, to know how to live together."

Former Mayor Stirs Up Storm At Meeting

TORONTO (CP) — Former mayor W. A. Edwards of suburban Mimico stirred up a storm Thursday night at a meeting of the town's ratepayers' association when he yelled out his objections to holding an inquiry into Mimico's building bylaw difficulties.

Mr. Edwards began shouting during a conversation with William Longridge, secretary for the association, while the audience was filing out after singing The Queen.

"You may fool the public part of the time," he shouted, "but I'll bet you this crowd will change its mind in four days."

"Are you opposed to a judicial inquiry?" Mr. Longridge yelled back.

SAYS HE'LL FIGHT

"Yes, I am," roared the former mayor. "I've worked with those men for 40 years and I'll fight to defend them."

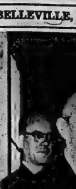
He was referring to building inspector Jack Book, charged by the association with failing to enforce bylaws, and Councillor L. J. Perrie, former town clerk and now chairman of the building committee.

Mr. Edwards also engaged in a shouting match with several members of the crowd who told him to shut up.

Mayor Hugh Grigg, who refereed Mr. Edwards in the last election, announced at the meeting that he had instructed the town solicitor to proceed with draft terms of reference and a survey of county court judges to see who can head the inquiry.

Robert Wishart, chairman of the association's investigating committee which is pressing for the inquiry, claims the association has knowledge of 1,500 cases of bylaw violations and can document each.

Winged-Plane Record Set At 3,370 MPH



EDWARDS AFB, Calif. (AP) — A U.S. test pilot pushed the X-15 to a winged-plane record of 3,370 miles an hour Thursday — nearly a mile a second. Only space men Yuri Gagarin and Alan Shepard have travelled faster.

Joe Walker's new mark is 206 miles an hour faster than the 2,074 set last April 21 by Air Force Maj. Bob White. Both flights are part of a series in which the rocket plane's speed and altitude are being gradually stepped up toward goals of 4,000 m.p.h. and 250 miles high.

Russia's Gagarin hit 17,000 m.p.h. in his orbit around the earth April 12. The U.S. astronaut sped 5,100 m.p.h. during a 115-mile rocket ride May 5.

CONVICT CAUGHT

Recipe for Making Money Out of the Newspapers? 'Own Them' Says Thomson

LONDON (Reuters) — Roy Thomson, Canadian-born newspaper magnate, expressed the view Thursday that there are too many newspapers in the national field in Britain and that the tendency will be for them to grow fewer.

At a luncheon meeting of the Foreign Press Association, he also said he was convinced newspapers in Britain are sold too cheaply.

Thomson prefaced his speech by telling his audience

"Before I forget I should give you the recipe for making money out of newspapers — own them."

He said the provincial evening newspapers of Britain are gradually speaking are pretty good shape." But in the national field, competition is keen and the intolerable pressure on the weaker papers to close or amalgamate goes on pretty lessly.

Anywhere in Britain there is a choice of nine, 10 or even 12 morning papers, including locals.

"It seems to me there could be two or three less and no one would suffer."

He said he hoped he is wrong. He believed that there is not room for all the morning papers that at present exist in Britain but they must face the issue that the tendency will be for the number to decrease.

"I think what is very much to be regretted is, if any of the closures take place in newspapers which represent a definite line of political thought there is thus left inadequate representation of that particular view point."

He said he did not think political opinion is adequately represented in the British press. The press is predominantly Conservative and the Liberal and Labor points of view are inadequately represented.

The situation of Sunday newspapers is different. Most are really entertainment mediums and if some were to disappear, Thomson said, he did not think it would leave a big gap in the newspaper world.

In a separate context, Thomson said "From experience newspapers in Britain are sold too cheaply to the public."

What it is considered that the price of a national daily newspaper in Britain is threepence and that in many American and Canadian cities the price is five cents, parties in Britain should be higher.

He said he believes prices will increase in future, with the result that newspapers will be a healthier state financially.

'Storm Troopers' Will Not Post Bail to Gain Release

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Adopting the pacifist tactics of the integrationists, "storm troopers" fighting American Nazi Leader George Lincoln Rockwell said Thursday he and his "storm troopers" would not post bail to gain release from a New Orleans jail.

"It's time the white man did the same as the 'niggers' and stayed in jail to protest for our rights," Rockwell, 43, told reporters in an interview at police headquarters.

"If the integrators can do it for segregation," said Rockwell, he claimed his arrest and that of nine of his followers was "farce" and threatened to sue for false arrest.

Rockwell and his Swastika-banded "storm troopers" were booked under a state statute for disturbing the peace in a manner that would unreasonably disturb and alarm the public. When arrested they were picketing the movie Exodus, which depicts the beginning of the modern nation of Israel.

"This is the first night I've ever spent in jail," Rockwell said, "but we're doing it for a principle. We couldn't post bail if we wanted to . . . we're broke."

WILL RETURN HOME

He said he planned to return to party headquarters at Arlington, Va., as soon as he is freed.

"We've got a financial crisis," he commented.

He said he had been misquoted about hating Jews.

"We hate Communist Jews but we've even got some Jews in our group," he said.

Rockwell and his followers arrived in the city last week. Some came aboard a "hate bus" and published the route of the segregation - defying bus as "Freedom Riders" rode through the U.S. south.

Rockwell dis s owed know-how of Adolf Hitler's Nazi group which claims to be sending men with tear gas to New Orleans to greet "Freedom Riders," an integrationist group testing segregation at bus stations.

"We don't want to be violence and don't want any," said Rockwell.

FIGURET

"Two boys and two girls," Ken commented. "All under 10 years old. That's a well balanced family."

"You wouldn't say so if you saw them fighting," Ted chuckled, "But it's quite odd their ages. Ken's age is multiplied by the sum of her age and Mary's, gives the square of Paul's age. Mary's age, multiplied by the sum of her age and Ann's, makes the square of Ron's age."

Ken shook his head. "Okay," he said. "I'll take your word for it.

Can you figure out the four ages?

Garbage Mounds Litter Streets Of Kingston

KINGSTON (CP)—Mounds of garbage litter Kingston streets as city employees enter their second day on strike.

The walkout began at midnight Wednesday following a breakdown in talks between the city and Local 9 of the National Union of Public Employees (CLC).

The more than 100 strikers are employees of the board of works, sanitation department, parks department and street cleaning crews.

During the suspension of garbage collections Cou ncil y dump is being kept open under supervision of several of the non-striking foremen.

The works c o m m i s s i o n e r asked citizens Thursday to keep garbage off the streets until further notice. Pickets at the dump's gates are asking drivers to honor their cause and not enter the picket lines.

Thursday night the parks superintendent, one of his foremen and a volunteer helper were busy setting up garden displays on the traffic circle at the city's western entrance. Wording of the floral arrangements welcomes the many Lions Club members who will meet here for their 41st annual Ontario Quebec convention starting Sunday.

Also scheduled for next weekend is a visit by the Governor-General.

Canada Target For Organized Crime Report

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is presenting an increasingly attractive target for organized crime, RCMP Commissioner W. Harvison said in an annual report made public Thursday.

The commissioner's report dealt with the year ended March 31, 1960, a time when conference was made to the current Canadian scene.

Provincial Liberal Leader John Wintermeyer has demanded a royal commission to investigate crime in the province. Elmer Sopha, Liberal member of the legislature for Sudbury, has claimed he has evidence implicating a cabinet minister in organized crime.

In his report, Commissioner Harvison said:

"Ease and speed of transportation and communication are bringing about changes in crime patterns, which necessitate the closest possible co-operation between police forces both national and international.

"It should be mentioned, too, that Canada is presenting an increasingly attractive target for organized crime.

"Extreme v i g i l a n c e, high standards of personnel, good training and public support of law enforcement will be required if we are to keep Canada relatively clear of powerful, corrupting and vicious crime syndicates."

Revolution Cannot Survive In Cuba Without Support Of Russia, Says Professor

Fidel Castro owes prized American AP correspondent Robert Berrellez for editorially reporting the realities of the Batista dictatorship that Castro overthrew Jan. 1, 1959. On April 17 of this year Berrellez was hailed by Castro's secret police in Havana and fired last weekend. In this land of three articles, Berrellez sums up observations on the Castro regime.

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

NEW YORK (AP) — Last April 16, Fidel Castro proclaimed to the world that his was a Socialist revolution.

How long will it last? Can it be toppled?

A university professor said in Havana recently:

"The r e v o l u t i o n was not meant to stop in Cuba, which is relatively unimportant politically to the rest of the Americas. By isolating it, it will cease to decide.

"The Russians will keep it alive as long as it serves their purpose. But if isolation makes the Russians feel the rest of the Americas will succumb, it is capitve to their cause, they'll drop Castro and we'll move again in another manner. The revolution cannot survive without Russian support."

NOT FOR EXPORT

In Santiago this week, the chief architect of Castro's Socialist m o v e m e n t, Raul Castro and Ernest (Che) Guevara, said the revolution would not be exported but that Cuba's own revolution was the best cause of the poor in the world.

Their words contradict Premier Castro's own statements a few months ago when he declared Cuba would continue exporting its revolution so long as the United States "provoked counter-revolution."

A re-evaluation of events that led to the emergence of revolution in Cuba presently seems to leave no alternative to the belief a Socialist regime for Cuba was conceived long ago.

Some of the steps included:

1. Destruction of organized labor as an independent entity by placing all the functions of the Confederation of Cuban Workers in the hands of the labor ministry.

2. Government control of the Federation of Havana University Students, cradle of many anti - government uprisings in the past.

PRESS CLOSED

3. Closure of the independent press by proclaiming the "right of retort." With the unions tightly controlled, "revolutionary" press groups were added their own editorial comment to anti-government articles. These comments, a l w a y s declaring the anti - government report to be slanders to the truth, coupled with a deteriorating economy that drastically reduced advertising, led publishers to close out.

There was wide disagreement among the thousands I talked with in Cuba, sometimes before and after my imprisonment, as to whether Castro was Communist or Socialist. A great number agree Che Guevara is the principal figure in the master plan economically and politically, with Raul Castro assisting the while.

Castro's regime is a minority government but it is firmly entrenched, much more so than was Fulgencio Batista's. It will take a powerful, armed opposition force to overthrow this dictatorship.

U.S. Diplomats Say Brazil Not Acting as Conciliator

WASHINGTON (CP)—United States diplomats said Thursday they are puzzled by the statement of Brazilian Foreign Minister Afonso Arinos that he is acting as conciliator between the United States and Cuba.

They said Brazil's offer of conciliation move in which the U.S. is participating and emphasized that the United States would not agree to befriend the Communist regime of Fidel Castro unless that regime first severed its ties with communism.

The official position of the state is that the Caribbean crisis is the result of Soviet - Red Communism against Latin America with Cuba as the base of Red operations.

In a dispatch from Rio de Janeiro, Brazil's foreign minister was quoted as saying in a television i n t e r v i e w Wednesday night that he already was acting as a conciliator "to preserve peace and harmony in the continent."

The Brazilian Embassy here said they know of no Brazilian effort to reduce tensions between the U.S. and Cuba. They also observed that Cuba's deputy foreign minister, Carlos Olivares, is now touring Brazil.

AIMED AT REDUCTION

Conciliation presumably would be aimed at reducing the personal differences between the two countries and easing tensions. Mediation would then follow to resolve differences on the specific issues that are involved. An "American diplomat said that Brazil knows that might be prepared to talk to Cubans on the specific matter of Cuba's payment for about $1,000,000,000 worth of American property expropriated by the Castro government. Castro paid off in 30-year agrarian bonds which currently are worth little in world financial markets.

The diplomat may be clarified by mid-July when the economic and financial members of the 21-country Organization of American States meet at Punta del Este, Uruguay, to consider the American $500,000,000 economic assistance program for the Latin American countries.

The United States had proposed before it a meeting to confer at Montevideo before the talks open, presumably to seek agreement on various sanctions that the U.S. want applied to the Castro regime.

The U.S. met opposition on this proposal at diplomatic talks and this was dropped. However, there still is some American hope that the foreign ministers may meet after the economic conference.

Govt. Experts Say Exports Boost Needed

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Teams of government trade experts devoted much of Thursday to an attempt to convince 200 Western Ontario businessmen of the need for boosting exports to increase productivity and reduce unemployment.

Trade Minister Hees led an attack on high production costs said to be crippling competition in overseas markets.

He told delegates to the federal-provincial trade conference that labor and management must co-operate in boosting production and compared Canadian business to a team in mid-season form. Slump, said Hees, means survival in a booming post-war economy.

"There is no use pretending this is a passing phase, something which will right itself," he said.

Commerce and Development Minister Nickle of Ontario made a plea for competitive prices for Canadian products and the establishment of manufacturers' associations to discuss production problems.

Delegates to the one-day conference, the first of several planned for Ontario, were told that Canada's freedom and democracy are engaged in a fight for economic survival and that the success of the people of the fight is the creation of jobs for the growing labor force.

"We can sell practically anything, practically anywhere if we want to do it badly enough," he said.

Higher Canadian wage scales should not curtail exports. It should instead be increased without raising the cost to him "we should be able to sell practically anything on the world market."

Trade representatives a n d branch directors of both governments listed export opportunities in their industry and urged delegates to make use of government facilities available in the foreign trade field.

Mr. Hees said his department is ready to provide any answer soon to the problem of providing tax incentives for export. He also promised early government action on credit aid for medium-sized firms.

Leaders Convinced Personal Diplomacy Is Best Method

Single-Chamber House Proposed For Republic

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters) — A round - table conference of Congolese leaders has approved a resolution to set up single chamber parliament in the projected Federal Republic of the Congo, it was reported Thursday.

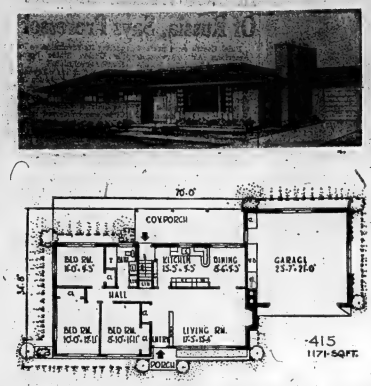
Mr. Diefenbaker said in an interview that the Canadian Canada of Mr. Ben - Gurion and other world leaders have proved that the art of face - to-face talks in place of lengthy correspondence in relations between government leaders, no matter how carefully worded.

The conference, which opened sessions revealed how the personal meeting method was valuable.

Mr. Ben-Gurion, chief executive of a 12-year-old republic which was almost artificially created by international agreement, is looked upon by many Jews of the world, was looked upon by many as a visitor who would be seeking foreign aid.

Instead, a little - known fact has emerged that Israel has been an exporter, rather than an importer, of foreign aid to underdeveloped countries. It now has 300 Israeli and Israeli-trained technicians serving in Asia and Africa.

On the Israeli side, a participant in the discussions told the rself reporters that what impressed him was that since the Second World War Canada has spent $4,500,000,000 on foreign aid.



"This is really a tremendous thing," he said. "I don't think the rest of the world doesn't know about." the Israeli cabinet official said.

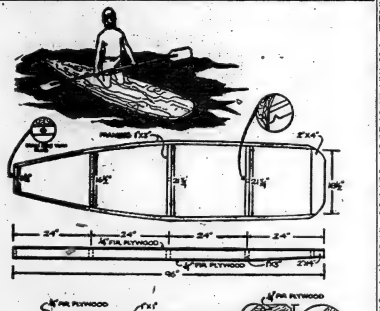
BETTER HOMES FOR BETTER FAMILIES

HOME OF THE WEEK



An open shelf built-in with enclosed storage space below separates living room from front entry creating a hall effect that is rather unusual. Living room is really "different". Fireplace is set flush in ledge stone wall 40" high and 8" wood ledge is topped by "v" cut boards extending to ceiling making this an eye catching feature. Another custom feature is the louvered doors which separate living room from dining room, which in turn has just enough separation from kitchen to help areas have advantage of spaciousness and adding considerably to the pleasure of dining. Kitchen has numerous cabinets and door to rear porch entrance, and basement stairs. Bedrooms are located for privacy while wall and floor areas have been planned to provide comfortable furniture placement.

It Supports Four Times its Own Weight

Build This Portable Paddleboard of Plywood

A day at the beach takes on adventurous proportions for children when they are able to take command of their very own boat.

Such a craft is this easily-built fir plywood paddleboard. It can be built in an evening from a single 4x8 panel of quarter-inch fir plywood and inexpensive lumber framing.

The paddleboard is easily carried by hand (it weighs only 35 pounds) or can be strapped to a cartop rack for visits to distant playgrounds; it will support more than 150 pounds.

ar will not affect the com-

Prolonged immersion in wat- pletely waterproof glue bond used in the manufacture of fir plywood. Each panel is edge-marked PMBC Interior for ease of identification.

To built the paddleboard, first cut the 1x3 lumber framing to dimensions shown on the plan. Nail these pieces, on edge, temporarily to a bench or workshop floor.

The two sides, also 1x3 lumber, are then bent around the cross pieces, which are marked, and beveled to ensure a smooth fit. The nosepiece, made of 2x4, is rounded on the corners.

When finished, the framing is glued and nailed together. Because the 4x4 on its side is not as thick as the 1x3 cross pieces, one surface of the paddleboard will be flat and the other tapered slightly at the bow. The tapered side should be the underside of the finished paddleboard.

Now saw the 4x8 panel of quarter-inch fir plywood lengthwise into two even pieces. These form the top and bottom of the paddleboard. Fit them carefully into place on the framing, glue and nail into place and trim.

An efficient double-ended paddle can be made from some scrap 1x1 lumber and odd pieces of fir plywood, as shown in the sketch.

If a larger paddleboard is required to carry heavier loads two extra 24-inch sections can be added to the centre sections to be added to the centre of this plan. An extra 1x3 crosspiece should be added to provide additional nailing surface for the top and bottom pieces, which, now four inches, not 36 inches long, must be butted together for the extra length.

Owners Aim Programs At Better Living and Higher Resale Values

One of the brightest spots in America's expanding economy as 1961 gets under way is the burgeoning activity in the field of home improvements. This year's total expenditures for home improvements promises to substantially exceed even that of last year, when activity in this field accounted for a whacking percentage of the over-all business done by the building and related trades and industries.

Home improvement can range all the way from a new coat of paint in the kitchen or weatherstripping for the windows and doors to a new bathroom, a recreation room finished off in attic or basement or even a whole new wing added to the house.

Whatever its size or scope, every home improvement project has its aim and purpose in one or more of the following results: (1) better appearance, indoors or out, (3) greater convenience, (3) more comfort, (4) greater economy of operation or maintenance, (5) more space, (6) increased livability.

An important consideration to have in mind when setting up a program of home improvement is how it will affect the re-sale value of your home if you should ever wish to sell or "trade." It is a matter of record that a carefully planned and executed improvement project will often increase the re-sale value of a home by an amount substantially in excess of the cost of the improvement, which thus becomes an unusually sound and profitable investment.

START WITH SURVEY

Best approach to the whole subject of home improvement is a thorough roof-to-basement inside-and-out survey of the house, in which the whole family should participate, with each member freely expressing his or her opinion as to what is needed first and most.

Put everything suggested down on paper, whether you can afford to do it now or not. This enables you to plan all your proposed remodelling or modernization at one time, which can result in many important economies in achieving the desired over-all results. You can, for instance, lay electric wires and water pipes for facilities you'll want later — under a cement patio, for example, or under a porch while it is being installed.

Having established an order or "priorities" based on the urgency and importance of the various improvements you can then tackle individual projects one at a time, over a period of years as finances permit.

If your plan involves extensive remodelling, you will do well to call in some competent advice. Consult an architect. Or talk it over with your local lumber and hardware dealer who can be extremely helpful.

APPORTION JOBS

Next, apportion the different operations involved in your project. Decided which, if any, jobs can be taken care of by you or members of your family.

If you are ambitious and reasonably skilled, you may well be able to handle many phases of the project yourself. Unless you have had considerable actual experience, however, it is best not to tackle plumbing, wiring and heating problems without professional help. All three of these vital systems can easily be damaged by the efforts of an amateur. Cabinet work and concrete normally need the touch of an expert to insure high-quality results.

Break down the work further by listing the types of workmen needed in addition to yourself — electricians, plumbers, carpenters etc.

Then get estimates of cost from all of the suppliers, contractors or sub-contractors required.

If you are planning to do all the work yourself, all you have to do is take your plans to dealers handling the materials and equipment involved to get a list of their prices.

Smart Refrigerators Add Glamor

It will be easier than ever to change the color scheme in your kitchen now that changeable door panels can be had as accessories for some refrigerator freezers.

With this exciting new feature, it's possible to match or contrast the refrigerator-freezer with the kitchen color scheme and to change it's appearance to keep pace with varied decorating ideas.

The panels can be applied quickly and easily to the fronts by users of the new General Electric models. They fit snugly under a stainless steel trim strip and come in popular mix-or-match colors—turquoise green, canary yellow, wood-tone brown and petal pink—as well as in special finishes in white with brushed aluminum, and simulated wood grain.

The panels can also be covered with wallpaper to match the kitchen walls on add another note of color to the room.

There are many other convenient features in the 1960 models, three handy swing-out shelves bring all the food out from the back, there's no danger of spilling. All three shelves can be raised or lowered even when loaded with food, by merely pressing a button and adjusting to the desired position.

The shelves are easily removed for washing and with all of them out, cleaning the interior is simple.

With the new frost guard system, frost never forms on the walls or shelves.

The new straight-line design saves precious floor space and minimizes cleaning. With no coils in back, the unit fits flush against the wall and lines up in front with adjacent base cabinets to achieve the popular built-in effect. It can fit flush in a corner, or can be combined with the base cabinets to form a room divider.

With all the decorative qualities in the new refrigerator-freezers, the new 1960 kitchen can easily be the glamour room of the house.

Just What You Want

Perfect Planning Suits This Home To the Needs of a Small Family

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

Today's home provides just what's wanted by the small family.

It's a cozy all-on-one-floor dwelling with comfortable accommodations for the couple with one or two children.

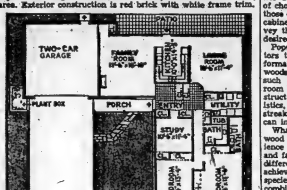
Third Bedroom

Actually, the floor plan provides only two bedrooms. However, there is a study which could, if desired, be used as a nursery.

The master bedroom has its own private bath with stall shower, while the main bath is placed to serve the remaining bedroom and the study, as well as the living-working areas of the home.

In the interest of economy, note how the architect centered plumbing, grouping the baths and the utility room, with its laundry section, in one area.

The main wing of the house is shared by family room, kitchen and living room. All have wide window views of the patio, which is accessible from the kitchen.



Efficient Kitchen

The kitchen provides an efficient U-shaped setup of appliances, work counters and storage cabinets. Its placement makes it convenient for serving snacks in the living room or out on the terrace or serving meals in the family room, which could be used as a dining area.

The home has a two-car attached garage. At back, one door leads out to the yard, while a second door connects garage and family room.

Design H-555-KF comprises 30,470 cubic feet; 1,885 square feet for the house and 570 square feet for the garage.

If you are interested in obtaining blueprints for H-555-KF, send your inquiry and a self-addressed stamped envelope to me, in care of this newspaper, for the name and address of the company from which they are available.

THE KITCHEN IS CENTRED between family and living rooms. Home has two bedrooms, two baths and small study.

Canadian Garden Service

EVENING GARDENING

WHEN SNOW IS DEEP

As interesting and very useful way of spending a late winter's evening is to get a pencil, paper, and a good Canadian seed catalogue and plan the garden we are going to have just as soon as spring really arrives. Such plans, of course, are not absolutely necessary but they will be a big help and anyway in gardening planning is almost as good fun as planting.

In this planning we should note the mature size of the plants we are going to grow and the time they will be in bloom, or in the case of vegetables the time they will be ready for the table. All this information and more will be found in the seed catalogue.

Location is another point to bear in mind. Some flowers thrive in full sun, others definitely prefer shade, some like a slope, others are not so particular; some want a damp spot, others insist on steeping rather dry. There are even quite attractive flowers, particulars, for instance, which will thrive in the hottest and dustiest spot imaginable. Another factor is fragrance. Some like stocks, nicotine and others which are not particularly beautiful plants, are primarily grown for their scent and add great attraction to the garden even after dark. All these points should be noted as we browse through the catalogue and plan.

WHY NOT GROW YOUR OWN?

When one requires a lot of bedding or started plants such as pertunias, asters, zinnias or marigolds to set out in the flower garden around danger of frost is over, a very substantial saving is realized by growing them from seed, and there is very little trouble in doing so. March is the proper time to start in most parts of Canada.

All that is needed is a pail or two of good fine garden soil in which has been mixed some peat moss or leaf mould and sand, a flat or shallow wooden box about four inches deep or some flower pots, a few packets of seed and a sunny window.

Mix soil, sand and peat moss thoroughly, make as fine as possible. Soak well and plant the seed by merely pressing firmly in the soil. Water sparingly when the plants appear and turn box around frequently to keep sunlight uniform so that growth will be sturdy and even.

For at least a week before setting out permanently in the garden, the young plants should be hardened by exposing to outside temperatures and weather for a lengthening period each day.

VEGETABLES DO HAVE A PLACE

Many people who complain that they can't buy really fresh vegetables, don't realize that they can and should grow some of these themselves even if only a tiny city garden is available. In the latter case, of course, no one is seriously suggesting that they could grow a winter's supply of potatoes or even any of these vegetable and many others that take up quite a bit of room.

But there are several vegetables that can be grown in amazing quantity and take up practically no room at all. From a patch of ground not more than 10 or 15 feet square it is possible to keep a small family supplied all summer with lettuce, radish, carrots, beans, onions, beets, even a few tomatoes. The first named, lettuce, radish, carrots, etc., can be grown in rows a foot apart and a couple of inches each way in the row, and in most parts of Canada at least two and sometimes three or four successive crops is one season are possible. It is a wonderful convenience to have a small vegetable garden right at the back door and the extra quality and freshness will well repay the little trouble necessary. Of course in these highly concentrated gardens, it will be cultivate and water frequently and we encourage quick growth with a good commercial fertilizer.

RELIEVE DOOR CATCHING

If the bottom of a door rubs slightly lay a sheet of course sandpaper at the trouble point and work back and forth rapidly. This should sufficiently smooth down the wood to avoid need of planing.

The Perfect Vacuum---

THE LAST MILE. Most vacuums are cumulid of the "last mile" treatment when their cords are shortened to the last inch. They recommend that their cords be rephrased so that they can reach the end of the room.

OVERSTUFFED FEELING. Vacuum cleaners blow their bags if their bags are allowed to become too full. (Singer)

THE REJECTED RADIATOR. Please use the vacuum cleaner's crevice tool so the means won't look so happy.

ABOVE-THE-FLOOR AMNESIA. Vacuum cleaners are proud of their ability to clean all corners of the home, including valances and moldings. A embarrassment them if you don't take advantage of their talents.

But You Must Know Its Use

Although the vacuum cleaner is one of the most willing and obedient servants a woman can have, there are still many women who mistreat their vacuums. This sort of malpractice can in time make even the most obedient vacuum turn surly and unco-operative.

In order to prevent dissatisfaction on the part of otherwise well-trained vacuums, the Singer Vacuum Cleaner Research Division offers a few tips on what not to do write housecleaning. Avoid these pitfalls, say the experts, and you'll be assured of competent cleaning help for the life of your vacuum.

Can Express Personality With Woods

Every woman would like her home to be an expression of her own personality—tastefully decorated in accordance with accepted modes of style, to be sure, but still conveying that certain air which uniquely identifies its creator and owner.

While this combination may seem difficult to attain in an age of standardized mass production, there is at least one important element used in home decoration which has escaped the stamp of sameness.

No two pieces of wood are exactly the same. Even within the same species, the swirl of grain, texture and coloring of individual pieces will differ.

Moreover, with more than 50 species of wood commercially available, the home decorator has an almost infinite variety of choices from which to select those qualities in wall panneling, cabinetry and floors which convey the exact personality trait desired.

Popular with home decorators today, for any air of informality, are the "knotty" woods. Also used to express such informality in a total room setting are woods with structurally-knotty but pleasing lities, such as burls, mineral streaks, and pecan grains. They can impart a stunning effect.

What makes decorating with wood so delightful an experience is the absence of hard and fast rules. At least a dozen different woods can be used to achieve any single effect. Wood species can be used together in combination within a room, each chosen to blend gracefully with furniture, draperies or flooring. The only prerequisite is imagination.

HOLD SECTIONALS TOGETHER

Metal hooks and eyes, attached to the backs of sectional furniture, keep the furniture from sliding apart. Hooks and eyes can be placed in the back side of legs of sofas and cabinets.

VARNISHING FLOORS

Quickest way to varnish large floors is to pour out a small pool and spread it around with a roller.

Takes Part in OHS Meet

Moira Track Team Goes to Guelph

Moira Secondary School, COSSA track and field champions will be one of the nine of ten federated secondary school athletic associations to be represented at the Ontario High School Track and Field Meet being held on Guelph tomorrow.

These schools will be represented by a total of 489 athletes, an increase of some 150 over last year.

Representing Moira will be junior COSSA senior champion Ron Faulkner, Bill Vermilyea, distance star and Robert Bailey, shot putt. Bill Long, pole vault suffered an ankle injury in training yesterday and will be unable to make the trip. Gerald Vickers, discus and weight-lift is under doctor's orders and will not be available.

Accompanying the Moira team will be schools track and field coach, David B. Hall.

With an assist from the weatherman many Canadian Interscholastic records should be broken and all existing records are threatened.

The Toronto District Interscholastic Athletic Association will be out to retain the Manufacturers Life Insurance Trophy emblematic of the provincial team championship. The Western Ontario Secondary Schools' Association and the Toronto Secondary Schools Athletic Association will also be strong contenders.

In the Association meets held over the past ten days four Canadian schoolboy records have already been broken.

BRUCE KIDD

Bruce Kidd of Malvern Collegiate Institute set up a new mile mark of 4:18.8 and Lawrence Park C.I. racked up a new 440 yard relay mark of 43.8 at the T.S.S.A.A. meet.

Steve Baker, of New Toronto Secondary School tossed the javelin for a new mark of 209 ft. at the T.D.I.A.A. meet.

Jim Allen of London South C.I. took 4/10 second off Harry Jerome's 220 mark when he ran 21.3 at the W.O.S.S.A. meet. Allen had already run 21.9 to tie Jerome's record at the London District meet.

The Canadian Interscholastic 880 record of 1.56 is likely to take a beating, when Bruce Kidd of Malvern and Steve Ball of Etobicoke tangle in this event.

Don McCarten, a 16-year-old from Richview C.I. did 49.9 in the Intermediate Quarter at the T.D.I.A.A. meet, the Senior Canadian Interscholastic Record is 49.3.

Dave Dorman of Smiths Falls C.I. could conceivably set new Canadian marks in both the running high jump and discus throw.

Bob Hempel of Grenadier H.S. has been bettering the Canadian record in the pole vault which at present stands at 13 ft. 8 inches. There is some question as to whether he will be competing.

Bob Patterson of Woodridge High School, last year's 100 and 220 champion will be facing Allen of London South, Jarrett of Agincourt, and Gin, Clair of Harbord C.I. in both of these events. These two races should be the highlights of the only areas of the province not represented in the meet will be the Hamilton and Ottawa areas. Hamilton schools are not members of the O.F.S.A.A. and the Ottawa schools are holding an invitation event on the same day as the O.F.S.A.A. Meet.

Palmer Ties For Top In 'Festival'

INDIANAPJOLIS (AP)—United States Open champion Arnold Palmer slammed his way into a three-day tie for the first-round lead in the $50,000 "500 Festival" golf tournament Thursday.

Shooting a four-under-par 67, Palmer shared the lead with Johnny Pott and Jim Ferree. The latter has won only one PGA tourney in five years of campaigning.

No fewer than 36 players in the 144-pro field shattered par 71 for the 5,800-yard speedway course, nestled in this famed auto racing centre. The battle for first money of $8,000 will be trimmed to the top 50 scorers after today's second round.

At 70 was Stan Leonard of Vancouver. Jerry Magee of Toronto had a 72, Al Johnston of Montreal a 73 and Al Belding of Toronto a 78.

English Clubs Win Soccer Tilts

MONTREAL (CP) — Inside-right Bobby Collins needed only seven minutes Thursday night to give Everton of England a 2-1 victory over Kilmarnock of Scotland in an International Soccer League game before a small crowd estimated at 4,000. Collins scored at 15:00 and 22:00 of the first half, both times on passes from inside left Alex Young to give Everton sole possession of the ISL leadership. Centre-forward Andy Kerr, Kilmarnock's leading scorer in the Scottish League last year, scored the Killies' only goal.

HAMILTON (CP) — Birmingham City of the First Division English League Thursday night defeated Hamilton Steelers of the Eastern Canada Professional League 4-2 in an exhibition soccer game that ended in a downpour. Some 3,800 drenched fans saw the touring English team take a 3-0 first half lead.

Marlins Hot on Jets Trail

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Buffalo Bisons, picking up steam in a drive for the first division in the International League, turned on the power again Thursday night for a 8-3 victory over Richmond.

The Bisons hit two home runs and four doubles and have now had at least one homer in each of their 11 games, and 21 in the past five. They have a team total of 34, with 22 in their own park, 18 of these coming in the last 10 games.

The Charleston Marlins also turned on the power and won over Rochester 4-3 to climb within 15 percentage points of first - place Columbus, whose game with Toronto was rained out. Jersey City edged Syracuse 5-4 in the other game.

BOTH HIT HOMERS

Bob Sadowski and Felix Torres homered for Buffalo. Sadowski's homer in the first inning was his fifth consecutive hit, and second consecutive game tripper. He was 4-4 Wednesday. Torres' homer was his 8 and extended his hitting string to 13 consecutive games.

Tony Curry chipped in with a double, his 14th extra base hit in 16 games for Buffalo. Ray Blyaloven with the loss. Ruben Gomez won.

Grover Gregory won his fourth in five decision for Charleston, scattering eight hits and fanning 10. Tim McCarver's first homer offset one by the Wings' John Orsino while Jim Beachamp's double, a three-base error, and a single by Bob Olivares broke a 1-1 tie in the eighth for Charleston's victory. Herb Moford was the loser.

Jersey City tagged Fred Brutsbuer and reliever Jim Collums for three runs in the ninth for the victory. Willie Mirando's error on Dino Rojas' grounder let in the winning run after two singles, a double and a ground out tied the game. Andre Ayon was the winner in relief.

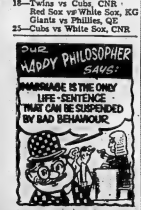
Patricks Meet Harvey, No Comment



MONTREAL (CP) — Doug Harvey and Muzz Patrick, general manager of New York Rangers, met into a huddle Thursday and when it ended neither the veteran Montreal Canadiens defenceman nor Patrick was talking.

The meeting was arranged after the Rangers had sought and obtained permission from the Montreal National Hockey League club to reopen negotiations with Harvey.

Harvey previously had turned down the Rangers' offer for him to become playing coach, in a deal to be arranged with Canadiens.

Patrick was reported hopeful that no one offer would be so attractive Harvey couldn't turn it down.

Tigers Start Looking Over Shoulder

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

It 's a far cry from today's proud standard-bredo, hoofs pounding the turf under the brilliance of night lights, to the first "harness race" I saw.

That happened when I was a toddler and my father took me to a North Hastings county fair. I think it was Coe Hill. We travelled by train, hauled by a smoke-belching monster that was the flagship of the C.O.R. Take the hobbies off the coal-eating old granny, give her the whip and she would snort along at the breakneck speed of 10 per hour.

The boss of the train was a conductor named Paddy Shannon and I remember the likeable Paddy telling a bunch of us kids some tall stories of his experiences on the railroad.

Paddy told us we could pick blueberries once we got north of Marmora. "You can get off and pick along the track," grinned Paddy. "You won't have any trouble catchin' up with us."

Any way we finally arrived at the destination, enjoyed the kiddy part of the fair and then came the highlight of the afternoon, the races.

If memory is right there were six entries. They did not use sulkies, but a rather type topless buggy. The drivers did not wear silks, but their Sunday best, looking uncomfortable in stiff collars and whatnot.

The fun came in what I think was the main event. It appears some of the boys had been fraternizing with a jug or jugs of North Hastings best corn likker, and decided ot play a practical joke. The result was startlingly funny.

These corn-fed cut-ups had changed the left front wheel of the buggy for that of the right hind-wheel. And anyone or another the prank went un-noticed at start-time.

And away they went. Two of the horse-drawn vehicles wobbled like a drunken sailor with one foot in the gutter. They kibbetty-bobbled around the small track while the crowd roared with laughter. I never did find out who won the race but it all ended with one buggy equipped with four hind wheels and the other vice versa.

But that was a long time ago and there'll be no "sich cuttins up" at the Quinte Driving and Riding Club meet here tomorrow night.

For the first time in history here the meet will be held under the lights (it is now legal in Ontario), and club officials anticipate a good attendance at their first of five summer meets.

The lights will be switched at intervals so that spectators can see the horses at all times. Betting privileges have been secured and with some of the finest harness horse-flesh in the district on hand, some sharp racing should be seen.

There will be three classes and six heats. There is a .36 Class, a Classified Class and a Free-for-All. There is a fine entry list and harness-racing enthusiasts won't be disappointed in the first show of the season. The first heat gets under way at eight o'clock.

THE WHIP

Tonight at Memorial Arena Whipper Billy Watson makes his 1961 debut here in a main bout clinch with Ivan "The Terrible" Kalmikoff. The popular Whipper has a score to settle with the bearded Russky and he figures tonight will be as good as any to square the difference. Mr. K. had better watch his tactics or he is liable to find himself being pulled apart whether by whiskers.

Stan Stasiak and Tony Marino tangle in what should be a ring classic while six-foot-eight Tom (Emperor) Jones mixes matters with the Hooded Black Terror.

And as the arena's "Senility" says, the place goes from mat to music tomorrow night when Dave Dawson and his Wildwood, a rock-bot combo, play their first engagement here. Looks like a real good night for those who are young and others that act like it.

Big Three Closing In

By RED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

The pre - season favorites appear to be on the move in pursuit of Detroit's front - running Tigers in the American League pennant race.

While the Tigers still are 12 games over .500, second place Cleveland Indians now have won eight of their last nine games. The defending champions New York Yankees have won four of fifth and Baltimore Orioles, a half - game back of the Yanks, have won four straight.

The Indians hit four home runs and whipped Los Angeles Angels 13-5 Thursday, trimming Detroit's lead to 3½ games after the Tigers blew a five-run lead and lost 7-6 in 11 innings at Minnesota.

New York, with southpaw Whitey Ford winning his sixth in a row, defeated Boston 6-4 and Baltimore beat Chicago White Sox skidding to their sixth straight loss with a 6-4 decision.

DODGERS WIN

In the National League, a seventh - inning home run by Tommy Davis backed the three-hit pitching of Sandy Koufax and gave Los Angeles Dodgers a 1-0 victory at St. Louis. The only other games scheduled—Pittsburgh at Chicago and Philadelphia at Milwaukee — were rained out.

Koufax, now 5-2 with the first complete game of his career against the Cards in 19 starts, struck out eight and walked three and allowed nothing but singles.

He had a one - hitter until the ninth when Curt Flood and Bill White singled before right-fielder Jackie Jensen scared Koufax Boyer's drive on the run and doubled up Flood at second base for the final out. Bob Gibson was the loser, allowing five hits and five walks. He struck out eight.

The Yankees edged within five games of Detroit by building a 5-0 lead in two innings against Billy Mudfett as Johnny Blanchard and Tony Kubek belted two - run homers. Ford gave up only five hits, but needed reliever Luis Arroyo who came through in a hitless two - inning mop up.

RETIRED 14 IN ROW

Ford blanked the Red Sox on two singles, retiring 14 in a row at one point, before giving up two walks and a three - run homer by Jackie Jensen in the seventh.

Whitey, whose lone defeat came in the season opener, hasn't had such a good start since 1958.

Orioles scored six runs in the first two innings — on nine walks, a sacrifice, a force out and just two singles off loser Herb Score and reliever Juan Pizarro and Frank Baumann.

Steve Barber was the winner but gave up a three - run homer by Sherm Lollar and finally needed another shutout relief job by Hoyt Wilhelm to nail it. Wilhelm, making his 19th appearance is in Baltimore's 41 games, gave up two hits in his two innings and now has a 1.36 earned run average.

Johnny Romano, Woody Held, Willie Kirkland and Bubba Phillips topped the homers for the Indians who had 17 hits against loser Ron Moeller and five relievers. Romano and Kirkland each drove in four runs. Moeller, who went 11 with the aid of 2 1-3 inning of hitless relief from Barry Latman after giving up two homers by Leroy Thomas.

A double by Lennie Green, who stretched his hitting streak to 22 games, and a single by Jim Lemon finally won it for the Twins.

Detroit scored five in the first on hooners by Al Kaline and Norm Cash and got the other run in the first on a Billy Bruton homer. Reliever Paul Giel won his first for the Twins who had homers from Lemon and Earl Battey. Joon Donohue was the loser.

Al Pitarch's two - run single served it up for Joe As in a three - run fifth off Donovan. Willie Tasby and Gene Green pounced for the Senators' runs off Joe Nuxhall who pitched his first complete game since 1953. Leo Posada of the As was struck in the face by a Donovan pitch and was taken to hospital for examination.

Rain Halts 5-4 Game

Joyces Shade Flyers

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Joyce Real Estate and the RCAF Flyers battled through six and a half frames of a Belleville and District softball league game in bone-chilling winds at the Fairgrounds last night.

Rain finally called a halt to activity, with Joyces' winning their initial league start 5-4.

The Real Estate crew had opened up a 5-1 lead in the sixth and appeared to have matters under control when the defence fell apart and pitcher Doug Ellis began to falter in the seventh.

Girard's hit to centre and a throwing error on Mowat's grounder to second made it 5-3 and put a man on second. Kibblewhite advanced the runners while grounding out and Taylor's infield hits scored another run. Two more errors and a walk made it 5-4 and placed runners on second and third with two outs. Ellis seemed content to end the rally and the game.

Ellis, making his first R. and D. start, worked a changeup pitch to near perfection and allowed but seven well-scattered hits. He struck out three, walked two.

Lefty Ken Kibblewhite played the route. He gave up half a dozen hits, struck out four and passed a pair.

Joyces opened the scoring with a pair of runs in the third on Austin's single, Carr's punched double past second scoring one, and a Flyer error.

John Hughes broke the goose egg for the RCAF in the sixth with a well-tagged home run to left-centre field. It was a close play at the plate with a low throw ruining any chance of getting the runner.

The winner's only safe hit in their big sixth, when they scored three runs, was a scratch single by Goyer. Both Kibblewhite's walks, a hit batter, an error and a couple of passed balls got the other runs across. Some weird umpiring in both the fifth and sixth innings prevented Joyces from adding to their total.

Claude Carr was the only Belleville hitter with a double and single. Ellis hammered a pair of triples while the other safeties went to Guy Austin, Gary Goyer and Jackie Elliott.

John Hughes was the only safeties went to Guy Austin, Gary Goyer and Jackie Elliott.

John Hughes was the only singled for the Flyers while "Sammy" Taylor had two singles. Other hits went to "Bud" Lahey, Gil Girard and Kibblewhite.

All clubs in the league have need action now. Bobcats are in first with a 2-0 record followed by Joyces with 1-0, Picton with 1-1, Cobourg with 0-1 and RCAF with 0-2.

Canada, U.S. Agree on Suspensions

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—A new Canada - United States agreement aimed at putting teeth into player - transfer laws was set up at the annual Canadian Amateur Hockey Association meeting which ended Thursday.

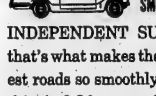
The agreement improved machinery designed to uphold suspensions of players who jump a team and illegally join another club on the other side of the line.

The new pact was reached at a special conference between CAHA and U.S. Amateur Hockey Association representatives.

Regulations in effect for a number of years were that a team in either association could take on player, except Junior A, from a team in the other association. CAHA Secretary - Manager Gordon Juckes said in an interview there was no problem until last year when U.S. teams took about 130 Canadians across the line.

As a result of the latest meeting between the two associations it was agreed a team using an ineligible player would be expelled from its league.

DRIVER SUSPENDED



MONTREAL (CP)—Keith Waples, one of the leading drivers at the Richelieu Park harness meet, has been suspended for five days. The judges said they weren't satisfied with Waples' handling of the horse Agate during a race Tuesday night. Agate, a heavy favorite in with, finished third.

CAHA Gives Green Light

Canadian Teams Will Visit Europe

By CHARLES GERKIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has laid tentative plans for an ambitious program of international competition next winter.

While internal tidying-up occupied most of the association's time at its four - day annual meeting here, international matters took their share of the spotlight.

Delegates from nine CAHA branches gave their executive the green light to negotiate overseas tours for possibly two Canadian teams next winter. The executive will also work on the possibility of bringing two foreign teams to Canada, likely in November.

It is virtually certain that the Allan Cup champion Whitby Terriers will represent Canada at the world hockey championships, March 8-18 in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Gordon Juckes' of Melville, Sask., secretary-manager of the CAHA, said in an interview following the meeting that the association is convinced international trips by Canadian teams do much good for hockey.

HELP ATTRACT FANS

"You take the Winnipeg Maroons for example," he said. "Look at the way they drew crowds after returning from Czechoslovakia, both at home and in Galt and Kitchener in the Allan Cup final."

Juckes said Canada can send teams overseas even two at a time without financial worries.

Delegates were of the same mind when they empowered the executive to go for two short trips by two clubs rather than one long tour by one club.

First-in line as host countries are Russia and Czechoslovakia. Both have issued invitations. Sweden also invited a Canadian team, but CAHA President Jack Roxburgh of Simcoe questioned the advisability of accepting that in the light of last winter's fracas between the world champion Trail Smoke Eaters and the Swedish national team.

Still mindful of the "Canadian brutes" label the Smoke Eaters received from the Swedish press, Roxburgh suggested that Sweden be bypassed by Canadian teams the year. However, at the urging of Bob LeSel of Chambly, Que., CAHA past-president and president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, the decision was left to the executives' discretion.

Bob Stevenson, president of the senior Port Arthur Bearcats, was the first to apply for one of the tours. He said his players already have arranged for time off from work, a major problem usually facing a touring amateur team.

Juckes said few European national teams have plans for exhibition games prior to the world championships in Colorado. He suggested the association might invite the second national teams from Russia and Czechoslovakia for a November tour.

PARDON ME, STEVE — Billy Gardner, Minnesota Twins, is balanced on his hands after making throw to first base and falling on Steve Boros, Detroit, who slid into second base in third inning of their American League game in Twin Cities yesterday. Boros was out at second on start of double play with Gardner's throw catching Dick Brown at first. Brown had grounded to Raymon Kilebrew who threw to pitcher. Detroit scored five runs in first inning on two hoosers. (AP Wirephoto).

Minor Hockey On Increase Says CAHA

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — The number of minor hockey players in Canada jumped to 194,682 in 1960-61 from 118,183 the previous season, the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association's minor hockey committee reported Thursday.

Jack Chirrie, of Toronto, spokesman for the committee, said the Alberta, Maritimes, Ontario, Saskatchewan and Thunder Bay branches recorded increases in the number of players registered. British Columbia, Manitoba, Ottawa district and Quebec, showed decreases.

The CAHA spent $47,418 on minor hockey in 1961, a decrease of about $000 from 1960.

The association adopted committee adopted recommendations that Minor Hockey Week for 1962 start Jan. 20.

WILL TOUR CANADA

OXFORD, England (AP) — A combined Oxford and Cambridge universities track and field team will leave England by air June 5 for a three-week tour of Canada and the United States. It is hoped that Herb Elliott, Australian holder of the world mile record and Olympic Games 1,500-metres champion who is studying at Cambridge, will be included in the party. Meets include one against a Hamilton Olympic Club of Ontario.

Galt Bids For World Tournament

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—A representative of Galt Terriers, Allan Cup champions, asked the Canadian amateur hockey association Thursday to allow the club to represent Canada at next year's world hockey championships.

Terriers manager Len Gaudette was told to put the application in writing along with any other interested teams, but the CAHA gives an almost automatic okay to the bid of the Allan Cup winner.

In fact, the meeting approved a motion by Quebec brigade Frank Dilio that Galt go the championships if it meets qualifications.

Delegate Earl Dawson of Manitoba put in a bid for the Allan Cup runner - up Winnipeg Maroons if Galt can't make it.

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—Jack Roxburgh of Simcoe Thursday was re-elected president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. Art Potter of Edmonton was returned as first vice-president and Lionel Fleury of Quebec City, second vice-president.

'Never Reach Top Ones'

NEW YORK (AP) — District attorneys and college officials in many parts of the United States are buzzing from the impact of the basketball-scandal already involving 32 players, 17 schools and 38 games.

Alfred J. Scotti, chief assistant district attorney in New York, refused to discuss any possible future developments except to say, "The investigation is continuing. We still are concentrating on fixes."

Ray Paprocky, New York University star who was one of 12 new names brought into the scandal Thursday, said in an interview: "They'll never get the big guys."

District Attorney Frank S. Hogan said Paprocky admitted receiving $2,300 to shave points in four games last season.

"After you reach the Hackens (Joseph Hacken, 48, of New York, who has been indicted on 17 counts of bribery and one of conspiracy), it goes to the top and no one tells on them," Paprocky continued. "They'd put a bullet in the guy who talks. The ones they have now, they'll never open up. They're afraid."

ADIOS, MAKES DEBUT

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — Adios Butler, the fastest harness horse in history, makes his 1961 debut at Roosevelt Raceway tonight, and his competition will be anything but routine.

Also in the field of eight for the $25,000 one-mile New Frontier Pace are New Zealand's False Step, winner of an international event at Yonkers Raceway last week, and Bye Bye Byrd, Rex Larkin's sidewheeler who holds the one major record which has escaped Adios Butler—the mile - mark on a half-mile track.

The odds-makers have enough faith in Adios Butler's ability, despite his inactivity, to make him a 4-5 favorite, with Step the second choice at 7-2. Bye Bye Byrd was held at 4-1 in the early line.

COULD THIS HAPPEN TO YOU?

A group of men decided to sponsor and promote a harness racing event. Their promotional costs were $250, but they expected to have their money returned through the gate receipts. About two hours before the first race, down came the rain. Only a few people paid to watch a race while standing in the rain and the promoters lost over $200.

An inexpensive rain insurance policy would have reimbursed the promoters. If you plan any outdoor event on rain insurance. We will assist you with premium costs.

CREATOR WITH "FAMILY" — Roger Lemelin of Quebec, creator of The Plouffe Family and other television typewriter surrounded by some of the original cast who became household words in Quebec as a result of the program. The Plouffe Family ran for eight years, six of them on both the French and English CBC networks. (CP Photo)

Want to Become Famous? Then Say What You Think Says Television Writer

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—Roger Lemelin, creator of television's Plouffe Family, sat at a table in the oak-panelled Quebec Garrison Club looking a dry gin highball.

"We Canadians," he said, "are so frustrated by compromise in our daily lives that we say man who dares stand up and honestly says what he thinks becomes famous overnight."

The tall, dark-haired author was referring to his sometimes biting, sometimes compassionate study of Quebec life in the TV series, The Plouffe Family and now The Town Above.

The Plouffes ran for eight years, six of them on both the French and English CBC networks. The Town Above now is completing its second year in French. It was discontinued on the English network after its initial season.

Through those years Lemelin has been attacked in the House of Commons and criticized acidly by several groups of intellectuals in Quebec who professed him of propagating foul language on the television network and of slandering his own people.

LOVES A FIGHT

Few months have gone by when Lemelin, who loves a fight, was not the subject of letters to the editor, either attacking or defending him.

From time to time he would get into the thick of the fight with an outburst of his own.

A recent incident involved an anonymous letter from a group of religious brothers, here, published in a Montreal newspaper, blasting Lemelin as a bad influence on youth.

Infuriated, Lemelin started a school by school search for the writers, promising startled school authorities that when he caught the culprit he would give him a piece of his mind.

Lemelin found the institution, but no one would tell him who wrote the letter. Steaming, he went home and wrote a typical column sizzler in which he said people who write letters anonymously are weak souls more to be pitied than condemned.

This prompted a flow of protests. This time, however, all the letters were signed.

One wrote in support of Lemelin, saying sarcastically: "I accuse Roger Lemelin of being a French-Canadian . . . and of having enough talent to depict the people of his province with realism."

SUCCESS IN BUSINESS

Prolific and controversial as ever, Lemelin is still uncertain about his future after 22 years of battling his way up from the Lower Town slum where he was born.

He is a business successful manufacturing firms—and is one of the applicants for a license to operate a second French-language private TV station in Quebec City.

He has won recognition as a writer and has arrived socially in what is possibly Canada's most class-conscious city.

Would he write another book?

"I don't know. I like television. It is a star which a whole nation without a soul hangs on to desperately. . . . I can vicariously one can feel in Canada is through this little screen."

But at 41, after three novels published in several languages in North America and Europe and after eight years in television, Lemelin feels he must become to grips with deeper problems as a citizen of a nation which he feels is afraid to face reality.

"CANADIAN COPY"?

"Is the Canadian Confederation a piece of trickery from Quebec's point of view? Is Canada essentially a carbon copy of the United States using the French-Canadian element as a touch of makeup to look a little different?

"If these things are true, then I'll go on playing this comedy"

Searching for the answers, he says:

"We are a small people, here in Quebec, with a complex of defeat. We should avoid this reliance on English Canada. We must look for our own vitality . . . The best example we can give to English Canada is the example of our own efforts to achieve success as a national entity."

"As a people we have a remarkable vitality, or capacity for growth, which we must turn toward intellectual development, toward science and the arts, drawing on our own inner strength."

The conversation turned to Lemelin's youth.

SCHOLARSHIP GLORY

"As a Lower Town boy your future was all marked out. You could become a priest if you were brilliant and the parish priest sponsored your education. Otherwise you were headed for the shoe factory. I was brilliant in school but was not interested in the priesthood. I wanted glory.

"In a French - Canadian I could see but one road—sports. In the United States the situation is somewhat similar with street. They become boxers, track stars and so on. Anyway, I decided I would become a champion ski jumper."

The decision, and a fall on a Laurentian mountain slope, marked the turning point of his life.

Between 17 and 19 he lay in a hospital bed, a mangled left ankle either in a cast or under treatment. He read all he could get—chiefly French novels or translations of the Russian classics.

His first contact with Quebec's middle class came when he sold an article on French writer Leon Bloy. Andre Gireoux, now an author in his own right, bought it for a magazine. Lemelin began frequent trips from Lower Town to Upper Town.

GENTLE SLOPE

La Pente Douce—the gentle slope—plays a dominant role in Lemelin's writing. This is the Lower Town people's name for Tragedie Hill which leads from the semi-slum area to Upper Town. For Lemelin the hill was a symbol, the bridge between the poverty-stricken world he had known and the world of Quebec's intellectuals.

One day I was coming back from Giroux' home and I saw the pack of Lower Town bosses below. I decided to write my first book."

As Pied de la Pente Douce was an immediate success in Quebec, it was published in English in Canada, Britain and the United States and in several other languages abroad.

It presented a realistic picture of life of the working class in Lemelin's St. Sauveur district, reflected in the hero's efforts to break out of his inhibiting surroundings.

It stirred up a furore, first in Lemelin's home parish where the priest thundered that he would write "hell's red ink," then throughout the city where it was attacked in resolutions by clergy and laymen.

WROTE SECOND BOOK

The fuss attracted readers and attention from outside publishers. Soon Lemelin was writing a second book, La Famille Plouffe, a rollicking farce contrasting the melancholy existence of the poor with the efforts of a few among them to attain a higher cultural standard. The central character was Ovide Plouffe, a shoe worker who spent all his money on operatic records.

This book also stirred a controversy and the same reaction as the first—it shocked Quebec society and never until then read a raw-worded, realistic account of life in their city.

Lemelin's next two other novel, Pierre le Magnifique, about a rural seminary student, drawn away from his aspirations to become a priest, sinking into sordid turpitude, and his struggle to rediscover a purpose in life and find God.

This was Lemelin's first examination of the upper class and he feels it was his best work although it was less of a success than the first two.

So far, he says, 300,000 of his books have been sold. The grind of writing television programs left him less and less time for books.

His escape from the pressure now that he can afford it, is found in an annual trip to Europe where he spends a week at the gambling tables of Monte Carlo.

The jaunt reminds his friends of Dostoievsk, the Russian novelist who had a ruinous passion for gambling.

"The difference," says Lemelin with a chuckle, "is that I always win."

One-Time Cowboy Star Host-Manager of Cafe

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The seven months Johnny Mack Brown, the one - time cowboy star, has been working as host-manager for a Beverly Hills restaurant, and he's enjoying himself.

"It's hard work, but I like it," he said. "I figure it's much the same as acting — I'm dealing with people. I'm learning the restaurant business and I get to see a lot of my old friends.

I figure my contacts in the movie and sport worlds pay off for the restaurant.

"Besides, it gives me something to do. It keeps my mind busy and takes up the slack between acting jobs. You can't just sit at home waiting for the phone to ring."

Johnny hasn't acted for a year; his last work was on the Perry Mason and Wells Fargo TV shows. He wants to start reactivating his acting career and his restaurant schedule will allow it.

RETAINED SOFT VOICE

He still has that soft, southern - tinged voice, but now he uses it to calm waiting customers rather than woo western gals.

Johnny, 56, was one of the few real athletes to make the big time in movies. He caught two touchdown passes in the 1926 Rose Bowl game for Alabama, which defeated Washington 20-19.

Earlier, Johnny became acquainted with veteran George Fawcett on a film location in Alabama; Fawcett urged the young football player to try films.

When Alabama returned to the Rose Bowl in 1927, Johnny came there as assistant coach. He looked up Fawcett, who showed him around the studio. A contract with MGM followed and he made his first western with Joan Crawford. He also did films opposite Greta Garbo, Marion Davies and Montreal-born Norma Shearer and costarred with Toronto - born Mary Pickford in Coquette, which won her an academy award.

Johnny specialized in westerns at Universal and later at Monogram, where he ground seven a year. These pictures have returned to haunt him on television; he gets no returns from them.

Physical Fitness Needed To Get Americans on Beam

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Close-Up, the ABC public affairs program, will devote eight hours next week to present The Flabby American.

The principal viewer - with - alarm will be a small, brunette woman of 97 with a figure which is decidedly unflabby. Her name is Jacqueline Cochran and her profession is physical fitness.

"The problem," said Miss Cochran, "is that we have largely caused today by women and children. Our present-day young so carefully that children today never really get a chance to run, climb trees, play anything. "Kids start out being confined in baby pens. Then they progress to strollers, and then to family cars. Then they go on to school buses and wait by the door. I'd stop school buses a mile away from school, and put in wide safeways for the children and make them walk two miles a day."

Miss Prudden says today's crop of youngsters is in much worse physical shape than their parents and grandparents.

MUSCLES REMEMBER

"People who are 40 or older face certain facts about their muscles, even when long out of use, that scientists don't know how can get a man or woman over 40 back in good physical shape in six weeks, and it takes me two years to do the same for children 14 to 18."

Modern conveniences, she says, help produce flabby muscles.

"Housework today is from the elbow—unfortunately, there is no longer enough bending and reaching," she said. "Aging, after all, is merely moving in a narrower direction, and that's what these aids are permitting us to do."

In a recent test of muscular fitness among average-level children, 56 per cent failed. In the same test made in Europe, only four per cent failed.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Saturday, May 27, 1961

General Tendencies: You need to be on your toes to investigate whatever you do not understand and in a very secretive manner, since bringing anything into the open today or tonight can find much criticism leveled toward you. Make a point to show everyone that you have it in your power to act with real discretion and caginess. Then all can work out O.K.

Aries (March 21 to April 19): It is better if you do not follow the ideas of general advisor but carry through with what friends suggest who are better informed about your affairs. The adviser can only go along general principles and a standard pattern.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20): Higher-up and an associate are having an argument, and it behooves you to avoid both or you are made the goat and you lose out. However, be very sure you follow through diligently on any promises made. Be ethical and fear nothing.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): You can make some wonderful new contacts today, provided you get out of that easy chair and get into the swing of things. Step out early and look intently into new outlets that can prove most lucrative and far-flung.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 23) — Important you show newspaper, television or other media. Get out of that insufferable rut. The evening can then also be fine for social affairs and having a good time in general.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): It would be very wise to follow the ideas of a trusted friend who has your interests at heart, since any flights into the world of finance could end quite disastrously for you. P.M. get out to that nice social affair. Smile.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Be sure to follow every law that applies to your affairs or you get into trouble. Also, get any important bills paid, too. Have dinner at some charming restaurant this evening where there is also entertainment. Have fun.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20): Rather than concentrate on revenge right now, think along more constructive lines and improve your financial and health status. Get so enthused that you forget about those who have been small and mean. Let them stew in their own juice.

If your child is born today—there is bound to be so much inventive and investigative genius in this nature that you must early supervise all activities as well as give the finest education possible. Also, give spiritual training so that your progress does not go off on any tangents, due to the tremendous imagination in this nature. Teach early to look for the causes behind effects, then the success here is limitless.

ICE HITS INDUSTRY

HALIFAX (CP) —Ice closed in on the $10,000,000 Northumberland Strait lobstering industry nearly a month ago and still hasn't let go. Most of the industry's 5,000 fishermen have still to set traps and those who have report some of the poorest catches in years. The ice, usually out of the straits by mid-April, has shown no sign of melting this year.

CHILD FOR ADOPTION

Because this 8 months old baby boy has several races in his background, it is very hard to find the right parents for him. Caucasian mixed racial with Negro, Indian and White. He has been in foster care since birth and is very well adjusted. We have tested OWEN'S rate of development and find him to be fine. He is one of those responsive babies who loves to play attention. He smiles and laughs out loud when people talk to him and he is very active. He is a beautiful baby. Other children who feel they are younger might be the child they would make their own adoption. RETIRING FROM HYDRO — James S. Duncan, retiring chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, says he plans to spend his time travelling. A native of Scotland, Mr. Duncan worked with various business firms in Germany, France, England, and Argentina before settling in Canada. He was named Head of Hydro—one of the largest electrical utilities in the world—in 1956. (CP Photo).

James Duncan Will Continue To Travel After Retiring From HEPC on May 31st

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — James S. Duncan, who has spent much of his business career travelling the world, plans to spend his retirement doing exactly the same thing.

Ever since he announced two months ago that he was retiring May 31 as chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission—one of the largest electrical utilities in the world—it has been understood that James Duncan would be on the move again.

Now he has spelled it out.

"We are going to take a long holiday—the first I have had in many years. We—my wife and I—will visit England, Italy and Greece. Then I have a cruiser chartered in Athens and from there we'll cruise the coast of Yugoslavia, one of the most beautiful in the world."

After the holiday what?

PLANS ECONOMIC STUDY

"We will go to Afghanistan and Iran and I will make an economic and political study of the area. Later I may write a book about it and speak on it."

The Duncans plan to keep their homes in Bermuda and Jamaica "and well spend a good deal of time in England."

"I don't know where we'll settle down — my wife would like it to be in Spain." Victoria Martinez Alonso Duncan was born in Cordoba.

Wherever it is, it will probably have to wait a while, because "The Chairman" — he isn't Jim or Mr. Duncan around Hydro—plans to have a look at Africa first "and that may take me some months."

James Duncan was born 68 years ago of Scottish parents in Stake and was at when he went to work in Berlin as an office boy for the Massey - Harris implement firm.

That began a 40-year association with the company known today as Massey Ferguson Limited, an association that took him all over the globe.

ROSE THROUGH RANKS

He was a salesman in Ontario; a travelling man in France; an inspector in England. Then he went back to France as an executive, rising to European general manager before moving to the Argentine as general manager. He returned to Canada in 1935 and worked his way to president by 1941.

Along the way he acquired fluency in French, Spanish and German to supplement the English he speaks in rolling Churchillian tones.

Never active in politics himself, his career has cut across political boundaries. He headed the organization of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan during the Second World War and declined the ministry of air portfolio in the cabinet of Liberal prime minister Mackenzie King.

It was Premier Leslie Frost of Ontario, a Progressive Conservative, who appointed Mr. Duncan head of Hydro in 1956 for three years and prevailed on him to stay an extra two.

But travel has remained his first love — "there were discussions about me taking an embassy" when he left Massey-Harris for the Hydro job.

His career has been marked by honors.

In 1956 he was chosen by the United States National Safety Council as Organization Man "Canadian businessman of the year."

In 1960 he was bitterly criticized by Liberal and CCF members of the legislature over Hydro's purchase of former Indian lands in the Sarnia area. A royal commission later said there was no evidence of improper dealings or careless judgment.

His wanderlust got him into the legislature again the same year when Liberal leader John Wintermeyer criticized him for not making "the business of Hydro" his first interest.

The politician took exception to Mr. Duncan's travels to the Soviet Union and Red China and his attendance at a New York luncheon for Premier Khrushchev.

TURNED TABLES

His ability to turn Politicians' tables on interrogators was demonstrated during a press party for newspaper men. Mr. Duncan began an apparently lengthy speech and was bombarded by Daughter Marula is studying in Paris for a doctorate in literature and Spanish.

Marula, the Duncans' other daughter, will go to Europe with her parents and join friends there on another cruise.

Mr. Duncan says he has always had an "interest in countries that can be influenced by communism What happens in these uncommitted countries can condition the lives of all of us."

Two factors govern his decision to make the fact - finding trip through the Middle East: he has the time and the money to do "something I'm interested in."

2. He has the experience and independence to "recognize and understand what I see."

Of the Middle East countries he will visit, he says:

"I don't think they're down the drain at all, but Egypt, and Turkey, are becoming pretty well tied up with the Communist bloc. In time they might move into that orbit."

Two Workmen Killed In Toronto Subway Cave-In

Civic Leaders Call For Immediate Probe

TORONTO (CP) — A construction cave-in, first major accident of Toronto's new east-west subway, killed two workmen Friday night.

Civic leaders promptly called for an immediate and thorough investigatin.

Crushed and smothered in the tons of rubble and wet cement were engineer Edgar Oskamp, 34, and carpentry foremen John Blaney, 29.

Three others were injured. Ernest De Pole, 46, was released from hospital after treatment for a leg injury but John Pelc, 36, and Scott Ociello, 27, remained in hospital.

Mayor Nathan Phillips said the accident "comes as a shock to me . . . there should be an immediate investigation to see where the fault was." Controller Donald Summerville echoed his call for "a complete investigation."

The crash occurred at 7:40 p.m. EDT at Prince Arthur Avenue and Bedford Road, a block from the plush Park Plaza apartments at Bloor Street and Avenue Road.

TOOK HOURS

It was early this morning before rescue crews, using acetylene torches and heavy - duty cranes, were able to clay through an estimated eight tons of debris to reach the bodies of the victims.

The excavation at this point is 30 feet deep and 70 feet wide. A top deck of reinforcing steel-work and wood frames tumbled into the lower level, consisting of wood forms.

The collapse came after the night crew had begun pansing cement by a continuous pour known as "shotcrete."

Di Pede said the plastering on the roof "just started pushing, grew way.

"The top half let about 30 ft. Then a will of earth fell on top of us."

Bystanders reported only that they heard a crash, screams—and silence.

About 30 men were working in the area at the time of the accident. Another worker, Gordon Johnston, said: "I was down and another worker," Gordon Johnston, said: "I was down and another worker, Gordon Johnston, said: "I was down and another worker, Gordon Johnston, said: "I was down and another worker, into a sailing room for white persons when they arrived from Montgomery, Ala. Wednesday in what he described as a "plot to arrest Negroes."

FREEDOM RIDERS

At Montgomery, six of 13 "Freedom Riders" arrested on charges of cash bond each and when they attempted to get integrated seating at a bus station lunch counter still were in jail.

FREE CHAPLAIN

The chaplain at Yale University and four others from earlier college were released under $1,000 cash bond each and flew to New York, explaining that transportation compelled their return. Final exams begin next week.

Before leaving, however, they held a press conference at the home of Rev. Ralph Abernathy, a Negro integration leader who is among the six in jail. The home was heavily guarded.

George Smith, a Negro law student at Yale, said Abernathy had been denied permission to telephone his wife since his arrest Thursday.

"Those who remain in jail have agreed with the evening meal, planned for 6 p.m. today, which will continue until he is allowed to call his wife," Smith said.

Rev. William Coffin, Yale chaplain, termed the arrests completely illegal. He also said a Yale faculty member sent down $7,000 for use as bond money, but declined to name the faculty member.

MUST BEAR BURDEN

Coffin, who is a member of the presidential Peace Corps Advisory Council (Peace Corps), told reporters after spending 24 hours in jail:

"While I have been in jail I have had time to think of every Peace Corps man and woman, whether they come from the South, and particularly those going to Tanganyika, the Philippines and Colombia. They will have to bear the burden of Montgomery, Ala."

Also released on bond were Rev. Gaylord Boyce, assistant professor of religion at Yale; Dr. David Swift, professor of religion at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., and Dr. John Magee, assistant professor of religion at Wesleyan.

In announcing the arrest of the white youths at the meeting of the Negro integration leader, Graham Shuttlesworth, the organization showed Seay was slightly wounded by a pellet fired by one of the mob.

Gosdeg said all six have been charged over to juvenile authorities.

Montgomery police gave no indication that they would be no longer in the "Freedom Riders" case, but objective or lawful discrimination.

In New York, Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People urged Negro students to defy segregation when traveling through the South on their summer vacations.

Farms Escape Frost Damage In District

District farmers at market today reported they escaped frost damage last night but complained of high winds and bone-chilling cold.

"We didn't get frost", said one farmer, "but we don't think it was much like cold air for our own comfort".

Prices remained unchanged from last week's level. Asparagus was available for 30 cents a bunch or two bunches for 35 cents. Rhubarb was 10 cents a bunch and tomato sets were offered at 40 cents for 15. There was a good supply of apple vegetables and many varieties of transplants and flowers.

Although farmers have yesterday well completed seeding operations and in most cases this year's vegetable crop is beginning to peek above the ground, the farmers still do not like working in the chilly air. One farmer recalled that last year on the identical date he was wired a small garden patch for irrigation heating and had grown vegetables for canning and sold for anyone else.

Another topic of conversation today was Mayor A. McLean Haig's prediction in city council this week that the drop is coming when the outside market may have to be moved in order to provide more street parking downtown.

The mayor's council looks far enough into the future", he said, adding: "Do they think that if they move our market elsewhere that we'll continue to come to Belleville? Don't they realize that while we are in the city we do much of our own shopping? Many of us live closer to other towns than we do to Belleville. Perhaps we'll have to go there".

SUSPECT

"more likely" than Parks' earlier statements, saying Mr. Moore as "the perpetrator of both of these murders".

RAN OVER HEAD

According to Parks, Phillips said, Maxey took Mrs. Reid out of the car, and ran the motor back and forth across her head five or six times.

Maxey, however, claimed he never touched the woman, Parks said.

Phillips said both Parks and Maxey had been drinking prior to the murders of which they are accused.

Parks arrested Parks and Maxey as a result of the arrest Patterson in John Trentelohl, who reported he saw Parks in the black 1957 Chevrolet owned Maxey and jotted down the licence number. Parks told Constable Wilbur Morris, who said he witnessed the abduction of the two women.

Hand Out Instructions For Road-eo

TRENTON—An instruction sheet for the June 3 Kiwanis bicycle rodeo has been released to school children and parents.

Boys and girls between the ages of 8 and 16 are eligible to enter. Safety certificates, as well as cups and shields for first, second and third, will be awarded.

Would-be participants are asked to check their bikes for the following: handle bars, fenders, tires, brakes, bells or horns, reflector tapes, pedals, headlights, reflectors. Cycling commandments are also asked to check to see that their seats and chains are in good condition.

It is not necessary that bicycles be in A-1 shape, but extra points may be gained by care in this department.

Mrs. Ethel Empence, from Dufferin; Prince Charles, North Trenton and St. Peter schools, are asked to meet at 8.30 a.m. at the market square. They will be met by police and the community gardens. At the end of the rodeo, the boys will be escorted back to the market and sent home.

Mail-order children, from Broadacre, Queen Elizabeth St. Peter and Senior and College Street schools, are asked to arrive at the Gardens at 10.15 a.m. (Police and the tests and examinations will go on until completed.

Children Place Emphasis on Playgrounds

TRENTON — Prize winning posters and poems submitted in the Community Planning Week contest for elementary school students have caused a great deal of eyebrow raising and head scratching on the part of members of the Trenton and Suburban Planning Board, as well as amused and interested visitors to the planning display at the exhibition.

Two facts are evident: (1) The minds of this elementary school students have a keen interest in planning for the future of the town; (2) these students are slightly dubious about their ability and right to make their dreams of planning come true.

In the poster division of the contest, five classes in six consecutive facilities. "We Need Playgrounds," say two posters, depicting kids on a chain-gang basis and a traffic-ridden street. "A Recreation Area For Trenton," is the demand of a number of artists. One poster pictures the present town bridge and adds, pictorially, the suggestion for future planners—a suspension bridge.

In the poetry division, the kids really "get with it" and they're pressing their elders.

"Let our town of Trenton we lack many things," says one. "The nest sisters are peasants and the west sisters are kings."

The poetess goes on to exhort voters to elect councillors who do not make a difference between the "east and west" (sides of the river) "so we can all pay our taxes with more rest."

The rhymsters are agreed that the town needs a new playground, but the water front should be cleaned up and "Trenton Beach will they do it?" asks one, dreaming of Trenton in 2000 A.D.

Winners in the poster contest (grade 7) were: Evelyn Bennett, Heidi Prince and Rosanne MacDonald.

Secondary poetry winners: Nancy Treloar, Paula Smith, Ronald Cowden.

The first copies of the Spotlite came out on Thursday of this week and were presented to winners of the various literary competitions. Editor Maureen Nolan thanked all those who worked so hard to make the 1961 edition such a success. Additional copies will be distributed at the Book Room next week.

Although Trenton chalked up 13 points only and placed 10th in the COSSA track and field competitions last week, our students are proud of the hard work and fine spirit of co-operation shown by our athletes.

THE TATTLER

Now for the latest gossip:

Some guys Diana Gill, what did you say Jim's last name was?

Carol Ann Rearden won a-round four prizes in the literary contest. Very good, but not unusual for such a talented lady.

John Hyatt and Knuck McMurter played a game of "swap ball" last Tuesday. John walked off with Judy's sandwich, and Wendy Campbell was seen walking hand in hand with Judy's flame.

Marney Hogg was rather red when she saw her photo, in the candid camera section of the Spotlite. (I confess, I supplied the pic.)

Care to see what Linda Woolley looks like just before turning in for the night? See page 56 of the Spotlite.

Another reward for going "steady". Charlene Masters and Blair Seidemore have been going together for seven months.

The affair is aimed at raising money for the auxiliary's work at the hospital.

in all ridings with the notable exception of Leeds, where Conservatives say they have a tough fight on their hands.

A New Party spokesman expressed cautious hope of an upset victory in Esquimalt-Saanich similar to the surprise New Party win in the fall's Peterborough byelection.

Whatever the outcome of the Monday votes, political observers have been wary of taking byelection results as indicative of what can be expected in a general election.

In 10 byelections since the Conservative landslide in the general election of March 31, 1958, the Conservatives suffered a net loss of two seats while the Liberals and New Party had net gains of one apiece. In the last batch of four byelections Oct. 31 Conservatives lost two of the three seats they had formerly held and lost ground in the fourth which was retained by the Liberals.

Present party standings in the Commons, with four vacancies: Conservatives 202, Liberals 50, CCF 8, New Party 1.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker's following custom, hasn't taken part in the byelection campaigning, leaving the speech-making to some 15 cabinet ministers. Liberal Leader Pearson, however, campaigned hard in a whirlwind trip through the four ridings within the last 10 days and a half-dozen or more prominent Liberal MPs have taken an active hand.

CCF Leader Argue also took to the hustings in the last week in Esquimalt-Saanich to support the New Party candidate there.

Leeds has a strong Conservative history. Liberals have won it only twice in the riding's 58-year history, Grattan O'Leary and Stanley Stanlon, who died Dec. 8, had a 3,350 - vote majority in 1958.

There has been a strong contest there between Liberal John R. Matheson, 42, and Conservative R. Elwood Stewart, 63. Both Brockville residents, Mr. Stewart is a businessman and Mr. Matheson a lawyer who suffered a Second World War head wound which left both legs paralyzed.

His troubled mind at rest.

He has found sweet rest at last.
Sweet was his love we will meet again,

STRANGULATION

laboratory yesterday morning was to the effect that ransom notes brought to the McNevin family by Mr. Williamson had been written by Mr. Williamson and that Mr. Williamson had been at the scene where the boy died.

Rope fibres found in the pocket of his top coat were the same as fibres in the rope used to tie the boy to the tree and the same type of fungus growth found on the small elm tree was also found in Mr. Williamson's trouser cuffs.

Inspector L. Needham, of the Criminal Investigation Branch, testified that the fungus growth on the tree could be easily rubbed off as the rope had been pulled into the trouser cuffs of the man tying the boy to the tree.

The inspector also told the jury that a suicide note left by Mr. Williamson and addressed to his wife, Mrs. Grace Williamson, indicated serious financial trouble.

'NO WAY OUT'

"It is hard to say goodbye," the note to his wife began " . . . but debts have piled up and there is no place to turn. There is no way out."

Mrs. Williamson advised Mrs. Williamson to "try to hang on to the shares in the company as they may be worth something some day." The letter also mentioned a bond which would be found in the safety box.

The letter continued "I hope the Holdren family sees you all right without me. I am sorry I can be of no further help."

Inspector Needham said a bond worth $1,000 was found at the Williamson house.

Psychiatrist J. N. Senn, superintendent of the Ontario Hospital at Hamilton who had listened throughout testimony given at the hearing said the change in Mr. Williamson's business habits since the first of the year were indicative of the commencement of mental illness.

Previous to the first of the year there was nothing to indicate that Mr. Williamson had not been alert and able to provide suitably for his family.

STRANGE ACTION CLAIM

He admitted it seemed strange that Mr. Williamson, a former insurance salesman, had allowed his life insurance policy to lapse and said this was particularly so when in all probability as an insurance man he had warned many persons against allowing such a thing to happen.

Reference was made to previous testimony by Mrs. Williamson that on the night of the kidnapping her husband had acted normally and had slept normally that night.

"Assuming responsibility in the boy's death what would you say of his apparent normal behavior at his home until he was questioned by police," asked Crown Attorney Deyman.

Mr. Senn replied it was very rare for a person without a mental disorder to sleep normally following events such as had taken place.

Questioned as to possible suicidal tendencies in a person with mental disorder, Mr. Senn said the dangerous periods for suicide where when a person was either entering a mental condition or recovering from such an attack.

He said suicidal tendencies were common during the early stages of mental disorder.

BOY WAS WILLING

Briefly summing up evidence given during the two-day hearing, Crown Attorney Deyman pointed out that the absence of any sign of struggle on the trail leading into the bush where the boy had been willing to accompany the man.

He said it was obvious the boy had been with someone he knew and trusted.

Continuing, the Crown Attorney said evidence was that on the trail the boy had been struck unconscious, the rope tied about his neck and then carried in and lashed to the tree.

Other evidence pointed to discrepancies in Mr. Williamson's story as told to Mr. McNevin, his wife, and to the police.

Finally there was the evidence of the handwriting expert who had said the person who wrote the ransom notes received by Mr. McNevin was the same person who wrote the suicide note found by Mr. Williamson's body.

WAS AT SCENE CLAIM

Also, he said, evidence of the C.I.B. biologist who compared rope fibres in Mr. Williamson's pocket with the rope found tying the boy, indicated that he had been at the scene.

Supporting this evidence was the fact that the same type of fungus appearing on the tree to which the boy was tied, was also found in Mr. Williamson's trouser cuffs.

"How, when, where and by what means the boy came to his death, should not be difficult to determine, Coroner Dr. Warren told the jury.

"From the evidence you should also be able to say who was responsible, but that is your decision," he said.

The jury was out just under an hour before coming in with their verdict.

Following the verdict the coroner expressed his appreciation to the jury members for their straightforward verdict and also for the attention they had given witnesses during the two-day hearing.

"Never once did I catch your attention straying," he said.

EXPRESSES THANKS

The coroner also expressed his appreciation to Crown Attorney Deyman and to Inspector Needham, H.s things County Crown Attorney John Pringle and Inspector J. B. McLauchlan of the Belleville Police Department, as well as to other police officers for their thorough preparation for the case.

"I have sat on a great many inquests," he said, but never have I seen the ground work more thoroughly prepared than it was in this case."

F. Beeby Heads New Association For Technicians

With Commonwealth Technical Training Week beginning Monday, it is appropriate that a new organization of engineering technicians and technologists comes into existence today.

By an overwhelming majority, engineering technicians and technologists have favored the creation of the Canadian Association of Certified Engineering Technicians and Technologists, giving leadership to the world in the public recognition of those who have completed technical training below university level and beyond secondary school level.

Taking office as president of the new organization will be F. A. Beeby engineering technologist, of Belleville. Mr. Beeby is assistant superintendent of inspection at Northern Electric.

Mr. Beeby boasts a record of 32 years with his company with 29 years spent in a supervisory capacity. In his present duties he reports directly to John A. Grant, chief engineer, who has served for the past year on the certification board for engineering technicians and technologists.

Mr. Beeby is a member of the Anglican Synod and past president of the Belleville Home and School Association as well as being a member of the School Board and a teacher in technical night classes.

Mr. Beeby becomes the first president of the ne worganization which will take form at the Engineering Technicians' and Technologists' annual meeting in Toronto today.

The new organization stems from the certification program for engineering technicians and technologists which has been operated by the Association of Professional Engineers of Ontario since 1957. Following the lead set by Ontario's engineering profession, the certification of engineering technicians has been taken up in the United States by the National Society of Professional Engineers.

Napanee District Man Found Dead in Field

The body of a 33-year-old Napanee district man was found late yesterday morning in a pasture field where he had apparently died as result of a heart attack.

Police said that Gilbert E. Lloyst, R. R. 1, Sillsville, had been working in the fields on Thursday and late in the afternoon went to look for some stray cattle. He failed to return home that night.

Friday, Mr. Lloyst's body was found in a pasture field by a neighbor. There will be no inquest.

Bay of Quinte Conference Will Be at Kingston

KINGSTON (CP)—Clergy and laymen r e p r e senting 193,000 church members will meet at Queen's University next week for the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church of Canada.

The 400 delegates to the conference will come from an area bounced by K i n g s ton, Brockville, Smiths Falls, Pembroke, Renfrew, Peterborough, Whitby and Lindsay.

Rev. D. M. Smith of Campbellford will preside over the five-day meeting, which opens Monday with an address by Rt. Rev. Hugh A. McLeod, the United Church Moderator.

This year's conference officers will be elected Tuesday. The Kingston presbytery has nominated Rev. K. E. Kellway of Cobourg for president. Certificates will be presented to retired ministers, some of whom have served 40 years, at a service Tuesday evening.

Other highlights of the conference will be d i s c u s s i o n on church extension, unity with other churches, and the ordination of candidates.

A report will be presented by the committee of evangelism and social service concerning the need to amalgamate rural charges in the Bay of Quinte area to allow effective evangelism and pastoral care.

To be discussed also is a major p r o b l e m facing United Churches in the area—the provision of ministers for the large number of vacant churches.

CCF Council Meet Closed To Outsiders

REGINA (CP)—The 60-member provincial CCF council Friday began a two-day meeting in which a major topic will be whether the CCF should replace Premier T. C. Douglas to seek the leadership of the federal New Party.

The subject is expected to reach the conference floor today. The meeting is closed.

The chief figures in the New Party leadership race, Premier Douglas and a n a t i o n a l CCF leader Frank Scott, are both attending.

Premier Douglas, head of the government since the CCF party came to power in 1944, has said he will leave provincial politics to head the New Party if the provincial CCF members with him to.

Thursday night, the first provincial committee gave its approval to releasing Mr. Douglas.

Scouting activities

By CHRIS F. LEGGAT

The annual Father and Son banquet of the Bridge St. United Church 11th Belleville group may well have surpassed any such former occasion.

Following Fig Break conducted by Scout Master R. E. Berry and T. L. Jim White and the singing of the Queen some hundred and twenty Cubs, Scouts, Leaders, fathers and friends sat down to a sumptuous repast. The tables were attractively decorated with black tapers and golden flowers, the colors of the Group.

Chairman Vic White warmly welcomed all those present, following which Scout Ross Drysdale proposed, in well chosen words, a fine toast to the fathers. Mr. Al Revill replied to the toast.

Mr. William T. Simpson, secretary-treasurer of 11th Group committee introduced the head table guests: Mr. S. A. Gord on, church organist; Mr. J. W. Hodgson, District Council secretary; ADC William Sweet; Rev. R. F. Sherwin, assistant minister; Mr. Harvey Parsons, guest speaker; District Commissioner P. L. Allcorn; Rev. H. M. Davis, the minister; group president Vic White; group leader Jim White; Lloyd Monteith, District Council president; Gerald B. Hyde, president of the) A.O.T.S. Club sponsoring bdky; Cub Jerry Hyde, and Mr. A. D. Banting, church school superintendent. Mr. Simpson also introduced the Cub Akela Dr. Howard House and assistants Clifford Belch and John Randle, then Scout Master R. E. Berry, Leaders Miss K. Mills, Garth Haggerty and C. H. James were not able to be present.

Rev. H. M. Davis expressed a pleasing and most deserved tribute to the leaders, thanking them for their splendid dedicated service. He commended the members of the Group Committee and the excellent work of the Ladies' Auxiliary who provided the fine banquet.

Rev. R. F. Sherwin, director of the Christian Education program (and a member of District Council) voiced appreciation and revealed that he was guiding twelve Scouts in the difficult Religion and Life studies.

District Commissioner Phil Allcorn, whom the chairman stated "thinks, eats and breathes Scouting" spoke briefly on the terrific growth of Scouting in Belleville, which has doubled to over 1,400 since 1955. He again paid tribute to the enthusiastic leadership being given in the district and indicated that, even as in lo-cality, good leaders were not easy to find. He challenged the fathers to set an example, as do the Scouters, in practising their duty to God. He expressed the thanks of himself and Scouler Sweet for the privilege of attending.

Gerald B. Hyde, speaking as A.O.T.S. Club president, expressed the ever-readiness of his men at all times to assist the leaders and boys in their activities.

GET OUT WITH BOYS

District Council president Lloyd Monteith invited the dads to get out with their boys and share in camping. He suggested that there were boundless opportunities for the observant boy to learn from nature on these outings. He reminded the lads, too, that no Cub or Scout willfully destroyed bird or animal life, much less the property of others.

Mr. T. R. Colden thanked the ladies for the fine meal and for their untiring efforts throughout the year. Mrs. Wm. McBride replied.

Rev. Sherwin introduced Mr. Harvey Putman of Cannifton giving some of the background facts beginning at the Keswick Elgin House Conference which he also attended.

Mr. Putman began his address by thanking his introduction to Cross Roads Africa through Rev. James Robinson at Keswick. During the showing of his three films he gave a most comprehensive running commentary. One could not help but feel something of the sense of urgency for dedicated Christian service in Africa before it was too late. He gave examples of how the Communist world was ready, anxious and able to take over the task. While some workers, he said, had decided to remain in Africa to serve, he was now, with the help of other interested people, trying to bring a Ghanaian student to school in Canada. Any help that can be given to Mr. Putman in this effort is urgently needed.

Mr. Ron Cass expressed thanks to Mr. Putman for his talk and paid fitting tribute to his dedicated service.

Thank you Mr. Hodgson for this very fine report.

New Theory on Relativity

Evidence before a Royal Commission in Quebec has shown the existence of an organized system of "kickbacks" by those who sold goods to the province during the Union Nationale regime.

In the Quebec Upper House on Wednesday, Gerard Martineau rose on a point of privilege. He had been identified before the Royal Commission as the man who arranged payoffs in the form of sales commissions. Patronage, said Mr. Martineau, had always existed in Quebec "and continues to exist under the present government."

He waved a sheaf of papers which he said proved the existence of patronage under Liberal regimes, both before and after the Union Nationale governments of Maurice Duplessis and his successors.

George Marler, leader of the Liberals in the Legislative Council, objected that a member can only use a point of privilege to defend his honor, not to make charges. The brought the reply from Edouard Asselin, leader of the Union Nationale in the Council, that Mr. Martineau was not attacking anyone in particular. "It is a way of defending his reputation by showing patronage always existed and exists."

This seems to us to be stretching the theory relativity a little too far. He would be a cynical man indeed who would not refuse to recognize that moral codes differ and that what is considered immoral in one day or age, in one society, may not merely be condoned but actually advocated as a virtue in another day and age or in another society. This, though, is slightly but impartially different from the point made by Mr. Asselin. Carried to its logical extreme, what Mr. Asselin, in effect, is saying a murderer can successfully defend his honor if he can prove that all, or a large proportion, of his contemporaries are also thieves or swindlers or murderers. In our view, if a man who oversees the distribution of patronage needs to defend his honor at all, he cannot successfully do it by proving that his opponents have followed precisely the same pattern.

Too Little or Too Much

Hon. Walter Dinsdale, Minister of Northern Affairs in the Diefenbaker Government, may be guilty—but it is not clear precisely what he is guilty of. Is it a case of demanding too little, too late, or too much, too soon?

Mr. Dinsdale announced in the House of Commons that he has asked the Canadian Marconi company to eliminate from its contracts with its employees a clause barring them from fraternizing with the Russians.

Now there was a time when the Government approved of such a ban, and, while this might be criticized in theory, it was in practice, as even Mr. Dinsdale's critics in the Commons have been quick to admit, an admirable decision. The ban was destined primarily to protect the Canadian public health from which would have been involved in exposure to diseases foreign to the far north, to which they would have built up no natural immunity or resistance.

Times, however, have changed and the Government no longer regards such a ban as necessary or desirable.

The Marconi Co. in continuing it, probably acted from the highest motives. But the fact that the firm acted in good faith does not alter the fact that the prohibition is a mistake, in the opinion of most observers and apparently this majority includes Mr. Dinsdale, since he has asked Canadian Marconi to revoke the ban.

The point at issue, though, is not whether the ban is unwise, but whether it is unlawful, as a breach of the much-heralded and recently-adopted Bill of Rights. If it is unlawful, Mr. Dinsdale ought not to request, he ought to order. If it is not unlawful, has a minister of the Crown any right to interfere with the terms on which a private company hires its employees, even when the firm is working for the government?

Incidentally, Mr. Dinsdale's reluctance to, or tardiness in, considering this matter within the framework of the Bill of Rights confirms some of the worst fears of that Bill's critics. It looks fine on paper, but there is as yet no concrete evidence that it is ever going to protect any Canadian from an unwarranted interference with the rights with which it endows him.

I cannot praise a fugitive and cloistered virtue, unexercised and unbreathed, that never sallies out and sees her adversary, but slinks out of the race where that immortal garland is to be run for not without dust and heat.—John Milton.

Massacre in Angola

By Andrew Wilson in the Montreal Star

"The planes come over nearly every day now. They bomb the forest with fire bombs, and when we run into the open they shoot us with their guns. There are no more villages, they have all been burned."

The little Angolan who said this was one of several hundred who arrived last week at the headquarters of the Angolan resistance movement — an unlikely-looking pink and green-washed building in Leopoldville.

Like the rest, he brought such a picture of events in Northern Angola that but for confirmation of Portuguese vengeance by Western observers in Luanda one would accept it only with reservations.

Twenty thousand Africans are reported to have been killed. Thousands more are in four concentration camps, at Sao Tigres, Damba, Porto Alexandre and Silva Porto. Thirty thousand refugees have fled villages along the Congo railway between Matadi and Thysville.

The present wave of slaughter started after the week ago, and followed an earlier one, in Luanda, in February. It began on March 15, at a coffee plantation called "Primavera" near San Salvador, capital of the evening before — according to Portuguese authorities, due to the refusal of the Portuguese authorities to admit further conscripts. Actually, the only ones—forced laborers approached were Portuguese employer. The employer is said to have insulted them and shot several dead. The remainder overwhelmed him. By morning the Africans on neighboring plantations were "shooting at every African they saw."

The Africans organized themselves into bands of from 100 to 300, armed with sticks, stones and petrol. They attacked every European they met in the district and killed any Portuguese they captured.

From San Salvador the uprising spread "like a powder trail" northeast to the Congo Province, south into the neighboring provinces of Malanje and Luanda, and at the beginning of April to the Nova Lisboa and other towns on the Elizabethville-Benguela railway. Military aircraft were pressed into service to bomb and machine-gun villages and kill 18 of them.

Two days later, in another village, Tumbi, a car with a loudspeaker drove through and announced that "the king" of the UPA was arriving by plane. An enormous crowd appeared. When the crowd had assembled troops converged on it from three sides and "killed three hundred".

At Quibokolo the inhabitants were surrounded in the centre of the village. Mothers with children were allowed to stand to one side. Then it is alleged, the rest of the population — men, boys and women without children were shot down with machine - guns.

Later, with the arrival of first troop and air reinforcements the Portuguese staged a counter-attack. While this — including the few remaining women and children, organized themselves into armed militia. Mobile columns and, increasingly, air strikes, were used to obliterate village after village.

The names of 50 villages are given by the UPA and another party, the Zombo Alliance, together with a heap of metal machine - gun bullets, bomb splinters, fragments of a hospital bomb brought out by refugees. There is also a list, drawn up before the reported wholesale killing overwhelmed people executed in northern villages or on Maquela do Zombo airfield.

Statistics of the dead are seldom moving. It is only when one comes on an intimate detail that "Nagalimoko Vanuvi" was a tailor, or that a list, drawn up of 25 executed miners was returned to their wives by the local military commander, that one is touched by the human tragedy.

The present wave of slaughter started after the week ago, and followed an earlier one, in Luanda, in February. It began on March 15, at a coffee plantation called "Primavera" near San Salvador, capital of the evening before — according to Portuguese authorities, due to the refusal of the Portuguese authorities to admit further conscripts. Actually, the only ones—forced laborers approached were Portuguese employer. The employer is said to have insulted them and shot several dead. The remainder overwhelmed him. STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

CONFORMITY

To what extent should a Christian, in order to be a good Christian, conform to society?

Authority is, of course, the basic problem in Christian theology. What authority do we have for this belief or that? Church, Bible, creeds, human experience — all these have in some way a claim to authority. The person who says that he recognizes no spiritual or ecclesiastical authority but goes along doing 'the best he can and trying to live into practice the Sermon On The Mount may indeed to be an honest person in good person, but he is a mistaken person. He must recognize some spiritual authority. For him, and for all of us, there must be something upon which to build conviction.

When we find that something, then a certain conformity is required. There is a wide difference of opinion in the Christian Church as to what this conformity should consist of. It may be complete and unquestioning? Is it to be taken with discrimination? These are questions which every individual has to answer for himself.

God's truth is so immeasurable that we have to look at it from many viewpoints as possible. Discrimination is necessary, reason has it's place in religion, there must be a certain conformity to some kind of authority. We must each settle this between ourselves and God.

But we must conform to something else we are derelicts tossed of a raging sea.

CLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

May 27th, 1941.

A graphic insight into the actual scenes behind the filming of the modern motion picture was given Master John O'Flynn, son of Mr. J. D. O'Flynn of East Bridge Street, in a letter written by a cousin, Mrs. Alice Orr Lees of Hollywood, Cal., in which she writes her observations while on location with the Paramount Studios during the "shooting" of the picture "There's Magic in Music" showing currently at the Belle Theatre. Mrs. Lees is a former resident of Madoc, and is the daughter of the late Col. John Orr, of that village. Further Madoc and district interest in the film is seen in the presence of Miss K. Connor, 12-year-old daughter of Mrs. Chas. F. Connor, Madoc, who that village and now resident in Vancouver, B.C. Kay sings and plays a violin in the child orchestra in the pictures.

Mrs. Lees writes of the Irish Regiment of Canada spent the week-end with his uncle, Mr. Dave Asselstine of West Moira Street.

Mrs. Grant Taylor and daughter Daphne of Toronto are visiting the mother of the former, Mrs. W. H. Lattimer of Bridge Street East.

Dr. Hope Stoker Raymond R. Boyd of the R.C.N., left on Sunday for Halifax where he is spending a vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Boyd.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick M. Bond and Rev. J. E. Colson of Toronto were guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Rankin on Charles Street.

Letter To The Editor

Registers Complaint Against Spending

Editor,
The Ontario Intelligencer.
Dear Sir:

Could you please allow me space to air my complaint with our city councillors after reading your paper of May 24th?

It seems to me everything that comes along they want to vote for. A few weeks ago I saw where they decided to write off over $500 uncollectable back taxes and now another write off of $6,835 and the $17,500 for city hall repairs and a substantial grant of $75,000, for the YMCA and now around $44,000 for floorlation.

Does our council stop to think there is a certain class of taxpayers who are working class and pensioners and far from being millionaires? Our council are all drawing a fairly good salary, I myself am trying to live on $110 a month with a monthly tax rate of over $20.

I would like to know why our dentists are for fluoridation if they are going to lose 50 per cent of their business. And I do not agree with Ald. Deacon of forcing this without a referendum. I think a lot of the taxpayers should have a voice in this matter as to favor and that goes for a lot of other transactions of city business. The citizens are actually putting 10 cents in place of five cents for parking that looks small in my eye. If it could be 25 cents, we may get more rebate from the mill rate of 89.4.

I am where Ald. Bolton thought we had a reasonable tax rate and according to his salary perhaps so, but not mine. I think it is time to draw the line on our spending for the present as we have enough irons in the fire. And the cost of everything is too high, so please go slow for the benefit of those who are not wealthy.

A Taxpayer.

Wild Violets Are Tough

Ottawa Journal

Violets, the wild ones, are a living reproach to the guardians of tame flower beds. Their roots have no patience comforters to snuggle in against the winter's cold. They are unagrown, uncultivated, unfertilized.

But in early May, when domesticated plants have just begun to poke a tentative leaf or two into the air to test its temperature, the violets have thrown their multi-hued wide open to the sun.

Bulldozers don't faze them. On the fringes of the suburbs they bloom undaunted where man has made the land habitable by knocking down all the trees and scooping up all the topsoil. But if they are transplanted with care to a garden they will sulk with closed buds until they open as fine and assiduously as any hothouse breed.

Tricky Question

Ottawa Journal

Tax Ontario police chiefs say there is no organized crime in their cities. But if it were organized well enough would they know about it?

To Your Good Health

Try Losing Weight Instead Of Having Plastic Surgery

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I am 53 and weigh 190. My breast is large and very heavy. I have pains and burning in the left breast and under the arm. My doctor examined me, and says nothing is wrong — the weight is causing the trouble. He advised plastic surgery. What do you think? — Mrs. B. L."

Did he "advise" it or just mention it? Plastic surgery or surgical removal of some of the excess fatty tissues — has been done in some cases, but as a rule it is more logical, and much less costly, to go on a good reducing diet, wear a good support, and see what it can do. I don't know your height, but 190 pounds probably indicates that you are way over your proper weight. It is a has perfect control. Should I keep him out of it? Am I too old? He is not content just to sit and not move around. — Mrs. P."

He started lots younger than that, Mrs. P. Don't worry. But if he's old enough to want to do it, he's old enough for you to let him. He'll be much safer to have the basement door is shut, and be sure to carry all the things that would hurt him — like reaching a hot stove, hot water, detergent stored in the kitchen, etc.)

"Dear Sr: I would like to donate my eyes to an eyebank, and whatever else is needed by the existing 'banks' when I die. Can you tell me with whom to get in touch? I understand that papers are involved. — Mrs. G. W."

You're right. It is vital for you to have your wishes expressed in legal form, and also necessary that your nearest of kin be fully aware of your wishes, and in accord with them. An eye surgeon (perhaps at a medical school or major medical centre) can help you make arrangements. Incidentally getting the necessary forms to sign. They eyes (the corneas are the useful parts) must be obtained almost immediately after death to be of value.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have diabetes and am forever being talked about because I go to my doctor every four weeks for a "fasting blood sugar" test. Some friends of mine who have a child with diabetes say that take their youngster only once a year.

"Which is better? Is diabetes supposed to be worse in young people? I am in my early 50s. — Mrs. M."

The frequency of visits for a diabetic patient depends on several things. How well the individual case is under control, is the big one, I'd say. If the patient is "brittle," or poorly controlled, visits should be often.

When the patient is a child, which means that it is severe type of diabetes, it is usually, that a visit once a year is not enough. The child's diet has a lot more sugar in it, for one thing, and so does the amount of insulin, to cope with growth.

Since diabetes is the 10th most frequent cause of death, I can't feel that I'm wrong in saying that it's better to go to the doctor unnecessarily a few times once in six-months (which I'd prefer) may be all right for an adult with a fairly easy-to-control case, but for a child, or for an adult with a "brittle" case, the order of the day — and happiness the reward.

Let us go out to play. Our muscles are tired from long inactivity, our blood slow from too little exercise.

Even as we work in our offices, may we not hesitate for a moment every once in a while — and in our thoughts — run out to play for a brief spell.

How great the value is this relaxation. Machines wear out from too much friction. Raise the point where there is friction, give your machine plenty of oil and it will last and last. This human machine of yours is no different from those that made by man. It must be kept loose and free and oiled by frequent play.

Let us go out to play. And then return to work, happy and refreshed.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LET US GO OUT TO PLAY

Work is the great healer, the great builder, the one antidote for worry, disappointment, loss, betrayal, loneliness and unhappiness.

But behind it is something exceedingly rich — play! Vacation periods.

Let us go out to play. We will be wiser for it. Many filling dentists are for fluoridation If they are going to lose 50 per cent of their business. And I do not agree with Ald. Deacon of forcing this without a referendum. I think a lot of the taxpayers should have a voice in this matter as to favor and that goes for a lot of other transactions of city business. THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

I watched a gentleman of about my age in the parlor car yesterday trying to open a package of cigarets. They were new.

He scratched away absently with his thumb nail as he gazed out the window. Without looking at the packet, he twisted it sideways and began to bent his attention on the package. He had his thumb nail. Then his finger nail. He tuned the packet over and studied it closely. He leaned to the window for better light. He scrapped and gouged. He gave up for a minute and searched his pocket for a knife or nail file or anything in the way of an implement. He could find none. He took a ball point pen from his pocket and began to drill.

All to no avail. With an expression of absolute frustration, he put the packet in his pocket, collapsed back, closed his eyes, and went to sleep.

Cellophane has been fobbed off on us as a boon to the consumer. It is mainly a boon to the manufacturer and dealer who no longer have to keep replenishing stale stock.

The least they could do is to open it with a little tab to open the darn packages of all kinds.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. SCOTT

A Lift For Living

Putting Something Into Life

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

I never heard my father swear a but sometimes I knew when he felt like it.

One such occasion was when he was talking about "d e a d beats." This was his expression for persons who would not carry their own weight. He detested the fellow who was out for a free ride.

The next to the last book of the Bible, the little letter of Jude, has some scathing words about "dead beats." The early Christian Church tried out the principle of common ownership. The members shared a common table in love feasts. But into their fellowship came some who imposed on the others.

Jude calls these free riders, "blemishes on your love feasts, looking after themselves: waterless clouds, carried along by the winds."

The church is still beset by those who use it for what they can get out of it. A minister was asked how many members he had in his church. He replied, "I have about 500 souls and about 50 heels."

Every group has what Jude called "waterless clouds." The force of that figure of speech was great in a dry country like Palestine. To people craving rain, clouds brought hope and the disappointment was cruel when they proved waterless.

This is also true of some people. They raise hopes of great achievement but fail to fulfill their promise. I remember a young fellow who came to college during my student days. His splendid physique gave promise of athletic prowess. His fine brow looked as if it might be the facade of a massive intellect. Fraternities rushed him feverishly and when one frat landed him it congratulated itself on a rich catch.

A POOR FISH

But the catch turned out to be a poor fish. He wanted to be in the swim but he went through two years of college leaving no more trace than a fish leaves in the water. He looked after none but himself and when he left college no one looked after him to see where he had gone.

A man may come to one of our cities. He may have great talents. He may not be called to any outstanding office. He may not even be a "dead beat" because he pays his way in his own personal manner of living. He pays rent in a good apartment. He may keep a car and chauffeur. But his one consuming purpose is to make money. He makes it—and that is all he makes. He gives himself to no other lives unless it be his immediate family circle. His presence exerts no more influence on the civic, cultural or religious life of the city's atmosphere, than the airplane which flies over it.

A novelist, some years ago, described one of these self-centered persons thus: "Edith was a little country bounded on the north, south, east and west by Edith." A person, in order to be effective, does not have to be a great person in the sense of possessing great talents but he must be bounded by big interests.

William Carey was a cobbler in Scotland and no doubt the customers who brought their shoes to be mended looked upon him as a man of limited ability. But Carey gave his life to the cause of carrying the Gospel to India and his influence eventually travelled the earth in thousand-league boots. Men like Carey fill their lives with richness by pouring their energies into lives other than their own. "HE HAS PERSONALITY"

What do we mean when we say of another, "He has personality?" Perhaps different definitions would be given. But best of all from the late eminent psychologist, Henry Link: "Define personality as the extent to which the individual has habits and skills which interest and serve other people — its emphasis is on doing things with and for other persons. Its essence is self-sacrifice, not self-gratification."

Thus Link comes out just where Jesus did, when He said, "Whoever would save his life will lose it, and whoever loses his life for my sake will find it."

Of Homey Things

By ALMA MASON

I will always remember today for this has been a day to stir the pulses, tug at the heartstrings and beat my sad mirth to a froth. Today has been a symphony of perfect muted tones; the whistling tea kettle, the humming doorbell and the happy voices of children have played up and down the scale of the hours.

A renewed activity has been busily at work in my kitchen. The warm yellow sun spread itself all over my snow-white window sills and painted yellow glints in my copper-colored linoleum.

I have been a duchess today, receiving tributes from cavaliers and courtiers — worn and treasured books, gay bunches of weeds brought in by childish hands, spherical letters from abroad. I counted my hoarded treasure — just inanimate trinkets to some, but to me, the epitome of all rich life as I know it.

Today I ran my hands over the simple sources of my happiness. I felt the worn spot on a chair where a loved head had rested. I touched the priceless photographs of my family, the prized ornaments on the mantel; the little wooden horse my small son had carved so lovingly; the large lovely stitches in my daughter's first sewing attempt.

Today has caused me to feel anchored and safe and protected, grateful and free and young in spirit. My neighbors may speak of war and turmoil and unrest. Today my heart persists in delving deeply into a storehouse of peace and contentment — the soul-nourishing little homey things.

Little bits of homey things,
Like the way the kettle sings
Or a worn spot on a chair,
Where a head has rested there.
Take the bitter from the sweet
Make me feel life is complete.

Little bits of homey things,
Like the way the doorbell rings
Or the way the sunlight spills
On the snow-white window sills.
Make me feel, dear, more and more,
This is what I'm living for.

Little bits of homey things,
Like the way the postman brings
Welcome letters every day
In a happy sort of way.
Soothe this tired heart of mine
Give each hour a special shine.

Something strange 'bout homey things;
Seems as if this old heart clings
To the simple things of life
In a world of grief and strife;
Seems as if God's anchor bars
Holds to little things so dear.

By HARRIET STEVENS

We have just celebrated the only statutory holiday in the month of May, the first and weekend of summer. This is a kind of double event in Canadian holidays; it brings back memories of very special celebrations connected with the twenty-fourth of May, the Queen's birthday. It was always a day on this day and Queen Elizabeth II who was born on April 21st. This seems to give to the month of May a definitely feminine flavor despite the fact that many pertinent events took place in May during the Second World War such as London's biggest air raid in 1941.

May, the second Sunday, was finally the choice for observing Mother's Day. The idea for this began in the mind of Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia who suggested it in 1907. In 1914 it was proclaimed as Mother's Day by President Wilson and has since spread to most other countries. Was this the beginning of all the commemorative days we now have?

OTHER MAY BIRTHDAYS

We find that many important women were born in the month of May; hospitals everywhere celebrate Hospital Day on or near the birthday of Florence Nightingale, the English war heroine on May 12th. Her efforts to alleviate suffering in the Crimean War and her untiring efforts at home later did much to establish nursing as a profession.

Other great queens besides Victoria were born in May. The honest, patient and courageous Maria Theresa, Empress of Austria, had her birthday on May 13 while Catharine the Great, Empress of Russia, was born on May 2nd. It was in May that Queen Elizabeth I presented a play; almost three and a half centuries later, the British House of Commons passed the suffrage law for women. Less cheerfully, Anne Boleyn was beheaded on May 19, 1536.

Belle Boyd was born on May 9, 1844. In this year of repatriating the Civil War in our neighboring country, this female Confederate spy will likely be the subject of many a story. She carried many messages and once rendered important service to Stonewall Jackson over open fields, where her blue dress and white apron were a target in the enemy lines in order that she might wave her bonnet as a signal to advance.

May was an important month in the life and legend of Joan of Arc, the maid of Orleans who dreamed dreams and heard voices until convinced that she was called by Heaven to deliver France from England and to place Charles VII on the French throne. She raised the siege of Orleans on May 8, 1429 and was burned at the stake at Rouen, May 30, 1431.

RED CROSS FOUNDER

The beginnings of Red Cross are celebrated in May to honor the birthday of its founder, Henri Dunant. On this continent, it was in May, eighty years ago, that Clara Barton brought the Red Cross organization to America. The Seeing Eye, the organization which trains shepherd collie dogs as guides for the blind, was incorporated in May, 1932 by its founder, Mrs. Harrison Morris.

Though May Day now in some countries is the time for showing off military strength, the history of May Day reaches back at least to the Roman festival in honor of Flora, goddess of flowers instituted in 238 B.C. Laurence Sterne wrote "Give 'em but a Maypole, 'tis meat, drink, washing and lodging for a year."

Henry Wadsworth Longfellow called the second May as a perfumed word. It is an illuminated initial. It means youth, love and beauty. What would an have said of May, 1961?

Milk Teeth Used in Baby Tooth Survey

MONTREAL (CP)—More than 2,400 milk teeth have been collected from children by Montreal men who have organized a baby tooth survey in the interests of science.

Some 400 of them are being used in a confidential, a radioactive element, by Dr. A. M. Mostafa, director of dental research at the University of Toronto.

The rest were sent to the greater St. Louis Citizens Committee for Nuclear Information.

Results of the survey will determine how much of the element from the fall teeth of youngsters from the food they eat, are not expected for some years, says Mrs. W. E. Kesler, chairman of the Montreal committee.

"Meanwhile, we mothers can have the satisfaction of knowing that we are doing something."

Each tooth is accompanied by a form available at various places such as drugstores, children's libraries, home and school associations and even several cleaning establishments throughout the city.

The form asks such questions as where the mother lived during pregnancy, residence of the child during his first year, how long the infant was breast fed, how long he was on formula and the kind of milk used in the formula.

Each child gets a personal letter written by one of the volunteers and a pin.

THE DESIRE ACCOMPLISHED

"Upon the first day of March you came and made us glad."—From "To Angels" by Gerald du Maurier.

The desire of Gerald du Maurier's own family was to find a house in the country, since Daphne's health at this time was not too robust. Thereupon Mrs. du Maurier and their three daughters, Ad, Daphne and Jeanne, moved down to Cornwall and at Bodinnick, near Fowey, they fell in love with a "perfect place to be sold."

Within a week the house belonged to the du Mauriers, the Hampsteed-dwellers, who named it "Ferryside." In six weeks' time, it was transformed from a veritable "shambles" to a small haven of enchantment, with its view of Fowey harbor and the sea beyond.

All this was made possible, a dream accomplished, by the successful run of Edgar Wallace's play "The Ringer" produced by Gerald du Maurier at Wyndham's Theatre in May, 1926, to bring a "small fortune" for those concerned."

The three daughters, Angela, Daphne and Jeanne, loved it in Cornwall. But, for Daphne, something unexpected, lovely was to change her life. It was the discovery of an old, completely furnished, but forsaken, deserted mansion; "the centuries-old home of the Bassingleigh family" named Menabilly, quite hidden by thick new growth. In spring, the flaming rhododendrons encircled all as if to protect this Sleeping Beauty estate from the rigors of Time. Daphne drawn by its sensitive, dreamed of its past glory and many possibilities. She dreamed, says, her sister Angela, a dream whereby she told herself that some day she would live there.

Twenty-five years (and some novels) including "Rebecca" later, her dream was an accomplished fact. She "understood, and knew I have never been before, why Daphne can never really bear to move beyond the gates. It is almost as if fairies pulled one away, compelling it one to remain" Angela writes in her autobiography, (dedicated "in love to the memory of Gerald du Maurier, my father") a part of which was written at Menabilly. It is an autobiography full of happy memories of a devoted family. Nor is there any trace of envy, as witness a little, which recalls the day an enquiring woman, upon mistaking Angela for her sister Daphne, turned to her husband and cried: "It's only the sister!"

The desire to write the author, in the last of a good book, it is claimed.

"It's Only the Sister!" passed this criterion with, flying colors, in our case, reading it after having had the good fortune to see Sir Gerald on the London stage, a note of appreciation was sent the author and thus, straightway, was this desire accomplished.

But lo. An unexpected reply was received.

A letter of the lovely "Ferryside" headed the stationery, said from Cornwall, on which was written the author's pleasure "to hear from one who—lived so far," and in part writes:

"My present wish is to visit Canada. I want things all over the country. I have great friends at Oakville and a long standing invitation to go there. Once in Canada, however, I shouldn't be content unless I've covered the whole vast territory . . ." And in another charming letter, received this winter, in answer to our query, replies: "I've only written one book since 'It's Only the Sister'—a novel entitled 'Shallow Waters.' Throughout the years of my mother's illness, I couldn't settle to anything and since her death in 1951, all ideas seem to have left me. I went to the States in '58 and had a brief but delightful visit in Canada. I went to Ottawa and Quebec and to Oakville, where my father lived. Lost my heart completely to Montreal. The journey by day on a train from Montreal to New York was one I shall never forget for sheer beauty. I would love to return to Canada. I always know I should love it . . ." (signed) Angela du Maurier.

Now as we fold away this old program from His Majesty's Theatre that whispers echoes of those who dreamed dreams that were so beautifully fulfilled, we do so with a light heart — in discovering anew: dreams have one purpose — to be accomplished.

MODERN MANNERS

CAROLYN HAGNER SHAW

HELPFUL HINTS TO THE GIRL GRADUATE

Shakespeare once asked, "What's in a name?" The answer is "everything!" Why? Because it personifies You, whether you have a good reputation, or a bad one, depends entirely upon You, Yourself and Your future.

Many young women will be graduating from high school in the next few weeks. Some are planning to attend college this Fall. Others intend to get a position and be business world.

Regardless of your decision, one attribute can mean the success or failure, if you don't have it) of your future. This attribute is thoroughly understand that a woman's reputation is her most precious possession. It takes the attitude of "I'm grown up now and will do as I please," and defy conventions, others will think that you don't care what impression you make. The result of such tactics is that you find yourself on the outside looking in — on deceit folk, I mean.

If your mode of life has included any of the following, spend a little time in searching and change your ways. Now. Not later.

Have you been telling a boy who has a bad reputation? If so, stop now. Be sure that people will place you in the same category.

Have you been seen in unsavory taverns, drinking and making merry at all hours? Perhaps you think this is smart. If you do it for kicks, thinking it will make you seem sophisticated and grown-up? Nothing could be further from the truth. You only succeed in getting yourself talked about, and not in complimentary terms, believe me!

Have you been adding to this unpleasant picture by wearing flashy clothes and plastering yourself with make-up? Also, in your attempt to seem like a woman of the world, have you been cultivating the habit of using a certain brand of voice, accompanied by much raucous laughter?

If it's attention you want, following any of the above-mentioned procedures will get it for you. But if you want to be a real person, it won't be the kind of attention you really desire.

My little tirade has been an effort to bring home to young girls that dignity and a commonsense attitude about what should be done — and what should not be done, will bring big rewards. Instead of being pointed out as "That wild girl" you will be "That charming attractive Mary Doe."

While are you aiming for? It's up to you to decide which side of the ledger your name belongs on. How about it?

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mrs. C. B.—We're shocked to learn that there's never been one seen once a year, taking turns on who makes the trip. During this current visit, we were tripped up saying, "God bless you" on "Thank God" in their ordinary conversation. We explained that he and Helen have agreed not to confuse their children with ideas of God.

The little ones are three and five. Gus is a chemist, Helen's librarian. They claim none of their friends approve of religious education for children, and that the children turn out fine when they grow up.

We raised Gus as we were raised, to pray and to go to church. How can these youngsters turn out such chances, throwing it all overboard?

August B. — Helen, my wife, is the child of an intermarriage. She knows about religion were the bane of her life. From my childhood days on, I began to doubt the sense of spending so much time at religious services. Then I met Helen and wonderful people who just roll up their sleeves to good deeds and act nice to others, that I was convinced religion can get you off on the wrong track.

When I married Helen we decided we couldn't burden our children with talk of the supernatural and the hereafter. Rather, we'd do our best about it here and now, encourage our kids to think things out and let it go at that.

The Council — Gus may not realize it but his children might be more "burdened" by unanswerable questions than by the questionable answers provided by religion. We agree with Augie B. that it's risky to dispense with religious training and deprive a child of the knowledge of God.

Certain young parents choose to assert their nonconformity by abandoning the faith of their fathers. "We were brainwashed as kids," they protest. "We vowed we'd be different in all things out for ourselves. We won't force things on our children." Gus and Helen must realize, however, that they are forcing things on their children every day, indoctrinating them as to what's the best vegetable in the world, who's a nice kid to play with and what's the family's feeling about Bach! There's very little they're leaving to chance.

Yet they plan to let their children find out for themselves about Nirvana who may be able to equip their offspring with the faith and strength offered by faith in God, in their own ways through example and reference. Often we have noted a strange sequel. Children who have had no church manner reverts to form. Religion is raising his son. Evidently they are certain many men heeds which can only be satisfied by belief in a super human.

Perhaps, for thought we quote a poem by Elizabeth-Ellen Long, Mt. Singapore, in children are:

"Better they trust in something and be wrong
Than never to have a safe their whole lives long!"

QUESTION:

Your old-fashioned cookies of last week, using honey, I have tried to figure out for myself, but never quite made the grade. They are perfect and I have made three batches since they were last published.

Could you send me a recipe for angel cake which would fit a tube pan 4" deep and 9" in diameter? I have a new pan, no no recipe. I would much prefer one made with all-purpose or pastry flour as I never use cake flour. Have you a recipe for a date nie without milk or sour cream. — Ruth A. A.

Mix together above ingredients and bring to a boil while you prepare pastry. Make enough pastry for 1 bottom crust and lattice topping (2 cups sifted flour, 2-3 cup shortening, 1-2 teaspoon salt and about 3 or 4 tablespoons cold water). Line pastry pie plate with pastry, turn in date filling, cover with lattice topping, making edges neat. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes, then reduce heat to 375 deg. for 25 minutes longer or until lattice topping is golden and bottom crust is baked.

Vacationing With the Kids Has Its 'Pros and Cons'

By Shirley and Bob Hall

Comes now the time of year when the first big decision about the summer vacation is made in many families: Do we take the kids or not?

Actually, the answer depends on how many kids; their ages; whether there is someone in the family to take care of them, and if not, whether you can find and afford to hire a nurse; whether your temperament and theirs permits your being parted and, finally, whether you can afford to take them if you want to.

The decision is a personal one, but these thoughts may offer some guidance to it.

You probably can stand traveling with as many children as you can stand living with and except for infants on formula, who shouldn't travel unless necessary, you can count on children of any age not only standing travel, but getting something out of it if the trip is planned with their interests in mind. Even babies like to ride.

The nature of the problems presented by children varies with them, vary by age. That is, an infant may provide parents with chores in the form of bottles and diapers, but he isn't the rampaging pest that, say, a 6-year-old can be. However, a 6-year-old can feed and dress himself.

THINK TWICE

Parents who have parents of their own to visit should think if they choose to travel without them are lucky. But we'd think twice about imposing them on other relatives.

Having someone brings many factors into consideration. If you're doing it to save money, you'd be just as well off to go against that of taking them along.

In most areas, women who care for children professionally charge about $5 a day in addition you have the expense of feeding her and the children, and transportation to and from your home.

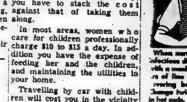
Traveling by car with children will cost you in the vicinity of $10 a day per child for food, accommodations and gasoline. A stay at a resort hotel may cost half again as much. Public transportation, naturally, depends how — and how far — you're going. Generally, infants' travel free and older ones at half or children's rates the price of an adult ticket.

The choice of a woman to care for your children is a critical one. Families who have a good thing in shape because they are aware of her qualifications or lack of them. But we'd suggest that a stranger accept on personal recommendation of someone who knows who has had her services.

While the first consideration is her competence in caring for children, she should also be willing to do their laundry and keep your home reasonably clean. Always introduce her to the children first in front of her take to her.

Some kids simply will not stay with anyone at all other than their parents. Thus it is up to you to decide whether they can be content with you away. No vacation is worth coming back to find your kids miserable.

CAMP FOR A FORTNIGHT



Prepare kids for the sitter of the children's normal daily activities, daily menus, phone numbers of doctors and relatives, household security precautions, daily maintenance chores and a copy of your itinerary if you know it. Store up enough foods and supplies, but leave her some cash for a pinch.

Friends and relatives might be asked to show the kids a familiar face now and then, and they ought to know where you can be reached also.

If you're on this continent you and the children will be happier if you phone occasionally. Write letters or post cards faithfully. And always bring the kids a souvenir.

Maybe your kids don't mind your being away, but there are some parents who will worry themselves sick over the kids no matter how well they are being cared for. These are the folks who should most seriously consider leaving the children.

Maybe it will mean you can't go to Europe this year, but the shared joys of the family, the peace of mind of having them in your care and the lasting contributions to their spiritual growth will go a long way toward making up for what you personally may miss.

Wife Preservers

When serving casseroles with an attractive dish, prepare the dish with a small amount of 10 or so layers of paper towels or cheesecloth, pouring hot casserole mixture into dish. Remove towels after baking. Keeps food a day and sterilizes the dish.

Successful Living

By Doris Clark

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Son Seeks Diversion

DEAR DORIS:—All my life I have had to work hard. First it was my sick father and mountainous hospital bills. Then after he died I cared for my mother and paid for a nurse for her, over several long illnesses. I also paid off a big mortgage. Then my mother's funeral expenses.

DORIS CLARK

At 45 I am alone, still behind the eight ball and working hard to catch up. The trouble is I know nothing but work and time hangs heavy on my hands now that my mother is no longer there to be waited on, every spare minute.

I guess I am just one of those people you say have never learned to play. How does one start at my age?—WEARY WILLIE.

DEAR WEARY WILLIE:—The dull discipline of daily drudgery is deadly—after the first quarter century.

Forty-five is practically young these days, so take heart. Now is the time for a new interest in living. As a youngster you may have had some aptitude for an art or craft or sport. What was it? Can it lead you into fresh paths now?

If you like to do things with people, get started. Growing things can be a satisfying hobby which can be learned from a book and discussed with the neighbors. Searching the sky may lead to buying a telescope and joining the astronomers—a fascinating study. Hiking and a camera go together.

Pursue your search for your special hobby like work. Don't let shyness or uncertainty put you off. You have ideas and enthusiasms to share so take a new look at yourself, take a deep breath and take off.

DEAR DORIS:—How often do you think it is reasonable for a husband and wife to have separate evenings out? My husband does a fair amount of night work and in addition, likes to go to the army in the evenings, or have a night out with the boys.

Up to a point I think this is a good thing, but the evenings we are together, he is usually so fatigued with his other activities that he is not in his best mood!—JANE.

DEAR JANE:—It is a good thing—up to a point. Marriages usually do better when the partners keep their interests broad.

But if he is only hanging his hat at home when he is ready to go sleepy-bye, it's not good enough. You are his wife, his chosen companion for life, and he should be honoring you with a fair share of his fresh-as-a-daisy company.

On your part, do you have some separate nights out, or are you leaning too hard on him for diversion? And when he is there, are you able to take initiative in being charming and companionable?

Be understanding about the night work—but communicate something of your dismay in being deprived of his good mood!

THE GOLDEN YEARS

University Town Is Good Bet For New Life at Retirement

By THOMAS COLLINS

A university town is still the best bet.

For the retired couple who wants to live in a cultural atmosphere, so they can go to recitals and hear poets speak, it is satisfying. For the business or professional man who wants to give or get after 65, there is always the chance to make a lecturing deal with the university. For the widow without enough money there are student rooms.

Here is the story of a widow.

"I was left a widow in 1954. My husband had been ill for two years. There were debts. I had a residue of $7,000, and a two-year wait until my pension began.

"I was a homemaker in a small city. No one could have been less trained or less experienced to hold a job. My husband and I had lived well — spent too well — and put children through college.

"I had to find ways to support myself. I was too young to lean on my children and naturally got no encouragement to do so. But my married daughter was connected with a university in a smallish city not too far from where I had been living for 40 years. She said there was room and income possibility if I would come there, acquire a house and rent out rooms to students. . . .

The widow visited the university town, looked it over and finally made a down payment of $4,000 on a $13,500 old, well-built, two-storey house. She spent $550 to move her household possessions to it.

"It meant a great deal to me to keep my furniture and to have familiar possessions around me. Otherwise, I would have felt too strange, like a displaced person."

Things weren't easy at first. The daughter moved away and there was loneliness. Settling down in a big house in a strange city brought unfamiliar problem t her. There was discouragement after her initial bid for student roomers.

"I was not prepared for the 'lost feeling' of the first year or two, or the lack of neighborly friends who would run in for coffee or chatting. I had not realized how much a lifetime in the established position counted — here I was an unknown nobody among busy established people. . . ."

But she survived it. She is happy, grateful she moved and now self-sufficient.

"In a project such as this it is very important that you choose your house in a "Right Location." If you do there is no endless stream of students wanting rooms. My house is in easy walking distance of the campus. It is in easy walking distance of good stores and town. In this kind o floation you will not have vacancies in the rooms you rent out.

HAS PRIVACY

"In my house I have a cozy parlor for my own privacy. I rent out two single rooms and one double room. The four students pay me $34 a week.

"In addition to this I take care of a family member's child five days a week, and I do baby-sitting.

"Keeping students does not take much time. They usually furnish their own linen. I find that good second-hand furniture and properly equipped rooms are all they expect. I spend only about an hour and a half a day cleaning the rooms and baths.

"Some students are neat and no trouble. Some are problems. But I rent my rooms by the college term and can always eliminate a roomer after 12 weeks if he is objectionable. If you are in a 'Right Location' there are always new roomers coming each term. . . ."

This widow now has only five more years to pay on her mortgaged house. She has what she calls a good life, and says many other widows are doing just what she is doing in her university town—some of them renting to faculty members as well as to students.

Thomasburg

THOMASBURG—The Crescent Rebekah Lodge sponsored a successful cooking sale in Mr. Ed. Way's showroom, Tweed, on the afternoon of May 20th.

Pte. Richard Harvey, of Camp Borden, spent the holiday weekend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Frindle.

A ball game on the local diamond between Stirling and Thomasburg on Saturday evening, resulted in a score of 9 to 4 in favor of Thomasburg.

Most of the local people, who own cottages, took advantage of the long weekend, to open them for the season.

The cool weather, however, was a drawback to many outings, which had been planned for the first long weekend of the year.

Mr. and Mrs. John Duggan and family, of Toronto, were holiday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Calvert, and Mrs. Violet Calvert.

Several from here attended the fireworks display at Tweed Park, on Monday evening.

The regular monthly meeting of the Thomasburg United Church W.A. and W.M.S. took place in the vestry on May 23, at 2 p.m.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

RAPID WING BEATS

Generally speaking, small birds move their wings faster than do large ones. The beating wings of a little warbler blur before our eyes, yet we can actually count the wing beats of a great blue heron as it flies in a slow, deliberate manner. This, of course, does not mean that small birds reach their destination sooner than the large ones; yet some actually do.

The chimney swift is truly a swiftest flier, with extraordinarily rapid wing beats. Five to 8½ inches long, it has wings streamlined for speed. It is torpedo-like in shape, with no apparent tail. The long, narrow, pointed wings are slightly curved and stiff. When in flight, the wings beat very rapidly, then are held stiffly bowed like a crescent while the bird sails. Only since it has been possible to take slow-motion pictures has it been proved that the wings beat in unison. They appear to beat alternately. This unique wings lack flexible joints at wrist and elbow but curve in any direction from the shoulder.

The ruby-throated hummingbird, but 3¼ inches long, is a distant relative of the swift. Both depend entirely upon their wings for getting about, their feet being almost useless in order to travel as fast. With a wing-spread of only four to 4½ inches, it is able to make a non-stop flight of 600 miles to the (from Bermuda, or cross the Gulf of Mexico, a distance of 500 miles. Some ruby-throats, migrate all the way between Brazil and Alaska, a matter of 4,000 miles.

In order to achieve this, the hummer muscles have developed to an enormous degree, probably greater than those of any other bird. The wing muscles weigh about ¼ of the whole bird. To provide the machinery for its quickly-beating wings its deep compared to the size of the wings which seem so fast that even the high speed modern camera is unable to take perfect pictures of a flying hummer. No shutter is quick enough to avoid showing a blur for its wings in motion.

In fact moving birds the under surface of the wings is quite flat. With large, slow fibers the part of the wing nearest the body is more concentrated. The swift and the slow-soaring red-shouldered hawk are good examples of this difference.

Mother Saved From Death By Balloon

SEATTLE (AP) — A young Seattle mother, near death from massive hemorrhaging after birth of her sixth child, was saved—by a small balloon.

Providence Hospital told about it today and said the technique was believed to be a medical first.

Mrs. William Cheshier, 29, gave birth to a son last Friday. She began bleeding heavily and soon doctors could detect no blood pressure. A patient administered last rites of the Roman Catholic Church.

But the hospital's department of experimental medicine, which had tested a new procedure on animals, had been prepared for such an emergency.

A gynecologist made a quick incision in the femoral artery, in the thigh, tipped with a deflated balloon, was pushed about 10 inches into the abdominal aorta, the body artery. The balloon was inflated, blocking the flow of blood to the pelvic region and legs. For 75 minutes it was left there while surgeons corrected the cause of the hemorrhaging and obtained blood for transfusion.

Doctors said Mrs. Cheshier responded within five minutes after the balloon was inflated.

Mrs. Cheshier was released Thursday, fully recovered. In her arms was her six-pound four-ounce son, Robert Gerard.

Spahn Wallops Dodgers For No. 293

Cards Drub Pirates 12-2

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Warren (the Wonder) Spahn is just seven shy of the charmed 300-victory level today after beating Los Angeles Dodgers—but if it wasn't for the Dodgers, he might be seven over the 300 mark.

When Spahn beat the Dodgers 10-2 at Milwaukee Friday night it was his second decision over Los Angeles this season and the 293rd victory of his 17 - year career in the National League. But it also marked the first time in 10 years he has won two in one season from the Dodgers, the only club with a lifetime edge (32-30) over the Braves' superb southpaw.

At the moment, the 40-year-old master has a .903 winning percentage against the other 15 teams in the league. And if he could have replaced that Dodgers loss with something like the success he's had against the other clubs, Spahn's career record against the Dodgers would be 30-17, not 16-31. That would give him 307 victories over-all.

The defeat left Los Angeles in a virtual tie for second place with Pittsburgh Pirates, drubbed 12-2 by the Cardinals at St. Louis, San Francisco Giants paddled their lead by a full game with a 3-2 victory over Chicago Cubs in 13 innings. The Philadelphia - Cincinnati game was postponed because of cold.

BELTS 290TH HOMER

Spahn, 5-3, nailed his sixth complete game while allowing seven hits, three of them bunt singles. The fifth-place Braves, backing Spahn with four double plays, also had seven hits, but two were home runs. Frank Thomas hit the 290th of his career, a two-run job, and the other was a solo shot by Hank Aaron, who was saved by his plastic helmet when hit by a pitch by loser Stan Williams (3-5).

Don Boyer, after going 16 games without driving in a run for the Cardinals, hit a pair of homers and collected six RBIs against the Bucs. He hit a three-run shot that wrapped it up in the first inning against Bob Friend (5-5), who now has lost five in a row as a starter. The Pirates had 10 hits, just one less than St. Louis, but gave up five unearned runs on six errors. Southpaw Curt Simmons (2-3) won it, pitched the first complete game on the eighth try.

The Giants scored a pair of unearned runs in the 13th off reliever Don Elston (5-4) for their sixth in a row over the Cubs. Harvey Kuenn drove in a run for a 1-1 tie in the eighth inning, then singled home the lead run. The pitcher scored on an error by outfielder Billy Williams. Sam Jones (4-3) won in his first relief job of the season.

OPTION HERB SCORE

NEW YORK (AP) — Left-hander Herb Score, rarely effective since he was hit in the right eye by a line-drive in 1957, was optioned by Chicago White Sox Friday night to San Diego of the Pacific Coast League. Score, 26, has won only 12 games since he was struck by the line-drive hit by Gil McDougald of New York Yankees.

NATURE VERY ADAPTABLE

Performance, both mental and physical, can be comfortable — even pleasurable — only, without stress.

On the other hand, if accompanied VISUAL strain, as all too commonly, the performance is POSSIBLE by adaptation.

In the latter condition the effect is expensive to our entire bodily reserves of energy.

Harvey Nibbles, No Strike

Blues Dangle Attractive Bait

MONTREAL (CP)—New York Rangers have tossed out a more attractive lure to Doug Harvey.

He's going to spend the weekend mulling it over before making any moves.

This much emerged from Friday's developments in bid No. 3 by the Rangers to land Harvey as a player-coach with the National Hockey League club.

Harvey, by telephone, told general manager Muzz Patrick of New York he will reply Monday to the latest offer.

The 36-year-old defence star of 14 seasons with Montreal Canadiens made no reference to terms in disclosing the new offer here.

But Patrick said in New York that it called for a three-year contract. He didn't specify for how much but he said the amount was more than New York offered earlier.

Harvey earlier turned down the Ranger offer of a two-year contract, providing what was understood to be the same yearly salary Montreal paid him.

Patrick said Friday that salary had never been a point of contention with Harvey.

UPS ANTE ANYWAY

But New York had decided to up the ante anyway in the hope of offsetting any worries Harvey might have about leaving his business interests here.

All this touched off rampant speculation about the amount involved. The guesses ranged from $25,000 a year all the wild way to a piece of Madison Square Garden.

With the Habs, Doug earned a reported $22,500 a season.

Part of the deal would involve a player contribution to Montreal by the Rangers.

But a Canadiens' spokesman said names would be discussed only after Harvey agrees to sign with the Rangers — if he does.

Patrick said business and peerless and personal reasons are what has kept Harvey reticent about signing. Doug has five children and he says they don't like the idea of leaving Montreal.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

This year is the Second Year of the Rabbit. Last year, the First Year of the Bunny, saw those fur-coated pie-fillers wreak havoc with young orchard trees and the saplings and older trees of the forest.

1961, says an official of the Department of Lands and Forests, will see rabbits of all kinds become nuisances to orchard owners and the men of the timberlands.

One of the biggest long-eared headaches is the European hare or us he is better known over here the jack rabbit. A pair of these hungry jacks will eat more in a day than a straight of cotton-tails will consume in a week.

They love to nibble the bark of tender young trees and the word to the farmer owned is that this year they'll do more damage to the timber youngsters than the tremendous amount caused in 1960.

As a matter of fact the Department infers the situation is so bad that it suggests organized hunting parties during the summer holidays. There is no closed season on "buns" or Bunnies in this part of Ontario.

And if those jacks get out of hand there's no telling what damage will be done. I've seen these flop-eared miniature kangaroos cavorting in grain fields and along fences down around Wellington way in packs that looked like a farm production of the Grand National.

Some of them weighed twenty pounds and more. They could hope over a low fence with all the ease and grace of a born-to-the-purple steeplechaser. Some of them had even the use of the jib-sail of a small pawi-rigged yacht.

Department officials say that for those who are interested in eating rabbit "venison" they have tasty recipes to be had for the asking.

"To them who have not tasted rabbits yet," remarks the official, "we point out that knowing gourmets prefer rabbit venison to that of any other kind."

I belonged to a battery of "gourmets" stationed in Shorncliffe, England, which for two solid weeks dined on "hare," the long-legged, wiry-muscled, rubber-necked jacks, born and bred in Australia, chilled in refrigerators and shipped to Blighty by the merchant marine load.

We had minced rabbit for breakfast, rabbit stew for lunch and jugged hare for dinner. By the time the seventh night arrived the cooks were "jugged."

On Sunday we had a change. It was rabbit pie. By that time there was a noticable growth in the length of the gunners' ears; they walked with a bouncy step, their noses twitched like a hound getting a scent, and some of them started to grow hair all over their bodies.

They marched to the gun-pits with a hop-skip-and-jump instead of the conventional one-two-hop. The battery commander got so he could tip his forage cap... merely by wiggling his ears. At the ten-minute reis the colonel would scurry on his haunches, and nibble on a head of lettuce.

Luckily before we crossed the Channel the diet was changed. We dined luxuriously on frozen mutton and Brussels sprouts for two weeks.

And I know another rabbit "gourmet" who satiated his appetite on bunny pie in a north woods cabin. He said it was the best rabbit pie he had ever tasted until someone told him two weeks later that three that day two of the family's pet cats had been missing.

Italians Won't Part With Star

MILAN, Italy (Reuters)—The Milan soccer team will not release Englishstar Jimmy Greaves from his contract and tell them at any price, a club official said here Friday night.

Milan vice - president Mino Spadaccini told a reporter the negotiations Greaves signed with Milan would not be annulled, no matter what sum the London Chelsea team or other clubs might be prepared to pay as compensation.

He was commenting on a report that Milan had indicated that it would be prepared to release Greaves for the equivalent of $112,000. Chelsea sold him to Milan for that price.

Spadaccini said the report was groundless. He said his club would wait until June 7, the date on which Greaves' debut for Milan was expected.

WOULD SEEK ACTION

Should Greaves fail to arrive, or should he notify Milan that he does not wish to join them, the club will ask the International Football Federation to take "appropriate measures," he said.

Milan will also ask the Italian federation to bar Greaves from every Italian ground, he said.

Greaves made his announcement that he had decided to stay with Chelsea when he arrived in Vienna with the England team Friday for today's match with Austria.

The Associated Press said in London report that Greaves decided not to join Milan because his wife, who is expecting a child, does not like the Italian "rromeo" behaved with her.)

MEET IN NEW CLASS

QUEBEC (CP)—Buddy Daye of Halifax and Andre Millette of Sorel, Que., are to meet in a 10-round bout at Sorel July 18 for the Canadian junior lightweight boxing championship, it was announced Friday night. Angels Twist Tigers Tail, Cut Lead

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington Senators and Los Angeles Angels were labelled a couple of pigeons when they started the season as newcomers in the expanded American League.

But the Senators and the Angels are the only clubs to beat Frank Lary, the tigerhander who leads the majors with seven victories for first place Detroit Tigers.

The Angels did it Friday night, making the most of three unearned runs and a tie-breaking double by Earl Averill for a 5-4 decision over the Tigers at Los Angeles.

That trimmed Detroit's lead to three games over idle Cleveland and 6½ behind the Angels out of the cellar, a half-game ahead of Chicago White Sox.

Washington won the only night game played in the AL, beating the old Senators, now the Minnesota Twins, 4-3. Rain and cold weather knocked out the other games—Kansas City-Cleveland, Chicago - New York and Boston-Baltimore.

HAD NINE HITS

The Angels collected nine hits off Lary who struck out six and twice came from behind before Ken Hunt singled and came across on Averill's double in the eighth.

Bruce Duren, relieving starter Ronnie Kline after Rocky Colavito's two-run homer tied it in the seventh, blanked the Tigers without a hit over the last 2⅔ innings to get his first victory in four decisions. Duren struck out Al Kaline and Colavito after putting the tying run on base with one out in the ninth.

Norm Cash drove in Detroit's first run with a single and tied it the first and third innings. The Angels scored one in the first. Jim Piersall led off with a double and a single by Ted Kluszewski, and then went to third when a throw unearned runs in the sixth.

STARTED RALLY

Kline started the rally with a two-out single. An error by rookie third baseman Steve Boros put Hunt on and followed then Gene Leek and Rocky Bridges brought in the runs with singles.

The Senators just came behind the fifth place Twins when they came from behind twice, handing Jerry Kindall his fourth straight defeat on a two - run single by Harry Bright in the sixth inning. Washington got the 2-0 against Minnesota and right-hander Dave McLish (4-3) pitched both victories, getting credit for relief in a seven-hitter.

Lennie Green of the Twins doubled and extended his hitting streak to 23 games, longest in the majors since Ken Boyer had 30 for the St. Louis Cardinals in 1959.

Watson Trims 'The Beard'

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Ivan Kalmikoff may not know the meaning of "whiff" but by your own words, that's what happened to him in the Arena last night.

He tried to liquidate Whipper Billy Watson, by choking, hanging, and finally body-breaking and it worked for a while.

Then it boomeranged. The Whip took over as boss barber and trimmed Ivan's beard nicely but nicely with his own scissors.

Ivan wound up "riding" a reverse piggy-back in a Watson version of the back-breaker. Finally with his dorsal digits pinned, Watson lullaby'ed murmured "uncle" and that was that.

The whiskered tovarishe couldn't do anything with the Whip the night was in the first fall, as he dug deeply into his boots and came up with everything but a blacksnake and sawed-off shotgun.

He choked, bodybutted and he tried to garrot the Pride of New York. He had him on the ropes through the ring and finally out of the hemp.

Referee Tiger Tasker waddled around in spins trying to separate the Russ from his victim. Ivan had the Whip outside the ring trying to decapitate him with a chair when the Tiger growled "No Soap" and disqualified the Russ.

But he came back in two minutes of the second fall to "back-break" the Whipper and square the fall score.

Then Whip took over. He was the Whipper of old as he heaved, spun, tossed and chucked Ivan in and out and about the ring.

Then he derricked him aboard his broad back face upwards for a couple of minutes until Ivan decided he had enough and called it a night.

The San Stanislaw-Tony Marson second fall act-nearly stole the show. For thirty minutes this pair had the crowd in a steady uproar, with one of the most sensational bouts seen here in a long while.

They battled and they wheled at each other, they punched, hunched and threw each other out of the ring. It ended in a lively time-limit draw.

The Black Terror won the preliminary bout after beating Tom (The Emperor) Jones in 14 minutes of brawling action.

MINISTERS TO MEET

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial ministers of education will meet here June 19-20 as a formal committee to discuss a number of problems facing education-Ontario Education Minister Roberts announced Friday. All provinces but Newfoundland will be represented.

WILLIE LOST THIS RACE — Fleet Willie Mays (24), San Francisco Giants outfielder, loses cap and decision as he attempts to steal second base in first inning yesterday at Wrigley Field in Chicago. Making the putout is Chicago Cubs shortstop Jerry Kindall who took toss from catcher Dick Bertell. (AP Wirephoto).

Palmer, Player, Leonard

Pass Up Cup Tournament

NEW YORK (CP) — Golf's great that leading money-winners of the game can't afford to take suspension from the touring trail by Canadian Professional Golfers' Association. Arnold Palmer, South Africa also dropped out.

Al Johnson of Montreal was named to replace Leonard and join Al Balding of Toronto as Canada's representatives at the matches, to start at Dorado Beach, Puerto Rico, next Thursday. Johnson and Balding were eliminated Friday at the very way point of the $50,000 "500 Festival" Open in Indianapolis.

Leonard was still in the running.

The withdrawals resulted from a hassle between the International Golf Association and the PGA and sponsors of next week's Memphis Open over which tournament had prior claim to the players.

Memphis won out to the extent that Leonard, Palmer and Player won't play in Puerto Rico. But Palmer and Player said they will not turn up at Memphis, Tenn. Palmer is going home to Ligonier, Pa., for a rest and Player is going fishing.

A PGA regulation, binding on all players eligible for tournaments on the regular tour, specifies that tournament winners of the past year and those in the top 25 money - winners, can't skip a PGA sponsored tournament to play in an unsponsored event without permission. Memphis officials refused to release the three for the Canada Cup or others who wished to play in a pro-amateur next week at Odessa, Tex.

"Under the circumstances we cannot afford to accept the penalty of six months' suspension for participating in the Canada Cup matches in Puerto Rico, June 1-4," Palmer and Player said in a joint statement.

Jimmy Demaret was chosen to replace Palmer on the U.S. Canada Cup team. He will hook up with Sam Snead. Palmer and Snead won the cup last year.

Officials hope to get Harold Henning, who played for South Africa in the 1959 Canada Cup, as a substitute for Player, if he's unavailable, veteran Bobby Locke may be named to join Retief Waltman.

Kingston Horsemen's Driving Club staged their annual district inaugural meet on Monday afternoon May 22. Quinte district horses proved very successful in winning four of the eight heats and landing place, show and fourth money in four other races.

In the D classified consolation "E" took both heats in times of 2.31 1/5 and 2.33 while "Gaspray" owned and driven by Bernard Hart of Tweed was 2 and 5.

The C classified produced the biggest mutual payoff in the first heat as "Bobby Dale" Irwin won in 2.19 to pay $37. for $2. "Bobby" finished seventh in the 2nd heat won by "Gregg C" a good colt owned by Ken Keyes of Gananoque. Vic Keyes was third second with "Royal Dale" while Barney Elwell of Westport and Pat Adair of Gananoque shared 3rd with "Scotland Harvester" and "Zebedee" fourth respectively.

The last class produced two excellent bursts of speed by "Argyel Jimmie" owned and driven by Irvin "Red" of Belleville as he came from 5th to win both heats in 2.17 and 2.17 1/5. C. Gology's "Trippet Grattan" was twice second while Bob Geoghegan's own colt "Billie D" to a third and fifth.

The A classified produced the fastest miles as two trotters battled with "Perfect" owned and driven by Vic Keyes of Gananoque winning the first in 2.13 "Scotsmere" came again made a fast stretch drive to win the second in the second heat. Larry Zebedee's "Blackloch's Pride" was twice fourth and Jerry Jones was taken both times by "Thunder".

Many of these horses have been entered for the Quinte Driving Club's opening meet here tonight. It will be the first meet in Eastern Ontario under the lights and should be worth seeing.

Bad News For Hunter

WASHINGTON (AP)—The interior department had some bad news for duck hunters Friday—the outlook is bleak for the 1961 season, too.

Serious drought conditions in the best duck nesting areas on the Canadian Prairie threaten sharply to curtail waterfowl production again this year, the department said on the basis of early reports.

The same condition extends into the duck nesting areas of the Dakotas, Montana and Minnesota in the United States."

MEET IN FINALS

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Defending champion Bob Richard of Lennoxville, Que., qualified Friday to meet Don Fontana of Toronto in the final today of the annual Oakville invitational tennis tournament. Richard defeated veteran Henri Rochon of Montreal 6-1, 6-4, in the semi-finals.

Jerome Runs With Top Stars

MODESTO, Calif. (AP)—Some of the world's top sprint men, including Harry Jerome of Vancouver, were entered in the 100-yard dash at the California relays tonight, and officials looked for new world marks for this and other events.

Besides Jerome, who runs for the University of Oregon, the entries in the 100 included Jamaican Dennis Johnson of San Jose State College, Ronnie Coak of Oregon and Charlie Tidwell, ex - Kansas flash and 1960 champion of the United States National Collegiate Athletic Association.

All have equalled the world record of 9.3 seconds for the 100. Jerome tied it at Oregon a week ago. Johnson has tied the mark four times this season and faces his toughest competition tonight.

Both the Jamaican and Stone Johnson, a U.S. Olympian, have run wind-aided 9.2s this season. However, the American sent word Friday he would not come to Modesto for the event because of a pulled muscle.

The pole vault featured U.S. Olympic champion Don Bragg and Oklahoma State's George Davies, who has been bettered Bragg's world record with a leap of 15 feet, 10¼ inches.

Palmer Tops Festival By Stroke

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — U.S. Open champion Arnold Palmer shot a one-stroke victory over the Speedway golf course Friday to hold the halfway lead in the $50,000 "500 Festival" tournament by one stroke. His 70 gave him a 36-hole total of 136.

Defending Champion Doug Ford picked up a stroke on Palmer with his second successive 69 to grab the runner-up spot with 138.

Jim Ferree and Johnny Pott settled for halfway scores of 143 and 139 respectively.

Australia's Peter Thomson and Masaji Kosojima had 140 totals.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver went five stroker over his 70 Thursday to give him a halfway total of 145.

Scores of other Canadians were: Al Johnson, Montreal, 73-76—149; Bill Strange, Toronto, 78-72—150, and Jerry Magee Toronto, 72-77—149.

Johnston and Balding failed to make the cut-off point of 149 and will not be eligible to take part in the final two rounds.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Pro Hockey is just another sport in New York these days but there was an era when it commanded prime attention from the newspapers and fans. The man responsible was Red Dutton.

This was pointed up the other day when Arthur Daley, veteran New York sports columnist, bumped into Dutton at the Kentucky Derby. Nearly 25 years have passed since Dutton and the New York Americans of the old National League were idolized by fans and the newspapers gave them plenty of ink.

They talked of the old times, 1926 when Dutton became manager-coach of the Americans, until the early 1940s when they bowed out as Rangers became the lone New York club in the NHL.

The strangest thing about the roaring redhead was that he could crash an enemy forward into the boards or verbally needle the hide of a referee and never lose their friendship," Daley recalls. "Few men in the sport ever enjoyed such popularity."

The talk in their chance meeting at Louisville, Ky., centred around the Americans, a club founded by Bill Dwyer, "His fortune," says Daley, "was made on the shady side of prohibition."

But let Dutton take over:

"Those were wonderful days," he told Daley. "I don't think there ever was a team as beloved as the Americans. If I could have won with them, I'd have chased the Rangers out of Madison Square Garden. Not only the fans, but even the ushers worshipped us.

"I liked and admired Dwyer. Even though he did owe the internal revenue bureau eight million dollars. He was always in financial trouble, and paid salaries with post-dated cheques. I'd saved my hockey money and so he borrowed $7,000 from me, giving as collateral the Mount Vernon race track and everything else he owned. Finally he was in a squeeze.

"Please don't foreclose on Americans, Red," he begged me one time. 'It's the only legitimate thing I ever owned in my life.' But the National Hockey League had to move in on him and asked me to run the club for them."

Dutton now is a millionaire in Calgary, "If he had his dough 20 or 25 years ago he could have saved the Americans," said Daley. "But now they are only one of the most treasured memories."

Boy Drops Crutches, Plays Ball

TORONTO (CP) — An 11-year - old boy who was told sports were out for him after cancer cost him his left leg two years ago, is the most ardent sports competitor in neighbourhood.

Bruce LeGrow is the catcher on a suburban North York season he leaves his crutches and takes part in football, soccer, hockey, archery, basketball, horseback riding, swimming, diving and boxing.

"I can do everything another kid with two legs can do — except maybe run the 100-year dash," he says.

Rich Wall, manager of the Hardington Boys' Club peewee baseball team says, 'Bruce made the team strictly on merit. He's as good as any of our players."

"We are attempting to have the league put in a rule which would allow him to hop down to first base when he gets a hit and for a pinch runner to take over."

Doctors were forced to amputate the leg at the hip to save Bruce's life.

New Teams In League

HAMILTON (CP)—League officials are almost sure Hamilton Tiger-Cat Bees will be out and two new teams will be in when the Ontario Rugby Football Union intermediate series begins in August.

With Oakville Black Knights and Toronto Hoopers also vacant already in, this would make a four-team league.

The intermediate league admitted Windsor at its last meeting. The other club expected to come in, Niagara Falls, played in an international league last year.

Lack of fan support and practice time are believed principal reasons why Hamilton will withdraw. Only 42 fans saw Bees defeat Argos to win the 1960 league championship and only 500 when they lost to Verdun Shamrocks in the Eastern Canada final.

"They'll be very valuable when I'm dead, and frankly I've been in terrible health lately."

'This Is Your Life' Ends After Eleven Years on Air

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When Ralph Edwards does his final "This Is Your Life" show next month, the subject will not be Ralph Edwards.

"I have a simple way to prevent it," Edwards says. "I have told my staff the day after it happens, they're all fired."

June 18 will bring the end of an 11 - year history (two on radio, nine on TV) of This Is Your Life.

"Naturally I'm sorry it's going off," Edwards says. "I can't quite understand why NBC is dropping it; the network still has to pay us for one more season under the contract.

"But we're not standing still here. We'll still have 16 half-hour shows on the networks—Truth or Consequences, It Could Be You and About Faces in the daytime. And now It Could Be You will also be going into the night - time spot vacated by 'This is Your Life.'

MAT COME BACK

"I have an idea the show will be back, perhaps in a different form and perhaps without me. It may be a good thing, as far as my career as a performer. The word has just got around that This is Your Life is going off and already I've had many offers to do other shows. I think probably I'll stick to my own organization, though. We can use the $2,000,000 NBC owes it to develop ideas."

Edwards remains as sold on This is Your Life as he was at the start and isn't bothered by the fact that it is the most lampooned of all TV shows.

"I've never worried about the roasters," he says. "When they attack the show, they are attacking sentiment and honesty, for ours is the most honest of shows. The element of surprise makes the show real."

Astrological Forecast

Sunday, May 28
By CARROLL RIGHTER

General Tendencies: Now you have a day when a temptation to use this Sunday to make some very drastic and dramatic changes is certainly a very definite part of your aspects. Be sure instead that you do carry through with what you have agreed to do in which the use of individuality, tact, method, system and subtlety is a very definite, decisive part.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) —While you may be perplexed regarding financial affairs now, if you are on the qui vive when higher-ups suggest certain work for you to do, you find that soon all will work out fine for you. Have fun inexpensively this evening.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) —An exciting and unexpected event at home could easily upset your plans for some business venture in the outside world. However if you retain equilibrium, all can still be salvaged. Look at the problem objectively and carry through wisely.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) —This is a day when all sorts of information comes your way that will be vital and helpful to your career and personal life. Be on the alert for it. However, be careful that some jealous fellow-worker does not place you in the wrong light.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Impetuous, show real thought and affection for the person most important in your life, though it requires that you leave your duties for awhile. In the future you will be very glad that you did, since real harmony and understanding can be reached.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) —Don't allow that close tie to deter you from carrying through with fine, constructive ideas you have in mind. Be firm and show that you possess business sense, since the future depends on it. Take it easy tonight and retire early.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) —This is one of those days when you could easily waste every hour just fussing and fuming, bemoaning your fate, etc. Get yourself in hand early instead and work constructively and all of your problems will disappear. Grow.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — A fine day for putting all property and financial matters in order in the quiet of your room. Don't permit a friend to take you out on such worldlies activity. Get abode in order.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) —Be yourself this fine day instead of play-acting so much. Improve your appearance and health, then off to the fine social affairs that you enjoy so much. Stop using all those intricate angles and just have a good time. Be happy.

Sagittarius (Nov. to Dec. 21) — You could just sit back and get out and meet interesting people look into new and fascinating outlets. Make life more fascinating — Grow through contacts.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — The best day in some time to contact old acquaintances and renew fine friendships of the past. Forget about business affairs and making radical changes. However, be sure to attend services first and feed your soul.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Important you act circumspectly or you get into trouble with those who have power over your affairs. Attend duties around the house. Then be in the company of that dynamic personality who can give you wonderful, new ideas.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) —A fine day to discuss information with an expert on ways and means by which you can be more successful in your career. However, don't get so busily occupied with trivia around the house that you forget to do this. Expand.

If you're child is born today he, or she, will be one of those demanding little children who will get into the hair of others early and also have a volcanic energy to go with it, which is part of the great charm in this nature. However, by giving spiritual training early and teaching the facts of life at correct time, danger can be averted and then the chart shows very successful especially in whatever has to do with big money, particularly banking.

By CARROLL RIGHTER
Monday, May 29, 1961

General Tendencies: Be sure that you do avoid being too outspoken or direct today or you will alienate one of whom you are most fond and who is likely to help you. Use your discriminating attitude and urges today on inanimate work to be done and thus you can easily achieve a very great deal without offending anyone at all. Clean house.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) This is one of those strange days when you are apt to tie yourself down to dull duties and become frustrated instead of looking into new interests that could be most lucrative. Do only what is absolutely necessary, then up and a'em, Horsey. From 10 to May 30 Try not to lose your patience and when mum, talk is going out that only pleases some higher-up — smile and take it in your stride. Afternoon and evening are fine, however, for whatever has to do with pleasuring loved one. Be economical.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Don't be loyal to outsiders now in preference to kin and associates or you will regret it later. Carry through diligently with loved ones at whatever time or interests are at hand and you can make big headway this first day of the new week.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) If you indulge in self-pity now instead of getting out to see customers, clients or whatever else can be of help to you in your career, you will not be selling wisely at all. P.M. Plan coming days intelligently and make real progress. Grow.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) Be careful you do not invest time or money unwisely today. Also along same lines who think and act logically and will not try to sell you the Brooklyn Bridge. Remember that once your security is gone, you cannot get it back.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Provided your step clear of publicity, much accomplishment is possible this fine day. Impress others with your exceptional talents and they will help you to real happiness and success, which comes from doing and not dreaming.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Channel your energies wisely in new and lucrative interests today. You have been placing too many limitations upon yourself. Think big and you can get big P.M. Step out for a little fun. You owe it to yourself.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Look to logical-minded gentle folk for the right ideas that will mean greater progress for you. However, don't try to tackle more than you can handle and refrain from being demanding upon those whom you love. Work.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Remain steadfast to trusted associate who is clever, though sometimes acting in a somewhat unorthodox fashion. Also, don't be forceful with a higher-up or you will regret it. Be sure your credit standing is good.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) It is best you now get out of that comfortable but stodgy routine you like and look into new interests that mean work but will bring far greater interests. Study matters well, then start ball rolling for the right direction.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You can have a wonderfully happy day if you stop being so overly sensitive and terribly concerned about money. Step out and into activities that please. Also, take a good pal along and share both fun and profits. Grow.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) Kin may seem disinterested in your problems or wants but it is only that they have bigger worries themselves. Look to friends instead for help and if you assist them in their sims, you will get ample co-operation. Expand.

If your child is born today he or she will be avid for knowledge and the acquisition of Truth and you must see to it that a fine college education is given, as well as opportunity for travel accorded. Then the promise in this chart can come to full fruition. Be very sure you give fine relief, as training early, too, or your progeny may be quite confused during formative years and give up easily.

Up to Courts to Back Up Principles of Bill of Rights

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Fulton said Friday that it is up to the courts to back up the principles set out in Canada's Bill of Rights.

Members of Parliament should not feel that they have been remiss in any matter when they find this is the case, Mr. Fulton said.

Mr. Fulton said it was carefully explained last session when the bill was before the House that "the courts are the integral and essential part of the protection of rights."

He added: "All the legislature can do is define the rights and put them in statute form."

Persons who felt their rights had been violated should seek their restitution from the courts.

The Bill of Rights debate arose during discussion of the Justice department's 1961-62 spending estimates.

CCF members brought up two cases they claimed had violated the provisions of the bill and criticized the minister for not coming to the defence of people involved in such instances of alleged discrimination.

Held up as examples were:

Valerie Smith, 26-year - old Ethiopian allegedly fired by the Calgary office of Midwest Surveys Limited for telling a friend she was going on a holiday in Cuba that Premier Diefenbaker had done some good for Cuba and Australian Terry Whitfield who claims he was dismissed by Canadian Marconi Company from a Mid-Canada Warning Line post for fraternizing with an Eskimo girl.

Both cases, said CCF MPs H. W. Herridge, Kootenay West, and Grace Howard, Skeena, were infringements of the Bill of Rights.

"We have either to incorporate the bill in the constitution or agreement with the provinces to protect such civil liberties," said Mr. Herridge. "Good practices, if we do not, allow an individual to express unpopular opinions in democracy cannot survive."

Arnold Peters, CCF Member for Timiskaming, said Miss Smith had said nothing detrimental to Canada or the company, which she said was under the domination of the American-controlled oil industry."

Mr. Howard said the Marconi Company abrogated the section of the Bill of Rights relating to freedom of association in firing Mr. Whitfield for becoming engaged to an Eskimo girl at Great Whale River, Que.

Mr. Fulton said the Northern Affairs Minister Diesdale told the Commons that he asked Marconi to delete from its contracts a clause barring fraternization between whites and Eskimos.

Mr. Fulton said that to suggest he take action in such cases was to suggest dictatorship—and that is exactly what the Bill of Rights was legislated to protect against."

Two Are Killed, Five Injured In Collision

SARNIA (CP) — Two persons were killed and five others critically injured early Friday when two cars hurtled into each other on No. 7 highway.

The dead: Raymond Joseph Robertson, 22, and Joseph Daniel Gallant, 26, both of the Sarnia area.

Injured were Mrs. Paul Cuthbert, 28, Diane McHale, 19, Eric Steele, 18, Jean-Marie Gallant, 15, brother of the deceased Gallant, and an unidentified person.

All from the Sarnia district, suffered multiple injuries.

The accident occurred when a car driven by Robertson and carrying Steele and Miss McNak collided in the eastbound lane with an eastbound car believed driven by Joseph Gallant.

The younger Gallant suffered severe brain damage and was taken 60 miles east to Victoria Hospital in London for surgery.

Police were unable to explain how both cars came to be in the same lane on the three-lane highway. The vehicles were so badly smashed that it took wrecking crews three hours to clear the debris.

Be Positive Lights Are 'On the Beam'

BY EUGENE B. MILMOE

If they're working, why worry about them? . . . would seem to be a too-typical attitude about headlights. Working usually means that both lamps light up . . . but, working properly is another thing.

Dim lights are common and a definite hazard, particularly on the open road. They may be caused by a weak battery, looseness or corrosion in the lamp sockets, wiring, or — as is often the case — by a layer of corrosion which has formed on the battery terminal connections.

Lights become misaimed, too, and can really threaten road safety if not corrected promptly. This offers one good example of the value of inspections. Misaimed lights not only fail to illuminate the road ahead properly, but they may be blinding oncoming drivers. When aiming is off, beams may be too high, too low or off to one (or both) sides.

From D. N. — "After the fuel pump sends gasoline into the carburetor and it mixes with air, how does it get to the cylinders?"

(A) The fuel mixture is drawn up into the cylinders by the suction which is developed by the pistons.

P. T. writes: "Please tell me if it is the carburetor or the ignition which normally causes engine acceleration to become very sluggish."

(A) Any number of ignition faults can bring about this condition — and so can carburetor troubles. In the latter case, the accelerator pump is the most likely source.

QUEEN'S PLAYHOUSE — The Queen has consented to construction of a replica of the Little House for the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto—a copy of the cottage where she and Princess Margaret played as children. Queen Elizabeth Reveals Secret of Childhood Haunt

By ROD CURRIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — The Queen has decided to lift a little shroud of secrecy surrounding a house where she and Princess Margaret spent many happy hours as little girls.

She has consented to permit the construction of a replica of the Little House for display at this year's Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto.

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce in Great Britain, which handled negotiations between the CNE and Buckingham Palace, said it was the first time the Queen had granted permission for a replica to be made.

The Little House is a miniature of a house that many a grownup would be happy to call home. It nestles under the old oaks on the lush lawns of the gardens of the royal lodge in Windsor Great Park, near Windsor Castle.

The house is the size of a large living room—it's 22 feet long, eight feet wide and 16 feet high—yet it has four rooms, a kitchen and bathroom.

GIFT FROM WALES

The people of Wales gave it to the Queen on her sixth birthday. It was presented to the Queen's parents, then the Duke and Duchess of York, at Cardiff in March, 1930.

It is a faithful copy of a cottage considered modern in the 1830s. The only difference is that everything — the rooms, furniture and fittings — are scaled down to fit a girl of six.

The Little House, sometimes called the dolls' house, was the centre of the few private hours the life of the Queen. There she and later Princess Margaret escaped from the public eye to "play house" and to give tea parties for their little friends.

The princesses' privacy was considered sacred. In the Little House, hardly anything was written about the activities of the girls at play in their private home. Only those nearest to the Royal Family talked to occasionally.

The shroud of secrecy still is maintained. Now Princess Anne plays house in the cottage. No one will say what it looks like now, but it is reported—unofficially, of course—that it has been redecorated. And, it's believed that Princess Anne has provided on her parents to install a television set.

While still maintaining the privacy of the house in Windsor Great Park, the Queen consented to let Canadians see a replica of the home where she spent many carefree hours.

Without even waiting for a formal approach, she granted permission for it to be built and shown in Toronto. Morgan Willmott, the architect who designed the original, is to provide the plans for the replica and its furniture as it was to be built in Canada.

The Queen has laid down a few conditions for this unprecedented operation. The plans must be returned promptly. The building must be destroyed after the exhibition.

And, thinking of one of her favorite charities, she has stipulated that a separate admission charge must be made to view the Little House. The proceeds for admission fees are to be divided between the Canadian National Institute for the Blind and the Royal Commonwealth Society for the Blind, of which she is patron.

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce in Great Britain, commenting on the detailed perfection of the building and its contents, says: "Their faithful reproduction presents a challenge which the Canadian building industry has gladly accepted."

New Brunswick And P.E.I. Face Continued Rain

Only Nova Scotia Gets Relief Following Deluge

HALIFAX (CP) — Clear weather spread into Nova Scotia today, but more rain was in store for New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island in the wake of a weekend storm and flood which took a toll of lives and property.

However, the rain was to be mostly in the form of showers, far short of the concentrated deluge which lashed all three provinces during the weekend, dumping Greenwich's St. John River on the rampage.

Two men died in small wooden boats and another was drowned when his car skidded off a slippery bridge. Heavy tolls were anticipated in the fishing fleets.

The storm struck Saturday with winds that exceeded 60 miles an hour. Most of Nova Scotia got an inch or more of rain.

Fredericton got up to five inches of rain in a 36-hour period. The St. John River rose from 4 to 5 feet.

Bridges and highways in New Brunswick's potato growing and grain sections were disrupted, homes were evacuated and a number of power transmission lines were cut off.

Paul Comeau, Bream, 21, of Tracadie Beach, N.B., died in the Bartibog River after his car skidded on a bridge and crashed through the railing.

DEAD IN BOAT

William Dewar, 30, of Cape Jack, near Antigonish, N.S. was found dead in a drifting dory after the storm passed. With him in the boat, and huddled in the rear, was the three-year-old son of Cape Jack. He was unharmed.

The dory was picked up by the 50-foot government dragger Regaskha after a search by an RCAF plane. It sailed off because of high winds. The two had set out to pull lobster traps the day before.

In the Bay of Fundy, off western Nova Scotia, a search plane found one airman dead and another suffering from exposure.

Leading Aircraftsman Vernon Percy Dean, from Comwall, was believed to have died from exposure. His companion, Leading Aircraftsman Ian Hunter of Ottawa, was taken to hospital by helicopter.

The two, stationed at Greenwood, N.S., Air Force Base, had left on a training flight Friday in a Harvard trainer. Search planes and helicopters have been in progress five months.

Union members now receive $2.46 an hour.

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Saturday, May 27, 1961

Justice Minister Fulton announced establishment of provincial conferences will be held in Ottawa in October to determine the search for a method of amending the Canadian constitution in Canada.

Frank Howard (CCF—Skeena) charged that the United States patents are being used to create monopolies and high prices for some Canadian drugs.

Justice Minister Fulton said the research of Tomasz Biezanek, Polish engineer suspected of spying, was entirely in accordance with provisions of the Canadian law.

Monday, May 29, 1961

The Commons meets at 11 a.m. on closure-by-clause study of the government's anti-inflation punishment bill; the Senate is adjourned until 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Today's Chuckle

One of the first things one notices in a backward country is that cars are still obeying their parents.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: A band of showers moved down from the north during the night and ended a one-day warm spell. The cool northerly breezes will keep temperatures in the range of 55 to 65 today. In Northern Ontario, temperatures dropped below freezing overnight and afternoon temperatures today will not likely exceed 50.

COMMONS AGAIN WILL DEBATE DEATH PENALTY

Clause-by-Clause Study of Bill Ready

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons moves back today into its debate on capital punishment.

Instead of discussing the principles underlying the death penalty for murder, MPs will turn to a detailed clause - by - clause study of the government's measure to establish two degrees of murder.

The bill, given second reading last week, is to come up for committee study in the Commons today. It was approved in principle last Wednesday by a recorded vote of 139 to 21.

Twenty Liberals, all French-speaking with two exceptions, voted against the legislation which was passed in favor by Maurice J o h n s o n, Chambly-Rouville, was the only Progressive Conservative to vote against his party. The CCF sided with the government.

The bill provides for two degrees of murder, one punishable by death and the other by life imprisonment.

Justice Commons Saturday Frank Howard (CCF — Skeena) raised the issue of drug prices in Canada.

He tried to bring before the Commons excerpts from a United States drug pricing report prepared for the restrictive trade practices commission by the director of combines investigation and research.

Mr. Howard said:

But he was ruled out of order.

Mr. Howard said manufacturers of "wonder drugs" in Canada spend 36 cents of every dollar collected in taxes to "manhandle the doctors into not prescribing them under the drug name."

He also contended that the general public paid prices from 300 to 520 per cent higher for drugs than did the defence production department.

Justice Minister Fulton said he was prevented from replying to Howard because the matter is being studied by the Restrictive Trade Practices Commission.

However, he indicated that the government is considering the recommendation that drug prices be controlled by the federal government.

Mr. Howard indicated that the CCF favors control of prices in Canada should be "held in the patent law, and said Canadian drug companies operate, to all intents, under the effects of the Liberal Party.

The CCF member charged that U.S. patents are being used to create monopolies through patterns which Canadian law appears to have been designed to prevent."

Arnold Peters (CCF — Timiskaming) urged immediate government action aimed at bringing prices down.

South Korean Constitution Suspended by Ruling Junta

SEOUL (Reuters)—The ruling military junta today temporarily suspended the constitution while it changed South Korean laws to make life coup legal.

Junta Leader Lt.-Gen. Do Yung Chang announced the suspension and a total "partial amendments" soon will be made to the constitution.

Chang reiterated his pledge to hand over power to "fresh and conscientious citizens" as soon as possible. But he said changes in the constitution were necessary to make the 13-day-old coup legal and also disclosed the laws governing elections to the national assembly would be amended.

In another junta move, all private stores in South Korea—about 2,000 of them—were ordered to stop serving coffee as part of a crackdown on smuggling. South Korea does not produce coffee which is imported only through the blackmarket.

The junta Sunday arrested 36 leading South Koreans as it launched a campaign against corruption.

The accused were arrested on wealth illegally" during the reign of Premier John Chang, predecessor, ousted former president Syngman Rhee. They include 11 leading business men, 10 officials of the Rhee and John Chang governments and five retired military officers.

Pugwash Conferences Hit Hard in U.S. Committee

WASHINGTON (CP)—A staff report by the U.S. Senate Internal Security subcommittee says the Pugwash conferences which originated in Nova Scotia were designed to win the worldwide of Western scientists to resist Soviet propaganda.

It charges the conferences of international scientist, supported largely by Canadian born U.S. industrialist Cyrus Eaton, have been infiltrated by individuals with significant records of support of Communist causes.

Eaton, who has been strongly criticized in U.S. foreign policy circles, was accused by the subcommittee staff of having made "an almost treasonous attack on American security" by urging Canada to divorce itself from U.S. foreign strategy.

"Canada is a vital link in the chain of our defences," the report said.

Elections Have Say in Four Federal Byelections Today

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The election had the final say today as they voted in federal byelections in four of Canada's Commons vacancies.

It was the first ballot-box test in seven months since the start of the political winds are blowing.

The four seats—all formerly held by Conservative representatives are located from the Maritimes to the Prairies and are giving breadth to the political sampling of voter opinions.

The campaigns have been most vigorous—not far short of the intensity seen in a general election campaign—in Halifax, where the Conservative and Liberal parties, backed by their top party leaders, are battling for the four constituencies.

Also in Nova Scotia, Acadia-Madawaska in Northern New Brunswick, Lake Kings in Prince Edward Island.

But in British Columbia's Richmond-Saanich riding and Yukon-Mackenzie in the Northwest Territories, today's ballot has the same candidates as did the Conservative, Liberal, New Party, Social Credit and Social-ist parties.

Polls close at 7 p.m. local standard time—8 p.m. daylight time.

Whatever the verdict, it will have little effect on the immediate party strength in the Commons, where there are 200 Conservatives, 50 Liberals, 25 CCF members and one New Party representative.

But the political parties have been campaigning as though something else was at stake than four seats in Parliament.

Some 15 cabinet ministers have taken to the hustings to do battle on the government's record. Leaders of the Tories and a number of prominent colleagues have campaigned diligently too.

CCF Leader Argue entered the Dartmouth campaign in hopes that the New Party, being formed this summer with CCF aid, can pull off an upset similar to that in the Peterborough byelection last October.

Four provincial premiers also took to the hustings—Conservative Premier Walter Shaw of P.E.I., Liberal Premier Louis Robichaud of New Brunswick, CCF Premier Tommy Douglas of Saskatchewan and Social Credit Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia.

The outcome today may have an important bearing on the date of the next general election. Usual practice is for governments to call an election after four years of their five-year term, and the present government's mandate has run only a little more than three fears. But there has been speculation

Mounties Now Probing Eccles Divorce Case

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP now is investigating the celebrated Eccles divorce case, Justice Minister Fulton said today.

Justice Minister Fulton said the police were instigated in the case before it is turned over to Attorney-General Roberts of Ontario for prosecution. The inquiry being involved in two provinces, Quebec and Ontario.

Mrs. Lise Dandurand Eccles sought a divorce from her husband, William Eccles, Ottawa industrialist, on the grounds of cruelty, rape, sodomy and bestiality.

Mr. Eccles denied the charges and countered with a petition for divorce on the grounds of adultery.

The petitions were filed in the Ontario courts.

The Eccles case is one of four under review now by his department.

Nikita Will Hold Meeting During Stay

BUDAPEST, Hungary (Reuters) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev will hold a conference of East European Communist leaders during his stay in Czechoslovakia later this week, usually well informed sources said here today.

The Soviet Premier left Moscow last Friday for Vienna where he meets President Kennedy next weekend. He was in Kiev, in the Ukraine, Monday.

Hungarian officials declined to comment on the report.

The sources said the Hungarian delegation headed by Janos Kadar, first secretary of the Communist party, would leave Budapest Tuesday.

They said the earlier arrival of President Sukarno of Indonesia appeared to confirm the report of a Communist summit meeting.

President Sukarno, on a world tour, is to arrive later today.

An east European summit would enable Khrushchev to present his Communist colleagues before meeting the U.S. president.

South African Negroes Ignore Call For Strike

Are Hesitant at First But Trip to Work Late

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) — Hesitant South Africans today streamed to work, generally ignoring a "stay-at-home" strike called in protest against the policies of Premier Hendrik Verwoerd's government.

The strike appeared to have collapsed after workers in Negro townships surrounding Johannesburg belatedly joined the movement to work.

Many of the Negro workers formed groups in their districts and carried sticks to protect themselves against strike agitators.

They were also provided with the heavy police guard. Police were posted at all main railroad and bus terminals in the Negro townships.

The Witwatersrand police chief, Col. Theo Oliver, described the situation as "almost normal for a Monday."

NO INCIDENTS

"No serious incidents were reported, and there is no indication that there will be any later."

Early scattered reports told of small numbers of Negroes responding to the three-day strike by refusing to work. But the government's partnered fascial segregation policies and the strong opposition to become a republic Wednesday.

Nelson Mandela, leader of the work boycott movement, has managed to avoid arrest although some 10,000 Negroes have been arrested during the last month in a desperate government to pick up agitators.

He issued a statement from his hideout Saturday calling on South African Negroes to continue the strike in a "quiet and peaceful way."

Earlier today it appeared the strike would be 80 per cent effective in the Negro areas of Johannesburg.

But, after about an hour's delay, the city's Negro workers began to pour from their homes and commuter traffic soon reached about 60 per cent of normal.

The three-day strike call was also reported to have received little response in Negro districts other major South African cities.

Plane Flattens Station Wagon

GUELPH (CP)—A single-engined RCAF Otter attempting to make a non-stop flight from a grass airfield went out of control Sunday, flattened a station wagon, bounced back down the car and finished up 50 feet from the occupied house.

The pilot, Sgdn. Ldr. Peter Cranston of Downsview RCAF station said he was trying to get a cross-wind takeoff on the run. But the high wind caught the plane, dragged it off course and into the cars.

Sgdn. Ldr. Scrola was a passenger in the plane. Neither occupant was injured. None of the vehicles hit was occupied.

Boy of 10 Saved From Sea Tells Of Night of Terror in Storm

ANTIGONISH, N.S. (CP)— Bedd Fraser was cold, hungry, smuggly in bed, little Lloyd Mc-Isaac today told Sunday night of how he prayed and was saved from the clutches of a storm that claimed his father and brother.

Ten - year - old Lloyd left his home in nearby Cape Jack Saturday night with Bill Dean to pull some lobster traps. The weather was with winds up to 60 miles an hour, swept in with savage swiftness.

Sunday afternoon, the winds still raging but the rain gone, the fisheries department vessel Regaskha picked up the dory, Dan, 30, was dead; the boy was huddled in the bottom of the boat with his companion's coat around him. Later, in hospital, he told a boy told the story:

"We tried rowing as hard as we could but it was no use. We kept drifting further and further away until we couldn't see the lights on land any more. Twice during the night boats of about the size of a dragger passed us. We hollered and made as much noise as we could, but they didn't hear us and they couldn't see us.

"Bill said he was cold and I said I was cold, too. Bill said he was hungry and I said I was hungry, too. Bill said he was frightened sometimes and I guess I cried a little bit then and then, especially after I thought about my father.

"When asked if he had ever given up hope of being rescued, Lloyd said: 'Sometimes, I know they wouldn't leave us out there. At home they would be looking for us and I knew my father would come.'

"At home, Luther did. He was the first man to touch the boy after he was hoisted aboard the Regaskha.

"I kissed him and hugged him so much—I was so happy," said Jack Melong.

At home, the boy's mother, three brothers and three sisters, ranging in age from five months to 14 years, kept a lonely vigil.

"I told my wife to pray to St. Anne," said the father.

Sunday Shows In Toronto Had Problems

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto movie managers found themselves with double - header competition Sunday for the historic introduction of Sunday shows and burlesque — a staff wage dispute and 70 - degree temperatures limited patronage at the 10 open theatres to a middling trickle.

The wage dispute between projectionists and the operators of the major chain theatres left only the 10 independent theatres open. Sunny skies prevented the demand for Sunday movies exceeding the supply.

But in one movie house, where business is combined with burlesque, it was hot inside and out.

Headline stripper Cup Cakes Cassidy doubled her audience for her second revelation and was protected by a police detachment's sparkled racial segregation policies and the strong opposition to become a republic Wednesday.

'Some of My Best Friends Jews' Top Nazis Informed Psychologist

JERUSALEM (Reuters) — A New York psychologist testified at the trial of Adolf Eichmann today that top Nazi war criminals had told him some of their best friends were Jews.

Dr. Gustave M. Gilbert, chairman of the psychology department at Long Island University, described his interviews with Hermann Goering and other war criminals at Nuremberg after the Second World War.

Gilbert said he made extensive notes after every conversation with the Nazis, because some things they said were "so incredible," he had them write down in their own words.

Gilbert said he acted as interpreter at an interview between Judge Michael A. Musmanno, now a Pennsylvania supreme court judge, and Field Marshal Hermann Goering.

Goering, referring to extermination of Jews, said:

"This of course was not any business of mine."

"It was under the jurisdiction of (Heinrich) Himmler (supreme Nazi SS and police chief) and his boys, (Reinhard) Heydrich (chief of the security headquarters), Eichmann and so on.

Gilbert described the one occasion on which he said he lost his professional detachment.

"A survivor from Auschwitz had testified how children born of German women were taken from their mothers and brought up in Poland, and how in the rush season in 1944 children were thrown alive on to the fire.

"This was too much even for Goering. He said: 'I will not (repeat) Kaltenbrunner (Heydrich's successor as security chief) is in his lunch hall and told him: 'Do you really mean that you know nothing about this?'

"He replied: 'No, No. I did not have anything to do with the extermination program as such. It was the others, Heydrich, Eichmann and others from Himmler down in that department. I commanded, but they are all dead.'"

Albert College Graduating Classes Guests of Honor

At Albert College on Saturday evening the graduating classes were guests of honor at the annual dinner where the impressive ritual one of the ceremonials family gathering with a warm guard to help celebrate the occasion.

The tables in Ackerman hall had been the recipients of bronze 'mums, with side bouquets of apple blossoms and the Tall green candles in silver holders and place cards with a red rose, made by Mrs. H. Brown of Picton, completed the decor. Male students were while carnations, the gift of the school; and girl students had corsages of red roses, presented by Dean J. H. MacKay. The table decorations were the work of Mrs. Cutla, Mrs. Ardine, and Mrs. Stonehouse, assisted by the girls of the graduating class.

Co-chairmen for the dinner were president of the senior class, Susan Smith and president of the Junior graduating class Bill Bowse. Rev. Dr. Swan said grace before the meal.

In a toast to the senior graduates, Dr. C. McMillan reminded the students that the year was merely over, and in a few weeks they would be published with exams and scatter ing to their homes.

"What will you be taking with you?" the speaker questioned. "Fine gifts, friendships. The year has been a happy one, you have made close friends, but let these friendships lapse, they are very valuable. You have learned to work. Life is easy for most of us, we do not have to scout ourselves, too often we fail to strive as we should. Many native Canadians go up and down the highways looking for work in contrast to some immigrants from other countries with a obedience of purpose and will to work. We have tried to make your work interesting, but not easy.

We hope also that you will all take a memory of the chapel services with you, that you have sung, the messages you have heard. We are living in a materialistic world. We have to keep before us the ideals of life, not the gold dickering and other pleasures, but that are spiritual over values. We hope you will choose the task where you will contribute most to the benefit of your fellows. You may find it hard to keep your finished ideal and accomplished but if you can retain your idealism you will be happy. We are trying at Albert College to proud of most of the graduates, those who have lived up to the ideals of the school".

SPECIAL AWARDS

Replying to the toast, Jean McCullough thanked the speaker for his excellent advice which was received through appreciation. "We will be linked by correspondence to Albert College. Our interests will change in life, but the ties we have shared will cannot be duplicated. We have become a closely-knit family at Albert. We have shared joys and sorrows, and we will look back with some nostalgia and much happiness. Success is determined by the imprint of life on the individual, and how you have given to a deeper meaning of life. Most of us have been given the power to influence through our associations here. Whatever path we follow we can contribute to the credit to society."

Ralph Johnson proposed the toast to the school, thanking the teachers and principal for their interest and help with personal problems. All through the year with its achievements and frustrations, happiness and sadness, storm and calm, the emphasis had been on Christian education, and the students are appreciative.

Rev. Dr. A. E. MacKenzie, principal and headmaster, in responding to the toast, spoke of a suitable analogy in likening Albert College in terms of a river.

"The history of mankind is largely written by its rivers," he said the principal. "We conjure up ideas of rivers in association with life. You never can tell when a river starts where it is going to end. Your are all part of the river of Albert College which, although small, is not insignificant. What have we contributed to this stream? Modified waters or something clear and powerful? An educational institution can be a powerhouse for leadership of a nation. It is a matter of concern that sometimes this is not so, sometimes the river just flows out. This college is an ongoing stream, and you go out as witnesses of it in the sea of life. I am proud to think I have contributed something in its high purpose. We know the future of the college will be bright if we have students of high calibre, teachers of understanding, harmony and a common purpose of achievement. My only wish for the future of the school is that many who come may bring to it freshness, vigor, purity, clearness of purpose and consecration."

EXPRESSES APPRECIATION

Judge J. C. Anderson, chairman of the Board of Governors expressed appreciation for the contribution Dr. and Mrs. MacKenzie had made to the life of the school in the past seven years, and had many pleasant recollections of their time there. Addressing the students, Judge Anderson told them to ask themselves what they had left at Albert College. Was it less than their best? Or had they contributed something important to the onflowing life of the college? They would benefited out of life what they had put in. The college was to be made a contribution to the life of the country, did they were a part of that institution? Graduates would be judged largely by the impact they now made as they went out into life.

Graduates' gifts were presented by Jean McCullough to Dr. and Mrs. MacKenzie, and to the Junior class by Dr. and Mrs. J. C. McMillan.

Chef Heath Bowse and his staff served a turkey dinner, thanks for their efforts in preparing and serving the dinner. Carolyn Cowling and other members of the faculty for the help in the kitchen. Dean and Susan Smith and Bill Bowse expressed appreciation to all those who had helped with the success of the dinner.

Harness Racing Under Lights Real Success

Despite the threatening weather and high winds the harness racing program under the lights held at the fairgrounds on Saturday night was a distinct success. There were close to 1,000 horse lovers in the stands and centrefield to watch the races and the lighting facilities, excellent in ever respect, there were no shadows, which allowed the horses to keep level and not 'jump' while the spectators had a good view of the horses during the entire mile. They dust raised by the horses coming through the stretch caused a little annoyance but these kinks will be ironed out in future meetings.

The track, despite the heavy rains of the past weeks was in good shap and for early in the season, good times were made in each class. The boys who like to lay a "bob" on their favorite had lots of chances and the accommodation for the bettors was excellent. Only the Free-For-All saw two different winners the other two races going in straight heats. Betty Renown, a gilb pacer from Kingston was seeong the first heat of the race but came back to take the second from Tester from Gananoque, who got to the wire first in the first heat.

A Belleville horse, Blacklock's Pride, made every post a winning one in capturing the 2.26 class. He was well handled by L. Zebedee, his owner and trainer. His only opposition came from two Kingston horses but neither had the speed to extend the winner. In the slow class race a Ganatoque horse, Great C was much the best, while Miss Reta Herrington of Brighton, the only woman driver in the race got a piece of the money with a third place finish in one heat.

The races were run off in good time, there were no relays between heats and the committee in charge is to be congratulated for their efforts to supply good sport during the coming summer months.

"Quinte View Stables" Win Top Honors

Attending the Charity Horse Shows held at Picton and Kingston recently, registered hackney ponies from "Quinte View Stables" owned and shown by Mr. and Mrs. Dave McDonald, won top honors by being placed first in single, team, saddle classes, and second in tandem. The new addition to "Quinte View Stables" is "Repetition Manner Boy," owned and shown by Master David McDonald, placing first at both the shows shown.

The hackneys from "Quinte View Stables" are considered among the hackneys in Canada today. During the past they have been in the winner's circle at the Royal Winter Fair and New York Madison Square Gardens. They will also be shown at the Belleville Charity Horse Show which is being held at the Belleville arena on June 3rd. Proceeds from this show will be used by the Lions Club for the Retarded Children's Building Fund.

IOOF Lodges Hold Special Church Parade

TRENTON — Sunday afternoon, IOOF lodges from the Quinte area participated in a church parade to North Trenton United Church where Brian Thrasher, lay reader, conducted a service based on the aims and ideals of the Order. The Quinte Highland Band supplied marching music.

Following the service, L. S. Fox, IOOF Deputy Grand Master in District 47, and the Noble Grands of the various lodges represented, presented certificates to the grade 11 students who participated in a recent examination for the opportunity to represent the district in a youth pilgrimage to the United Nations in New York City. Winner of the contest was Miss Dianne Flindall of Consecon Reid. Miss Flindall will accompany 20 other young delegates from IOOF districts throughout Ontario on the pilgrimage which will end Saturday evening in the New York area as well as a tour of the United Nations building, during which they will have the opportunity of seeing the UN at work. The pilgrimage is sponsored by the Odd Fellow and Rebekah lodges in Ontario.

Other students receiving certificates were Bernice Alexander and Brent Tilson of Trenton; John Korim, Brighton; Wayne Soble, Helen Hawkins and Beverley Jewell, Belleville, and Arnold Wellbanks and William Netherry, Picton.

Make Spruston An Honorary Town Citizen

TRENTON — Group Capt. J. A. Spruston who relinquished command of 6 Repair Depot on May 26 when he retired from the RCAF, has been the guest of honor at many gatherings attended by service personnel and local dignitaries in the past two weeks. Last week, he was entertained by members of the Rotary Club. Group Capt. Spruston served as 1960-61 president of the club. Mayor James McDonald presented him with a plaque commenting on him the title of "honorary citizen of Trenton".

In the name of the people of Trenton, Batawa and surrounding area, ex-mayor Kenneth Couch and Dr. C. K. Herz, managing director of the Bata Shoe Company, presented Group Capt. Spruston with an inscribed silver tray.

Last Thursday, he was made an honorary member of Trenton branch 110 of the Royal Canadian Legion and presented with a Legion crest, tie and cigaret lighter. In making the presentation, Kenneth Brodock, president of the Trenton branch, referred to a "promise" made by Group Capt. Spruston that "as soon as he entered civilian life, he would join the Legion". The initiation was scheduled to May 26, when Group Capt. Spruston entered civilian life".

Group Capt. Spruston will leave for Winnipeg this week where he will work for a small airline in an executive capacity.

No Car Mishaps But Toddler Hurt in Fall

TRENTON — Police here and Corporal Lloyd Lyle of the Brighton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police, reported that in spite of a heavy flow of traffic through the area over the weekend, no accidents were reported in either of the two municipalities. Both departments said that since May 26, Trenton and Brighton have been accident-free.

Friday night at Trenton, the two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kosir, 25 Ist Ave., was treated in hospital for head cuts suffered when he fell and struck his head in a downtown store. Dr. J. W. Farley was the attending physician. Several stitches were required to close a gash in the child's forehead.

Loss $100,000 As Fire Levels Planing Mill

TRENTON — The loss was estimated at $100,000 when fire early today destroyed the T. H. and Bert Wilson Company's planing mill at Gardenville, a few miles southwest of here.

Destroyed in the blaze were the mill, large quantities of hardwood dimension and several pieces of equipment, including a bulldozer.

Eight men were employed at the planing mill.

A fire truck from Trenton was sent to the scene, but, because of the difficulty in getting water supplies to the scene of the fire and the speed at which the fire spread in the dry lumber, there was little the firemen could do except stand on guard against the fire spreading to adjacent buildings and nearby woods. However, Nature co-operated and a heavy rain fell throughout the duration of the fire. The red glow in the sky caused by the conflagration could be seen for miles.

Two Mishaps In District Over Weekend

Trenton motorist Donald Blake was admitted to Trenton Memorial Hospital Saturday night with broken ribs suffered when he rolled his car over on No. 33 highway south of Frankford. The accident was one of two mishaps reported over the weekend by provincial police at Belleville.

Police said a Foxboro man, Clayton Daniels, was loading a boat on his trailer at the side of the road when a westbound vehicle passing the Daniels vehicle confused the Shannonville driver, prompting him to swing to the right off the roadway.

What makes "T-D" safety deposit boxes so different?

Frankly, they're not different. As a matter of fact, the Safety Deposit Boxes at Toronto-Dominion are exactly the same as those you'll find at any other Canadian bank. They're wonderful places to keep your valuables safe from loss or theft. We charge the same low rates for the service too.

So why should you choose Toronto-Dominion?

The reason is simple...

Our people are the MOST HELPFUL you'll find When you have a Safety Deposit Box, chances are you'll want to visit "The Bank" from time to time to put something into it or to take something out. This means that you'll be greeted by a member of "The Bank" staff, just like Brian McGeachie who's shown above. Brian is the Accountant at our Jane Street & Lawrence Avenue branch in Weston and he really takes pride in the service he has to offer.

Sometimes the service he provides is as simple as a friendly smile and a cheery "good morning". But you can be sure that it will make your visit to "The Bank" that much more pleasant.

We'd like you to visit the Toronto-Dominion branch nearest you. Make it a point to meet the people there. You'll find all of them enjoy taking all the time necessary to help you with any banking problems you may have. You'll be delighted when you discover how much...

Technical Training Week

Commonwealth Technical Training Week is being observed from today, May 29, until June 4. It will serve little purpose if interest in this problem wanes as soon as the official "week" is concluded. If, however, it serves to stimulate individuals, organizations and governments to appropriate action, we shall have reason to be deeply grateful to Prince Philip, who originally suggested it. The purpose of the week is to focus attention on the importance of technical and vocational training and education in today's world and to encourage young people to prepare for careers with expanding opportunities. The theme of the week is "Training Today for Tomorrow."

This is a particularly appropriate time of year to hold such a "week" because it is at this season that many young people start to think about leaving school to obtain permanent employment. Providing the heavy incidence of unemployment does not prove an obstacle, hundreds of students still in elementary schools or the early years of high school will turn their backs on the classroom and step into the working world, in many cases unprepared to meet present demands let alone the demands of the future.

In many instances, with them will go the shattered hopes of parents and relatives, for whether these young people realize it or not, they will be running the risk of never getting the chance to become a successful part of Canadian industry and business.

This situation is not confined to any strata of society, nor are its effects isolated by city limits or provincial boundaries. If the present rate of drop-outs from Canadian schools continues, with its adverse effects on the economy, it can't help but affect every individual, industry and business establishment in fact, every organization in this and future generations.

It has been said that education, in its broadest sense, is the foundation of a nation. Can we afford to stand by and watch large numbers of our youth leave the school system unprepared for the modern demands of industry and citizenship?

About 70 per cent of the pupils enrolled in grade two in our schools today will leave the school system before receiving their junior matriculation or its equivalent, in many cases ill-equipped for anything but the unskilled and semi-skilled types of employment—without the necessary flexibility to adapt to technical developments are bound to face in the rapidly changing occupational categories resulting from the application of more and more advanced technology.

The magnitude of the problem is brought into sharp focus by a recent study carried out by the Department of Labour, Ottawa, prepared by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Of the 396,000 youngsters who enrolled in grade two in 1957-58, 131,000 will leave school before reaching high school, some with a grade eight education, others with less. Between first year high school and junior matriculation, 139,000 more will drop out and 95,000 additional students will leave between junior matriculation and first year university. Only 31,000, less than 10 per cent, will go on to university.

What awaits the person who drops out of school without enough education to guarantee his or her future in a highly industrialized country? An examination of occupations in Canada provides a pretty clear indication. About 70 per cent of the jobs available in this country today are of a professional, semi-professional, technical or skilled nature, and only 30 per cent of employment consists of semi-skilled or unskilled occupations. It is in this last category of employment that most of those with less than a junior matriculation will find themselves competing, and if present trends continue, the problem will become worse as the proportion of unskilled and semi-skilled jobs in the economy decreases in the future.

What is required is a basic change in our thinking and in social attitudes for, in the final analysis, the dependable drop-out rate must reflect the fact that we adults have failed to convince our children of the desirability or necessity of an advanced education. Here is the crux of the problem. As parents we must realize the impact of advanced technology and automation on Canadian business and industry in recent years. What was adequate yesterday in the way of education is becoming less and less adequate today.

It is not in sufficiently good language for public worship. It lacks rhythm and a sense of awe. — Dr. Benjamin Pollard, Bishop of Man, banning use of New English Bible from the Isle of Man.

Bombs Would Not Fall

...New York New Republic...

To what degree is the Soviet leadership in heavy space rocket technology an immediate or potential military threat?

It has been suggested that the Soviets may follow through with an action that is now technically feasible, the shooting aloft of an orbital bomber of the same weight loaded with atomic weapons that are set to be released at any point in the track of such a vehicle around the earth on receipt of a command signal from below.

The prospect of this atomic age sword of Damocles suspended in the skies is a nightmare. This is dispelled for the time being, however, by the reminder that any bomb released from such a vehicle would simply circle the earth until, since both are equally outside the earth's gravitational pull.

If exploded it would destroy both itself and the bomb-shell; plus that particular combination of horrors would fizzle out in space.

In order to get away from the space vehicle and return to earth the bomb would have to be a space rocket, itself, propelled from it at the same speed but in the opposite direction; it would have to be fired and dropped down.

And there are further difficulties of a more complex order in the maintenance of such a complex machine aloft, with its interlocking parts of what engineers call master and slave controls.

It would have to be manned, as well as armed, carry a stock of spare parts, and be accessible to some repatriation from below when any major breakdown occurs. Such a contraption — actually an armed space station — would necessarily be vulnerable to hostile "adjustment" directing or themselves riding up in space rockets launched from other countries.

What the U.S. really confronts most urgently, in short, is not a military threat but rather the propaganda spectre cast over much of the world by the Soviet technological and economic advance.

The impact of the Spaceman on the uncommitted people has been peculiarly sharp, coming as it did so close on the humiliation of the Cuban landing.

But in some cases we have posed with new clarity the choice before U.S. policymakers — to compete or not to compete in an all-out effort to achieve our own space "spectaculars." And the choice may become all too clear in a few years' time unless some progress is discernible on the disarmament front or even the establishment of machinery for denationalized space exploration.

Why Elsie Wears Apron

...San Francisco Chronicle...

Some astonishing targets of the censor bent on stamping out pornography and legislating morals were cited recently for California Medical Association delegates meeting in Los Angeles.

The targets included:

Elsie, the milk company cow, wears a modest apron in the TV ad how to hide her udder.

A picture of a Spanish penal stamp bearing a nude by Goya was banned by the Post Office.

The cherubs in the Basilica of St. Peter's at Rome, uncovered only a few months ago, they sitting across the ceiling are decorously covered now.

The trend toward censorship is goldenrod today, said it is dangerous indeed. It seems to be based on the falsely comfortable thesis that obscenity and "pornography" actually cause an increase in sex crimes — a thesis for which there is no scientific evidence.

These comments came from Dr. Karl M. Bowman, emeritus professor of psychiatry at the University of California Medical Centre in San Francisco.

There is no clear cut line to define obscenity in all cultures, Dr. Bowman said.

A Chinese man, for example, called Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever" music disturbingly lascivious and suggestive of coitus.

Heinbert's "Gertrude Flat" is outlawed in some American states and declared as school reading in others.

"The horrors of censorship are so great", Dr. Bowman said, "that it is better to let a few possibly harmful books slip through than to continue that treadmill of suppression."

"The degree of censorship which is standard today upon us today is unwholesome; the concept of legislating morals is dangerous."

Dr. Bowman conceded that some challenges are positively geared to mental illness or antisocial activity might be stimulated harmfully by pornography or violent literature.

"The effects of various exposures to the contrary are not known," Dr. Bowman said. "In some instances, do many of these exposures of adolescents and adults to the obscene provide acceptable released of tension and thereby help to prevent delinquent sex acts and violence?"

Dr. Bowman agreed that "hard-core pornography" should certainly not be circulated; but he urged that all censorship efforts be left to the courts for decision and not placed in the hands of officials or self-appointed morals guardians.

"Above all, let self-responsibility for censorship," he said. They can stay away from books or films they find objectionable but "have no right to interfere with the rights of other people."

He called for more planned series of long-range studies to explore scientifically the psychological effects of sensual stimulation and the role of culture, literature, the theatre, and is exposure to obscenity.

"We are trying to know the effects of obscenity like our culture," he said. "It's time we tried to find out."

Pay Is the Thing

...Manisk Zeitung...

When the gravedigger in Dirlewang died, nobody could be found who cared to take the job. City officials finally offered a large salary, a comfortable apartment, and a handsome retirement pension. Now there are so many who want the job that the mayor is bound to use a gun to drive off the turning down applications.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

...DR. EARL F. DOUGLASS

THE FULLNESS OF BROTHERHOOD

The United States, with one-sixteenth of the population of the world, owns practically one-half of the world's wealth. Furthermore, in a comparatively small percentage of Americans own about eighty per cent of America's portion. Yet there is unemployment and occasionally even hunger within the richest land of ours. There are some places in the world where, with every advantage nature can offer, people go from the cradle to the grave and never know what it means to be without hunger.

Why the difference? Is it because of injustice, oppression, ignorance, or apathy?

Karl Marx had an answer — or thought he had, but as we look at Communism today we believe that the system is nothing but an answer to the frantic cries of a few men to rule their fellows. With all its advantages — and it is only a human system — free enterprise, or, what we call "capitalism," appears to be the best way for the largest number of persons to enjoy human benefits.

On this North American continent, we have the highest standard of living humanity has known in its history. We are proud of this. We cherish it and will defend it. We believe that the system must be improved. It is not without injustice. We shall have to fight to keep what we have and to improve it. But all we come into the fullness of a just and righteous human brotherhood.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

Fire of an unknown origin which had gained considerable headway before being discovered, completely destroyed a large frame barn, the property of Mr. Nathaniel Vanmeer on Camelton Road at midnight on Thursday. A horse stabled in the barn also fell prey to the flames as the heat of the fire made impossible the liberation of the animal. A number of hens and chickens penned in the barn managed to make their escape from the building.

Man Enters, Efficiency Goes Out Door

...By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The recent ban on folk singing in New York's Washington Square park is only a logical step in the whole philosophy of Park commissioners all over the U. S.

Most parks already ban ball throwing, bicycle riding, roller skating and walking on the grass. Indeed, some parks have the slightest tinge of human enjoyment is criticized as an infringement on "clean" and "attractive" parks. The ultimate goal is "the good, dead lowell"

Actually, the attitude is a symptom of the typical administrative mind. To the administrative mind, man was made for the Sabbath, and not the Sabbath for man. People interfere with their neat little plans.

Just imagine what wonderful hospitals we could have if the patients didn't get in the way. Think of the gleaming laboratories, the faultless records and the impeccable charts there would be. If only doctors and nurses were allowed to populate the ideal hospitals.

And the libraries. Perhaps things have changed since I was a boy, but then the book-borrower was considered a necessary nuisance by most public librarians. They felt that we simply interfered with the Dewey decimal system and the perfect uniformity of each book in its proper place on the shelf.

Public housing, too, would approach the ideal if only we could find a way to get rid of the tenants. They tend to eat, which creates a terrific sanitary problem. They also tend to breed, and you know what children are like — always tearing down, lawns and driveways. If people would only stay indoors, where else, we could have the most admirable public housing system in the world.

Even in commercial establishments, one where the public is an absolute bane and bane of survival — one still finds evidence of the administrative mind at work.

For instance, I have been in many restaurants where the customer is regarded as an unwanted intruder in the operating procedures. The cashier is too busy going through yesterday's mail to make change for your bill; the hostess is too involved with rearranging tables for dinner to give you a table for lunch; the manager, of course, is busy working on reports.

Institutions tend to become ends in themselves. Parks were originally designed for public pleasure, but after a time they become transformed into a System of Procedures — and the procedures take precedence over the public. One we allow singing in the parks, and then we must get dancing and the kind of fun people used to enjoy in the public square. And then what would happen to Ordinance 834-L, Subsection 37 to appeal the administrative mind.

To Your Good Health

Madam, the Waistline Can Be a Vicious Circle

...By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

I keep sounding away — woops! Pardon. That's a pun I didn't intend. I mean, I keep offering sound advice on that common problem of our hemisphere — how to lose pounds.

Betsy Biggar, dietitian at the University of Michigan Medical Center, recently spoke on the subject, giving some tips that she has found effective and helpful. I'll quote just one pithy paragraph of what she has to say

"You are apt to eat less," says Miss Biggar, "if you eat very slowly. Slice foods thinner and serve your food on a smaller plate to make it look like more. And if there are certain foods that you cannot resist, do not keep them in the house. If they are there for other members of the family, store them in a special, inconvenient place which is forbidden to you."

The vicious circle business, of course, is going to make it easy to shed weight. The eager person who ever loses weight easily is somebody who doesn't want it. It's like the man said, whoever, he was, the bright fellow: "I can resist everything except temptation."

However, it is most certainly true that if you make use of every possible helpful factor, the chances of success are very much better. But if you try to do the whole job just by relying on one factor — relying entirely on will power — you're tackling the older old wives' tale" — Mrs. C. H.

Pregnancy is possible in the time in which the ovum has left the ovary and is making its way through the tube from the ovary. This occurs, roughly, halfway between periods, and not, as you were told, at the time of the period. Limiting this to any particular number of hours is pretty difficult, but the time of fertility is probably in probably in the neighborhood of 48 hours or so.

INDEPENDENCE

It is wishing the solitary confines of a man's own Self — wholly apart from the crowd — that he be able to set up an wholly garrison his citadel of Independence.

Practically all our thinking and acting is colored to some degree or other by the unconscious notice of the things that are occupying the minds of the Crowd, living all about us.

It is as important for us individual to have the Declaration of Independence as for a nation.

It is solely apart from all confusion and babbling of voices that a man separates his own constructed ideas and builds from them an attitude of independence that is able to make him strong, fearless and dependable.

You are what you are, and if you aren't it is your own fault — "What shall I do next?"

You are free to construct from the simplest duties and experiences of every day, the pattern of the best that makes for Independent action and Independent living. If you succeed in this, you need have no worry when the time comes for the final test question — "What shall I do next?"

The season of allergies is about to begin. The dust of a thousand evils that are held fast by the snow and wet of winter is now blowing, looking for its victims among the millions of every tree and flower; dust of horse, cat, chicken; dust from automobiles; dust in every drying week and every rainy week; dust in city, in town and country. Let us include then in our sympathies.

But the saddest allergy of all, it seems to me, is the allergy to onions. This is not an allergy that comes with June or September and passes, like all other cups. It is an allergy that afflicts the whole race the whole year round but a whole lifetime. There are people in the world who have made entire lives without a single taste of onion.

Not only can they not eat a smidgin of onion in an ordinary dish, but they slapsedee salad; not only do they not know the delightful sweetness of fried onions; not merely are they incapable of eating the true delicacy of a sweet Spanish onion; not merely are they incapable of eating the true delicacy of a sweet Spanish onion; not merely are they incapable of eating the true delicacy of a sweet Spanish onion

10-Room Addition to Moira Secondary School Approved To Expand Technical Training at No Cost to Taxpayers

Electronics courses are receiving increasingly greater emphasis as result of modern technological advancements. Above Moira students William Moon, Mike Pokiuda and Art Menzies are seen running tests on a repulsion coil from a "power supply" made by Electronic Controls Ltd. of this city.

Plans for the construction of a ten-roomed addition to the Moira Secondary School, together with expansion of the present auto shop, woodworking, electrical and machine shops, were announced here over the weekend by the Bay of Quinte District High School Board.

The announcement was made in conjunction with the Commonwealth Technical Training Week which commencing today is being observed across Canada.

School board officials said the construction of the new addition to Moira School will come under new special vocational school grant recently announced by the Federal and Provincial governments with the big bulk of the costs for buildings, furnishings and equipment to be paid by the two senior governments.

Under the scheme three-quarters of the approved costs will be paid by the Federal government with the remaining one-quarter to be paid by the Provincial government.

SPECIAL GRANTS

The special vocational grants are being given to encourage more technical training in a day when specialized training is becoming increasingly in demand.

Present plans called for the addition of five regular classrooms at Moira, together with two drafting rooms, one laboratory room and an occupational training shop. As noted previously, plans also call for expansion of the present auto shop, woodworking, electrical and machine shops.

The high school board expects that all but one of the new classrooms planned will be eligible for the special 100 per cent vocational grant.

Costs of the one classroom on which the 100 per cent grant will not be received are expected to be paid out of revenue without the necessity of debenturing.

ENROLMENT UP

The new classroom space at Moira would increase the school accommodation from the present 780 students to a maximum enrolment of about 1,040, it was stated.

No estimate of the costs of the school addition has been arrived at but tentative approval has been received and tentative plans have already been drawn by the school architect.

Final sketch plans are expected in the near future following which detailed plans will be drawn and tenders called. It is hoped that work can commence some time this fall.

As the costs of the expansion program are being borne by 100 per cent grant there will be no need to get municipal board approval for the work.

Included in the expansion program will be an extension to the present school cafeteria and the cafeteria kitchen.

NEW VENTURE

A new venture for the school under the stepped up vocational training will be occupational training areas for both boys and girls.

In these areas limited skills, such as block laying and painting, will be taught to boys while among other training intensive typing courses will be provided for girls who might not be able to handle full secretarial duties.

One of the principal aims of the new occupational training program will be to try to prevent vocational students from dropping out of school when possibly getting discouraged at being unable to keep up with the regular vocational courses.

Emphasis on the various aspects of vocational training and the importance of young people acquiring some specialized training before going out to seek a job, is the purpose behind the Commonwealth Technical Training Week.

Auto shop work is an important phase of vocational instruction available at the school. As is indicated above, auto shop work also included tractor repair. Wayne Chatten and Wayne Maracle are seen adjusting a diesel tractor under the watchful eye of their instructor, Bruce Bartleman.

Two new drafting rooms will be included in the expansion plans for Moira Secondary School. Here students Mike Dunley, Ken Purvis and Gary Stewart are seen receiving advice from instructor J. Radle in the school drafting department.

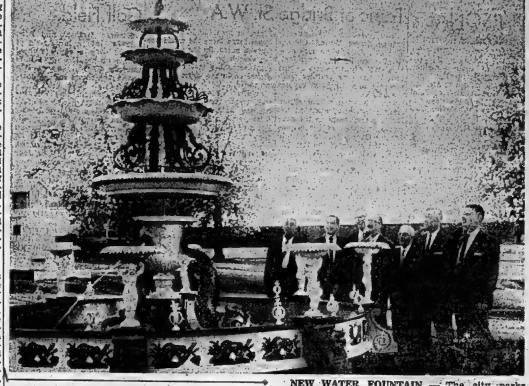
"We found these nickels on the street," said Susan. "Can we have them?"

Her mother glanced at the coins. "Under a dollar," she commented. "They're Dad's, but I guess he won't mind."

So the girl handed her two brothers part of their find.

"It's not fair," cried Kim. "You've kept as much as you gave me and half what you've given Dick together."

Susan grinned. "I'm older," she reminded him. "I gave you as much as I gave him, and also half what I kept."



Dick said nothing. He was glad to have anything at all. But how much had Susan given him?

NEW WATER FOUNTAIN — The city parks board Saturday evening got its new fountain on Fireman's Park in operation. Deputy Mayor Robert Temple and Parks Board chairman William Hurst officiated. Looking at the fountain (left to right), are: Parks Board superintendent Gordon Nicholson, Fred Bradley, Alderman Jack Ireland, Parks Board chairman William Hurst, Arthur Keegan, Deputy Mayor Temple and Harold Seldon.

Fountain in Fireman's Park Put in Operation Saturday

Belleville's old-new fountain brought out from storage in a parks board barn at the fairgrounds for placement in Fireman's Park at the entrance to Victoria Park, was officially set in operation Saturday evening.

In recent weeks parks board employees have been plying the paint brush and the 80-year old fountain which once graced a private lawn on Dundas Street, looks "good as new".

Saturday evening members of the city parks board along with a few private residents saw Deputy Mayor Robert Temple officially declare the fountain in operation as Parks Board chairman William Hurst turned the valve to send the water spouting up.

Mr. Hurst said a circulating pump will be installed to save water charges, while harmless dyes will be used to change the color of the water each month.

Also a system for night lighting of the fountain will be worked out.

The parks board chairman noted that installation of the circulating pump will cut utility water charges from about $240 for the season to a mere fraction of dollars.

Proudly displaying their newly dedicated colors at the Annual Belleville District Church Parade yesterday are: Moira McLaughlin, Avondale; Judy Ackerman, also Avondale; Janice File, Judy Hull, both of Point Anne; Sandra Lamb and Georgia Peters, from Company 8. Guides, Brownies Attend Service, Area Commissioner Takes Salute

On Sunday afternoon a large number of Belleville residents were out to watch the Girl Guides and Brownies, of this city, as they marched from the BCIVS campus to the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church for their annual service.

Approximately 500 girls, ushered to their pews by Rangers, filled the church leaving very little room for spectators. During the Processional Hymn the color parties quietly entered and deposited their flags on both sides of the altar.

In the absence of Rev. R. D. MacLean, Rev. Norman Hutchinson from St. Columbs church conducted the service. Colors from Company Two, Company Nine and Point Anne were dedicated.

The three divisions of Guiding took part; Brownie Nancy Wilkins led with the Opening Prayer, Guide Sheryl Drysdale followed with the reading of Psalm 30 and Ranger Beverley Bonter gave the Scripture reading.

The offering for the Guide and Brownie World Friendship Fund was received by two Rangers.

Mr. Hutchinson divided his address in three sections; first he spoke to the Commissioners and Leaders, commending them on the fine appearance of their charges and the well organized parade. He reminded them of their great responsibility for leadership, guidance and the shaping of the minds of these future women.

Secondly he directed his comments to the teen-agers, guides and rangers, based on the Scripture "Remember now, thy Creator in the days of thy Youth".

For the Brownies Mr. Hutchinson chose a verse from Luke 'What then shall this Child be?'; concluding with the question "Brownie, what are you going to be?".

COMMISSIONER TAKES SALUTE

The parade then reassembled to march smartly back to the BCIVS Campus, to the music of the Salvation Army Band, where, Mrs. A. McLean Haig, Quinte Area Commissioner, flanked by Mrs. D. Stewart, Belleville Division Commissioner, took the salute.

Introduced by Mrs. Stewart, Mrs. Haig thanked all those who had assisted in the organization of the parade and welcomed the large number of spectators.

The District Commissioner, to whom credit for organizing the parade goes, Mrs. T. S. Hay, Mrs. R. Settle and Mrs. H. I. Floyd were introduced by Mrs. Stewart. She then took the opportunity to call the leaders forward, so they could see, as Mr. Hutchinson had described the girls, like "a blaze of color."

Judged for all around appearance and marching, Pack two, of Avondale and Company 2 of Avondale were selected by Mrs. J. Kuntze, Mrs. J. Watson and Mrs. E. Mcmurrater as the best in the parade.

'Great Creative Leadership' Topic at Bridge St. W.A.

The regular meeting of Bridge Street United Church Women's Association was privileged over by the president, Mrs. W. W. Anderson whose routine business matters were attended to and regular reports presented.

Mr. Newton Thompson, the new treasurer, closed the meeting to present to the president, on behalf of the Flowerly Committee, a cheque from the estate of the late Mr. J. O. Delloyne. This bequest was gratefully received in memory of Mr. and Mrs. Delloyne, who had given faithful service to the church.

Mrs. Don Williams convener of the "Blossom Tea" expressed her sincere thanks to all who had assisted in making the tea such a success both financially and socially.

A letter regarding a Young People's Conference at Ann Arbor, Michigan, was read and it was decided to make a donation to help defray expenses of two delegates from this Presbytery.

On June 7th the W.A. will unite with the W.M.S. for a Strawberry Social at the home of Mrs. H. J. Fuke.

Mrs. C. Massey presided for the devotional period led by the group convened by Mrs. C. Meyers and Mrs. Massey.

"The theme of the devotional service was the Communion Church. The church is not a building but a group of men and women dedicated to God. What does the church mean in the community? Are we letting God make of us the best of the light of His Church?"

Mrs. Meyers read a portion from the Sermon on the Mount and led in prayer.

The guest speaker, the Rev. M. G. McFarlane, minister of Tabernacle United Church, spoke on "The Price of Great Creative Leadership."

"The women of the United Church are faced with a great challenge in the work of the new women's organization where creative leadership will be necessary. There is no place for dull, unimaginative leadership which does nothing to draw others into the work of the church."

FOUR ESSENTIALS

The speaker noted four important essentials to creative leadership: "Great knowing," "great giving," "great living" and "great love."

Jesus taught as one having authority. He had a vast store of knowledge and the ability to express himself. He learned by taking time to study, pray and meditate. The church leaders in the church work to fit themselves for "great knowing."

Socrates, unable to carve in marble, figures perfect enough to reproduce the three graces, turned to influence lives which would demonstrate these good qualities. Socrates' disciple, Plato, in turn taught Aristotle. From these three the world has learned much. So the women of the church by "Great Giving," music and the vision of what should be in the church and in the world.

In His day on earth, Jesus was greatly criticized, but he became Friend of His judges. A boy, when asked which translation of the Bible he preferred, answered, "My Mother's." It takes 'great living" to give leadership.

The speaker mentioned the various fields in which the United Church, through its Board of Evangelism and Social Service, seeks to give living assistance to those who need it.

Special mention was made of the Cedarvale Home for Girls at Georgetown, Ontario. On a farm, originally the site of a home for Armenian boys following the First World War, a home accommodating 36 girls from eight to 15 years of age is operated by the United Church. Here, disciplined in love, are taught the Christian way of life and through loving care are helped to adjust to life's demands. Many have grown up to take responsible positions in their community because of the great love which was shown them by devoted Christian leaders in this Home.

The theme of the group were expressed to Mr. McFarlane by Mrs. L. Butchart.

Barbara Graham and Alex Ingram led a large field of golfers over a newly-revitalized course at the Bay of Quinte Country Club Monday to start qualifying round for the Jewellery Cup.

Miss Graham and Mr. Ingram carded a net score of 76 to pace the sixteen qualifying couples.

Four couples tied for second low net with scores of 79. Three handed in cards of 80, one an 81, two had 82's, four had 84's and one couple finished with an 86 to make the charmed circle.

Elimination rounds will be played during the summer months with the winner being declared sometime in early August.

The weather was anything but conducive to good golf with an occasional "sprinkler" failing to deter the golfers.

The field enjoyed a delicious pot-luck dinner served in the club house.

Carding scores of 79 were Betty Ingram and Gary Bowerman; Heather and Mac Wales; Helen and Val Brown and Helen and Ken Lewis.

Finishing with 80's were Dorothy and Dave Lund; Mary and Herb Gibbons and Dr. Eerie and Monica MacDonald. Carrie and Dan Mahoney scored an 82.

'Alcohol and Behavior' Clip Sheet Discussed at WCTU

The May meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held at the "Y" with the president, Mrs. G. Coulter, presiding and Miss Barrons, secretary. Carols were given each on which was the "Badge" and a poem used by Canon Wilberforce, and the personal pledge card:

"Lord for tomorrow and its needs,

I do not pray;

Keep me from stain of sin

Just for today".

An fine devotional was given by Mrs. Wells based on the Old Testament story of Xezu, who in a moment of extreme hunger, traded his preferred position with his brother Jacob for the paltry price of a bowl of lentil soup.

"Are we all in danger of agreements just as stupid? From one end of America to the other. There comes evidence of a mounting tide of Alcoholism and increase or cigaret smoking, regardless of records, it is the major cause of lung cancer.

The sale of cigarets this year exceeds last year by billions".

Mrs. (Rev.) Thompson, a visitor from Edmonton, and treasurer of Alberta Province, brought greetings. She told of the keen interest of young mothers, in medal contest work.

It was noted at the Dominion Council of the United Church W.A. a request was sent by them to the Board of Broadcast governors, to stop advertising of alcohol beverages on television and to exercise vigilance in screening telecasts of excessive cruelty and murder, and glamorizing sex; drinking and smoking as an acceptable way of life.

ALCOHOL AND BEHAVIOR

"The clip sheet was a study on "Alcohol and Behavior" and led by Mrs. Wey, Mrs. Cooke, Bertrand and Meyers.

Behavior from the use of alcohol soon after drinking as alcool is absorbed quickly and directly, and reaches the brain shortly after it is taken into the stomach. It is not the quantity of alcohol consumed but the concentration of alcohol in the blood, that is the significant factor and this depends on many conditions.

"All human behavior is controlled by the nervous system of which the brain is the centre; and it has been shown by observation and research, that the first effects of alcohol on human beings is to steal away the thinking brain.

"The centre of control is the brain. Intelligence is first affected; alcohol releases self-control, impairs judgment, interferes with reasoning and discrimination, dulls self-criticism.

'Instinct and emotion are affected, over-confidence; false sense of security; which is often the cause of motor accidents.

"All these facts go to show how completely the individual may be changed in behavior after drinking alcohol. In women, the result is often the cause of permanent disaster, physically, morally, and mentally.

Alliance Pioneer Girls Entertain

An enjoyable evening was spent recently when the Pioneer Girls of the Colonist Group entertained their mothers and pals in the lower auditorium of the Alliance Church. The guests were welcomed at the door by Misses Sheryl Reed and Beth Asseltine and an attractive program of songs of a chuckwagon was planned on each one. The lower auditorium of the church was attractively decorated for the occasion in the motif of the Pioneers with coal oil lamps in the centre of each table. The mothers and pals sat around an festation log fire and enjoyed the program presented by the girls.

Miss Georgina Whittaker led the singing and this was followed by games led by several of the Pioneer Girls under the direction of Miss Maureen Thompson. This part of the program was followed by challenging testimonies on "Salvation" given by five of the girls. They followed the work of Christmas by singing the chorus, "He Washed My Sins Away".

Presentations were made by the chief guide, Miss D. Atyeo to Miss Sheryl Asseltine, who had the highest points at the conclusion of the recent contest and to Miss Becky Rodberg who had the second highest. Miss Sandra Brant's colonies of the Colonists had the highest group score and will be treated to a special outing in the near future. Pictures of the Pioneer Girls were given to each pal present.

A delicious lunch, consisting of broiled open face sandwiches, cookies, cake and tea was served by the girls to their mothers and pals. Two large cakes were attractively decorated for the occasion with chuckwagons and inscribed on each one. THE FAMILY COUNCIL

David R. — I'm sticking to my promise of support, but she wants more.

Kate R. — At my age, I need more than bare support.

David R. — I'm 68. My first wife died three years ago after a long illness which left me financially depleted. So, instead of retiring I had to continue running my small business. Now I am married to a widow in her early 60s and all would be fine save for one thing — money.

Although she had a sizable bank account, I made it clear from the start that I'd take care of living expenses. Her money could be used as she wished. She promptly offered to pay for trips and gifts.

This has not worked out. We're about to take a six-week vacation in Europe, at her insistence. Besides losing time from my business, thus cutting off income, I'm financing 90 per cent of the trip. As to gifts, she insists that I write out cheques for her grandchildren as well as mine.

Kate R. — It's true that David gives me a lovely home. But he's terribly tight with cash. While I always worked hard, especially during five years of widowhood, I generally had a comfortable amount of "spending money." I'm used to buying small things on impulse and giving presents and charitable donations.

But David draws the purse strings tight when it comes to anything beyond the bare necessities. We both have lovely children and grandchildren whom we cherish, and with whom we both have fine relationships. Yet the way he refuses to spend a cent on my side of the family is positively inhuman.

He's much too literal about our money agreement. At our age we should ease up with each other.

The Council — Mrs. R. complains that her husband is too "literal" about their pre-nuptial agreement on finances. Our suggestion is that she be a little more literal in that department. And a little more liberal, too.

From the facts, we gather that Kate has a tidy nest egg in the bank which she is loath to disturb, while taking all the pecks possible at David's earnings, income, savings and whatnot. Or, there may be excessive aggravation, omission and suppression of fact here. Perhaps Kate's bank account isn't as large as David believes and he's getting the willies about the future in the face of her "extravagance" — as he sees her gallivants and generosity.

Trouble in second marriages comes from forgetting that, above all, they're still marriages. That is, they're mergers of two lives seeking greater happiness than either can experience alone. Financial deals are usually worked out to satisfy the principals and the children that no one is being taken unfair advantage of. But these arrangements, in a good marriage, aren't rigid and when the spirit is right they need not be kept to the letter.

The spirit here, however, does not reveal itself yet as being for the marriage. It's still for each individual, with Kate seeing how much she can grab and David clutching tightly to what she can't.

Suppose they start again. That early agreement sounded fine, only Kate seems to be reneging. David is to "support" Kate, which means provide shelter, food and cash for reasonable needs. Kate's money is the cushion for treats, trimmings and extras. And, if Kate's heart is in the right place, she'll see that David is enabled to save some money, too, so as to realize his long-deferred dream of retirement.

By rights, Kate should be saying for the European jaunt. But since David is coughing up 90 per cent, we trust Kate will buy all the souvenirs, including some for David's grandchildren too.

SERVE YOUR BUFFET DINNER ON TIME

I am going to shout from the housetops about the worst mistake that a hostess can make. Unfortunately, too many hostesses are guilty. Since the same people complain about this procedure when they are guests in another's home, I would like to know why the unpleasant practice continues!

Haven't we all had this kind of evening wished on us?

Mr. and Mrs. Inexperienced have invited you to a buffet supper. The time is seven o'clock. You arrive, looking forward to seeing old friends and having an evening of interesting conversation. Naturally, you have eaten no dinner before leaving home.

As the guests arrive drinks are served. It is really enjoyable, because there are little tidbits to nibble on. About eight o'clock that enjoyment begins to shake. You are still standing around — waiting. In the meantime, several of the more uninhibited guests have begun to be a little overexuberant.

Nine o'clock — and still no food. The hostess makes no excuses. The drinks keep coming, if you want them. Conversation has waned to the point where everyone has run out of subjects to talk about. All are bored stiff — and hungry.

Finally, at nine-thirty, two and one half hours after the party was supposed to start, food is served. Some of the less sober guests are past the point of caring whether they eat or not (and in the meantime are making nuisances of themselves).

Why, oh why, do people invite friends in to share their hospitality, and then treat them this way? Hosts make a very bad mistake when they wait more than an hour, at the very most, to serve the buffet supper. If some of the guests have not arrived, so be it! They can be fed when they do show up, but it is extremely unfair, and certainly not hospitable, to delay serving those who have been standing around for quite some time.

The good hostess will see to it that her supper is ready when her guests will enjoy it, and she will not defer serving it until they are ready to go home and forget the whole thing!

Mother's Helper

"WHICH is Different!" drawings appeal to most children, and they'll like making them for each other (or for you). Five simple designs, faces, or shapes are drawn alike—then a slight change is made in one of them. Only the artist knows "which is different." Can you guess? (This is a good game for a sick-a-bed child.)

These Tea Biscuits Are Kneaded

By Mary Moore

It may be true that there is nothing new under the sun as some confident person claimed. But there are lots of things under the sun that I do not know about and the method of making the tea biscuit recipe and variations which follows is one of them.

For years I, and many of you, have sworn by my recipe for Tea Biscuits Supreme and I still think they are excellent. But when this new idea of giving the biscuit dough ten "kneads" came up I tried it, I found it produced flaky, tender, crisp biscuits. When I made the cheese and chive variations in the middle of the rehearsal party with Dr. John Clayton (one of the ushers) and Danny Brunt (the best man) hovering over me while I worked, I was apprehensive. Was I counting my kneading motions? Was I overworking the dough — while we chattered? No. They turned out beautifully and were served under and with the Shrimp Gumbo as I told you last week.

NEW KNEADED TEA BISCUITS:

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 tablespoon single-acting baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-3 cup good quality shortening, 3-4 cup cold milk.

Sift together the sifted flour, baking powder and salt. With a pastry blender or two knives cut in the shortening until the size of the pieces of fat is roughly 1-4". Make a depression in the centre and pour in the milk. Quickly stir just until dough forms a big lump and leaves sides of bowl. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead 10 times by giving the dough 1-4 turn and folding over after each kneading motion. Pat or roll out evenly to 1-2 or 3-4" thickness. With floured 2" or 2 1-2" cutter cut out and bake on unbuttered cookie sheet at 450 deg. Fahr. Small biscuits require 12 minutes; larger ones 15 minutes. Do not overbake.

Variations: Cheese: When you add the milk sprinkle over 1-2 to 3-4 cup grated or shredded old Cheddar Cheese and quickly stir. Chive: When you add the milk sprinkle over 2 or 4 tablespoons very finely chopped chives and quickly stir. There are many other variations which I have not tried but I know that if you are serving these biscuits under creamed chicken or salmon or the like you could add 1-4 to 1 teaspoon curry powder to the dry mixture before you cut in the shortening.

NOTE:

I made a triple batch of the cheese and chive variations for the wedding rehearsal. A few of the small split and buttered biscuits were leftover. The following day I toasted them under the broiler and served them with homemade chicken soup much as you would serve croutons and they were a smash hit. Gary and Herbie wanted more.

Successful Living

Problem Is Mental

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—I had a nervous breakdown about four years ago. A lot of it was caused by a broken home and also leaving home at 16 to live sort of an erratic life in another town. I am 33 now.

Well, when this nerve business hit me, my mother said not to bother with doctors as my personal doctor referred me to a physics doctor.

Nerves have left me lifeless and unable to get employment. Physically I am perfect, only mentally I am at low tide. After four years of fighting this illnesma, I seem only to go down hill. Do you think this trouble will wear out, as I am hoping it will, or does one have to go definitely to a mental hospital to be treated?—M. A.

DEAR M. A.:—The fact that you recognize your trouble as mental is a great big step in its cure.

I am not sure what you mean by a "physics" doctor, but obviously you did not go to him anyway. Your mother is a victim of the old-fashioned notion that anything approaching mental illness is something one does not admit.

In this enlightened age we know that human beings are physical-mental-emotional beings, and you just can't separate them. A psychiatrist is the one who can tell whether you need a perfect in hospital. Most of the treatment for mental and emotional upsets is given when the patient visits a doctor's office, while continuing to live at home.

Get your doctor to refer you to a local psychiatrist without wasting any more time. He will help you get better.

DEAR DORIS:—I've been married for two years and am still in love with my wife. Except for one thing, I believe we would be perfectly happy, but I can't go on much longer riding a debt-tiger all the time.

She simply will not learn to live within our budget. I am not mean, but her parents are very well off and she has always had just about everything she wants. Shoes, hats and purses are her weakness.

When the bills come in and I blow up, she cries and says she won't do it again—and promptly does. Her parents think it is cute and give her a whopping cheque—and then we are off on another round. Is there any way I can stop it?—NEARLY NUTS.

DEAR NEARLY NUTS:—With Mom and Dad still acting the indulgent parents, your chances of changing things are slim. They are carrying on the fiction that money grows on trees.

Your financing should be between the two of you and no one else. Your best move is to show understanding—and not when you are burned up over bills you can't pay. You are proud for her to be well-dressed and to have suitable accessories. Tell her so. Then ask her to share your problem of making ends meet.

When you both are calm, go over income and outgo together and be sure your wife sees the picture. She has never learned to budget but this is for sharing, too. Without it your marriage can go downhill.

DEAR DOBIS:—After reading the letter in the April 27 paper from "Injured For Life," I am writing to tell you of a doctor who recently made two women walk again after they had been in wheel chairs over a number of years, when all other help failed.—H. L.

DEAR H. L.:—Thank you. I am glad to pass along the name you gave me. Certainly the outlook for even badly handicapped people is far more hopeful today than it ever has been. So much has been found possible that leading rehabilitation experts are led to say that restoration to normal living depends more on motivation, or a will to get going again, than on becoming physically whole.

Last 23 Students at UBC's Sopron Forestry Faculty Graduate, Close School

By H. L. JONES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — The story of a modern exodus that began 4½ years ago in the bloody Hungarian uprising against Communist rule ended Thursday on the green lawns of the University of British Columbia.

The story began in November, 1956, when Sopron students and professors joined freedom fighters in the Hungarian revolt. When Soviet tanks rolled into the country in force to put a bloody end to the uprising, the students joined others taking flight to Austria and then, with Canadian aid, to Canada.

With graduation of its last students, including a number of women, Sopron has turned out 136 foresters since the original 196 students and 29 professors re-established the 150-year-old school at UBC in 1957.

EIGHT WENT BACK

Some others quit because of study or financial difficulties. Some went into other UBC faculties. A number, including several women, got married and faded into outside jobs. Eight returned to Hungary.

Dean Kalman Roller, a short, quiet-spoken man who led the faculty here, said there is still Sopron University in Hungary but it knows little of Canadian freedoms; its students are picked and directed and its graduates funnelled with out choice into the state-run forest industry.

He said the group has been happy in Canada.

Its ending will be written on the pages of history to provide an example and inspiration to future generations, Canada's reception of these refugees will everlastingly remain a bright page in our history. It is an immensely positive contribution to the whole of human-ity."

The dean, with several other professors, is staying at UBC as a teacher-researcher in forestry and has two sons taking chemistry courses there.

COMMUNIST PRETENCE

Asked why eight chose to go back behind the Iron Curtain, the dean said: "Perhaps their parents called them back because of illness or other difficulties."

George Allen, UBC dean of forestry, added: "We cannot tell how much pressure may have been put on the old folks. Many of the students still have relatives in Hungary."

Dean Allen said the Sopron experiment was a big success, with close to 95 per cent of the original student body graduated despite language problems and the difficulties of finance free of about $270 a year per student.

Of those previously graduated, 90 have forestry jobs of one kind or another in British Columbia, some doing manual labor as lumberjills, and as woods loggers waiting for something better.

Sixteen are taking post-graduate study at UBC. Two are on scholarships at Yale and the University of Washington and four are in line for National Research Council scholarships this year.

Only four of the 29 original professors remain. Some have found other teaching jobs at UBC and other universities in Canada. Some are doing research with private firms. Two middle-age professors made a complete change and became stonekeepers.

Many Sopron students came to UBC expecting a free education but got only the $65-a-month subsistence paid to all Hungarian refugees. Dean Allen said they accepted this philosophically, borrowing money from the university and taking odd jobs. Many still owe debts of several hundred dollars. Some quit because they didn't want to go into debt.

But, the dean added, the majority agreed they were well-treated and had the opportunity of a good living in a free country even if it is a few hundred dollars of debt."

The federal government has contributed more than $500,000, including $190,000 in transportation costs. Additional money was provided by UBC and other sources to make up salaries of Sopron professors and to pay other expenses.

When the Sopron refugees arrived they were housed in an unused construction camp at Powell River, north of Vancouver. When they moved to the UBC campus they were given quarters in weatherbeaten army huts.

Some later moved to private homes. They attended special classes to learn English while taking forestry lectures in their native language. After two years the lectures were switched to English.

When the last of the Sopron students departed from the campus they left behind a memento in stone. It is a plaque featuring two hands tightly clasped — representing Sopron and UBC—chiselled by Edward Apt, 25-year-old son of a Sopron professor.

UNIVERSITY MASCOT — Amity, Komondor Hungarian sheep dog who became mascot of Sopron Forestry students at the University of British Columbia in 1958, will live with a former student in Vancouver. The students from Sopron in Hungary fled to Canada after the 1957 revolt and re-established their school in UBC. Amity was found as a stray in Reading, Pa., in 1958. Prof Louis Medvesky (centre) will care for Amity. Two students look on. (CP Photo).

American League Sets Homer Record

Sport Slices . . .

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The sports desk dinner-engagement book informs me the hurdling "Kids-and-Pork League" is over. As far as the invitation records are concerned, the curtain fell Saturday night with Jerry Miller's Saturday Night Mixed League finale in the ANAF auditorium.

Whatever bowlers do during the season besides bowl I do not know, but I do know they make a helluva inroad into the turkey population when the banquet season rolls around.

I attended some fourteen of those post-season dinner-presentation smorgasbords and thirteen of them were highlighted by the roasted presence of the King of the Barnyard. The other was a delightful roast beef diversion served by El Rancho the night the Major "A"-Classic joint leagues went western with a Matt Dillon-Wyatt Earp background.

But the record was kept intact. The following Sunday the family dinner was—you guessed it.

And as souvenirs of the banquet-turkey trail I have seven ravvy-special neckties; two wallets that retain the aroma of sage-and-onion dressing, a temperary, I hope, abhorrence for white meat and a waistline that was kept to pre-season normalcy by judicious and hand-hammered application.

Within a couple of weeks I shall be on speaking terms with my brother-in-law's turkey flock and the happy recollection that there is, roughly speaking, 200 eating days until Christmas.

But as a newspaperman covering these delightful get-togethers in the course of duty, I found there were several bonuses eligible for the banquet-up position in the Turkey Stakes.

To name a few, there are "Loot" Lavergne, "Swedish" Rumleskie, "Shotgun" Sayler, "Dandyhot" Dever, "Badman" Bagley, "Lone-Hope" Lacelcie, "Handclotes" Hardwick, and "Bronco" Beteman.

They tell me "Loot" Lavergne has become so hamured to turkey banquets that last Christmas following the seasonal repast, he almost-mindedly got up and went to the aisle of dinner for the ladies' auxiliary.

Over the years the trophy loot collected by those top-flight strike-and-spare artists has reached terrific proportions. And speaking of trophies and whatnot, the trend of late is to the more useful type. Statuettes and figurines are being replaced by such gifts as miniature electric lamps, clocks, cuff-links, etc.

If the trend keeps up and bowling maintains its increasing popularity, the time may come when radios, refrigerators, washing machines, hair-driers, barbecues and the lower income brackets will be handed to proud individual champions.

But if it ever comes to the compact car stage such loot collectors as Lavergne, Sayler, Rumleskie and a few others will be able to erect a taxi fleet within the following few years!

Seriously speaking, I have enjoyed every minute of attendance at these post-season get-togethers. As in every sport there must be a winner—and a loser. There is a good-natured raillery and a lot of "kidding" when champions are honored, but I have yet to see any serious green-eyed jealousy on the part of those who were not so fortunate.

I have got the impression that bowlers, of both sexes, are bound together by a spirit of sportsmanship and camaraderie that is sometimes missing in other fields of athletics.

I was told Saturday night that the Pin Heads won the championship of the Saturday Night Mixed League by one pin. One of the runners-up team had me with a big smile, "That's the way it goes. It could have gone either way."

Bowling has set an example in sportsmanship that other sports bodies could very well emulate.

Tribe, Kansas Good for 10

Take one look at those Sunday box scores and you'd think the old rabbit ball is back again.

American Leaguers hit 27 home runs in seven games Sunday, a record for one league. The previous high was 26 by the National May 30, 1936 in eight games. The American also played eight games on that same date when it set the previous high of 24.

Ten homers were hit at Cleveland, where the Indians defeated Kansas City Athletics 9-7 before losing 8-4; nine at New York, where Chicago White Sox defeated the Yankees 14-9 but lost the second 5-3; five at Los Angeles as Detroit Tigers belted the Angels 8-4; five at Washington during the Senators' 6-4 victory over Minnesota Twins; and four at Philadelphia where Boston Red Sox shut out the Orioles 5-0.

In Saturday's games Los Angeles walloped Detroit 10-1; Kansas City edged Cleveland 7-6 in 12 innings, Washington clubbed Minnesota 9-4; and Baltimore downed Boston 5-4. Chicago at New York was rained out.

PITCHERS ASSAULTED

In Chicago's first-game victory Sunday, the Sox piled up a six-run lead with the help of a grand-slammer by Wes Covington. The Yanks tied it with six runs in a row, four on a pinch-hit grand-slammer by Bob Cerv. Despite two more Yank homers, Chicago finally slammed out the decision, breaking a six - game losing streak. New York won the second game, a comparatively quiet affair, despite another homer by Covington.

Only three homers were hit during Cleveland's first - game victory in which Garry Bell won with a six-hitter but seven were slammed in the second, won by As rookie Norm Bass with a six-hitter. Johnny Romano of Cleveland and Norm Siebern of the As each contributed two.

Detroit called on its Sunday pouch, Charlie Maxwell, as well as Norm Cash and Dick Brown for home runs at Los Angeles but needed a two-run double by Billy Bruton in the seventh for the win that boosted their lead over Cleveland to 3½ games.

Washington defeated Minnesota for the third straight time. It was the eighth defeat for the Twins in their last nine games while the Senators have won 11 of their last 16 in a rise to fifth place.

ROOKIE IMPRESSIVE

Boston rookie Don Schwall snapped a five-game Baltimore winning streak with a seven-hitter. He struck out Jerry Adair four times en route to his total of eight.

The Yankees' pitching slip really was showing in the first game as six pitchers tried to stop the White Sox. Luis Arroyo, the fourth in line, was tagged with the loss. Turk Lown, third Sox pitcher, won after Early Wynn, trying for his 330th victory, had to be relieved. Jim Brosnan was the starting for the Yanks with six scoreless relief innings in the second game after Art Ditmar yielded homers to Covington and No. 10 Sherry Sievers.

Bass, the fellow the manager wanted to send to the minors but the owner wanted to keep, did a good job for the As against Cleveland in the second game when the As routed Jim Perry in the first inning.

Jim Bunning won his third for the Tigers with the help of Charlie Maxwell's homer with two-run homer by Gene Green, Harmon Killebrew slammed No. 12 for Minnesota. Marty Kutyna won over Jack Kralick.

Hot Marlins Top League, Leafs Split

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Charleston Marlins, free of the controversy and confusion that surrounded their short-lived stay in San Juan, P.R., a solid grip on first place in the International Baseball League today thanks to a torrid seven-game winning streak since their move to the West Virginia city.

In fact, the Marlins have lost only one game under their new franchise — and that was the first one they played — and have a second - place Columbus by two games.

The Marlins won a double-header from last - place Syracuse Sunday 7-2 and 2-0, their sixth victory in a row over the Chiefs. Columbus, which toppled from the lead Saturday night, lost to Buffalo 5-3 in the first game of Sunday's doubleheader but came back and took the second 9-4.

Rochester snapped a four-game losing streak with a 4-3 victory over Jersey City after the Jerseys had won the first game of a twinbill 8-4, their fourth victory in a row. Richmond and Toronto split a twin-bill with Richmond winning the first game 5-4 and the Maple Leafs taking the nightcap 3-0.

Charleston holds four of its six season victories over the Chiefs against Bert Cueto and Joe Bonikowski, each with two losses for the season. Bob Semproch pitched a four - hitter and John Gleaw hit two homers to pace the Marlins in the opener and Ed Olivares' double and triple, and the two - hit pitching of Dean Stone got the nightcap.

Dick Richards won the opener for Buffalo on his Cobra game - winning double, his third hit. Ed Sadd drove in four runs for Toronto in the second game with a single and a homer as Dick Hall gained his first.

Gordon Jones' five - hitter in the nightcap gave him and Wiggy losing streak as they beat Mike Cuellar, despite a three - hitter by Durham's homer during things, while Jim Pendleton's two - run single featured Jersey City's first game victory for reliver Bob Rissenhoover.

Dick Hall and Steve Demeter homered in Richmond's victory that went to George Wiggy. Winner Bob Chakales singled home Toronto's clincher in the nightcap and he scattered six Richmond singles.

Port Hope Beats Kenmores

By PETER CARVER

The Belleville Kasmore's dropped their home opener in the Quinte Intermediate Baseball League by losing 4-0 to the Port Hope Ontario's yesterday afternoon at the fairgrounds. It was Belleville's second loss against no wins.

Solid base hits won the game for the Ontarios. While the Kenmores were hitting the long ball, the Port Hope outfield had little trouble in pulling them in. Port Hope scored singletons in the third and sixth innings and put the game well out of the Kenmores' reach with two more runs in the sixth.

Mike Harrison pitched standout ball for the winners and was a big gun at the plate, smashing a home run and a double. He left Belleville Bill Bar hits, whiffing six and walking one.

Don Masters went the distance in the losing cause. He was touched for nine hits while pitching six and striking out the same number.

Back to back doubles by Harrison and Fenton opened a 2-0 lead for the Ontarios in the third frame; Harrison's circuit blast accounted for Port Hope's sixth-inning run; Watts and Sharpe doubled and both scored on Brown's base hit to end the scoring in the ninth.

Harrison's homer and double were the big blows for the Ontarios. Watts, Fenton and Sharpe each collected two - baggers, while Rich Brown had two singles in the winning cause.

Mayor McLean Haig, Lee Grills, MP, and Kenmors manager Ken Sodon took part in the opening ceremonies with Mayor Haig batting and Mr. Grills doing the pitching.

Rick Locke, Masters, Mavely and Sodon were the Belleville hitters, each collecting singles.

Belleville: Locke, Folwell, Goyer, Mavety, Soden, Asselstine, Hunter, Moxon, Masters.

Port Hope: Watts, Fenton, Beatty, Kelly, N. Wakely, Brown, R. Wakely, Gilmar, D. Wakely, Cox, Sharpe, Barrion, Harrison, Sharpe.

Sets World Record for Broad Jump

MODESTO, Calif. (CP-AP)—Olympic and world champion Ralph Boston became the first human to broad jump 27 feet—surpassing the mark by a half-inch Saturday night.

His performance at the 20th annual California Relays overshadowed a sub - four - minute mile by Jim Beatty, 130-pound distance runner from Santa Clara, Calif. Beatty did the mile in 3 58.8 with ex-Oregon runner Jim Greeke second in 4:01.3.

In the 30-yard dash, Dennis Johnson of San Jose State was last off the starting blocks but rallied in the final going to nip Canadian champion Harry Jerome of Vancouver and win in 9.4 seconds.

Jerome, who runs for Oregon, was clocked in the same time over the Modesto Junior College clay track but lost by an edge.

The 9.4 clocking was one-tenth of a second off the world record, held jointly by Jerome and Armin Hary of West Germany.

In the broad jump, Boston, from Tennessee A and I, went better than 26 feet on each of six jumps and on the fourth one bettered his own world record of 26-11¼ set last year with a leap of 27 feet ¼ inch.

"I didn't think I could go that far," he said afterward. "But I certainly don't think it's the limit."

"Moutiers" Favored For Derby

LONDON (AP) — The old Strasburger dream of winning the Epsom Derby goes into one more chapter Wednesday with a French colt, Moutiers, rated the favorite for the famed English classic.

The horse is owned by Mrs. Ralph Beaver Strassburger, widow of the Pennsylvania publisher who tried for 30 years to win Britain's most famous horse race.

Moutiers, pride of the French race tracks, will keep up the Strassburger quest by running in the biggest Epsom Derby field in 34 years. About 21 horses are expected to flight it out over the 1½-mile horseshoe-shaped course at Epsom Downs. The winner will be about $112,000 to be shared among the owners of the first three horses. An Irish Sweepstakes is based on the race.

For weeks, the bookies made Sir Victor Sassoon's Pinturicchio the favorite. Moutiers overtook Pinturicchio in the two preceding stakes after Pinturicchio was clipped with a stomach ailment two weeks ago.

Pinturicchio became sick a second time last week and was scratched.

Trois Rois, owned by Mrs. C. O. Iselin, of Glen Head, N.Y., crept up in the betting to share second favorite spot after an impressive victory in the Derby Trial Stakes at Lingfield Park.

The Trois

LONDON, Ont. (AP) — The Waples brothers of Victoria Harbor turned in two belated night to win the biggest race at the Woodbine Race track.

Success Top, a six-year - old gelding trained by Keith Waples, and driven by his brother-Murray, had little trouble winning the one-mile Seagram Trophy race. He was the only double winner of the night.

Success Top also had the best time of the night—2:08 3-5.

The daily double paid $22.10 to holders of tickets on Amber Lad, owned and driven by William Fish of Walkerton, and Dancer, in the first and second races.

The quinella combination of R. Merrie Miller, owned and driven by Fred Robson of Dryden, Mich., and Amber Lad, paid $6.30 in the fifth race.

BEAMSVILLE (CP) — Rushbrooke, a nine-year-old gelding owned by Michael Minten of Brantford and driven by Russel Smith of Oshweken, won both heats of the Vineland Trot, feature event on Saturday's harness racing program here.

The card was the third of seven being run by the Niagara Harness Horsemen's Association here this season.

Rushbrooke came from behind to nip Jack Mehlenbacher's Mr. Jive in 2:20 1-5 and pay $16 to win in the opening heat of the Vineland, in his second appearance. Rushbrooke led all the way in 2:20 4-5 for a $13.20 return.

Gary Campbell, a 23-year-old St. Catharines driver, was top for the day with three firsts. Mehlenbacher had a pair.

Campbell drove Edna's Lady to win both ends of the Four Glen Mixed and then picked up the second heat of the Jordan Mixed with Belmont Clara.

Mehlenbacher, former NHL referee from Nelles Corners, won both ends of the Caistor Mixed with his three-year-old pacer Torcean. His times were 2:16 and 2:19 1-5.

ern Goodale of Glanford Station drove his Bobby's Girl to a 2:21 4-5 win in the first leg of the Jordan.

MONTREAL (CP) — Direct Bud, five-year-old black gelding owned by F. D. M. Burrows and driven by Percy Robillard won the feature of 10,000 seventh race at Richelieu Park Sunday.

Direct Bud covered the mile in 2:08 3-5 to return $5.50, $2.80 and $3.10.

Oliver Twist was second and returned $4.30 and $3.00 while Cathy G. was third, paying $4.20.

Weston Driver Race Winner

GODERICH (CP) — Dan Shaw's Sadler Corvette Special got the 1961 motor racing season off to a rocketlike start at the Greenacres track Saturday, beating Ludwig Heimrath in his Porsche 2550 into second place in the Formula Libre opener.

The Weston driver completed the 12 laps of the 1.9-mile course at an average speed of 86.56 miles an hour.

Oliver Clobine of Brantford outdrove more powerful Corvettes on the chicane in his Torus-Triumph Special to take the improved production and modified sports under 1,600 c.c. event. G. I. Brovpout of Guelph and Stanley Megar, of Birmingham, Mich., were second and third respectively in Corvettes.

AT THE PARK — A scene from "The Phenix Story" starring Kathryn Grant and Jim McInitire. Filmed on the spot in the sin town it took the military to subdue, opens tonight at the Park Theatre. On the same program, the second shocker, "The Big Combo" stars Cornel Wilde, Richard Conte, Brian Donlevy and Jean Wallace.

Senior Baseball

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Cardinals and Guelph Merchants chalked up their second consecutive victories during the Inter - County senior baseball league's second weekend of action of the season.

The Cardinals got six hit pitching from Richard Jack and made the most of their two opportunities to defeat the Diamonds 4 - 1 at London Saturday. Sunday, the Cardinals drove across two runs in each of the fifth, sixth and seventh innings to down Kitchener - Waterloo Panthers 6-5.

Jack was within one out of handing the Diamonds their second straight shutout defeat but he fed a single to Stan (Gabby) Anderson, 1960 batting champion, and rookie Jerry Young followed with a triple. Jack had one walk and 10 strikeouts.

Harold Hap Randall pitched eight innings for London and allowed two runs. Hugh Fletcher started the ninth but ran into control problems and loaded the bases. The two hits off his successor, Danny Barratt, accounted for four runs.

The Tracks

NEW YORK (CP)—First Balcony wrecked the comeback trail of the highly-favored Prove It in a smashing victory in the $112,700 Californian at Ingelewood, Calif., Saturday.

Jockey Eddie Burns upset the heralded combination of Rex C. Ellsworth's Prove It and jockey Willie Shoemaker in a stirring finish of the 1 1-16-mile feature at Hollywood Park. The time was 1:40 2-5.

First Balcony paid $25.60, $7.60 and $4.20. Prove It returned $3.40 and $3 and Sea Orbit $5.00.

In Chicago, Alberta Ranch's Flutterby charged from far back to score a two-length victory in the $22,150 Bridal Handicap at Balmoral-Washington Park Saturday.

Flutterby, timed in 1:23 1-5, earned $13,150. He paid $7.00, $5.60 and $2.40.

In New York, Make Sail, the big favorite of a chilled crowd of 38,043, romped past Royal Bone with an eighth of a mile remaining to capture the $53,300 Top Flight Handicap on a sloppy track at Aqueduct.

Golden Mile Has Purse Of $375,000

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A potential record - breaking field with the most rookies in 10 years, thunders after a purse of $375,000 or more Tuesday in the golden anniversary 500 - mile auto race.

The 33 drivers, screened from 68 nominees by two weekends of time trials, met today in the last preliminary to the Memorial Day classic — the annual rules review and officials' traditional rolling reminder that you can't win riding in a sandbulance, or hearse.

The vanguard of Tuesday's potential audience of 300,000 was talking up two especially glamorous newcomers, Australian Jack Brabham and Parnelli Jones of Torrance, Calif.

Brabham, world road racing champion the last two years, has a Cooper Climax built especially for Indianapolis, but it departed from the American style by having a smaller engine installed behind the driver and a shorter, lighter chassis.

Jones, 37, a terror on smaller American tracks in recent years, had sustained his reputation with fast, heady driving in practice and qualifications.

Sports in Brief

MATTHEWS UPSET

NEW YORK (AP) — Paolo Rosi, 30-year-old New Yorker by way of Italy, scored an emphatic upset over young Len Matthews of Philadelphia in Madison Square Garden Saturday night and probably jumped right back into the top 10 in the lightweight division. Both judges, Johnny Graeod and Dick Gambol, and referee Lou Devillo gave all 10 rounds to Rosi, who entered the ring a 15-to-5 underdog.

WINS MILLE MIGLIA

BRESCIA, Italy (AP) — Gunnar Andersson and Charlie Lohmander, a Swedish driving team with a powerful Ferrari which they bought only three days before the race, won the Mille Miglia Sunday, 1,000-mile auto-rally type road race. Second place in the sports-car classic Scialson was taken by the Italian team of Giulio Cabianca and Carlo Povolo in a Flaminia 1,500.

Movie Column

Jack Lemmon, Rock Hudson Take Place of Gable, Cooper

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The golden doors swing open for two of its members but two new stars have come up.

Three years ago, this writer pointed out that there were a dozen film stars who virtually ruled the industry by their ability to write their own ticket in deals. They were Marlon Brando, William Holden, Gary Cooper, Burt Lancaster, Tony Curtis, Gregory Peck, Kirk Douglas, Frank Sinatra, Clark Gable, James Stewart, Gary Grant and John Wayne.

Today, Gable and Cooper will be replaced. But the tides of film fortunes have provided two new members equal to any of the golden dozen. They are Jack Lemmon and Rock Hudson.

NOW CASHES IN

Hudson may have made it to the top ranks sooner, except for his restricting contract with Universal. Now he is more able to cash in on his vast popularity. Lemmon, long Hollywood's most underrated actor, established himself with Some Like It Hot and The Apartment.

The industry situation has not changed with regard to the top ten dozen. I pointed out in 1958 that the 12 men were the real rulers of Hollywood since they were the only names on which producers felt they could rely. If anything, the dozen stars hold even more power today.

To acquire the services of these stars film companies have to make concessions that would have been unheard of in the era when the Cohns, Mayers and Zanucks were absolute monarchs. Nearly all of the actors have their own companies with which the studios must deal, usually as partner—and often a silent partner, at that.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROL RIGHTER

Tuesday, May 30, 1961

General Tendencies: You have every sort of chance to use this day to advantage by a greater love of country and expression of patriotism. Think of ways to help those who made sacrifices for freedom. Then you can think out the philosophy of life under which you would most like to operate in the future. Later, take trip, but use care on highway, in motion.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) You are filled with inspirational thoughts and it would be wise to jot down on paper before you forget them. Put most important in operation, write to those out-of-town, if necessary, etc. Be most ethical in all that you do.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) Follow your hunches now regarding any business deals on hand or bettering your position in any dedicated civic matters, since they are apt to be most accurate. Evening should be spent with loved one, being very devoted and generous.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Important you know what your true position is with all allies now. And this is also a good day to come to a real understanding with those who have not acted in a very friendly manner in the past. Patch up old differences. Smile.

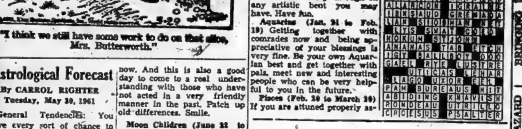
Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) The many duties before you can be handled very nicely now, but it first behooves you to do your duty to, ward the ill and maimed, especially our forgotten heroes, P.M. Get together with coworkers informally. Plan a better future.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make it a point to lend a helping hand to all worthy mankind in your immediate aura, since you have it in your power to be a wonderful Samaritan, P.M. Seek pleasure and fun at the social functions that most appeal to you.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 23) While you may be adamant, you must start through with the plans your family has in mind for the day, since they will be to your benefit. You can take it easy at home tonight, however, or have a few trusted friends in.

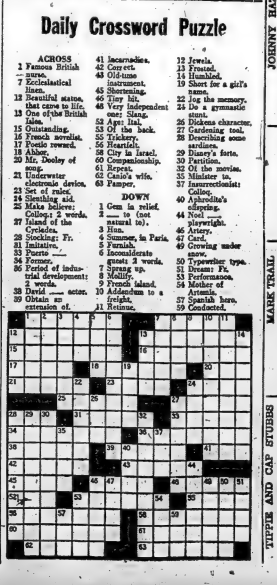
Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) You have every opportunity now to visit friends or kin, once you have done your civic duty by the host of your ability, P.M. Get together with good friends for lots of fun.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Important you draw upon your past experience and standards under which you were reared if you want to solve those current problems and plan a more successful future. Get a goal for yourself and take first steps toward it. Respect high-ups.



Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) It is fine to go after personal desires, but this is one day to do something to show gratitude for being able to live in a free country. Get out to some fine social affair tonight where you can do your bit. Give generously.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Take advantage of that opportunity to help others today, and be thankful that you are in a position to do so. However don't blab about it everywhere, P.M. Carry through on any artistic bent you may have. Have fun.



Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Getting together with comrades now and being appreciative of your blessings is very fine. Be your own Aquarian best and get together with pals, meet new and interesting people who can be very helpful to you in the future.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) If you are attuned properly astrologically, you will want to do your utmost in civic affairs today, which is considerable. At the same time, strive for greater popularity and success in the world of business and creative activity.

If your child is born today .. he, or she, will be one of those delightful people who will take to different cultures and philosophies very readily and will do very well in foreign fields, languages, etc. Be sure you give as fine an academic education as you can afford so that the great potential in this chart can be fully realized. Fine pioneering strides can be made in science, medicine, education here. A blunt but honest individual who is a genius.

WAR SURPLUS

BRANTFORD (CP) — Brantford's gasoline price war, now more than a week old, has begun spreading south. Service stations in Simcoe and Port Dover dropped their prices to 30.9 cents a gallon Wednesday to bring them in line with Brantford prices. The normal price is 39.9. Meanwhile, one brand-name dealer in Brantford took a step further by slashing his price to 36.9.

PUT 'ER THERE — Says Lee H. Grills, as the Federal member for Hastings South, teams up with His Honor Mayor A. M. Haig in official opening ceremonies for the Lakeshore Baseball League at the Fairgrounds Sunday. Mr. Grills is seen as catcher here but his later went to the mound to "toss" the first ball. The mayor hit an infield out.

of a possible fall election.

Candidates in Esquimalt-Saanich near Conservative, George Chadwick, 45, realtor and Liberal John R. Matheson, 41, a lawyer whose legs are paralyzed from a head wound suffered in the Second World War. The former member, Maurice Sasseen, died Dec. 8.

Both provincial and federal politicians have been in the Response - Medawaska battle to pick a successor to J. Y. Valcourt who resigned in January. Liberal Jean-Eudes Dube, 36-year-old Campbellton lawyer, is running against Edgar Fournier who was a member of the former Conservative cabinet of New Brunswick.

The only woman candidate is Mrs. Margaret Macdonald, who is trying to succeed her late husband as representative for Kings constituency. Her Liberal opponent is Thomas J. Kitcham, 60-year-old farmer and livestock dealer who held the seat from 1949 to 1957.

Democracy Demise in Korea Alarms Westerners in Seoul

By GENE HRAMER

SEOUL (AP) — Nobody is dancing in the streets but there are few regrets. That is the response of many South Koreans to the army coup d'etat.

The old regime was elected in Korea's freest election and it ruled in an atmosphere unusually free for Asia.

Yet few Koreans seem sorry to see it go.

This reaction to the demise of the democracy alarms more than a few Westerners here. But people who have suffered under one tyranny after another for centuries don't seem to miss freedom.

What the Koreans seem to despise is failure and hunger.

To most of them, Premier John Chang's regime was a total failure. It had only scratched the surface of enormous problems inherited from Syngman Rhee a year ago.

"Sure the army is strict with the people now," said a student who participated in the uprising against Rhee. "But give the generals a chance to show what they can do. If they fail to improve conditions, just wait until martial law is lifted and they will have to answer to the Korean people."

'DEMOCRACY FAILED'

Said a young Korean newspaperman "Call this new military government what you want, but there isn't much left for us to try except communism. We tried democracy and it failed."

The ease of the takeover has raised fears that South Korea may see one coup after another in the search for a solution to its problems.

The generals who gave John Chang more than one year to work on problems Syngman Rhee could not solve in a decade have come up with no economic plan so far. They have made efforts to mobilize the support of the poor.

Free rice has been distributed. Students who cannot pay the poor have been arrested and paraded through the streets. Farm debts have been cancelled. Streets have been cleared by government officials arrested and low-ranking public servants put on a seven-day week with penalties for being late to work.

Some relations were ordered Saturday. Civil servants were back on a six-day week. An hour was lopped off the curfew. Emergency martial law was replaced by a more relaxed security martial law. Formal press censorship was abolished but replaced by self-censorship banning the publication of anything "detrimental to national security."

BEGIN BAIL SERVICE

LONDON (AP) — Daily bail service both ways between London and Moscow began today. The trip takes 2½ days and includes a sea crossing from the English east coast to the hook of Holland.

PUGWASH

Science and World Affairs (COSWA). The next meeting is scheduled for Woods Hole, Mass., Sept. 2.

The subcommittee document didn't argue that the Russians had made any great gains in subverting Western scientists although it concluded that some had been subverted.

"For more significant, however, is the damage done by those scientists who, though non-Communist, permit themselves to be snared by plausible devices and arguments . . ."

Senator Thomas J. Dodd, subcommittee vice-chairman, said purpose of the staff study was to illustrate how the Kremlin "has managed to exploit scientific conferences to further its own aggressive design and to confuse and disorient the free world: about the psychological and political techniques employed by the Communist representatives at such conferences; about the utilization of scientific contacts for the purpose of mobilizing Western scientific opinions for programs that coincide with Soviet interests; and finally about the exploitation of scientific contacts for purposes of direct subversion."

The report suggests that western scientists probably were inadequately trained and experienced in international politics in meeting with their opposite numbers from Russia.

The document said it was significant that Russia sent Dr. Alexander Topchiev as a delegate. Topchiev was vice - president of the Soviet Academy of Science and, his rival academy, the report said, "is personally responsible for political watchdog and commissar in behalf of the ruling Communist party."

WASHINGTON (AP)—American Space Administrator James E. Webb predicted Sunday the United States will beat the Russians to the moon and disclosed that the next Mercury suborbital flight is checded for late June or early July.

Farms Fewer But Larger Census Shows

Canadian farms are becoming fewer, but at the same time, larger.

According to previous censuses, the number of farms in Canada has dropped consistently in recent years. The 677,500 farms of 1941 had fallen to 619,400 in 1951 and to just 572,800 in 1956. That's a drop of 15 per cent in 15 years.

Despite the drop in number of farms, the total area of farmland remaining practically unchanged. The reason: the size of remaining farms expanded from 237 acres in 1941 to 302.5 in 1956.

Census officials expect the census which begins June 1 will show a continuation of these patterns. And the results will also help clarify a host of related trends, both for the whole of Canada and its various regions. For example, how significantly has contract farming grown? How much farther has specialized farming advanced?

Answers to such questions will be useful to farm organizations, to industry which supplies goods and services to farmers, and to federal and provincial departments of agriculture in deciding on farm policies. Census totals, collected from everyone, are available to everyone. The facts on any individual farmer are held in strict confidence.

Deep Religious Devotion Guides Wood Carver's Work

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—Basswood chips fall steadily on the floor of Karl Rothammer's workshop with the soft click of rosary beads.

And the figures that grow beneath the sweep of his knives and chisels represent not only his livelihood but his deep devotion.

For Rothammer is a devout Roman Catholic who believes he could not reproduce biblical figures successfully except from the depths of his strong religious convictions.

And he says he would not want to earn his living any other way.

Rothammer is a 39-year-old former Bavarian farm boy with a grip of steel and a frame as craggy as the Alps where he was born.

"As a boy I always had a pocket knife and a piece of wood."

LEFT SCHOOL

He left school at 16 and was apprenticed to a cabinet maker.

During the Second World War he went into the German navy and recalls that at one point he was imprisoned for three days for working on an altar carving when he should have been taking physical training.

Out of his religious feeling and his disgust with war grew his first major work—a family of forlorn refugees which reflected his love for faces and hands.

Rothammer studied for three years with a master sculptor in Bavaria after the war. Then he tried unsuccessfully to enter an academy at Hamburg.

"Go your own way," he was told. "You have already learned a lot more than most students here ever will."

Rothammer's way was to a former bowling alley outside Aschaffenburg, which he turned into a studio. Gradually, his work took on more and more religious aspects.

BRANCHED OUT

In 1951 he moved to Canada and worked for nearly seven years for a furniture company. He quit the assembly line three years ago and opened a studio in the home he occupies with his wife and four daughters.

It was a carved mahogany fireplace done for H. A. Hosking of Guelph, then Liberal MP for Wellington South, that launched his career.

The politician sponsored Rothammer as a sculptor on unfinished stone portions of the Peace Tower on Parliament Hill in Ottawa.

He followed this with a Holy Family in wood in the Roman Catholic army chapel at Fort Henry in Kingston, Ont.

Then came a second big break —he carved a rectory piece for Msgr. W. J. Warren of St. John the Baptist church in Burlington, Ont.

Msgr. Warren, later seeking further sculpture from a New York firm, was told that the type of thing he wanted was done only in Europe. He disagreed and again the contract went to Rothammer.

Then another New York company heard of his work and he was asked to bid on a contract for the carvings of a New Jersey church.

His latest work focusses on a life-size corpus of Christ Crucified, suspended from the reredos of the main altar of Kitchener's newest Roman Catholic church, St. Francis of Assisi. It and three other life-size figures and the stations of the cross have been cut from basswood, his favorite material.

The work was presented to the new parish as a tribute to its founding priest, Rev. A. C. Mayer, by the nine societies in St. Mary's parish. Father Mayer's former pastorate.

RED SPIES FLY HIGH

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union is conducting extensive reconnaissance - mapping flights of the northern borders of Pakistan and Kashmir, it was learned from diplomatic sources Sunday. The high-flying photographic missions are similar to the American U-2 plane flights over Russia which ended about a year ago when U-2 pilot Francis Powers was shot down inside the Soviet Union.

SERMON IN WOOD — In his Kitchener, Ont., studio, sculptor Karl Rothammer (left) turns a block of basswood into a life-size religious carving. At right his work graces St. Francis of Assisi Church in Kitchener. Mr. Rothammer, 39, who came to Kitchener in 1951, started his apprenticeship as a sculptor in his native Bavaria at the age of 15. One little reason why father needs a
FAMILY SECURITY CHECK-UP

Every father knows his family's needs change from year to year . . . it may be a new baby, a new house, or a teen-ager who's making plans for university.

Because his family's needs are constantly changing, every father should review his family security program every year.

Metropolitan, the company you look to for authoritative information on physical health, now offers a way to check your financial health—a Family Security Check-Up.

More than an interview—a service

Your Metropolitan representative has been trained in Metropolitan's own schools and is qualified by solid experience to bring you this service. He is equipped with scientifically designed charts and tables that show you, in black and white exactly where you stand.

Call your Metropolitan man for a Family Security Check-Up. There's no obligation—except to those you love.

WHAT IT IS AND WHAT IT DOES FOR YOU

Family Security Check-Up

With the help of your Metropolitan man—

1. You check the facts: your pension plan, your home, your life insurance, your savings and other assets. You may be surprised to learn how much you're worth.

2. You weigh your responsibilities: mortgage or rent payments, education, retirement, accident and sickness emergencies; how much it would cost your family to live without you.

3. You learn where you stand. You determine your weak and strong points . . . whether the provisions you have made for your family will do what you intend. You get the facts in front of you.

4. You plan for the future. Based on these facts, you decide what action, if any, may be needed to give you a family security plan tailor-made to your own needs and ambitions —one which makes good sense for you.

Sixty-One Killed In Jet Airliner Crash At Lisbon

Plane Plunges on Beach Shortly After Takeoff

LISBON (Reuters)—A jet airliner crashed shortly after takeoff here today, and all 61 persons on board were believed killed.

The jet airliner vanished shortly after 20 minutes after taking off from Lisbon on a flight to South America. The wreckage and bodies were sighted on a beach at Costa de Caparica.

The KLM press service in The Hague said there were 48 passengers aboard—32 of them believed to be children—and 14 crew members.

The Boeing 21 Dutch Airline (KLM), which operates jointly with Viasa on the South American route, said the passengers were Australian, Portuguese and Spanish with possibly one Italian and one Frenchman aboard.

The airliner was bound for Curacao in the Dutch West Indies.

The wreckage of the DC-8 airliner was found on a lonely beach south of Lisbon and Portuguese authorities said there appeared to be no survivors.

The Dutch-owned plane was under charter to a Venezuelan airline. It crashed minutes after taking off this morning on a flight to Caracas via the Azores.

The plane crashed at Costa de Caparica, a stretch of beach about 10 miles south of Lisbon.

The four-jet airliner carried 57 passengers, including 16 children, and a crew of 14. The provisional passenger list included most of those aboard, with Americans, Portuguese or Spaniards.

KLM had been handling intercontinental traffic for the Venezuelan airline, which is waiting to get its own fleet of DC-8's.

Of the 14 crew members, all but two were KLM employees. The pair were a Venezuelan purser and stewardess.

The second major airliner disaster this month. On May 10, 72 persons were killed when an Air France Super-Constellation crashed in the Sahara on a flight from Brazzaville, in the former French Congo, to Marseilles.

Says Three Men Conspired to Corrupt Police

TORONTO (CP) — Special prosecutor Gordon Ford told an Ontario Supreme Court jury today he would trace a pattern of conspiracy linking three men in an attempt to corrupt a police officer.

"This trial is of major importance to the administration of justice in our province," Mr. Ford said in his opening address.

"Any attempt . . . to corrupt our police officers . . . strikes at the main root of the administration of justice."

Today was the second day of the trial of Robert J. Wright, 39, Joseph McDermott, 40, and Vincent Feeley, Jr. Wright faces two charges of conspiring to obstruct justice and three of bribery. McDermott and Feeley face two charges of conspiring to obstruct justice.

JURORS PICKED SLOWLY

The trial opened Monday with a marathon jury selection which saw three defence counsels challenge nearly all of the 39 jurors paraded in front of them before choosing a 12-man panel.

Mr. Ford said today that "the essence of a charge of conspiracy is for agreement to do, or not do the conspiracy was carried out.

His prosecutor said Const. Scott acted with the knowledge of his superiors, and that all money collected was turned over to provincial police.

Mr. Ford said Wright wanted information primarily on the Vets' Club Convention and the New Rearsey Club in Niagara Falls.

Wright was arrested May 26, 1960, and the two clubs subsequently were closed.

P.M. INDICATES GOVT. ATTITUDE ON HANGINGS

Favors Commutation On Mercy Motion

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker indicated Monday that his cabinet is leaning toward virtually automatic commutation of death sentences for murder in cases where a jury recommends mercy.

He also said he favors a change whereby the "frightening experience" of reviewing each murder case would be lifted from the cabinet as a whole and, following the United Kingdom practice, be made a duty of the justice minister and his parliamentary assistant.

Mr. Diefenbaker made both points in an unexpected entry into the debate on the government's bill on capital punishment.

The bill would end the present system of a mandatory death penalty for murder convicts, in favor of two classes of murder—capital or "planned and deliberate" murder, which would bring an automatic sentence of death, and non-capital murder for which the penalty would be life in prison. It would also end the system of execution—by hanging—in provinces which abolished hangings.

The prime minister's interjection came during the clause-by-clause study of the bill that follows second reading. The debate is likely — the bill already has received approval in principle—continues today.

WOULD KEEP ENSURE

Mr. Diefenbaker, once a noted criminal lawyer in Saskatchewan, said the bill will go a long way to ensure that "mistakes" in the administration of justice will not happen in the future.

"One of my major concerns has been the danger of the execution of someone who had not committed the offence," he said. Without elaborating, he added: "I think we have benefitted by actual experience within our own country."

The prime minister stressed a provision in the bill requiring judges in trial cases to ask the jury in each case—after it has brought in a verdict—whether or not, otherwise of the accused—whether it wants to recommend for or against mercy.

Juries now have the right to recommend mercy, but often do not realize it, Mr. Diefenbaker

Negro Strike Fizzles Out, Johannesburg Boycott Ends

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters)—Striking Negro workers began returning to work here today, ending a boycott called to coincide with the inauguration Wednesday of South Africa as a republic.

The city's 250,000-strong Negro work force staged the only effective demonstration Monday —first day of a planned three-day "stay-at-home" strike that called on other workers to back heavy government pressure. At least 30 per cent of Johannesburg's Negro workers supported the strike against the government's apartheid policies, but the decision to become a republic.

Reports from other parts of the country said the protest strike was nearly a complete failure.

There were isolated acts of violence Monday in outlying Negro townships of Johannesburg, Port Elizabeth and Durban.

Police in Port Elizabeth rescued the driver and conductor of a bus who were wounded by an angry mob armed with sticks and stones.

Buses were stoned in two other Negro townships.

A heavy guard of white and Negro police, supported by armored car troops, patrolled the native townships in the biggest operation in the country's history. This appeared to have been the key factor in breaking the planned strike.

TCA SHOWDOWN NEARS ON WAGE SYSTEM ISSUE

Airline Calls Plan 'Iniquitous'

MONTREAL (CP) — Trans-Canada Air Lines and its 800 pursers and stewardesses appeared headed for a showdown on a union-favored wage system that TCA calls "iniquitous."

The union would give extra flying time credit for work on the airline's DC-8 jets and Vanguard turboprops.

TCA said Monday it has offered the flight attendants wage increases ranging from $15 to $25 a month in an effort to settle the dispute.

For those flying jets, the increase would be between $35 and $50 a month. Flight attendants on domestic runs now average $285 to $320 per 75 hours of flying time monthly.

The attendants, members of the Canadian Air Lines Flight Attendants' Association (CLFA), have voted on the offer and rejected it. Deadline for 215 is 8 week. An association spokesman said it likely the offer will be rejected.

The flight attendants want TCA to accept conciliation board report that recommends that pursers get flying time credits for each hour they fly jets and five minutes for each hour flown in turboprops.

TCA spokesmen said this would put the wage rate far above that of United States airlines.

REFUSES TO CHARGES

TCA also replied to charges by the union that it has hired "strikebreakers" to take over in case of a walkout.

It said attendants hired by TCA "are selected by the Flight Attendant Service of T. Fuerto, director of passenger services with the airline."

The statement said many of the flight attendants will, in event of a strike, continue to work. To assist these flight attendants, the company has requested volunteers from among supervisors and other company employees.

Many have volunteered, All of these volunteers have met the high medical standards required for employment with TCA.

These company employees will be trained and fully qualified in all safety aspects of the job before being assigned as temporary substitutes to flight attendants."

Jews for Trucks Exchange Really Gestapo Peace Plan

JERUSALEM—A Nazi plan to trade Jewish lives for war materials from the West for use against the Russians was essentially a Gestapo plan for a peace that would end the Nazi persecutions, the Eichmann trial court was told today.

The deal, proposed by Adolf Eichmann in Hungary, foundered when the government got worry about negotiating with an "international spy ring" and "unconditional surrender" had been laid down as the only terms Hitler ever would sign.

The latest prosecution of Eichmann as Heinrich Himmler's right-hand man in the extermination of the Jews produced a series of documents reaching into the British foreign office files, to Himmler's top Jewish aide, Joel Brand.

They showed how Eichmann dispatched a Jewish leader, Joel Brand, to Istanbul with a secret plan to redeem 1,000,000 Jews for 10,000 trucks and set loose a British spy ring to the Nazis.

A meeting with British-Zionist Yehuda Arazi in Aleppo, Syria in London ensued. Eden warned the West had to consult the Russians. But the Nazis were not possibly agree to anything that might halt the negotiations with the enemy.

Under the deportations of 600,000 Hungarian Jews to the death camps in high gear at that time, the summer of 1944, the Nazi leaders also demanded that the Allies bomb the gas chambers of Auschwitz and other camps leading to it. This was turned down "for political considerations."

Another proposal of the free world Jews to drop Palestine paratroops into Hungary as a cadre of resistance was approved by the Allied military people but then was rejected "by the British political Office" on political grounds.

Brand said the Eichmann plan was "a trick" to split the Allies and showed the whole Hitlerian outlook on the Jews.

They "honestly believed" the Jews were all-powerful, "had Churchill and Roosevelt in their pockets" and the 10,000 trucks were a mere trifle.

"Apart from that, they hoped to enter into the good books of Dr. Alfred Allen and obtain sanctuary for themselves, possibly even to receive better treatment for Germany as a whole."

The conditions were that the liberated Jews could go only to neutral countries "because 'Bolshevism' was from then Germany's chief enemy." Palestine, they would again be considered "enemy territory" by Germany, by then consolidated in the Balkans and Italy.

Brand told the court that Eichmann arranged for him to fly from Budapest to Turkey May 18, 1944, to try to arrange the deal for the Jews.

With him flew Bandi Grosz, an agent of the SS intelligence service, and Andor Grosz, Nazi intelligence services, informing them in the United States and Britain.

Grosz at first was very secretive, but after the two were imprisoned in Istanbul Grosz told Brand that they were to start peace contacts with the Allies. The saving of the Jews was only a "by-product" (tip) thrown in with the deal.

Liberals Score Healthy Victory In Leeds County

Conservative Majorities In All Ridings Reduced

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Progressive Conservatives swathed sharply reduced majorities to score an impressive three-out-of-four triumph in Monday's federal byelections.

The government retained Kings constituency on Prince Edward Island, Restigouche-Madawaska in northern New Brunswick and Equimalt-Saanich on Vancouver Island. It lost Leeds in Eastern Ontario to a vigorous Liberal candidate who out-campaigned his Conservative opponent despite the handicap of paralyzed legs.

The combination of the Liberals' healthy win in Leeds and the Conservatives' slim margins in their victories produced a situation in which the Liberals recorded more votes than the government although winning only one seat.

Senator G. S. Thorvaldson of Winnipeg, radical president of the Conservative Association, summed up his party's election over the by-election results. He said:

"I would strongly advise the Liberals not to demand a general election at this time."

He added: "The first time in Canadian political history a government in power has won three out of four byelections in the same day."

SEEK LIBERAL UPSWING

Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson said the government showed a sharp upswing in popular support for the Liberals and that there is no reason for gloom in party ranks.

He described the Liberal win in Leeds—only the third there in the riding's 36-year history—as a "very large increase" since in the popular vote as a signal achievement.

He added Mr. Pearson added, "the outcome of these byelections cannot be viewed as anything but a heavy setback to the government.

CCF Leader Hazen Argue countered both opinions with a statement in which he said the Liberal win in Leeds was of a swing in political sentiment. He called it "typical byelection" result.

Monday's result put the House of Commons standing at: Conservatives 205, Liberals 51, CCF 8, New Party 1.

The newest additions to the 263-member Commons:

Kings—Mrs. Margaret Macdonald, middle-aged wife of four, who takes the Conservative seat left vacant by the death of her husband in January and becomes the first woman MP ever elected in the Maritimes. She won by 167 votes in a fight fought against a former Liberal MP.

Restigouche - Madawaska — Edgar Fournier, 53-year-old Edmundston businessman who fought of a determined campaign by former Conservative Liberals to hold the seat for the Conservatives.

Leeds—John R. Matheson, 43, who was paralyzed from

4 Counterfeit Bills Passed In Peterboro

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Four counterfeit $10 bills have been discovered in Peterborough since Friday, police reported Monday.

The bills all carry the same serial number, W-D 9651190. A number had been passed several months ago. City detectives described the paper on which the bills were printed as "just passable." The ink is in a severe state of shock.

George Scott, 30, also of Sarnia, was known about the head, some and legs but most of his body escaped serious harm.

The accident occurred at 1:40 a.m. Shepherd and Scott, two members of a provincial crew of 10 that was working at Imperial Oil's petrochemical unit, were alone when suddenly surrounded by flames.

Sarnia Workers Badly Burned

SARNIA (CP)—Two Imperial Oil Company workers were caught in a raging fire early today and were rushed into hospital torches as flames swirled around their bodies and burned away their clothes.

George Shepherd, 36, of Sarnia, was listed in serious but not critical condition. He is in a severe state of shock.

George Scott, also of Sarnia, was known about the head, some and legs but most of his body escaped serious harm.

Toronto Building Snarled, Workers Seek Union Wages

TORONTO (CP) — Construction of residential and apartment house projects stood a paralyzing blow today in a walkout of workers seeking union wages.

Union spokesman predicted that between 5,000 and 10,000 men, most of them building tradesmigrants, would quit in an attempt to force contractors to bargain. Nearly 600 construction jobs were closed Monday.

Twelve housing locals, affiliated with International construction unions, were seeking terms and conditions claimed for the workers under a three-a man signed last year.

Fred Kennedy, public, president of the Carpenter Contractors Association, said contractors refused to honor wage provisions of union agreements because "competition is unfair from non-union contractors that we just couldn't exist."

The union was asked for a meeting to discuss settlement, but Kennedy refused and there will be no actual bargaining because the CCA feels the strike is illegal.

"In one incident during picketing where I was present, a construction sites gathering sup. port, demonstrator Dino Consentino, was struck by a car and suffered shoulder injuries.

Bruno Zanussi of the International Laborer's Union (CLC) termed the walkout a "corrective action to rid the industry of abuses and rackeeters" rather than a strike.

"There have been more men than 1,000 contract violations," he said. "Men are once again being cheated, chiselled and exploited."

Union rates for the workers range between $1.70 and $2 an hour. Non-union men get as low as $1 an hour. In addition, union officials charged the unorganized immigrants often work overtime at no extra pay or the hourly rate when union workers get extra pay.

Will Not Retreat As Spokesman For Freedom

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP) — President Kennedy leaves for Europe today with no thought of retreat not one inch as a spokesman for freedom.

Kennedy flies to Paris for conference with President Charles de Gaulle of France and, beginning Saturday in Vienna, with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

On his 44th birthday, Kennedy said Monday night that "serious miscalculations, serious misapprehensions" can lead to grave adversaries and to the threat of war that is the lifelong fear.

Looking toward his talks with Khrushchev, Kennedy indicated he hopes to erase any such miscalculations at this time of differences between great powers.

Kennedy addressed a crowd of at least 5,000 that filled Boston's Fenway baseball park for a dinner to celebrate the birthday. The youngest man ever elected president.

Two Killed In Collision

DEEP RIVER (CP)—A man and a woman were killed Monday in a two-car collision on Highway 17 near Rolphton, about 10 miles west of here.

Killed were Charles Wilford Taylor, 60, of Port Credit, driver of one of the cars, and Sandra Gail Howard, 23, a passenger in the second car.

William Howard, 21, husband of the dead woman, is in "air" condition with minor injuries. Their 16-months-old son, Scott, escaped with minor facial cuts.

Descendants of Oom Paul Kruger's Commandos Finally Win Boer War

LONDON (CP) — With Wednesday's Coronation ceremony of South Africa, the Afrikaner people will have finally won the Boer War.

It's been a long and bitter struggle. Many battles and the world wars have passed since Oom Paul Kruger's Boer commandos surrendered to Lord Kitchener in 1901.

But a growing world has made little dent on the armor of Afrikaner bitterness. They are an inward - looking nation with long memories. Their schoolchildren still are taught about British concentration camps in the Boer War, and taken to museums to see fine books and powdered glass allegedly fed to Boer prisoners by Kitchener's troops.

Now the 60-year-old dream is within two days of being realized—an independent Afrikaner republic severed from the British Crown, the British Commonwealth and British currency.

But few white persons in Africa are celebrating.

Those of British stock, slandered by South Africa's withdrawal from the sterling area, wealth, faced with isolation from the Commonwealth, await Republic Day sombrely. And for Afrikaners?

It is surprising is that those who have triumphed should be so glum. A white Afrikaner author Laurens van der Post in The Sunday Times, London, wrote: "The real reward the republic more as if it were a punishment than the birth of a new life."

Van der Post adds: "If belive it is because deep down, the Afrikaner knows this is the end, not the beginning. I believe his deepest unconscious tells him that this particular manifestation of his culture has failed him.

"This accounts for the violence of the present phase; it is the violence of a dying spasm."

Hear Moderator At Conference

KINGSTON (CP) — Rt. Rev. Hugh MacLeod, moderator of the United Church of Canada, said Monday Christian "ends on deuce" how is one of the greatest heresies of the church.

Dr. MacLeod spoke at the opening of the 1961 Bay of Quinte conference of the United Church of Canada, being held at Queen's University here this week.

United Church members have criticized many churches for stressing devices, Dr. MacLeod said, but the United Church was not included.

There was a temptation to for. get God and to become occupied with buildings and programs.

Dr. MacLeod said the most difficult ministry is the ministry to - person ministry. This required more depth and effort on the part of the minister than a ministry conducted by telephone calls.

Fire Destroys Truck on Street

An 1953-model pick-up truck belonging to Don Fraser, Maymore, burned up on North Sidney Street this morning. Firemen were called to the scene at 9.36 a.m., but the fire, whose source was undetermined, had already rendered the vehicle a total loss. Due to the location of the truck there was some delay in turning in the alarm.

Yesterday the local firefighters answered two calls. The first involved a tar pot which caught fire in the barn of Summers Dawson on the Redners-ville Road at 3 p.m. Firemen were at the call almost an hour. Fortunately no damage occurred.

The second alarm yesterday afternoon was for an overturned road flare at the corner of Dundas and Herchimer at 5:18 o'clock.

Had to Answer To More Charges On Appearance

Bernard Genereaux, 21, of Belleville, appeared in city magistrate's court today for sentencing on eight charges of breaking and entering and, in each cases, theft as well, and found he had to answer to two more similar charges.

Genereaux pleaded guilty a week ago to eight of the charges and today pleaded guilty to committing two similar offences at the Maple's Restaurant in Trenton, April 16, and the Ontario Cheese Producers' warehouse in Belleville, May 9.

He sat as accomplice in several of the charges — Robert Dodds Whitmore, 16, of Belleville, were remanded in custody until June 6 while a pre-sentence report is prepared.

After listening to Detective Harold Reid, OPP Constable Ivan Tinkess and Tweed Police Chief Walter Higgins give evidence on the charges, Magistrate Wills remanded the youths for sentencing. He commented that he is loathe to send a boy to a penal institution, "there's no more adult jail."

USED SAME EVIDENCE

Whitmore conceded to Crown Attorney John Pringle's request that he apply the evidence given by police in connection with Genereaux's activities to his own case, where applicable. Genereaux operated by himself in a few cases, but with Whitmore in all in others.

Court was told that Genereaux staged break-ins by himself at Trenton and Tweed to increase the laying of four charges against him, Genereaux and Whitmore by prearranged agreement in about seven or eight other break-ins, while Whitmore and Dodd left, Dec. 17, of the Belleville district had teamed up May 14 to stage a break-in at Reid's Dairy. All today received a two-year suspended sentence.

Court was told Whitmore was also an accomplice in a break-in which occurred May 15 at Mike's Fish and Chips store in Belleville. The partners, 19-year-old Thomas Albert Hill of Belleville, today received two-year suspended sentence. It was his first offence, he was told in a similar case elsewhere.

Places broken into by either Genereaux or Genereaux or by both as a team, included Dodds Motors Sales, Shannonville; Riverview service station on Highway 401 near Shannonville; Beckwith's Dominion Crown Cleaners, Tweed; Reid's Dairy, Belleville; Ed Harrington's service station; McKeown's garage in Foxboro; Moore Woodland Cleaners; Ashley's service station; Smith Transport and the Ontario Hockey rink at Smith; Transport.

Bernard Genereaux and Whitmore have police records while Whitmore also has a juvenile court record.

Rotarians Hear Talk on Cultured Pearl Industry

Local Rotarians were given an informative talk on the cultured pearl industry by Mr. Paul Mercier, local jeweller, at their regular weekly dinner meeting yesterday afternoon.

Tracing the development of the industry, Mr. Mercier said it was initially developed by two Japanese in 1905, the veteran of 50 years in the jewellery trade estimated that cultured pearls are identical to the natural pearl industry in bringing a beautiful gem to the reach of all. He said he did not truly believe that he had ever seen a natural pearl during his career as a jeweller.

Natural pearls, he noted, were very rare and but few could afford them up to the turn of the century. After the invention of the cultured pearl, Mikimoto, which he described, this gem was available in larger quantity at a reasonable price and a big form so close to the natural pearl that the task of determining the difference between them is by X-ray. Natural pearls are found in oysters some 4,000 years ago off the coast of Japan.

Mr. Mercier also described the variations between pearls according to their colour, quality and how it was possible for a person to determine whether or not he had a fine pearl. The price of jewellery was a good buy or not. The latter with the considerable effort in comparing the different wares of different jewellers but said that the integrity of the salesman, he suggested.

Following his talk, Mr. Mercier engaged in a lively question and answer session with the Rotarians. Program chairman for the speaker whilst Ron Cass expressed the thanks of the club. The meeting with the cake the birthdays of Andy MacKenzie and Eddie Boyce observed, was under the direction of club president Bill Hurst.

Transit Commission Runs Small-Type Bus as Test

Local Lions Join in Parade

The Belleville Lions Club was one of the large number of clubs represented on Sunday afternoon at the Club convention parade held in Toronto. The Belleville Club contributed a large green-colored dinosaur float, followed by members of the Club depicting the characters of the Flintstones of TV, with a significant vehicle driven by Glen Jerry Brennan. This float received second award in the parade.

The parade was one of the largest ever held in Kingston, lasting well over two hours, and Lion representatives were present from all over Canada, as well as from the Province of Quebec.

Also representing Belleville and giving a fine performance in the parade was the Belleville Gayettes baton group under the direction of Gail (Hendricks) Chapman.

Suspended Term Of Two Years Given Youth

A two-year suspended sentence was handed out today to 17-year-old David Lott of the Shannonville district, a week after he had pleaded guilty in city magistrate's court to a charge of breaking entering and theft.

Detective Harold Reid said that Lott apparently came to Belleville on the night of May 14 to attend a dance and had been invited by a local actor. After the dance, Lott and 18-year-old Ronald Whitmore of Belleville had gone to Reid's Dairy on Parker Street, which they had entered by breaking a window at the rear of the building. The office was ransacked and desk drawers and a tool box forced open. A cheque book in a desk drawer yielded $4.

They attacked a safe and managed to knock off the hinges, dial and handle with hammers and a tool box, but were unable to open it. Extent of the damage to the safe has not yet been determined.

Magistrate T. V. Wills commented that he was about to have been a case of a youth led by a "more experienced, but younger, boy."

Detective Reid said Lott and Whitmore were arrested together.

Lott was ordered to pay $5 court costs, report to the probation officer, and return to court next week to find out how much he owes Reid's Dairy for damaging the safe.

Faced with the necessity of acquiring new equipment within the next year or two, the Belleville Transit Commission during the past week has been experimenting with the operation of a smaller type bus than is currently being operated.

The experimental operation operated a small German made 16-passenger bus on the West Hill-Hillcrest run, the only route on which there could be assumed that the seating of 13 passengers would be carried for any length of time.

MERELY EXPERIMENT

"It was merely an experiment," said Commission chairman D. Wills, "and we must be trying out other smaller buses before we will make a report from our office as to public reaction and operational details before any decision is made."

Purchase cost of the small German-made bus is only about one third of that of conventional size buses and operational costs are also much less.

Mr. Schwab said similar type small buses are being used satisfactorily at North Bay and in other cities.

One objection to the buses is the fact that they have very low ceilings.

OFF-PEAK POSSIBILITIES

It was noted that during certain non-peak periods during the day, smaller type buses could be very well used to many of the local routes and a considerable saving in operational costs to the commission too.

"We haven't made up our minds and will consider the matter very carefully before any decision is come June 13," Mr. Schwab said.

"If we did purchase smaller buses for non-peak operation we could possibly make our present large buses last another 10 years," he said.

Society Will Hold Show

The reactivated Belleville Horticultural Society decided last night at its second meeting to hold its first flower show of irises and peonies at the Belleville Centre June 13.

The show will be open to any one with, home-grown irises and peonies.

The Stirling Horticultural Society will also hold a show June 19.

The Belleville Society is planning to make up a bus load of city and district flower growers to attend the Jackson Perkins rose show at Newark, N.Y., June 24.

A meeting of District 3 will be held July 5 at Moira.

Phil Dodds president of the Prince Edward County Horticultural Society, assisted the local society last night.

T.A. Spruston Hands Over Rotary Gavel

TRENTON — At last night's meeting of the Trenton Rotary Club, 1960-61 president T. A. Spruston officially handed over the gavel to the president-elect for this year, R. D. McDonald will be in return, was presented with a past-president's pin by 1959-60 president Fred Preston.

Mr. Spruston was, to say the least, busy during the earlier month, but as he has retired from the RCAF and will leave for Winnipeg on Friday to take up his life as a civilian, last night was the final meeting of the club at which he will preside. Many of the club members were under the hope that he would return to the club as a visitor from time to time. Mr. Spruston said he would retain his membership in the Trenton club and that he was pleased and that he would "make-up" attendance at a Winnipeg club. He also said that he would like to join the western club as he has been in the work with Rotary very rewarding.

Bill Stevenson read a letter from the catering staff which supplied this service as a result of the meeting. The letter spokesmen said that the staff had been unaware that the proceeds would be donated to go to Rotary's crippled children's fund and be the topic of the gathering. A cheque for $67 to be added to the club's present fund in order to reach the letter, which was signed by the letter spokesman, F-S E. T. Knowler.

Guest Arnold Campbell of Belleville was introduced to the club by Bob Patrick, secretary.

Birthday roses were presented to Mike Devid and Matt Thompson by Frank Sutter's wife Erine Aylmey and Barny McColl presented a complimentary gift to the guest speaker Alan Smith.

Assessor Hopes New Manual to Bring Uniformity

TRENTON — Alan Smith, assessment commission for the town of Trenton, was the speaker at last night's meeting of the Trenton Rotary club. Mr. Smith was connected with the Belleville assessment department for a number of years before coming to Trenton.

Mr. Smith said that a municipality is allowed, additional grants would have to be paid to the province by the provincial government and that the government would then insist that the municipality have a municipal assessment. He said the government would be making prepared a new assessment manual and he voiced the hope that the use of this would be the province. He said that rather than removing a municipality's autonomy, it would ensure a more municipality that assessment throughout the province were being handled on an equitable basis. Under the present arrangement he said, some municipalities and municipalities were high and some were low and no balance had been achieved.

The assessment commissioner illustrated his address with copies of forms and records used by his department.

The speaker's remarks prove that Trenton has one of the lowest overall assessments in the province, when compared with municipalities comparable in size. The average assessment in the town is low. Around 40 per cent of the homes are assessed for less than $8,000.

Mr. Smith was introduced to the club by program chairman Hallick and thanked by Bob Patrick.

LIBERALS SCORE

the hips down when a shell splinter pierced his skull as he led an infantry assault into Ortona, Italy, in 1943. The Brockville lawyer had a big edge for the Liberals when counting started for the night.

Esquimalt - Saanich

George Chatterton, 65-year-old rector of Saanich, who survived a sharp drop in Conservative support to win against four opponents.

When results began arriving at party headquarters in Ottawa, the Conservatives still had a wide lead over Allard, senior party source quipped: "We're not hanging out crepe tonight."

BLAME CAMPAIGNING

Party sources also made no bones about the fact they blamed the Leeds loss on the failure of Conservative candidate R. Steward Stewart, 43-year-old Brockville businessman, to match the tireless campaigning of Mr. Matheson.

In the 1958 general election the late Hayden Stanton won Leeds for the Conservatives with a 3,000 vote majority.

Hobbling into the Conservative leg braces and crutches, Mr. Diefenbaker went from village to village and from door to door in a hard-driving campaign.

Mr. Matheson, father of six, boosted his majority on a wide range of national issues and hit hard on the local-interest story of the Seaway. Travelled across Canada after getting his law degree following the war and chose Leeds for his home.

Biggest setback for the Liberals was in Restigouche-Madawaska — Liberal Minister Louis Robichaud and his New Brunswick cabinet had year-long help from Ottawa aided by provincial Liberals.

A week ago Mr. Pearson drew a rousing crowd of more than 2,500 for a rally in that riding and the turnout had led Liberals to predict a walk-away.

URGES "SMARTEN UP"

Charles Van Horne, who retired as premier in January, led the Conservative drive for Restigouche-Madawaska after the results were in Monday night he sent Mr. Robichaud—his chief political foe—a telegram telling him, to "smarten up."

Mrs. Macdonald, who declined to give reporters her age but said she is her 40s, said the victory in Kings was "just wonderful."

She had fought eight federal and provincial campaigns in recent years and was thrilled at her husband's aide when he took the riding in 1957 and 1958.

The byelection was the seventh contest between Mr. Pearson and the Macdonalds. He won against Mr. Macdonald in 1949 and 1953.

The Conservative win in Equimalt - Saanich had been freely predicted on the basis of the 14,013-vote plurality posted by former defence minister Pearkes in the 1958 general election. Mr. Pearkes resigned the seat last October 17 to run for provincial leadership of the Conservative party.

A byelection upset last October in Oshawa-Whitby-Peterborough constituency gave the New Party a Commons seat on its first try. The CCF and the Canadian Labor Congress will formally launch the party this summer.

All the ridings enjoyed seasonal temperatures and dry weather, prompting heavy voting turnouts. The vote in each case was much bigger than advance polls had indicated.

Teacher Shortage Created By High Birthrate During Second War Appears Over

By DON REDNEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario seems headed for a teacher surplus.

A shortage created mainly by the high birthrate during the Second World War is expected to be finished in elementary schools by 1965 and probably will vanish from secondary schools since 1968.

What happens when the supply exceeds demand has the Ontario department of education guessing.

Dr. J. S. Rivers, new chief director of education, says it would result in a drive by school boards to reduce salaries. This would reverse the trend in recent years when salaries rose as school boards engaged in bidding for the services of qualified teachers.

At present the salary for a university-trained, non-specialist teacher in Southern Ontario ranges from about $4,500 in the first year to a maximum of about $8,000. For an academic specialist the range is from about $5,400 to $9,500.

In Northern and Northwestern Ontario, where isolated communities where it has been difficult to attract teachers, the non-specialists may get between $5,300 and $9,700 and the academic specialist between $5,700 and $10,500.

RAISE STANDARDS

While secondary schools generally demand a university education, the standard for Ontario College of Education, elementary schools draw their teachers mostly from those who have gone directly to teachers' college from high school. Starting salaries for them are often around $3,000.

It is conceivable that in future the department may have to limit the number of people entering the teaching profession by raising admission standards.

The growing supply of teachers, Dr. Rivers says, can be traced to his department's crash training program of recent years and the attraction of higher salaries.

The demand for teachers was created by war babies growing to school age and the relatively high birthrate of the prosperous post-war years. This followed the long period during the hungry '30s when the birthrate was lower.

Elementary school enrolment increased from 530,000 in 1946 to 1,126,000 last year.

MADE TO WAIT

To meet the increased need for teachers, the department set up a two-year teachers' college course for students who had completed Grade XII; established an in-service course consisting of two six-week summer sessions, each followed by a year of teaching and then by a year at teachers' college, and issued letters of authority to acceptable teachers from other provinces or other parts of the Commonwealth.

By 1958 the situation had improved enough to enable the department to raise entrance requirements for the two-year course.

By last year there was a drop in the number admitted to summer school — 3,000 compared with 1,218 in 1958. It was announced that the courses would be discontinued.

Effective next September, academic requirements for admission to the regular one - year teachers' college course for Grade XIII graduates will be raised.

Education Minister Robarts says some 6,500 teachers will be required in Ontario elementary classrooms by next fall, 4,000 to replace withdrawals and 2,000 to staff new schools.

The need is expected to be met by some 5,200 graduates of teachers' colleges and by 1,325 teachers returning to the profession. Also expected are 600 from outside Ontario may create a surplus.

TO DROP COURSE

Mr. Robarts plans to drop the two-year course for grade XII Grades as soon as the number of grade XIII graduates entering the one-year course is sufficient to meet the demands of elementary schools.

At the secondary school level, the number of teachers has been increasing in ratio more rapidly than the number of students, since 1958.

There are 11,197 teachers in Ontario secondary schools. Of these, 10,434 are basically qualified for the positions they hold; the others are operating on letters of permission.

The department says most teachers lacking basic qualifications are presently studying through various degrees to obtain full qualification. Only 283 have not had professional training.

SUPPLY AMPLE

Emergency training of secondary teachers by summer courses started in 1953 is continuing. Dr. Rivers says despite the surge of enrolment represented by post-war births, due to affect the secondary schools, the supply of prospective teachers born between 1940 and 1942 and now in the universities, is adequate to keep the increase in teachers slightly ahead of the increase in pupils.

"If economic conditions and the rate of unemployment in the province remain fairly constant, the supply of secondary school teachers will be expected to catch up with the demand by 1965," Dr. Rivers says.

The end result of a teacher surplus Dr. Rivers says, will be more highly qualified teaching force.

A greater percentage will hold full academic standing and a relatively smaller proportion will be employed on the assistant certificate than now is the case.

'Y' Fund Now $182,389 From 958 Pledges

W. S. "Bill" Wills, chairman of the local Y.M.C.A. Building Campaign announced Monday night that while the campaign still has a week to go to reach its goal, the average gift is really gratifying high since the total pledged is $182,389 but so far been realized.

"Many people of modest means are pledging fifty, ninety, one hundred and fifty dollars or more over a three year period." Mr. Wills noted that perhaps some citizens have not yet realized that this campaign is for capital construction or as Mr. Wills put it, "a long term investment in youth, not just a small donation for current expenses."

"If potential donors, not yet contacted would do so in generous manner that many have already given our $550,000 goal will not be as high or unrealistic as some might believe."

At the campaign report dinner Monday evening, a 10 per cent increase was noted over the previous total. A number of awards for outstanding canvassing jobs were made to several, all the many workers in attendance.

In conversation after the dinner president, John MacDonald commented on the fact that canvassers are not only making their own personal contribution and putting in many hours in calls but are also attendin. very regularly the report dinners for which they themselves are each time. "It is amazing," he said, "how most enthusiastic supporters will do for our cause." High hopes are held for the final report on Thursday night.

Youth Placed On Probation For Two Years

Seventeen-year-old Bryan Worsley of Belleville yesterday was placed on suspended sentence for two years when he pleaded guilty in city magistrate's court to breaking into and entering the home of John Rollins, 8 Tillydrone Crescent, May 18 and stealing $35 in cash and some personal papers from a small case. Worsley lived in the Rollins' neighborhood.

Detective Harold Reid testified that the break-in had occurred while Mr. and Mrs. Rollins were away from home for the evening. When they returned they found that a screen on the bathroom window at the rear of the house had been removed and used to hold the window open while the burglar entered. The house was ransacked and $35 in a cash box and $7 in a wallet were taken. The cash box was later pointed out to police by Worsley who had taken it to a nearby woodlot and opened it with a couple of kitchen knives and a fork taken from the Rollins' home. Also missing from the cash box were some personal papers, which have not been recovered.

Worsley was apprehended May 20 by Detective Reid after he "as far as we know" the break-in was a solo job.

In addition to receiving a two-year suspended sentence Magistrate T. Y. Wills ordered Worsley to make restitution in the amount of $35 and pay $3 court costs within two months and to report to Probation Officer Donald MacKinnon.

19-Year-Old Given 2-Year Suspended Term

Mike's Fish and Chip store on the footbridge arcade, May 15.

Detective Harold Reid said Hill, who pleaded guilty to the charge a week ago, was accompanied on the job by Robert Donald Whitmore, 18, of Belleville. Whitmore pleaded guilty last week to 12 similar charges and today was remanded in custody until June 6 for sentencing.

Det. Reid said city police constable Bert Priestey had been on foot patrol near the lower bridge at about 1.40 a.m. May 15 when he heard a loud noise from the rear of a department store adjacent to the arcade, a hundred yards or so north of the lower bridge. He called the police station and then investigated. He found that the front door of the fish and chip store had been forced and he saw two youths walking across the foot bridge toward Coleman Street. Later, Whitmore and Hill were apprehended on West Moira Street. Police recovered two boxes of chocolate bars behind a house on Hillside Street.

They Want to Be Paid

Trustees of Ontario high schools serve without pay. Except for a small number of them who may be intent on using the school board as a stepping stone into municipal politics, it would seem apparent that they are not self-seeking individuals. It is therefore somewhat surprising to learn that the majority of the 150 trustees attending the annual meeting of the Associated High School Boards of Ontario favored a resolution asking for remuneration at least as great as that given municipal councillors.

It is difficult to justify this demand. Generally speaking, the school trustee does not have to spend anywhere near as much as the municipal councillor to get elected—if he is elected at all for in many cases he is appointed. Secondly, no matter what the trustees may think, they do not have to deal with the variety of problems which confront a councillor. Though, as individuals and even as boards, they may be intensely interested in the school curriculum, it is not their responsibility in aught but a small degree. In essence, their task is merely to make the decisions which will guide the administrator in the financial and personnel problems connected with the operation of the school or schools under the board's control.

But while the demand that trustees receive as much pay as municipal councillors seems to us unreasonable, there is no question but that these trustees provide an invaluable service to the community and deserve to be paid if they so desire. It does seem, though, that they will lose something by this demand. The spectacle of men and women prepared to give freely of their time to serve the community, without any monetary remuneration and little to be gained in prestige—how many Bellevillians can even name the members of our High School Board?—was a pleasant one to consider when one was inclined to be cynical. One knew that the man or woman who accepted a position on a High School Board was more interested in serving others than himself or herself. We fear that the uniformly high calibre of school trustees may not be successfully maintained if the day comes when their tasks become lucrative. There will inevitably be some who will seek the positions for the monetary return.

Probably True But Certainly Wrong

Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario CCF leader, has stated that a recently-appointed Ontario magistrate is a "close relative of a well-known Conservative leader in this province."

This statement has not been denied and from what we can read between the lines of news stories and comment, in editorial columns and by columnists, Mr. MacDonald's facts appear to be correct.

He has nevertheless been assailed for this criticism, not merely by those who are political friends of the Frost regime but by his bitterest opponents, too. It is worth noting that both Frank Tumpane, columnist of the Toronto Telegram, and the editorial writer of the Toronto Star raise the same objection to Mr. MacDonald's remarks: they say, in using a technique which the CCF, and others, have deplored in the past, the device of guilt by association.

The Star and Telegram are right. Mr. MacDonald has not been merely indiscreet or misguided, but has been guilty of a mistake of a major proportions. A man should not be held accountable for the actions of his relatives. But perhaps that needs qualification—a man should not be held accountable, by anybody else but himself, for the action of his relatives. But men of the highest principles have, in the past, time and again judged themselves ineligible for office by reason of circumstances for which they were not responsible and over which they have had no control. Have we, in this generation, lost the old conviction that more should be demanded of one's friends than of one's foes, and more of oneself than of one's friends?

People with strong bodies like to play football and people with good brains like to understand difficult things. We (edenists) all look with disinterest on the fact that some corporations may make money out of these findings by making better TV sets or better telephones. Corporations make too much money anyhow and people waste too much time on TV and on the telephone—Dr. S. De Benedetti of Carnegie Institute of Technology, on the "fun" of research.

To attempt to defeat the Russians by stifling the institutions on which our free society is built would be worse than a Pyrrhic victory, for we should have given up so much that we should have fought for nothing.—Carl T. Letters to the Editor

Answers Opponent Of Fluoridation

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.
Re Letter Of E. Wardaugh On Fluoridation.

Once more the poor misled people and outfit[illegible] are emerging at the sound of the magic word "fluoridation". Mr. Wardaugh has become the self-appointed spokesman for the anti-fluoridationists. I wonder what the name of the "periodicals" are that elude to new illness is appearing throughout the land". I am sure they were not reputable medical journals, all of which have supported fluoridation with inherently, along with the American Dental Association, the similar Canadian group, an Ontario Royal commission and many others. As for the publications of Dr. Waldbott, I have no information on the subject. In any event if all the rest on continent is hardly a cause for alarm. Why should fluoride poisoning be a "previously unknown disease"? Thousands of people have been drinking naturally fluoridated water for years. Where are the reports on symptoms of this disease? The answer cannot be that "safety" is derived from "artificial" fluoride. Anyone who has taken a course in chemistry knows that this is a falsehood. The answer could be that a tiny minority of people are somehow so sensitive to fluoride that they cannot consume fluoride poisoning. The treatment is simple — take them away from fluoride!

As for the old cry about "softened water" it is as far as I know the brain is soft, except in certain cases (some people called "blockheads". (No insinuations intended). All the arguments about it are more than neutralized by (1) the overwhelming support and opinion of the medical profession and (2) the health and well-being of people actually drinking water containing fluoride. (Already over 20 million Americans drink fluoridated water).

In fact, as fluoridation becomes more and more widespread "the Reds" may copy it. Anything long their brains will be as soft as ours and we will be even.

I think Mr. Wardaugh should go to the nearest dentist's office and learn about how fluoride cuts tooth decay by fifty per cent, a boon to anyone who has childhood. More pains, illnesses and poisonings are caused by decayed teeth than by fluoride. I have suffered from fluoride poisoning.

Mr. Wardaugh should not feel disheartened. Men have opposed Jenner's cure for small-pox, pasteurization of milk, city sanitation, and many and most other benefits we now take for granted. Perhaps some day we shall look back in pity for the poor, misguided people who opposed one more benefit to the health of mankind.

Yours truly,
Geoffrey Cliffe-Phillips.

Urges Action Here On Civil Defence

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:
This letter is concerned with Civil Defence.

1. Are we prepared to face an attack?

2. Have we the proper training?

3. Do the citizens understand their part in Civil Defence?

These are not a few simple questions, arising in our minds. Why are these questions, not brought forward and answered freely and openly?

In the world of today, the measures for warfare, are much more powerful, than in previous years. Threats are now made to the lives of countries, no one knows when or where. Our governments are trying desperately to make it a peaceful outcome. But if an attack was to be launched, could we protect ourselves? Have we been taught the survival measures?

Are we interested enough in life to give up a few hours each week to learn the necessary survival measures? Do we have the will to face the facts? Telling ourselves it will never happen to us, therefore why worry, let others take on this responsibility. Why should we, let back and let others do all the work? Are we not responsible for our own safety? If all of us learn to fight for survival, are not more of us likely to go, or stay alive, than a few try to help us survive?

Our Government is looking after the country as a whole; it cannot force civil defence upon every city and town, it is up to the municipal government to further the interest of fact that Civil Defence is needed. This essential fact must be made known to the people — Why has Belleville not got Civil Defence? We do not hear of Civil Defence classes, nor do we practise air raid warnings in Belleville. It is neither of lack of money or because we feel it is not important? Is it not as important to have organized civil defence units? If so why are we not ready?

We may be lucky and not need it. But is it fair to leave it up to luck? We are dealing with human lives.

It is much better to be prepared than ill to panic and lose many lives which could have been saved, if provision had made known to the people. If enough people, or enough influence of civil defence it would not be hard for us to demand it.

A few people are being taught the fundamentals of C.D. This is only a small start. But how can we practise, when the fundamental basis of a community where C.D. has been placed in the darkest closet? Everyone wants to help.

Why not prepare to live?

Jean Buchanan.

Fears Bad Taste From Fluoridation

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.
Re the question of fluoridation of Belleville water supply I would like to say I'm still fighting.

Due to circumstances which I believe are beyond control, at times, our drinking water is heavily fluoridated. Why then, I ask, should we have added to our present heavy load of taxes the expense of the installation of equipment to fluoridate the water supply? It so every day of the year? I feel that it is a question for the electorate of the city to decide.

We are told by doctors that the fluoridation of drinking water is to make our kidneys healthy. If this is already the case then there is no hazard by making the water so there will be less enjoyment. The obnoxious taste caused by fluoridation cannot be removed by boiling. Instead it is condensed which only makes it more poisonous and concentrated. Thus we will have a certain increase of kidney disease. Kidneys we cannot see, be replaced as easily as teeth, which seems to be the only thing to benefit by it.

For this reason, I wonder if it is really the function of "tooth decay" that is back of the effort of trying to fluoridate municipal supplies through. Somewhere along the line someone is going to benefit financially. I understand home equipment can be purchased to do this job for those among us who feel it a necessity and would be more security would be a much more satisfactory arrangement than to subject everyone, with or without teeth, to the other discomforts and hazards of fluoridation which have been pointed out to us through various periodicals. There are a great many toothpastes on the market already to help those concerned and most certainly fluoridation of the water is not going to eliminate the need for cleaning your teeth.

Yours truly,
Mrs. N. K. Greenwood,
17 Craig Street.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

—DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS—

FREEDOM AND DESPOTISM

What does it mean to be free? The word "free" is derived ultimately from a Sanskrit word with the meaning "to grow." Liberty is not easy. It involves sacrifice and pain. If we want to be free, let us be assured that we are going to get some kicking around in the midst of exercising that privilege. Freedom is marvelous but it has a price tag on it.

Many do not realize that there are people in the world who have no desire to be free. The Russians, for instance have lived so long under despotism that our form of free government would probably mean nothing to them. Their choice is between forms of despotism — some good and some bad. Under despotism people do not grow but they may have a state of security, and there are millions of people in the world who would rather have security which comes from submission to a higher earthly power than to take the inconvenience or sacrifice of liberty.

We of the free world usually think humans scattered over the globe are all striving and aspiring for liberty. At least as many, if not more, would choose security every time over liberty.

This may sound horrifying but it is not incorrect. We cry as did one of our early heroes, "Give me liberty or give me death." But there are millions of others who, if they say anything say this: "Give me security or give me death."

Strictly Personal

Love Always Necessarily Involves Risk

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

As I stood at the airport, waiting for the plane to bring my family back from Florida, I thought of the fragility of love involved in loving. If the plane had crashed, most of myself would have gone down with it.

And, yet, there is no way to love without risk. When you commit yourself to another, when that other becomes an integral part of yourself, you have made yourself infinitely more vulnerable to the cold hand of fate.

The problem of evil in the world — which produces the believers and non-believers — can easily be understood, I think, on the analogy with love. Without evil there is no good, just as without risk there is no love.

Those who cannot love are those who are afraid, or unable, to take the risk involved. They want to keep themselves safe from fear and pain, fear that their love may be rejected, betrayed or weakly returned, pain that the loss of a loving loved — they cannot stand the agonizing, helpless paroxysm leaving upon them.

Yet, unless we are willing to take such chances, we accept the fact that in loving we leave ourselves wide open to disappointment or disaster, we cannot escape from the web of our own selfish egos. Love cast out fear, as St. Paul said — but fear also casts out love.

Likewise, in the presence of evil in the world that gives good the chance to grow, the risk in universe without accident, without mortality, without sin; a universe in which nothing bad or unexpected could happen. It would be a world of "perfect" in which nothing was "good," for no attribute can be predicated where there is no opposite.

If I cannot take a risk for my child, what is the meaning of my "love"? If I am afraid of jeopardized by my own actions, by the influences around me, by some unforeseen catastrophe, then the precious element of freedom has been lost — and without freedom all values are virtually meaningless.

I don't mean to drag us all into deep metaphysical waters, but I simply like to try to be honest and adult we must accept the presence of evil in the world as a necessary part of its goodness. The does not mean that individual action should be tolerated, but that our very opposition to evil constitutes our particular goodness.

Without this opposition, without the constant struggle against fate, accident and our own flawed personalities, we would be living in an angel's or human being. It is the bitterness of life that gives it flavor and savor, for each exists only in terms of the other — like love and risk.

List of Rules to Follow When Choosing Rest Home

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"We have come to the conclusion that my mother should go to a nursing home. She and her doctor agree. But the question of where she should go is up to us.

Wanted in one way or another, this is a question that comes to me with increasing frequency — which is not surprising. There are more and more old people in our population. More people are reaching the full age that Nature intended!

But because of many things, some lately or weakness, apartment or small home living that does not permit caring for another person, the need of trained medical or nursing care at frequent and unpredictable intervals — all these are bound up in the rising incidence of nursing and convalescent homes. Good ones!

How to choose the right home is a question that should not be answered blindly.

I could write a book about the various aspects involved. But to you, who are faced with the full if I offer you a check-list of major items to look over.

This list doesn't cover everything, by any means, but it's a basis for decision:

1. — The home should be operated by someone trained in the field of medical care — not necessarily a physician, of course, but someone with medical training.

2. — Departments of health should have approved the home. If not — there's a reason Their inspection is a must for you. They want minimum requirements met.

3. — It should be clean and with pleasant surroundings.

4. — There should be adequate nursing personnel — 24 hours a day, and seven days a week.

5. — There should be a program of recreation or diversion, conducted by someone who knows how. This is more than doing it. It requires both: A willing leader and a trained leader.

6. — Physical therapy should be available, on the premises, with a registered therapist in charge.

7. Daily means should be available for you to use. Food service should be under the direction of someone trained for this work. And between-meals nourishment or snacks should be available at your additional cost. You'd provide it for a loved one at home, wouldn't you? Well, you want it available in a nursing home.

8. — A barber and beauty service should be available.

9. — A doctor should be on call for any emergency — of course!

10. — It should be possible for a patient to be hospitalized with others of similar physical and mental condition.

Obviously this isn't "complete," but if you check into these ten, you won't go far wrong in choosing a place where your loved one will be happy and taken care of well.

Dr. Molner, Is it true that having shots for syphilis is a must in order to be very important for me to know that?—W. E.

Syphilis can cause sterility in some instances. The treatment itself does not cause sterility.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What causes adhesions? Can they be done to relieve this condition?"—Mrs. M. M.

An adhesion is a scar between adjacent coils of the intestine, or between part and the abdominal wall. Inflammation can cause it. Sometimes it is the result of surgery. (Early ambulation, getting the patient up as soon as possible after moving about, appears to minimize this problem after surgery.)

Some people form adhesions more readily than others.

Nothing has to be done about adhesions unless they cause intestinal obstruction. The surgical release of these bands of scar tissue is necessary.

TODAY'S TALK

YOUR INWARD SELF

Two friends met. They had not seen each other for thirty years — since they were college students. And each of them was gray about the temples. Yet neither was old. They were of the changes that had outwardly taken place. For both were active and healthy, happy and both were useful.

Every day made to them, though it be small, to the physical man or woman — but every inward self is a spring of youth that may not change in a thousand years — if you but will it.

This life is a playground and workshop for the special education of your inner self. The years have no power to change it as such. Science teaches nothing clearer or plainer than that your inner self cannot die. Does not tottering age look back and wonder at buoyant youth, and can it feel the change, so long as love we have and light we have now?

Your inner self was born to be immortal. Is immortality here? It constitutes all we know is a phantom and noble effort a worthless, if not a sad, dream.

The work of the day tends to make your body weak and tired—and if the discouragements and trials of the years have scarred the skin and made the bones to ache—listen to your inner self — it may never grow old or discouraged or battle scarred. It is your real self for which your first breath was given.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Into the chair car, from the end, came a well-established Canadian on his way to the dining car. In the second chair from the door sat a cabinet minister. The distinguished Canadian greeted the cabinet minister heartily, with outstretched hands, and passed on.

Half way down the car, he stopped in a chair and waited for its occupant to look up from the paper he was reading. The man reading was a rather homely specimen, with thinning grey hair, a red nose and a dazed air. Finally he looked up and recognized instantly the distinguished Canadian with a sunny handshake. The distinguished Canadian sat himself on the arm of the chair, and for a good half hour devoted his interest and attention to the brushoff, and made much of a fuss over the man with the red nose!!

"Well, heck," said the distinguished Canadian, "the next election, they'll run me for mayor, so may be nobody again. But don't you know who that other chap is? He's the great scientist living authority on the virus diseases of cattle!"

Premier Frost Favors Teaching Of Religion in Schools, Colleges

SUDBURY (CP) — Premier Frost said Monday night he favors the teaching of religion in schools and universities.

Addressing the first convocation of Laurentian University, he said learning should embrace more than science. It should embrace the arts and the humanities, including religion."

Premier Frost said nearly all Ontario universities had been set up by religious institutions. Laurentian University involved efforts of the Roman Catholic Church, the United Church of Canada and the Anglican Church of Canada.

"In these days, when there has been some discussion and, perhaps, some controversy over religious teaching in our schools," Mr. Frost said, "this fact is of more than ordinary interest."

Horrors disclosed in the Adolf Eichmann trial indicated what can happen to mankind when deprived of "things of the spirit", Mr. Frost continued.

RECEIVES DEGREE

Mr. Frost appeared at the convocation to receive an honorary doctorate of laws. It was the first honorary degree bestowed by the university, incorporated last year.

The premier said more and more young people were turning to science, but he added they should never forget the humanities, including religion.

He predicted enrolment in Ontario universities would increase from 21,000 today to more than 80,000 by 1965. Percentage of young men and women in the age group in Ontario's 12 universities is more than double that of 15 years ago, he added.

Income Tax Explained

Written and designed for the taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an income tax office.

By C. A. MILLER
Former Supervising Assessor, Income Tax Department

In this article we will deal with the status of the taxpayer who is considered legally separated from his wife.

A taxpayer is considered legally separated when there exists a written separation agreement properly drawn up and signed by each party concerned. He is also considered legally separated when there exists a decree, order or judgment from a competent tribunal, ordering specified periodic payments to his wife or family, or wife and family. When these conditions are applicable to the taxpayer, his exemption is that of a single person, but he is allowed to deduct from his income the amount of money contributed to the support of his wife and family. These contributions should be supported by receipts. If the receipts are other than from the recipient, such as bank money orders or drafts, they should show both the remitter's and the recipient's names. Post office money orders do not show either party's name and it would be difficult to determine who sent the remittance and who received it. A cancelled cheque is acceptable as it contains the necessary proof. The recipient's endorsement will appear on the back.

We wish to make it clear that payments to a wife from whom the taxpayer is separated must be made on a periodic basis to qualify as a deduction from income. When such payments have been allowed as a deduction on the taxpayer's return, they immediately become taxable income in the recipients hands.

Question — I have been ordered by the family court to pay $100 per month to my wife. What am I allowed to deduct on my return?

Answer — You class yourself as a single person taking $1,000 exemption and deduct from your income the full amount you contribute to her. You will show this in the space for "other deductions".

Question —I have been ordered by the court to pay my wife $10 per for each of our two children. Do I claim the children or the money I send them?

Answer — You may not claim any exemption for the children, but you may deduct from your income the amount you were ordered by the court to pay on their behalf.

Revolution in Employment Means Unskilled Are Barred From 70 Per Cent of Jobs

During the last few years a revolution has been taking place in Canada — a revolution in employment which is almost certain to affect the future of today's children.

The introduction of more and better machines, and improved methods of doing things, have been gradually wiping out thousands of jobs which require little education or training, so that unskilled and semi-skilled jobs now represent only 30 per cent of all employment in Canada.

At the same time employment opportunities continue to increase proportionately for graduates of apprenticeship programs, institutes of technology, high schools, vocational schools, trade schools and universities.

What this means to the future of young Canadians is obvious. Early dropping from school could mean being cut off from 70 per cent of the jobs in Canada and being limited in earnings for life. It could also mean a closed door to better training opportunities in industry often being restricted to dead-end jobs and possibly a lifetime of insecurity and long terms of unemployment.

Because of this situation the importance of education is being stressed by the country's leaders who say that everything possible should be done by parents to encourage their children to stay in school and graduate and to seek training which will fit them with useful skills.

ROBARTS' VIEW

Hon. J. P. Robarts, Ontario Minister of Education, in a message to parents, agrees that parents cannot force careers on their children, but he points out that they can emphasize the necessity of thinking and planning ahead, and impress on them the value of a sound education, formal training and good citizenship.

"Parents too often feel their children should pursue only the academic side of education and, by so doing, cause them to overlook the excellent opportunities which exist through technical and vocational high schools, technical institutes, trades or other occupational training," said Mr. Robarts.

"The importance of education and training in the future security of children cannot be exaggerated," he said. "They will be entering a world of work which will continue to see great changes in individual occupations and the whole patterns of occupations. They will need to have a flexibility which comes from good fundamental education and training."

Because of this parents are being urged to encourage their children to equip themselves as well as they possibly can with useful skills and knowledge before leaving school to seek their life's work.

Federal and provincial governments are realizing the need for increased technical training and are offering 100 per cent assistance to certain municipalities to broaden such training facilities.

In Belleville a 10-roomed addition is planned for the Moira Secondary School where additional shops will be set up offering more varied technical training.

Lake Winnipeg Fast Becoming Bucket of Suds

WINNIPEG (CP) — One of Manitoba's favorite swimming and fishing centres, Lake Winnipeg, is on its way to becoming a gigantic bucket of suds unless something is done to prevent detergents pollution of the Red River," a Winnipeg physicist says.

Dr. C. Bo Hollborn said in an interview that a portion of the detergents poured into Greater Winnipeg's sewage disposal system from bathtub and washing machine is passing into the Red without being removed.

This has resulted in the appearance of foam on Lake Winnipeg, into which the Red empties, the death of fish and a repulsive odor from the river, he said.

The normal method of sewage disposal involves passing the sewage through turbulent water, which froths the sludge and quickly decomposes the particles easily in such treatment but detergent doesn't.

ONLY HALF REMOVED

The standard activated sludge disposal system used in Winnipeg is able to remove only about half per cent of the detergent. The remainder flows down through the Red River.

Research teams in the United States have been pondering the detergent disposal problem for nearly 10 years without coming up with a practical solution.

Dr. Hollborn said the problem is approaching the danger stage in Canada. What is needed, he says, is more money for research.

To raise it, he suggests a special tax be levied on detergent manufacturers.

"It wouldn't need to be much, especially if it could be arranged under an international agreement between Canada and the U.S. After all, the Red River and other rivers take sewage from both countries."

IODE Says Warm Welcome Needed for New Canadians

By EDNA McLAREN,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CALGARY (CP) — There's a growing friendship towards new Canadians but it's still not good enough, says Mrs. E. Douglas Jennings of Toronto, national convener for immigration and convener for the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire.

She recommended the work of the order in organizing receptions following citizenship ceremonies, but added that more individual work has to be done.

In an interview at the 52nd annual IODE meeting here, Mrs. Jennings said too many people were reluctant to accept invitations to the homes of new Canadians and that many Canadians were reluctant to invite their newfound Canadians to their homes.

In her convention report she reminded members of the continuing need for citizenship education in all Canadians. She said the work was important in a country like ours in which so much depends finally on patriotism and especially on the healthy manifestations of patriotism."

REVIEWS SERVICES

Services for boys and girls and small were reviewed by Mrs. John E. Hurst of Toronto in her report on the services of the order at home and abroad.

She said delegates attending the five-day meeting that $425,000 was spent on services. Of this, 70 per cent was spent in Canada. An additional $87,000 was raised by IODE members for other organizations through canvasses and tag days.

Increasing interest has been shown in welfare of senior citizens and work for the mentally ill, Mrs. Hurst reported. Clark House, a home for senior citizens, was established last year at Fredericton, N.B.

Another large facet of the program was the sponsorship of 205 children in Korea and Europe by individual IODE members through the British Save the Children Fund.

NAMESAKE

The German car Mercedes-Benz was partly named after the daughter of Gotlieb Daimler's agent in Nice in 1900, Mercedes Jellinek.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mr. G. M. — They have big eyes. They should p a y as they go.

Gail Y. — My husband feels borrowing is good business.

Mr. G. M. — I can't keep up with what's happening. I believe in buying only what you can afford, paying bills promptly and not borrowing unless it's a matter of life and death. But nowadays everything seems to cost $50 or more. Nobody gets the total. As long as they have M.S.H., they buy it.

How my daughter and her husband owe so many $1.25's that his salary evaporates. I worry about them because, even though I don't owe a penny, I haven't much money and can't help them. And, at the first emergency, their furniture may be carted away.

Gail Y. — If my father hadn't taken Shakespeare so seriously, with that 'neither a borrower nor a lender be," he might have been better off. If you think big, my husband may get ahead.

Nobody buys outright now. It's charge accounts, credit cards and pay-later plans. If used wisely, they could help afford things, we'd be old and broke before we could save enough even for a car.

My husband explained to Dad that government and big business borrow. All progress depends upon somebody else's money. We're planning to go to Europe now on an $18-down deal. Dad's worried, but we're not.

The Counsel — There's a line from Browning, which answers Shakespeare and, at the same time, provides a slogan for the Jones companies: "A man's reach should exceed his grasp."

But to be fair, Browning was referring to imagination, ambition and the things of spirit — not the eternal gimme's.

Mr. N. is bowled over by the disappointment of the good old slogans about thrift and self-reliance. The welfare state' now offers some of the protection a man once had to look ahead to and provide for himself. It's within limits and under safeguards, fishing a quite "the thing."

But Gail and her husband can't be so secure that they can afford to be reckless. Mr. N.'s concern is lest they go haywire. We frequently hear from couples who, to avoid the embarrassment of explanations in front of the neighbors, take out one supercharge to hold off the trucks. Then they're floored by a blockbuster — endless bondage.

To reassure Mr. N., we might cite the fact, released in a University of Michigan survey, that two out of three families in the U.S. are in debt today, some out of choice rather than necessity. Although a couple may have a nest egg put away, they may prefer not to touch it and to employ the self-discipline required for regular monthly payments out of income. Also, many shoppers who can pay for their purchases, prefer charge accounts as a means of getting enough even for a car.

Another caution against overenthusiasm must be added in view of Mr. N., peace of mind is an unmeasurable commodity. It can hold it through huge bankrolls. Others like the Y.'s are advised to hold it through restraint and self-control.

Unusual emergencies do come up. Along with paying 'on time" some cash must be salted away, then, perhaps a slogan for the Jones companies: "A man's reach should exceed his grasp."

JERUSALEM (ITN)—Rev. and Mrs. W. B. Greenwood of 155 Albert Street, Belleville, who participated in the Sixth World Pentecostal Conference in Jerusalem-May 19-31. Rev. Greenwood, who is district superintendent of Eastern Ontario and Quebec district of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada, says that he counts it a great privilege to be able to visit this Land of Israel.

Staying at a clean and extremely comfortable hotel overlooking the Judean Hills, Rev. Greenwood said he was favorably impressed with the courteous hospitality he has received. (Photo by Israel Gov't. Tourist Association.)

A Highly Recommended Savory Rice Dish

By Mary Moore

Today I am stressing a rice dish that I am planning to remember for a long time. It is supposed to serve 8 people but I just cooked for 6 because it is so irresistible.

It was simply called Baked Rice but should have a much more glamorous name. So you will have something more specific to remember M by I am calling it Savory Baked Rice Dish.

It came from Garny's friend Virginia Doddridge who lives in South Bend, Indiana. Whenever Virginia recommends a recipe I try it. Her recipes are always top. I served this with roast lamb and mint sauce made from new little mint shoots from my garden and a delicious tossed salad (see both below).

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

TUESDAY

Cooked Chicken (leftover from Monday) on Escalloped Tuna Almonde (see Monday) Cauliflower with Buttered Crumbs and Rose Cream; Citrus Fruit Cups; Cookies; Coffee.

SAVORY BAKED RICE DISH:

One tablespoon butter or margarine, 1 tablespoon chopped onion, 1 cup (or 2) chopped celery, 3-4 cup raw long grain rice, 1 can each undiluted cream of mushroom soup, chicken with rice soup and beef consomme, 1-4 pound mushrooms scrubbed and sliced, 1-3 or 1 cup chopped blanched almonds gently fried in 2 teaspoons butter. (The almonds are optional but highly recommended.) Saute the onion and celery in the first amount of butter until transparent but not at all brown. Turn into a very large bowl and add all remaining ingredients except almonds and mix very well. Turn into a very large casserole 9 3-4 x 3 1-4" and bake at 300 deg. Fahr. for 45 minutes without stirring. Cover top with toasted almonds and bake at 300 deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes longer.

NOTE:

You will see that no salt or seasonings are added. The undiluted soups are sufficiently seasoned to make other additions unnecessary. This is one of those main hot dishes that is excellent with a cold meat platter and must be tasted to be appreciated.

I served it with a roasted Ontario leg of lamb first sprinkled with salt, pepper and paprika and baked at 250 deg. Fahr. for 3 hours. Then temperature was raised to 300 deg. for another 1 1-2 hours. It was deliciously moist and perfectly roasted.

MINT SAUCE:

One-half cup very finely chopped fresh mint, 1-4 cup vinegar, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-4 cup water. Heat together the vinegar, water and salt, just to boiling point. Pour over the chopped mint. Add the water. Serve with lamb.

TOSSED SALAD:

On fine cos-in-thick cabbage shredder, shred enough raw cabbage to measure 1 cup. Add 1-3 large head of lettuce, coarsely chopped, 1-3 fresh cucumber peeled and thinly sliced and 1 sliced green pepper. Add with mayonnaise and a thick lemon juice and toss lightly.

Parents of Six Become Nurses At Ceremony

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP)—Percy and Stella Hines have more than 100 children in common—they're both nurses.

Mr. and Mrs. Hines were capped, along with 36 classmates, as certified nursing assistants in a ceremony at Woodstock General Hospital late in May.

It followed eight months of lecture in 12 subjects and a practical examination. The next four months the couple will complete the course by putting in practice time at the hospital what they learned in the classroom.

The Woodstock hospital is the only one in Ontario with both a course for registered nurses and certified nursing assistants. The first class of 34 assistants graduated last October. This year's class included three men.

Percy and Stella have been living in Drumbo, 20 miles east of here, have six children from six to 16, four of whom are at home. Two are attending classes at the high school for the Deaf in Belleville, Ont.

Stella is at present employed as a nurses' aid in Paris, Ont. Percy works as a male attendant at the local hospital.

Jerry farmed until seven years ago when following a broken neck and a stay in hospital that afforded him a chance to observe hospital routine, decided nursing was to be his goal.

Besides, he says, "male nurses are hard to find."

MODERN MANNERS

Carolyn Hagner Shaw

QUESTION BOX

Question — I am in agreement with you that we should try to keep some of the old manners customs that have come down through the years. Yet I wonder if some of them aren't rather ridiculous at times? All. Ones that particularly get on my nerves are as follows: The phrase used on the social invitation reply exasperate me! Particularly "Accept with pleasure in the third invitation of." Isn't this a vapid empty expression? Why not just say "accepts the invitation of?" Then, there is the stupid reply when you send a letter of condolence. "How-do-you-do" fo nice to hear you." How do you mean? Its nice to see the person, when you have just met her? Maybe you don't want to see her again — ever. Another, is "Pardon me?" I don't like this expression and never have. Am I way out of line in feeling this way? — Mrs. R. K. S., New York, N. Y.

Answer — In a way, I think you are. After all, If we didn't have some rules to follow in makeshift logic of our social contacts, what would be left? Actually, the few rules that we follow today tend to simplify, rather than confuse. With regard to your "accept with pleasure the third invitation of" complaint, you say, "accepts with pleasure" don't you? Otherwise you would not accept in the first place! Those sending out the invitation to you are "third" in asking you to come. So, I think the phrase may seem redundant, but still expresses your actual feelings.

I do agree with you on the "how-do-you-do" when you meet when being introduced. I think it is often used when greeting a friend you see for the ready know.

As I said a week or so ago, "Pardon me" should not be used at all. You ask pardon for a crime, a social or moral misdemeanor. So, a quiet "excuse me" is the proper approach here.

Question — My husband and I recently met a very charming local couple when we attended a party at our neighbors good friends. Since we came to live here we have a house full and a few blanks from us. Now this couple has invited us to dinner, as a sort of welcome to the community and — Mrs. B. C. S., Roseville, Ont.

Answer — It would be more gracious to make a social call upon your new neighbors before making them a dinner guest. A visit could be made on a Sunday afternoon, so that both you and your husband would be present.

Question — When a male is eating on a job with no women, should he sit in the middle or at the end? I always feel awkward when sitting in the middle and turning from side to side, but a friend says my other idea is wrong! What do you think? — Mrs. S. M. S., St. Petersburg, Fla.

Answer — Either approach is perfectly correct. However, I think sitting on the end of the table and turning sideways, so you can face both ladies without turning from side to side, makes conversation much easier.

Question — Will you please tell me the proper dress for the mother and father of a bridegroom? Should we dress in formal clothes for a 4 or 5 o'clock wedding? There is to be a receiving line, and separate dressing rooms are provided for it. I have finally found out that the mother of the bride will wear a green pastel-colored ballerina-length gown, with a large corsage. The two men in the bridal party are wearing dark suits. What should we do? — Mrs. A. O., Baltimore, Md.

Answer — Since you will stand in the receiving line with the mother of the bride, I would suggest a ballerina-length dress, in a soft contrasting color to the green gown she is wearing. Shoes to match, or small, flat gloves should complete your ensemble. Your husband would conform with the clothes worn by the male members of the wedding party. A dark suit, conservative tie and white shirt.

Question — In one of your recent columns you said you would like to hear from some grandmothers. I am forty-two years old and am a new grandmother. I love my grandson dearly and spend as much time as I can with him. I must admit I am sensitive about being a grandparent. It makes me feel so old! "How is your grandson?" is some catty women call out to me when they see me at a party.

Sometimes remarks like this are well meant, but sometimes they aren't — and I know the difference. I wish I could come back at them without being rude. But I suppose I can't because the tradition is that you should be proud to be a grandparent. I am proud, but the women take advantage of me by reminding me of my age "get my goat." What do you think? — Mrs. M. L., Chicago, Ill.

Answer — That you are complicating on the wrong track! One minute you say you aren't "proud" to be a grandparent, but then you are apologizing, trying to hide the fact! This impression you seem to have about your "old age" is calling attention to your status is terribly unfair. They are probably only showing interest in your family by asking how your grandson is. Remember, too, that you can't hide your grandson in a dark cupboard until you think you are old enough to admit you have him! If you look old they will be going to be certainly won't have much interest for his "Grandma" when he gets old enough to understand.

Question — I have received a wedding invitation from friends who live in a near-by town and who, I understand, are quite wealthy. We cannot possibly make the trip. The invitation itself gives the church where the ceremony is to take place, and also the reception hall, but is not addressed, saying that the celebration will take place immediately after the ceremony at a country club. It asks for an acceptance, but I have no idea where to send it! Do I address it to the church or the club? I haven't the vaguest idea where these friends live, as I have only met them a few times, years. What in the world do I do? — G.W.Y., New York, N. Y.

Answer — Those sending out wedding invitations make this mistake now and then. The ceremony is taking place in a church, followed by a reception at a club, the home address should always be given below the church for an acknowledgment. This is particularly true when the recipient of the invitation lives in another city. In the case of which you speak, I would address your regret to care of the clergyman at the church. Address the envelope to "Mrs. John Samuel Doe, All Saints' Church Los Angeles, California." In the lower right hand corner write "please forward." This would be safer than sending it to the country club.

Mother's Helper

WHEN YOUR YOUNGSTER is ill in bed, his demands on you may be unnecessarily frequent, and you can't say each thing done around the house. Make sure he's comfortable and bear, that tell him you'll be back in his room at a definite time. If he's too young to read the clock, prop a kitchen timer and come back when it rings. Be firm—and consistent.

Fears for Drinking Spouse

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—Is there anything a wife can do when she thinks her husband is well along the road to becoming a compulsive drinker? He does not really think that much of a problem exists and in fact can stop drinking for a few weeks if he is rushed at work. They tell me A.A. is only interested in the subject himself approaching the organization.

I believe he is coming to depend on alcohol and would like to catch the problem at this stage. I understand that there is permanent brain damage even from six months of moderately heavy drinking.—GINGER.

DEAR GINGER:—You can't cure him single handed, but knowledge is power. It is true that the victim himself must seek help before treatment will work.

This illness (not vice) develops through recognizable stages. Your attitude of anxiety or scorn, preaching or nagging, will have no effect except to keep you upset. To learn what you are up against, ask the people who know. If you have an Alcoholics Anonymous group near you they will give you reading material and if possible put you in touch with an Al-Anon group, which is a group for wives and relatives of alcoholics. Here you can get help to carry you through this crisis in your life.

For professional counsel, write or visit: The Alcoholism Research Foundation, 24 Harbord Street, Toronto.

DEAR DORIS:—Is there any way of graciously turning away undue attentions of girl friends' husbands? They make themselves ridiculous with advances and misinterpret the politeness and friendliness, which is always just correct treatment, I would think, of a girl friend's closest relative.

It is very embarrassing all around. As far as I know, I have never given them cause to think they could get away with anything.—EMBARRASSED.

DEAR EMBARRASSED: — Next time try saying: "Hold on. I'm not your wife," or, "Just a minute, here comes my husband." Say it with a laugh. Meet the problem head on—as it were—and treat it with good natured ridicule. But make certain the man knows you mean it.

Poise in handling embarrassing situations comes with practice. If friendly resistance doesn't carry the message, you will have to start laying down the law. Ten to one it won't ruin any friendship.

DEAR DORIS:—My daughter of 17 is determined to marry a man of 35. She ran away with him once to be married but the priest made her phone us for consent which we would not give. She says she will marry him when she is 18 anyway.

I feel he is much too old for her and I don't like his attitude in trying to elope. She is stubborn but I think she is concerned about what we think. Am I wrong in objecting to him?—WORRIED MOTHER.

DEAR WORRIED MOTHER:—It could be disastrous if it could be not. Mistress as she may think she is, there seems to be a big gap at her age.

At least temporarily it is a question. Who are to meet? Since another year when one of the partners is just out grown up.

The man who attempts her now may be far from her predicament in a very few years.

Shut her down. Provide opportunities for her to entertain young people and mix in groups. At the same time you could get her to take another look at her friend by showing an occasional interest in him, having him at the house, talking about him to her. These things will help her perspective.

Many Councils Will Continue During Summer

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

For most Ontario families picking the time for a summer vacation is a relatively simple matter, but for those families with a member involved in civic government it may well mean waging the beach weeks between council and committee meetings.

A survey by The Canadian Press shows that the majority of those councils polled planned a business-as-usual schedule for their summer meetings.

The survey shows one council curtailing meetings during July and August, one undecided and 10 carrying on business as usual.

Oshawa was the only survey city to announce a cut in meetings, with plans to meet only twice in open session but to continue committee meetings on the usual basis.

North Bay has not yet taken an official move on the matter but Mayor C. H. Hewitt is in favor of continuing on the present basis.

Those cities or townships meeting on a normal basis are Stratford, Barrie, Oro, Essa, Innisfil, Vespra, Niagara Falls, Stamford, St. Catharines and Guelph.

Science at Work

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Topics this week: Tattooed sailors, man's first attempts to fly and the secrets of warts.

WHAT'S IN A TATTOO?

An informal poll at a U.S. Navy base asked the question: What kind of a person is a sailor who wears tattoos?

Opinions included: "Emotionally immature; proving he is a tough guy; attempting to gain some indelible evidence of his identification with a rough and tumble masculine group . . . mixed up . . . impulsive . . . over-aggressive . . . lower intelligence . . ."

In tests, psychologists found sailors with more than one tattoo were more personally maladjusted than other, but little different in average intelligence.

Men wanting tattoos were less well-adjusted than men who didn't want tattoos. There was little difference between men with one tattoo and those with none, raising the possibility that a single tattoo is only a one-time fling with passing psychological importance.

OFF WE GO

More than 900 years ago, a British Benedictine monk named Elmer made the first successful flight recorded in English language history. He built a set of wings, climbed a high tower and jumped into the arms of a fawning wind.

Elmer glided more than 600 feet, then crash-landed, breaking both legs and became famed for life, says Dr. Lynn White, University of California historian.

The first flight recorded in history was made by Da Finas, a Modern doctor in Spain about 875 AD, Dr. White says. He covered his body with feathers, used wings, and also crash-landed.

WHERE WAVES BEGIN

Like a child running in the dark, a wave rolls in rhythm toward the shore, until it catches its feet, trips, breaks into surf and sprawls forward on the beach.

But it is born at sea, as wind whips the water into short-crested, choppy waves, say University of Chicago researchers who are probing the secrets of waves in a specially-built 72-foot tank.

These abbreviated wavelets, generated by the wind, merge into the rolling swells of the ocean. Then the length of the wave shortens as it rises higher. As it heads toward land, it breaks when the wave "stubs its toe" on the beach bottom.

Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD — Forty members of Bemersyde Chapter, I.O.D.E. were present at the home of Mrs. Robert Anderson for their recent monthly meeting.

The Regent, Mrs. G. Vica, was in the chair and after the meeting opened in the usual manner, reports were given by the secretary and the treasurer and the visitors and group conveners.

Commonwealth relations convener, Mrs. D. Scurfield, read an interesting paper dealing with relations of the Commonwealth and how to keep them growing. One of the ways this may be done is through the exchange of teachers. The second article which was likewise read concerned the experience of a French Canadian teacher in the Congo.

REPORTS ON CONVENTION

Mrs. F. Hopping gave her report on the 41st Provincial convention of the Provincial Chapter, I.O.D.E. of Ontario, which was held in Hamilton, on April 19th. There were over 400 members and delegates present, when the parade of 41 standard bearers opened the proceedings. The annual reports were given by the Provincial Conveners and there are now 436 Chapters with approximately 1,000 members in Ontario. These members have assisted 800 students by loaning them some $98,000 during the years, and there have been

"Jest a Second"

"I won't look in tomorrow. I'm going to the funeral of one of my old patients."

154 children adopted in Korea, Germany, Austria, Greece, Italy and Lebanon. These children receive aid from their adoptive Chapters, and letters are exchanged frequently.

The work of the Order has been carried to new Canadians, scholarship students, elderly persons and patients in hospitals; as well as information of Communistic developments in Canada is sent to each of the Chapters.

Mrs. Hopping thanked the members of Bemersyde Chapter, for appointing her delegate to the convention and the members showed their appreciation with a round of applause.

After the hostess had been thanked, the meeting closed and a delicious lunch was served by group 4.

44th Birthday Celebrated By President

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP) President Kennedy turned 44 Monday in seclusion of his family home on Cape Cod. He put in more homework on his crucial meetings with French President de Gaulle and Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Kennedy boned up on this week's European conferences while anticipating a giant birthday celebration in Boston tonight with personal and political friends.

White House press secretary Pierre Salinger reported the chief executive remained at home Sunday except for a drive to mass in the nearby village of Hyannis. He stayed in the beach-front home of his father poring over documents relating to his sessions with De Gaulle in Paris and Khrushchev in Vienna.

The president flies to Paris Tuesday night after Mrs. Kennedy joins him in New York.

Birthday wishes crammed the wires in this summer resort. Hundreds were delivered Sunday and it appeared Kennedy would get 1,000 before hopping to Boston tonight for a Democratic fund-raising birthday dinner in his honor.

Kennedy was chipper and smiling as he acknowledged shouts of "happy birthday" on leaving St. Francis Xavier Roman Catholic church Sunday morning. Hundreds of worshippers filled the white frame church and hundreds more flocked to the streets outside.

Orient Express Is No More

PARIS (Reuters)—The famed Orient Express is no more.

After 78 years of existence the train that was the setting for countless mystery thrillers was on its last journey Sunday from the Gare de l'Est station here to Bucharest, Romania.

One official at the Gare de l'Est said sadly Sunday: "Soon of the fun of working for the railroad is gone."

The last Orient Express steamed out of Paris Saturday night on its 80-hour journey to Bucharest by way of Basle, Zurich, Innsbruck, Salzburg, Vienna and Budapest.

In its heyday the train went beyond Bucharest to Istanbul in a journey taking little more than 67 hours. But in recent years the train has been slowed by lengthy border stops and passenger checks.

Experts say the train is a victim of rival air services and difficulties caused by the Iron Curtain.

Colorful stories of "disappearing" passengers are legion and, one experienced traveller said Sunday, "some of them are probably true."

Uranium City's Appearance Makes the Place Look Like It Is There for Evermore

By JIM WESLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

URANIUM CITY, Sask. (CP) The well-ordered streets of Uranium City, wending between hills of pre-cambrian rock and patches of evergreen forest, give the attractive northern community an appearance of permanence and prosperity.

Yellow school buses rumble into town from the four-undistrict Eldorado Mining and Refining Company townsite carrying some of the area's 300 school children.

An Eldorado aircraft cliffs above the town and begins the 450-mile flight southwest to Edmonton with a load of uraniumbearing pitchblende from the government-owned mine.

Stores, theatres, cafes, hotel beer parlor and liquor store turn a tidy profit in daily dealings with the miners.

Taxes paid by Eldorado and Gunnar Mines Limited, 15 miles southwest, help operate a municipal hospital, elementary and high schools and a sewer and water system.

GHOST TOWN NEARBY

The town is almost completely dependent upon its uranium mines, yet neither Gunnar nor Eldorado is expected to be able to continue operation beyond 1963 in the current market situation.

"And if the mines close," says one town official, "this place will become a ghost town."

When Uranium City people speak of ghost towns, they know what they're talking about. Just eight miles south, on the north shore of Lake Athabasca, is the ghost town of Goldfields—a gold-producing boom town from 1930 to 1942—from which Uranium City towed many of its present buildings across the winter ice of Lake Athabasca. Beverlodge and Martin.

These resurrected buildings will form the backdrop against which the town's fight for survival will be staged during the next few years. There will be a fight because many Uranium City people are not prepared to give up home and property and start a new life even if the mines do close.

Already they are planning and dreaming about a Uranium City which will thrive, for a part of the year at least, on the tourist trade.

The Chamber of Commerce, with financial support from the municipality and the Saskatchewan government, is hopefully publishing a tourist brochure on the area, connected with the outside by air and water transportation. There are no roads into Uranium City.

Listed as the biggest tourist attraction is fishing for lake trout, land-locked salmon (rout, arctic grayling, northern pike, jumbo whitefish and wall-eyes —all of which abound in virgin lakes where they have grown unmolested to trophy size. The fishing season lasts from about mid-June to mid-September.

William Fuller, who operated a fishing lodge on Tazin Lake, north of here, last year, is expanding this year and says he has heavy bookings for the summer. The fisherman's half-hour charter aircraft flight from Uranium City to the lodge is provided by the outfitter.

"There's an unlimited market, especially in the United States, for the kind of fishing we can offer up here," says laundry owner-manager Dean Thrasher.

He has opened the second Tazin Lake fishing lodge this year—complete with hot and cold running water, indoor showers, a walk-in freezer for storing each day's catch and a lounge with a huge stone fireplace and picture windows overlooking the lake.

Not everyone, however, is willing to equate a pound of tourist with a pound of uranium. A citizens' committee has twice sent delegations to Ottawa to urge the federal government to keep the mines operating.

Town manager William S. Scammell believes there may be alternatives to a uranium-dependent municipality but has sent delegations to Ottawa to urge the federal government to keep the mines operating.

Town manager William S. Scammell believes there may be alternatives to a uranium-dependent municipality but has sent delegations to Ottawa to urge the federal government to keep the mines operating.

"But these people who think everything is over," he says, "are very like the Selkirk settlers who thought the West was finished because they had three crop failures."

Amateurs, Experts Divide Politicians Into 2 Classes

By DAVID OANCIA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Perhaps it is natural for a nation of horse lovers—and racing fans to attempt to classify and plot the form of the country's leading politicians.

The parliamentary Whitsun vacation has given experts and amateurs alike a chance to try their hand at this and they have decided that the politicians at the moment fall into two classes: Pro - Europeans and anti-Europeans.

These classifications are based on the positions taken by parliamentarians in recent debate on the desirability of Britain joining the six-nation European Common Market formed by Germany, France, Italy and the Benelux countries.

On the government side only Home Secretary R. A. Butler and Lord Hailsham, the science minister—both philosophers of new long'ins—now are classified as anti-Europeans.

The Labor party's leading anti-Europeans are listed as shadow chancellor Harold Wilson, shadow foreign secretary Dennis Healey and Douglas Jay, one of the party's spokesmen on economic affairs.

MIND MADE UP

Prime Minister Macmillan appears to have made up his mind that Britain must join the Common Market, or watch both its political and economic position in the world decline in relative importance.

Ted Heath, the lord privy seal and the government's unnamed minister of European affairs, spent 40 minutes in the recent foreign affairs debate describing the advantages of joining Europe soon.

He stopped short of saying Britain had taken steps that would lead to eventual membership, but he made unmistakable the government feeling that Britain must become associated with the Common Market in some way.

For all practical purposes, this means membership. The French, who fear the British may want to get the advantages of belonging to the club without paying the full membership fees, would reject any half-steps.

CAUSE CONSTERNATION

The upshot of the debate is that it caused a great deal of consternation in both government and Opposition ranks.

Labor party leaders fear that Macmillan may announce his intentions about Britain and the Common Market before the Labor MPs have made up their minds on the subject. They have called a parliamentary party meeting to find a policy that would eliminate the grouping of members into pro-European and anti-European ranks.

Tory backbenchers who rely on rural votes to get elected are also alarmed. They know that British farmers are dead set against joining the Common Market and they're getting restive.

This probably explains Macmillan's reported determination to stay at the party helm for several years more. He is extremely conscious of the strain on party unity and loyalty which may be created by Britain's joining her traditional neighbors in an economic grouping.

Barring a calamity such as that encountered when Sir Anthony Eden was prime minister, the Tory party doesn't change leaders unless there is conviction that a successor is ready to take over and that the party is ready for a successor.

The pundits who plot individual forums, however, have been quick to note that the leading favorites for the party's top post have been running into their own difficulties.

BUTLER LOST GROUND

Butler's stock has fallen as a result of his stand on corporal punishment, overloading the parliamentary time table and a recent speech in Spain in which he was quoted as saying he was "not so many years" from his 60s so many years from his 70s.

Despite his troubles, Butler is believed to have the edge over his rivals should the Conservatives be forced to find a new leader in the near future.

Selwyn Lloyd, now chancellor of the exchequer after four years at the foreign office, is becoming more of a favorite. Lloyd defended Suez attack when Eden was prime minister, then abruptly reversed his stand. He has been winning a great deal of praise since he moved to the treasury.

The Labor party, meantime, seems to be well on the way to overcoming its crisis over leadership that blew up over the ban-the-bomb-a-bina issue.

Barring unforeseen developments, party leader Hugh Gaitskell should be leading a group as unified as any labor movement can be by the time the annual party conference rolls around this fall.

IRISH DEMONSTRATORS

LONDON (Reuters)—Some 40 demonstrators burled at police in Trafalgar Square here Sunday following a mass rally of 1,000 persons protesting a South African apartheid policy. A policeman's helmet was knocked off his head and soon rolling on four police vans dragged the demonstrators from the steps of a church. Two persons were arrested.

Topics this week: Hormones and hearts, a diagnostic test in burns and dangers from human bites.

HORMONE PROTECTION?

A new synthetic male sex hormone apparently can reduce the amount of cholesterol and other fats circulating in the blood, a physician reports. Whether this actually reduces the risk of having a heart attack is not yet proven.

But it provides an interesting possible new approach toward preventing heart attacks, says Dr. Donald Berkowitz of Philadelphia.

The synthetic hormone, oxymetholone, is only half as masculinizing as the natural male sex hormone. Dr. Berkowitz wondered whether it might protect men against blood fats and artery clogging much as the female sex hormones is believed to do for women. The bunch appears correct, he says, and maybe this or other hormones can point the way toward greater protection.

BURN TEST

The five-year-old girl was badly burned with hoiling water covering half her body. Doctors used a standard test—injecting a blue dye—to determine how much blood she had lost. But the test also told them something new—which areas of skin were so badly burned that they would not recover later, and so had to be covered with skin grafts.

The blue color spread to body areas which had not lost all skin covering. The finding is expected to prove valuable in caring for burn victims, says Dr. Dicran Goullian Jr. of New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center.

MAN BITES MAN

Man's bite can be more dangerous than a dog's.

For human bites are likely to cause serious infections, particularly on the face, and particularly if neglected, report two University of Illinois medical school physicians.

Adolescents and young adults are likely to use their teeth when involved in brawls. Such bites need quick attention to prevent or control infection, and plastic repairs if necessary, said Drs. John W. Curtis and Paul Greeley.

SHAKING PALSY

The medical outlook is improving steadily for patients with shaking palsy, or Parkinson's Disease. Available now are newer and better drugs to control tremors, one of the major symptoms, and other drugs are proving helpful in controlling rigidity, says Dr. Louis D. Beebe of Northwestern University medical school.

International Commission Seeks to Restore Old Sections of Quebec City

By JEAN-LOUIS LaFRANCE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP) — An international commission has been established to see what it can do about restoration of the old sections of Quebec City, a problem which has ragged antiquarians and historians for 150 years.

The Committee for the Conservation of Monuments and Historic Sites, composed of Canadians and Americans, will try during the next 10 years to restore Old Quebec in harmony with present development of the region.

With backing from the Chambre de Commerce and other organizations, the committee is international in scope. It plans other such work elsewhere. But it was decided to start with Quebec City because — in the words of its chairman, Father Henri Levesque—"We consider the city as the cradle of civilization in America."

Up to now archivists and different groups have succeeded in restoring or saving only a few venerable buildings and one group to date has made a concentrated effort to renew all of Old Quebec in harmony with modern Quebec.

Within a year the committee will spend $200,000 for creation of a master plan of restoration and research.

Father Levesque, director of Montmorency House, a Dominican retreat and study centre at nearby Montmorency, says there is no intention of creating "a museum city." Any buildings restored will be occupied.

Founded in 1608 by Samuel de Champlain, Quebec is considered a historic treasure. It is also a provincial capital, a tourist city, a seaport, manufacturing area and a university and religious centre.

TIME TAKES TOLL

Of the 1,050 buildings shown on a model of the city created by a British army officer in 1794, only 500 remain today. Of these, some have been renovated and restored. But many have crumbled with age.

The owners say they can't afford to pay restoration costs themselves.

Simon Parent, former president of the Quebec Historic Society and owner of three old homes, believes owners cannot do it by themselves. — "Government intervention has become necessary," he says.

Mr. Parent is pessimistic about chances of restoring the old part of the city. "I am more of the opinion of a young architect who told me one day: The Old Quebec is dead and the only thing left for us to do is to resign ourselves to it."

Others have a brighter outlook. Edouard Fiset, town planning architect with the provincial commission for the embellishment of Quebec, says the old sections should be conserved because of the city's role as capital of French Canada. The two-square-mile area must be used for points of departure in any restoration attempts, he says.

ENCLOSED BY WALL

Mayor Wilfrid Hamel believes a good part of the historic monuments of Quebec should be saved despite the criminal injuries of which they have sometimes been the object.

Old Quebec was built atop Cape Diamond, a high bluff looming over the St. Lawrence River. With the exception of Lower Town, budding under the cape, the old section is surrounded by a wall, of which the citadel is the corner piece.

Historic Quebec is divided into three sections—the Latin quarter, a residential area including the old Laval University and the Basilica; the military fortifications, and Lower Town, a lower class residential area and harbor.

Nearly all the houses, their seamed facades bordering on the twisting streets, are at least 100 years old. Many go back to the days of colonial France.

These buildings are fighting time. Some have crumbled away while others have had to be demolished.

The task of rebuilding the old section will be long, hard and expensive.

Quints Mark Birthday With Baptism Service

MONTREAL (CP) — Birthday No. 27 for the four surviving Dionne quintuplets was marked by something special Sunday, the baptism of the second son born to first - married Annette.

The child was named Joseph Florian Louis-Charles.

Germain Allard and Annette were married in October, 1957. Their first son, Jean - Francois, was born 2½ years ago. Charles arrived May 19.

Annette did not attend the ceremonies at the Roman Catholic parish church in suburban St. Bruno where the Allards reside.

"At the last minute she changed her mind," said her husband. "She felt a little tired and decided it would be best to stay home and rest up for the birthday celebrations."

In attendance were Annette's sister, Marie and Marie's husband, Florian Houle. The Houles have a daughter.

A private birthday celebration topped by a champagne toast followed the church ceremony.

GRAND TIME

"There was a big cake and everybody just had one grand time," Allard said.

No other members of the Dionne family were able to make it to Montreal although there were relatives of the two husbands.

Cecile, married to Philippe Langlois, lives in Quebec City. They also have two sons.

Yvonne is a nun with a religious order at Baie St. Paul, Que.

The fifth sister, Emilie, died in 1955.

The quints were born in 1934 at a farm house near Callander, Ont. Their parents, Oliva and Elzire Dionne, had six children earlier, one of whom died at birth.

Conservative Wins in Three Byelections May Push Govt. Into General Election in Fall

OTTAWA (CP) — The joyful ballot of Progressive Conservatives over winning three of the four federal byelections Monday is obviously tempered with more than a trace of general election fever.

The question in the minds of some political observers now is whether Conservative optimism over the byelection results will push the government into trying its luck with the voters next fall.

This speculation was highlighted by a statement of Senator G. S. Thorvaldson of Winnipeg, national president of the party association.

"I would strongly advise the Liberals not to demand a general election at this time," he said early today. The unspoken implication was that he is confident of victory if the election would be.

Before the byelections, Conservative strategists had indicated privately they weren't counting on retaking at best, more than two of the four seats.

USUALLY ROUGH

The usual history of byelections over the years is that government candidates usually are given a rough time at the polls when the life of the government isn't at stake, as it is in a general election. That's what lies behind the Conservatives' relief at doing better than they expected.

As it turned out, Conservative majorities achieved in 1958 were cut slightly in Digby-Annapolis-Kings, N.S., Restigouche-Madawaska in New Brunswick, and Esquimalt-Saanich on Vancouver Island, but a strong Liberal candidate failed to overturn the hold on Leeds in Eastern Ontario.

Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson called the results "a great achievement" and said "significant" Liberal gains represented "a heavy rebuff for the government."

He added he was "naturally disappointed that the general swell of popular feeling in our favor resulted in the election of only four candidates."

The voting scheme was in strong contrast to the confident prediction last Friday by the recently-appointed national Liberal organizer, Keith Davey.

He said then that the Liberals were "virtually certain" of victory in all four ridings. He spoke of "a runaway" for the party in Restigouche - Madawaska.

CITES LEEDS SPLIT

One Conservative strategist attributed the party's defeat in Leeds to a split among party supporters there and lack of vigorous campaigning by the Conservative candidate.

But he pointed out that the three Conservative wins — narrow though they were — came about without any campaigning by Prime Minister Diefenbaker whom the party regards as his trump card on the hustings.

Traditionally, prime ministers don't enter byelection campaigns. But there doesn't apply to other party leaders, and Mr. Pearson and CCF Leader Hazen Argue conducted active campaigns.

Mr. Pearson took to the stump in a tour of all four ridings a week before the vote. Mr. Argue was not quite so energetic, but rich to support a candidate of the New Party to be formed this summer by the CCF and Canadian Labor Congress, in the Yukon byelection, it was a straight Conservative-Liberal fight.

Senator Thorvaldson said it was the first time in Canadian history that a government in power had won three of four byelections in the same day.

"It indicates tremendous popular support for our party right across Canada."

STRIKE WHILE HOT?

It's likely that this kind of optimism will be echoed by the Conservative caucus of MPs, and some are known to wonder aloud they'll be itching to strike while the iron is hot.

Early this spring, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said an election this year was possible, but not probable.

It has been just over three years since the government got its five - year mandate in the general election of March 31, 1958. Normally, governments have called general elections after four years in office.

Another factor bearing on chances of an election this year will be the kind of budget presented by Finance Minister Fleming. Budgets are usually presented around April 1, but Parliament still hasn't passed one of the measures proposed in Mr. Fleming's baby budget of last June 18. Date of the next budget hasn't yet been announced.

The Restigouche - Madawaska vote was implications for provincial politics in New Brunswick.

Conservative Charles Van Horne, who resigned the seat in January, campaigned hard in his party's figure as leader. Liberal, Liberal Premier Louis Robichaud. Mr. Van Horne's role in the contest appears likely to bolster his chances for the Conservative leadership, should he be vacated by former premier Hugh John Flemming, now federal forestry minister.

Mimico Votes For Inquiry Into Bylaws

TORONTO (CP) — Cries of "shame" from angry Mimico ratepayers, squeezed into a hot and noisy council chamber Monday night, ended with a 3-2 vote for a judicial inquiry into possible violations of the town's bylaws.

All councillors said they were in favor of the inquiry. The split decision resulted from an argument over how the inquiry should be established.

Mayor Hugh Grigg, councillor D. M. Smith and Councillor Alex Halliwell wanted the matter turned directly over to County Court Judge J. A. Shea who has indicated willingness to conduct such an inquiry. Councillors Laura Goodwin and Cecil Johnson objected, saying Councillors Smith, Halliwell and James Perrie, elected from the two - hour emergency session, were members of the town's property committee.

Ruling out of order a resolution calling for a special committee, Mayor Grigg was attacked from the floor with shouts of "shame" from about 40 ratepayers and "How rotten can you get?" from Conservation association secretary William Cassidy.

WAVES ANGRY FINGER

An angry interchange between Mayor Grigg and Mrs. Goodwin followed, as the councillor rose to her feet, leaned across the table, shook the mayor, waved her finger and shouted that in his opinion of a good many citizens of Mimico that you have been sitting on the bylaws for two years and are going to find out the fence is made of barbed wire."

The resolution also passed asks investigation of the erection of buildings in Mimico, the administration and enforcement of bylaws in restricted areas, the destruction of documents belonging to the town of Mimico and the sale of any land belonging to the town.

Seldom-Used Legal Procedure Slows Court

TORONTO (CP) — A seldom-used legal procedure slowed Ontario Supreme Court Monday to the point where it took four hours to empanel a 12-man jury to try three men charged with bribery and conspiracy.

The three—Gerald J. Wright, 29, former provincial police constable, Joseph Lucien Jo-seph McDermott, 40, and Vincent Feeley, 37 — stood in the dock as Mr. Justice Aubrey Keller asked each if the defence counsel challenged any prospective juror. The court had to call 53 men.

Only Patrick Hartt, counsel for Wright, did not employ the "challenge for cause" which, in effect, puts the 53 jurors on trial to see whether they were qualified to judge the accused fairly.

Wright faces two charges of conspiring to obstruct justice and three counts of bribing another provincial police gambling squad member, Detective Sergt. Scott. McDermott and Feeley face charges of conspiring to obstruct justice.

Kennedy Not Likely to Slam Door on Future Meetings

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The major hope that President Kennedy carries with him in Vienna today is that a meeting to be that Soviet Premier Khrushchev can be persuaded to switch signals at Geneva and agree to a nuclear test ban treaty with the Western terms.

Even if he fails on this issue, he is not likely to slam the door on future meetings with Khrushchev. The American diplomats are thinking now, they believe a second meeting at Vienna likely will be followed by a series of conferences at various levels by the leaders.

Kennedy is reported to be convinced, however, that despite the unbudging position of Russia in the test treaty negotiations, Khrushchev is earnestly looking for an end to atomic explosions. The United States and Britain recently offered new concessions in proposals to police any treaty signed. Russia refused to go along and instead went back to old demands for a built-in veto on inspection and controls.

Now the United States and Britain have offered a new concession—to reduce the minimum number of annual inspections of Russian territory to 13 from the three still adhering to the Western principle that there should be no inspection of at least one out of every three suspected explosions to see that no violations occur.

Russia is not likely to accept even this concession, still maintaining that only a minimum of three inspections annually are necessary, though the Soviet delegate at Geneva has admitted that is a token demand and the number will have to be settled on a political basis.

Having gone this far in offering concessions, Kennedy may be prepared to offer more, but without yielding to the central Russian veto demand.

The view in Washington is that if Kennedy should agree to a three-man directorate for administering control over policing—one from the West, one from Russia and one from a neutral country—instead of a single administrator, it would wreck the policing operation.

It could also shatter the Western position in the United Nations, where the Soviet Union has made similar demand to reform the secretariat.

Guard Beats Freedom Rider Who Wouldn't Call Him 'Sir'

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Federal and state authorities today investigated the beating of a jailed "Freedom Rider" amid reports of a new movement to desegregated bus terminal facilities in Jackson.

A racially-mixed group was expected to leave New Orleans today and reverse the route of previous groups of segregation-defying Freedom Riders. Officials of the Congress on Racial Equality would not tell the destination time for the New Orleans-to-Jackson trip.

In a surprise move late Monday night, Circuit Judge Sidney J. R. Gilby shifted 19 convicted Freedom Riders from the county penal farm to the downtown county jail.

Gilby said other prisoners protested the presence of the "Freedom Riders" and refused to associate with them. There are 35 white and more than 100 Negroes at the farm, the sheriff said.

The sheriff's action came on the heels of a report that beating of Rev. C. T. Vivian, 36-year-old Negro minister and Negro minister by a penal farm guard. Vivian, wearing a small bandage, was one of those arrived Monday night.

It was the first report of violence in Mississippi in connection with the Freedom Riders' which precipitated bloody rioting in neighboring Alabama.

Governor Ross Barnett launched an investigation into the incident and agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation questioned the penal farm director and others.

Vivian and the 18 others chose confinement at the prison farm rather than pay the $200 fine and serve four months. All they were convicted on breach-of-peace charges resulting from the sit-in at the white waiting rooms at a cross-country bus terminal. Eight others posted appeal bonds or paid fines.

C.O.R.E. Field Director Richard Haley said Vivian was clubbed because he failed to address a prison guard as "Sir."

Penal farm director Max Thomas said the minister refused to co-operate. Thomas said Vivian was not struck at the time of the alleged beating. When he turned around, he said, two guards and Vivian were scuffling.

Try to Stop Mob's Beating Of Negro Blocked by Threat

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—"What are you, nigger lovers? Come on and get it, the mayor, you, too. Anything we hate worse than niggers is nigger lovers."

A white witness told a federal judge Monday a mob cursed, hurled that challenge at him and his wife after they protested the beating of Negroes during a 'race riot at a Montgomery bus terminal May 20.

The witness, Fred Gach, 33-year-old former paratrooper and now a student at Huntingdon University, said he earlier had offered three Negroes protection in his car after the mob from beating a Negro "Freedom Rider" but was told by the Negroes:

"Get away from here."

The federal judge, in other stories of bloody violence, came down hard today on the Justice Department's request for an injunction to require the police chiefs in all three—Birmingham, Montgomery and Birmingham to protect the rights of "Freedom Riders" or other interstate bus travelers.

The government said it expected to wind up its case during the day.

Defence counsel indicated they will require two days or more to present their defence.

In addition to the police department cases, U.S. District bee.

Kennedy Wants Interstate Buses To Carry Non-Discrimination Card

WASHINGTON (AP) — If Attorney-General Robert Kennedy has his way, every interstate passenger bus in the United States soon will carry a conspicuous placard reading:

"All seats and other vehicle are by law available at all times to any passenger without regard to race, color, creed, or national origin."

Similar orders to ban any discriminatory policies would be ported at all facilities maintained in connection with interstate bus travel—such as waiting rooms, restaurants, toilets and drinking facilities and windows for ticket sales.

These regulations were the key features of a formal petition the attorney-general filed Monday with the Interstate Commerce Commission, the federal regulatory body for interstate travel.

Kennedy's aim: To bring the full powers of the commission's authority to bear on ending racial discrimination in the interstate passenger travel system.

Acting in the wake of race riots in Alabama, Kennedy confirmed arrests of mixed white and Negro "Freedom Rider" groups at Jackson, Miss., Kennedy told newsmen emphatically:

"Just as our constitution is color-blind, and neither knows nor tolerates classes among citizens; so too is the Interstate Commerce Act color-blind. It becomes for this commission, in administering that act, to see that there is universally by regulation that a Negro passenger is entitled to the same rights and treadth of this country in the same manner as any other passenger."

The Kennedy petition called attention to the fact that for the last several years the commission has ordered the U.S. Supreme Court repeatedly have ruled out racial discriminations in interstate travel by railroad and bus.

What he has asked the commission to do is to put into a single, brief document a sum-ice.

Indian Bones Found May Be 1,000 Years Old

PETER BOROUGH (CP)—Part of a human skeleton was found on Saturday near Hiawatha Lake, 30 miles northeast here, and identified as possibly that of an Indian buried there about 1,000 years ago.

The bones were found in a hole for a septic tank on the property of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Sutton of Columbus, Ont., who operate a tourist camp at the lake. Mrs. Sutton found the bones lying about three feet deep in sandy loam 25 feet from the water's edge.

Says Indians Should Have Rights to Cultural Survival

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian Indians should have the same rights to cultural survival as such other groups as French-Canadians, Mrs. Gerald Waverly Ferre Council was told Monday.

The Canadian Welfare Council was told Monday.

The Canadian Welfare Council has said Canada's Indians don't want to be "obliterated" and have a right to remain Indian Canadians.

Mrs. Ferre objected to efforts at "integration" and said the term should be dropped. Other Canadians could benefit from Indian culture and learn to be "more Canadian."

Father Renaud, a Roman Catholic priest and director of welfare and national secretary of the Indian and Eskimo Welfare Commission, addressed some 200 delegates attending the council's annual meeting, opened here Monday.

Father Renaud said Indians have the same problems as immigrants in adapting a foreign culture—and feel more secure in their family groups.

They should be encouraged to participate in sports events with other Canadians to show their prowess, Father Renaud urged to engage in occupations in which they have always excelled they could thrive as economic units, he said.

A committee on the welfare of immigrants made tentative plans for an October conference on Indian affairs. Membership of handicapped refugees, and integration of their children by Canadian parents.

Governor - General Vanier, in welcoming the delegates, urged a national family life crusade. He contended that the secret of life we are to "preserve, let alone improve, the moral and social health of our country."

A royal commission to investigate Canada's "crisis in citizenship" was recommended during a panel discussion on financing welfare agencies.

Some panelists wanted all health and welfare agencies brought under public financing. Others—"building agencies" would remain the concern of privately financed organizations.

Unions Are Not Responsible For Farm Machinery Price Increase, Committee Told

OTTAWA (CP)—Some of the highest - paid propagandists in the country are employed to spread the "nonsensical" idea that labor unions are responsible for commodity price increases, the Commons agriculture committee was told Monday.

J. Canadian Labor Congress delegation of unions in the farm implements industry said output per man has outstripped wage increases over the period 1947-1958.

Some government supporters on the committee, studying the farm machinery prices, complained that nobody in labor or industry is presenting the objective views that will help the farmer caught in a squeeze between rising farmed in labor costs. Nicholas Mandziuk (PC—Marquette) asked the CLC group to admit that its brief was biased, colored and one-sided and said he had told a farm machinery company the same thing.

If the brief is colored, so is the Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures formed its basis, retorted Canadian Director Lorne Hunter of the United Auto Workers of America. The United Steel Workers of America also was represented.

Mr. Burt said farm implement companies could cut prices, cooperate with farm and labor groups on analyzing the industry problems in a council and engage in more public competition if they wanted to contribute to lower implement prices.

PROFITS EXCESSIVE

He said profits are excessive and a gap between the at-plant price of Canadian machinery or imported machinery and the price of Canadian machinery or imported machinery and the price the farmer pays must somehow something is pushing up the implement market-gap.

Progressive Conservative MPs, firing questions about prices, suggested that wage demands and the wage factor in costs, and they were being no tougher on the CLC than on previous witnesses.

Mr. Burt said some—of the most expensive propagandists are contributing to the myth that unions alone are responsible for higher prices. In fact, he said his union had offered to reappraise its wage demands if the industry would cut prices, but this was rejected.

Quebec House Adopts Bill Permitting Margarine Sale

QUEBEC (CP) — The legislative assembly Monday adopted a bill making the sale of margarine legal in Quebec province as of Aug. 1.

It adopted by the legislative council, Quebec's upper house, the bill will leave Prince Edward Island as the only province in Canada to prohibit the sale of butter substitutes.

The Union Nationale opposition leader agreed to the bill which was approved 34 to 16. A 1956 statute of the then Union Nationale government imposed the margarine ban, but a court decision said legalizing margarine would destroy the dairy industry. It moved an amendment that all butter substitutes but those based on vegetable oils be legal. Margarine, the main substitute, is based on animal fats.

Last September the 300,000-member Catholic Farmers' Union, which had been active against margarine sales, told the provincial government it would not object to them if they were given equal protection against falsification and imitation.

MUST BE PALER

The Liberal government's bill stipulates that substitutes must be paler than butter to prevent the degree of color allowed.

It prohibits any use of words like "milk", "cream", "cheese" "dairy", "creamery", or any description or depiction of butter substitutes. It specifies legend to be prominent and makes it mandatory that they be listed on the packages in the order of weight.

Permits will be necessary for manufacture and wholesale distribution of butter substitutes.

Unwritten requirements of referees in Canadian soccer the past few years were that they must be brave and fleet of foot —brave to walk on the field in the first place and swift to get out of there before irate fans could manhandle them.

Those bad old days, says Harold Ballard, are a thing of the past as far as the newly-formed Eastern Canada Professional League is concerned. The zeros are taking rowdyism and the child's play out of the game.

"We just won't tolerate this sort of nonsense," says Ballard, a Toronto Maple Leaf hockey executive, who took over the presidency of the four - team ECPSL a month ago. His previous experience with soccer was as a spectator.

"People said I had a hole in my head when I got into this game but I think it will develop into Canada's No. 1 summer sport," he said in an interview.

"Our league is a million-dollar proposition and we're going to conduct it as such."

Clubs in the league—two from Toronto, one from Montreal, Hamilton and Montreal—have shopped for some of the best players in the world with imports from England, Scotland, Italy, France and South America.

The idea was that the teams wanted to go first class because we believe there's a big market for the game."

BRAINS, NOT BRAWN

"We're getting guys who play with skill rather than brawn. When fans realize that our parks are properly supervised and that we have adequate protection against hooks running out on the field, there should be no rough stuff."

Ballard, a member of Leafs' Silver Seven who took the scoring championship without paying, polished that hockey complexion with skill don't have to use their muscles to win games.

"Gordie Howe of Detroit is a good example," he said. "He can handle himself against anybody in the National Hockey League but his doesn't deliberately go out of his way to pick a fight. He doesn't have to—he can score goals and win games on his ability.

"The odd fight breaks out among the spectators around the NHL cities just about every game. We'll have fights in the stands at our games, but we're going to do everything in our power to keep spectators in the stands where they belong."

Ballard said that the pro soccer teams are setting aside money to sponsor minor clubs.

"We might get some pretty good players in the near future. I can see the day when a Canadian team can go over and play some clubs in the British Isles.

"I can remember going to Empire with Canadian hockey teams years ago and the goalkeeper leaving his net to have his picture taken while the game was going on. That is certainly a thing of the past. The students have caught up to the professors."

"The same thing applies to soccer. Years ago, teams from the British Isles were kingpins. Now they have one sweet time trying to beat the Europeans."

Metro's Fred Gardiner Bows Out in Six Months No Sign of Replacement

TORONTO (CP)—Fred Gardiner, a figure unique on the Canadian political scene, bows out in about another six months and so far there is no one in sight to take his place.

Gardiner, 66, is the pulldog burgermeister of Metropolitan Toronto. He, more than any other man, knitted together Toronto and her 13 suspicious suburbs into North America's first metropolitan complex.

Officially, Fred Gardiner is chairman of the Metropolitan Toronto executive council and, as city hall columnist Ron Haggart of the Toronto Star puts it:

"The councillors of Metropolitan Toronto now in office are the ones who will have to make the choice. But far from making a choice for Gardiner's successor, they have not even defined what they are looking for."

APPOINTED TO OFFICE

Gardiner became Metro chairman in 1953, appointed by Premier Frost of Ontario to head the 24-man council made up of the top elected officials of the 13 areas.

In effect, he was the appointed boss of the elected bosses of six acres of 240 square miles containing 1,500,000 persons.

He runs an operation with a $51,000,000-a-year budget and a capital program of $100,000,000 a year.

For the last five years the chairman has been chosen by council vote and in all that time Fred Gardiner has been unopposed.

Last January, when he began his eighth one-year term, he announced it would be his last. He said he wanted to give council plenty of time to choose a successor.

CHOICE DEFIANED

Council, unused to positive action without the pressure of "Big Daddy" Gardiner, has let half that time go by without even defining the type of man they want.

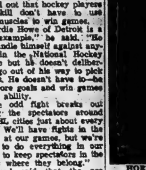
He could be the iron-fisted type of chairman that Gardiner has been—if only put the key to their heads when everything else fails" he once said of Metro council.

He could be just a chairman, presiding over meetings and seeking the majority opinion of the councillors.

Or he could be a general manager, an administrator who leaves the making of policy to others.

Some names mentioned as possible successors are William Allen of the Toronto city board of control and suburban reeves Norman Goodwood and Albert Campbell. All have evinced considerable interest.

MAY PICK OUTSIDER



Ford Brand of the transit authority has been mentioned as has C. S. Rich, politician and magistrate who supervised the amalgamation of the police departments.

Or, as was Gardiner, the next man may be chosen from outside the ranks of active politicians and public administrators, his very independence giving him an advantage.

The betting is that the council in Toronto now in office are citizens will choose one of their own number, likely a compromise to keep out somebody else's candidate.

As Haggart says:

"There is talk about finding a replacement for Frederick Gardiner. It is nonsense, of course."

HORSE BREEDER — Earl Rowe, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Dufferin-Simcoe, is also one of Canada's best known harness racing breeders. Politics and Pacers

NEWTON ROBINSON, Ont. — Earl Rowe, member of Parliament for Dufferin-Simcoe, becomes plain Earl and politics are far behind when he is anywhere near a trotter or a pacer.

Rowe, 67, is one of Canada's best - known harness racing breeders. He owns 45 head at his stable near this village midway between Toronto and Barrie and last year drove his own horses in 35 races. He's also president of the Standard Bred Society.

This summer he'll be represented on at least four tracks—Vernon Downs and Saratoga in New York state, Montreal and Toronto.

Born in Hull, Iowa, of Canadian parents, Rowe entered the Ontario legislature as a Conservative at the age of 25. Later he went into federal politics and has sat continuously in the Commons since 1957 after a one-year spell as Conservative leader in Ontario.

He enjoys harness racing so much that he once drove 136 one-mile dashes in six weeks. And he has achieved several notable firsts. He was the first Canadian to drive a Canadian-bred and Canadian - trained horse, Van Riddell, in the Hambletonian.

Rowe says that the advent of this year of night harness racing in the sport and will increase the value of stock by at least 30 per cent.

"More important, it will stop the selling of good stock to the United States. There's good breeding stock in Canada and it won't be long before there's equality with the stock in the United States."

Last spring, Rowe recalls, he entered Van Counsel and Riddell Todd in an open event at Vernon Downs, Vernon, N.Y. in all, 34 trotters were entered, the others having been trained in Florida during the winter.

"The horsemen thought we were a little touched for entering our northern-trained horses. But Bob Silliphant and myself fooled them."

Because of the large entry, the field was divided into two heats. Silliphant, trainer and driver for Rowe, guided Van Counsel to victory in one heat and Rowe was first in the other with Riddell Todd.

Van Counsel went on to pile up an outstanding record, winning 12 of 16 races and placing second four times. The colt was North America's fastest two-year-old trotter last year and was named top horse for age and class in Canada.

Rowe has been children. His son, Bill, has taken to the reins.

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Manitoba government deliberately made it tough for anglers to catch trout in the remote Gods Lake area.

And the anglers love it because this is not fishing for a pateful of supper. They're strictly trophy twkers.

Fishermen who fly 376 miles to the area from Winnipeg at a cost of about $600 for a week may take no more than two speckled trout a day, and the possession limit is two fish.

But the toughest restriction in Gods River, Kanuchuan Rapids and Island Lake rivers is that lures may carry only single barbless hooks.

Says Bert Kooyman, director of fisheries for the Manitoba government:

"For the most part anglers who go up there think this is wonderful. They're proud of the fact that they get fish on single barbless hooks."

The trout generally run four or five pounds but the record for five pounds but the record is an eight-pound seven-ounce caught by D. B. Roesner of Fullerton, Calif.

WON 1957 PRIZE

Roesner's fish won the fly-casting division of Field and Stream's fishing contest for 1958, a year that also saw impressive performance by Gods Lake from which the river runs.

The lake produced five of the top 10 lake trout including the five-pound winner landed by Wess Jensen of Albert Lea, Minn., the biggest on record for Gods. It also took northern pike upwards of 30 pounds and walleye in the 10-pound range.

But the speckleds are the big attraction and the Manitoba government, realizing that this species just cannot stand unlimited fishing pressure clamped on the single - hook restriction in 1952. The no-barbs edict took effect in 1957.

The pressure has increased, said Kooyman, to the point where 200 or 300 anglers a year ply their luck.

"If the surbe hadn't been put on, the fish population would have declined considerably. Even with this restriction we can notice a drop from year to year."

RICH IN FOOD

There is no stocking of the waters that flow 150 miles north to Hudson Bay, although there are nursery grounds where smaller fish are prevalent.

Gods River is surprisingly rich in food, the lake has abundant plankton food for insect fauna on which the trout feed and grow rapidly. A fish five to eight years old runs four to five pounds.

Kooyman says the beauty of barbless hooks—and they're no great handicap to a good fisherman—is that in a stream where there are a lot of fish but a small limit, trout can be released without harm until the angler thinks he has one as big as he's likely to catch.

Most fishing is from canoes although there are spots where an angler can wade. Spoons, spinners or small plugs are used and the small red-and-white Dardevle spoon has been effective.

The four lodges in the area are Tom Ruminski's Gods River Lodge, the Gods Lake Lodge, American-owned, and two operated by Barney Lazaro of Kenora. Ont., at Elk Island and Kanuchuan Rapids.

The tab of approximately $600 is all-inclusive, including the trip in by plane—the only way to get there—and the $12 to $15 a day paid Indian guides.

Fishing for the Big Tarpons

Tarpon, as a friend of mine used to say, are much like women. Why you go after tarpon first you must cruise long distances to find the fish you want. Once found, it is hard to hook. When hooked, you never know what it is going to do next. Add when and if you do land it you don't know what in the world to do with it.

For those of you who have not enjoyed the dubious delights of tarpon fishing, let me give you a run-down of a typical day with tarpon on Florida Bay. This is what happened.

Last March, my son, Dick and I set out from camp to meet Capt. Rolie Hollenbeck for a day's fishing. Rolie helped us to load our gear into his bonefish skiff at the Islamorada Fishing Club dock. Then he asked us what we were fishing for — red fish, snook, trout, bonefish or tarpon. We said tarpon, big tarpon. Rolie started his motor, and off we went.

Our first stop was in the lee of a shallow flat about six miles to the west of Indian Key Bridge. The day before there had been plenty of tarpon in this channel so we staked down and waited. No tarpon materialized. We unstaked and cruised slowly along the edge of the flat, possibly for a mile or so. Still no tarpon.

Now and then we would see a big fellow roll at the surface, but he would disappear again into deep water and that would be that.

We cruised several flats and channels during the course of the morning but had casts at only three fish, all of them small. Dick hooked one of them, had him on for a minute or two, and then lost him as he jumped and threw the hook. Around noon we cruised over to the skiff of Cap. Jack Brothers, tied the two boats together, and ate lunch. Jack had found no tarpon either.

After lunch we cruised to new country, down opposite Channel 3 bridge. We cruised two more long flats, one of which had in it some promising-looking pot holes. Not having found our tarpon we decided to lay in a mess of "eating fish," so Dick and I took turns extracting mangrove snapper and small spotted grouper from these pot holes.

HIT THE JACKPOT

Once we had enough of these we set out after a tarpon again. The skiff cruised along the edge of a sand flat which bordered a wide basin or "lake" as these Keys guides term them. Here we hit the jackpot. There was a minor solunar period in progress and the tarpon were on the move; big, king-size tarpon.

Evidently the big fish had fed well during the morning as they definitely were not interested in our offerings. We of must have cast at a hundred of them. We were using fly-rod gear with proven streamer-fly patterns, but the fish would roll up behind them, take a quick look, and swing away. This was unusual. Nearly always, regardless of whether he has fed or not, a tarpon is a patsy for a streamer fly. These fish were not interested.

At last, however, the effects of the minor solunar period began to show. Dick was "up." (We fish on a fish-and-fish basis, taking turns.) He and Rolie spotted a small fish coming within range, possibly 40 pounds. Did I say "small"? Well he was when compared with the shapers at which we had been casting. The fish drifted up to the fly, inspected it, and then turned away.

Then it happened. Out of the depths came a monster tarpon. He laid into that streamer fly with everything he had and he had a lot. Once he felt the hook, he took to the air, making a twisting jump that wrapped the leader around him. When he hit the water again he was a free fish and Dick reeled in his line, throwing a farewell at fish, fly and part of his leader.

"O.K., J. A., you're up" said Dick as he reached for his tackle box to repair the damage. I shouldn't have budged out of my chair, but I did, casting out a long length of line and then coiling it at my feet. We waited not more than a minute until the next fish came along. I cast the streamer fly out so that it landed slightly beyond him and about ten feet in front of him. Letting it sink, I started the retrieve. The fish speeded up and sailed that fly, going full speed. As he passed me I yanked the hook solidly into the corner of his mouth, in the tough gristle where the lower jaw hinges with the upper.

I don't suppose that there is any more spectacular sight than the strike and initial run of a tarpon, solidly hooked. This fellow was a finished acrobat. For at least 200 yards he jumped, raced on the surface, walked on his tail, and jumped again. In all he made 12 jumps in that first rue. The big tarpon rest was whizzing, the handle only a blur.

TRIED TO LAND HIM

For some reason, which, in retrospect, eyesores me, I decided to try to land that tarpon. He might have been a tournament lead but he wasn't a record-breaker. Just the same, I decided to try to land him.

Now, tournament regulations require that your leader in fly-rod gear test at not more than 12 pounds. An hour and three jumps later, it was still a moot question as to who was tiring more rapidly — I or the fish. Again, tournament regulations deny you the right to use an auxiliary butt grip. Thus, you must hold the fly rod in one hand and reel with the other.

My drag was set at eight pounds. If you don't think tarpon fishing is tiring, try hanging an eight-pound weight on the end of a three foot stick and hold it for an hour. I was really tired.

Somehow during the fight, a bunch of brown seaweed had caught on the leader. This was sloshing along at the surface. An hour and a half after hooking the fish a little tarpon, maybe 20 pounds, decided that brown weed looked interesting. In became, full-fill, and smacked into it, striking the leader. And that was that.

I reeled in my line. Complications with the reel handle had knocked the bark off of some of my knuckles and set up one beautiful blister, which, of course, broke. I was soaking wet with perspiration, my knees were trembling, and my mouth had the brassy taste of fatigue.

You have to be a little bit crazy to go tarpon fishing with a fly rod. And a seventy-year-old fellow who tries to whip, with inadequate equipment, a fish that is as big as he is certainly should have his head examined. From now on I'm fishing for sea trout, snook and red fish — that is, until the next big tarpon happens along.

Pro Soccer Cure for Rowdyism

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian soccer referee whose decision rankles, the fans will no longer have to fight his way off the field, the president of the new Eastern Canada Professional League said Monday.

Harold Ballard, former Toronto Maple Leaf hockey executive who believes soccer will be nursed into Canada's top summer sport, says as far as his league is concerned the pros are putting skill in and taking rowdyism out.

"We're getting performers who play with skill rather than brawn," said Ballard. "When fans realize our parks are properly supervised and that we have adequate protection against hooks running out on the field, then there'll be no rough stuff."

Clubs in the league, two from Toronto, one each from Hamilton and Montreal, have shopped for some of the best players in the world with imports from England, Scotland, Italy, France and South America.

Is 56,211 miles exceptional for one set of tires?

This actual mileage was obtained by Mr. E. Maxwell of Port Credit, Ontario.

In a way this is a record. But other car owners, driving hard or on bad roads, would be likely to get less mileage. And owners of low horsepower cars might get more. It all depends on driving conditions.

That's why mileage claims are controversial. Mileage depends not only on tire quality, but on the type of car, the way it is handled and the roads on which it is driven.

What one driver gets, another may not.

The important fact to remember is the difference in mileage you get between brands.

Your problem is how to determine that difference. You could find out by driving your car on various brands then comparing the mileage. There is an easier way. Look at the results of the Comparative Mileage Tests conducted by Goodyear.

In the last 3 years, Goodyear tires delivered more mileage than 28 competitive brands of equal price. Fact: the Goodyear Custom Super-Cushion gave 15% more mileage than Brand "A", 14% more mileage than Brand "B".

Think about these facts when choosing new tires.

The chances are you will agree with the majority of Canadian drivers. And most car manufacturers, too. Goodyear tires give better value than any other kind.

There is a difference in tires. Visit your Goodyear dealer this week.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

All manner of experts are decrying the physical condition of the nation as a whole, and they're probably right. Others are sitting back, moaning about Canada's poor (point-wise) showing in the Olympics and waiting for the federal government to step in and provide the answer.

Meanwhile, boys and girls and a comparative handful of dedicated adults are busy helping themselves in producing future international competitors. Track and field and swimming are particularly have made giant strides in recent weeks.

A year ago, Canada's Harry Jerome, whose 10 second flat clocking for the 100 meter dash earned him the title of the "World's fastest human," was Canada's outstanding athlete. This year, that's each track and field meet produces a new "comer."

Vancouver's Vic Reeve, running the loadoff mile, was clocked in the fastest time of his career, 4:09.3, as he helped the University of Oregon set a new American four-mile relay mark last week. Reeve, a sophomore in the same meet, Oregon coach Bob Bowerman kept his ace sprinter, Jerome, out of the sprints in order to use him as another man on the two mile sprint relay, but Harry never ran a lick. In both races, his teammates dropped the baton before they ever got around to Jerome.

Dave McClure, East York sprinter, was caught in 10 seconds flat while winning the junior century dash during Montreal's 10-nation meet. Bob Paterson of Toronto did 9.3 in the men's 100-yard event. Jim Allen, another outstanding sprinter from London South Collegiate, equalled two Canadian schoolboy sprint marks while this month when he was clocked in 9.3 for the 100 and 21.3 seconds in the 220. He'll get a chance to improve on both marks today in the Western Ontario secondary schools track and field meet.

Canadian midget broad jumping champion, 17-year-old Roger Mercier of Howes Sound High School, B.C., plans to enter 10 meets this season in hopes of breaking his national mark of 20-feet 9 inches.

Still another sub-10-second sprinter, Barry Thacki of North Burnaby, B.C., has been timed in 9.5.

There are several more sharpshooters whose accomplishments must go unreported but which time and space preclude mention here. The point is, that despite numerous handicaps, such as lack of money, coaching, facilities, competition, weather, etc., the dedicated few are showing the way.

JUNIOR JOTTINGS

The British Columbia Junior and Juvenile Soccer Association is considering an offer to send its champion to the juvenile soccer tournament in Los Angeles beginning May 28 . . . Hockey coaches, renowned for their chicken-wicket comments, can normally be counted on to offer the observation: "We'll play them one game at a time." But Buster Brayshaw, coach of the Memorial Cup runner-up Edmonton Oil Kings, cut it even finer that. "We'll play it period by period."

To the surprise of no one, Ricky Steadman of Lethbridge and Gail Riley of Banff topped the Alberta junior badminton rankings released recently. Steadman is the national junior champ while Miss Riley is a provincial titlist . . . Free like Art Wall, defending Canadian Open Champion; Kel Nagle, Australia; and Don Jamieson, now an ex-mayoralty candidate . . . Ah, the hole-in-one. Canadian Junior girl's champion Gail Harvey of Toronto sank the 158-yard 11th hole at Scarboro using a nine iron. And at Montreal's Kanawaki course the other day, Jo-Anne Gillies Corriveau of suburban St. Laurent, holed his tee shot on the 180-yard 10th.

The Whitby Red Wings got off to a winning start in defence of their Eastern Canada Junior lacrosse championship title, defeating Long Branch, 7-2, at Whitby May 18 . . . Windsor high school took all five titles in the Western Ontario Secondary Schools Association badminton tournament at London . . . Bev Chittick of Kennedy and Eric Pertsch of Vincent Massey each became three-times singles victors . . . Eleven-year-old Wayne Ground of Guelph is Canada's Bantam bowling champion. Wayne topped 370 other youngsters to win the trophy offered by the Canada-wide Junior Bowling Council.

George Kovack of Toronto's Parkdale Collegiate, junior Ontario and Quebec gymnast, says: "Other sports caught at high school like football or basketball only develop certain body muscles but gymnastics gives co-ordination a certain grace of movement . . . add the name of Sally Anne Shapiford, 13-year-old daughter of Ontario's deputy director of trade and industry, to the growing list of promising young Canadian figure skaters. The 13-year-old skater competed in England this winter where she won the British Junior championship.

Mike Richards, 18-year-old all-around athlete from St. James, Man., has been nominated as one of three "cricketers of the year" by the Canadian Cricketer magazine. . . . Mike will be one of the co-captains of the Canadian Junior team which will tour England in July and The North Shore juvenile soccer commission is pitching in to help Vancouver's amateur rules money to finance the latters' trip to the international gymnastics festival in Stuttgart, Germany, this summer.

Koufax Emerges As Dodgers Hill Ace

Tosses Second Three-Hitter

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

The long wait is over for Los Angeles Dodgers. Sandy Koufax has arrived with a bang, leading the National League with six victories and topping the majors in strikeouts while pushing away the longest shutout streak of the season in either league.

The young lefthander, whose lack of control has overshadowed his flashpower in the past, came up with his second consecutive three-hitter, Monday night, outdueling Larry Jackson for a 6-0 victory over St. Louis Cardinals.

That pushed the second place Dodgers within 1½ games of front - running San Francisco after Cincinnati knocked off the Giants 5-4 in an afternoon game. No other games were scheduled.

Koufax (6-3) now has won three in a row since his last seven decisions. He walked five and struck out 13 in this one, blanking the Cards until the ninth. A leadoff triple by Ken Boyer and Bill White gave the Cards their run — and ended Sandy's shutout string at 22 innings — second longest in baseball. Hal Smith with the tying run on first.

BOOED ON BALK

The Dodgers also scored on a balk as they got over both ends of the 3-3 Jackson pitching (1-4), whose long victory was a 2-0 decision over the Dodgers and a five-hit shutout for seven innings. Then a wild throw by Boyer boosted the bases. Relief ace Stu Lindy McDaniel came on and balked, forcing in a run, before giving up a winning single by Willie Davis.

This was the eighth victory in 13 games for the Dodgers (with all the victories by one run) and kept them a half-game ahead of third place Cincinnati. The Reds won their fourth in a row, and ended the Giants' streak at four, as rookie Ken Hunt (5-3) nailed his first complete game in the majors with a seven-hitter.

A three-run homer in the first inning by Pete Rose, Frank Robinson, Hunt and southpaw Mike McCormick (5-3). The Giants scored in the fifth on singles by Chuck Hiller and Ed Bressoud and an infield out.

The Reds play two at San Francisco on the Memorial Day schedule with the Dodgers have a single night game with the Cards. Chicago at Pittsburgh and Milwaukee at Philadelphia for doubleheaders.

Happy Tigers Back Home, Lick Paws

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff writer

Detroit Tigers, hardly puffing after a 17 - game road trip that did nothing at all to discourage their pennant hopes, settled down at home with a 3½-game lead as the American League race reached the Memorial Day mark.

The Tigers last home with a 9½-game edge. They padded it even more through the trip even after losing three of their last four games on the tour, still arrived home better off than when they left. In all, they were 10-7 on the tour. Detroit now plays eight at home, beginning with two against Kansas City Athletics today.

Only one game was scheduled in the AL Monday and night-hander Ike Delock of Boston stifled Baltimore for a pair while second - place Indians, while fourth - placed Whitey Ford's winning streak at six. The loss dropped the third - place Yankees three games behind Detroit going into today's single game in Boston.

The Yanks were shut out on two singles by Delock (3-1) until Mickey Mantle hit his 11th home run with one out in the seventh for a 1-0 tie. But Boston, after losing eight in a row to New York since Sept. 5, put it away in the bottom of the seventh when Jackie Jensen, who had homered for the first run in the second inning, walked and scored across an infield out and a single by Vic Wertz. Delock struck out seven and didn't walk a man. He gave up a leadoff single by Tony Kubek in the ninth, but then struck out Clete Boyer and Roger Maris before Mantle hit into a force out.

Ford (4-2) gave up four hits and four walks while striking out eight in his seven innings. He hadn't lost when the Yankees of Minnesota beat him 6-0 on the season opener.

Player Tops Golfdom Loot Race

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — Arnold Palmer has moved a little closer to his arch rival in the race for top money winner of professional golf, but still trails Gary Player by a little more than $7,000.

Palmer just missed winning the "Tucson" open last weekend in a sudden death playoff with Doug Ford. Palmer, who won more than twice last year to set an all - time record, has played 13 tournaments, won four-and placed with the upper five six times five finishers five times for $44,-961.

The figures were released by the Professional Golfers Association Monday.

Player, who has been leading the field since early in June, has competed in 18 tournaments, won three and placed with the upper five six times for $51,264.

Holding a strong third is Doug Sanders, who has made 19 tournaments, winning three, for $39,-331.

The Trots

TORONTO (CP)—Jockey Avelino Gomez had a perfect afternoon at Old Woodbine Monday, winning all five races in which he rode. On Saturday he won five of the eight races in which he participated.

Gomez began his work Monday by winning both ends of a $6 daily-double. On Diameter in the first and on Youdbetterwin in the second. He won the fifth on Divided; the sixth on Cambalache and the seventh on Says Mike.

The prices on Gomez' five winners were: Diameter $3.20; Youdbetterwin $5.40; Divided $5.00; Cambalache $8.00 and Says Mike $3.80.

HAMBURG, N.Y. (CP)—Peachey Atom, a consistent five-year-old mare owned by Mr. and Mrs. Macburney and Harry Altman of Ottawa made it four wins in a row at Blasdell Raceway Monday night in speeding home first in the trotting dash topping the card. She hit the wire 2¼ lengths in front of Rita Laird. Grady's Veil finished third.

Peachey Atom paid $4.40. Another Canadian horse, Harvest Lad, owned by the Galbraith Stable of Wyoming, Ont., opened the program with a popular $4.30 triumph, his second win in succession.

Woman's Turn for Derby

Hunchers Back 'Moutiers'

LONDON (AP) — Thirty colts were named Monday for the 183rd running of the Epsom Derby Wednesday.

The only doubtful runner appears to be Eagith-owned Aureus.

The race appears to be the most open in years with no outstanding British colt entered. Owners, jockeys and trainers—even those connected with long shots — all think their entries have a chance of finishing in the first three.

The French-trained Moutiers, owned by Mrs. R. B. Strassburger, 80-year-old widow of the Norristown, Pa., publisher, is favorite for the 1½-mile race.

Wednesday's race, carrying a load of betting and also the Irish Sweepstakes, will be worth $96,734 to the winning owner.

HUNCH MAY PAY OFF

Hunch players who believe history goes in cycles, will put a bet on Mrs. Strassburger's horse.

Every sixth year since 1937 the English classic for three year olds has been won by a horse owned by a woman. The last woman to win was Mrs. Gary Vollerra with Phil Drake 6 years ago.

In 1949 Mrs. M. Glenister's Dimbus won. In 1943 it was Dorothy Paget's Straight Deal. In 1937 Mrs. G. G. Miller's Midday Sun did it.

With one exception, male owners have won every other Derby in that period. Only Mrs. MacDonald Buchanan broke the cycle by winning with Owen Tudor in 1941.

Of the first eight horses in the Monday night's betting list, three are owned by women.

Further, second favorite carries the hopes of Mrs. C. O. Iselin of Glen Head, N.Y. Misty Drake is Mrs. Vollerra's big hope for repeating her 1955 success.

The six year cycle is the kind of hunch that appeals to Britain's once-a-year bettors. Housewives and office girls who normally never bet on a race, find a fancy and have a flutter on the Derby.

An Irish Hospitals Sweepstake is based on the 15-mile race.

POSTPONE FIGHT

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—The middleweight title fight between champion Gene Fullmer and Florentino Fernandez scheduled for July 4 was postponed three to four weeks Monday after Fullmer labored his right hand. Officials said the fight still will be in the Ogden, Utah, stadium and the date will be July 29 or Aug. 5, depending on when Fullmer is ready.

200,000 at Indianapolis
Thirty-Three Seek Glory, Gold

Indianapolis (CP) — Thirty-three daredevils were spoiled today for a bid for glory and gold in the perilous 500 - mile Indianapolis auto race.

The Memorial Day crowd of more than 200,000 was expected to be on hand as the drivers send their high - powered cars hurtling around the historic brick - and - asphalt course in perfect 75-degree weather.

The field included three former winners and eight shelved rookies, headed by world road racing star Jack Brabham of Australia, for this golden anniversary of the event.

At the end of the gruelling run over the 2½-mile track lay a $271,000 jackpot and a first place prize of about $110,000. The event was to start at noon EST.

The race was introduced in 1905 when Ray Harroun, who had retired after winning the United States championship, temporarily set his engineering job to capture the first test of speed at 74.59 miles an hour.

Marshall Teague, Ruth Brasmann of Miami, Fla., won last year's race with a record 138.767 miles an hour.

MOSTLY GONE ...

Many of the veterans at Indianapolis as a spectator today, but most of his contemporary opponents are gone. Twelve subsequent winners died at the wheel. Among them was Bob Resta, Italian - born English driver, whose 1916 victory was the last by a foreigner.

Interest in today's event was heightened by the first genuine foreign challenge in years — Brabham and his tiny, rear-engined Cooper - Climax. The British car gave away about 150 horsepower to the U.S. offerings but it was rated superior in the turns.

Brabham's sentimental favorite for Brabham, the probable major challenge to the Americans who have driven thousands of miles on the track.

Two of the last three were Rodger Ward of Indianapolis and Rathmann, who made a two - man race of the last two 500s. Ward beat Rathmann by 23.27 seconds in 1959. They swapped the lead 10 times in the last 125 miles before Ward crossed the wire in 12.67 seconds after Ward's right front tire wore down to the fabric.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The shadrow gossips at British Columbia race tracks should keep an eye open just in case Magistrate Glen McDonald or one of his aides is listening nearby.

Wild suggestions about alleged race track irregularities are liable to bring them up on the mat before the magistrate in his capacity as chairman of the B.C. Racing Commission.

As part of a four-man racing commission created a year ago, Magistrate McDonald doesn't confine to individuals—horsemen or bettors—who try to impress their listeners with their vast knowledge when in fact they don't know what they're talking about.

Such things are not good for racing's public relations, the magistrate explained recently that the commission will do what it can to curtail them, including the questioning of anyone it finds making accusations.

FIN DOWN RUMORS

"If the statements are true then the guilty must be punished. If the statements are not true then the rumor-mongers should be brought to justice, too."

He and commission steward Clay Puett, the man who is at the track day in and day out to keep close watch over management, horsemen and other track personnel, both realize, however, how diverse the U.S. people and gambling, accusations are bound to go on.

Speaking of some horsemen, Magistrate McDonald says: "When they lose the race they blame everyone but themselves."

Referring to all concerned at the track, Puett says:

"You can't expect these statements where money and the judgment of people are involved. If people don't win, then they like to think there's something wrong with the system. They don't like to admit it was their judgment that was wrong."

The commission's job is, of course, much more than checking allegations of fixed races or claims that the jockey pulled his horse.

CAME FROM ARIZONA

Magistrate McDonald, with Commissioner A. M. McGavin, Commissioner - Secretary Ken McConnell and Puett, supervises all horse racing in the province, setting rules and regulations for management and administration.

Puett says the job is largely one of education, a task he has been working at for 30 years. He has been connected with the Arizona State Racing Commission, working in Phoenix in the winter season, for 19 years and worked with Vancouver track administrators for 25 years in summer before joining the B.C. commission.

Racing administrators who have run their own show for years don't accept major changes overnight, he says, adding:

"You can't revolutionize the system in a year or two years. Changes and improvements come by education. In Phoenix it took four or five years before the public could see what was happening under the commission's guidance."

Magistrate McDonald says horse racing is a vulnerable position with many ready to pull it apart and some vicious enough to spread rumors which have no basis in fact.

Thus, the racing commission's tasks include hard work to improve the image of racing in the mind of the public.

Marlins Pad Margin Over Jets

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The first - place Charleston Marlins put a seven-game winning streak on the line today when they play a Memorial Day doubleheader against the Jersey Jerseys—the only team to beat them since their move earlier in the south from Puerto Rico.

The Marlins padded their first place margin to three games over Columbus with a 7-2 decision over Syracuse in a wild hitting affair that couldn't produce a pitcher scoring. Columbus continued its tailspin with a 4-2 loss at the hands of Richmond. Rochester won over Jersey City 4-0 in the only other game scheduled.

Columbus and Richmond, Toronto and Rochester and Buffalo and Syracuse also play holiday doubleheaders today.

Harry Watts' single drove in Columbus runs for the Marlins as the teams hammered out 31 hits. Bo Belinsky homered for Charleston and Frank Lela hit one with two on for the Chiefs.

Jim Rooker, four hits in a row, including a pair of doubles, for the Marlins who totalled 17 hits.

Art Ceccarelli struck out 12 Columbus batters in 8 1-3 innings. The Virginians' got to reliever Al McBean for three runs in the sixth to overcome a 1-0 Columbus lead. McBean took over for starter Tom Parsons, who left with a stiff arm after allowing only one hit for 4 2-3 innings.

Art Quirk needed one - pitch relief from Artie Kay for his victory over Jersey City. Kay replaced Quirk in the ninth with a 3-2 count on dealing pitcher Dave Stenhouse and fanned him.

PLAN COACHING CLINIC

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Alouettes announced Monday that the Canadian Football coaches clinic will be held June 19 to 23 at Centre Notre Dame. Last year about 100 coaches attended the meetings.

The Tracks

WESTBURY, N.Y. (CP) — So Mac Led, owned by I. W. Bernheimer of New Milford, N.J., continued his winning ways Monday and rounded for the featured $35,000 Vanguard Free-for All Trot at Roosevelt Raceway before a record turnout of 30,240.

Time of 2:01 was the fastest time of the season.

Silver Song made a determined stretch challenge but failed by a nose. Senator Frost finished third.

Su Mac Led returned $3, $2.70 and $2.30 across the board.

Fish Fan Falls for Football

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (CP)—This is the story of a poor fish watching football.

Ron Barrett, publisher of the weekly Grand Rapids Star told Monday how he was fooling a football around with his brother when it fell into the Saskatchewan River and was whisked into Lake Winnipeg by the current.

With a rowboat they caught up to the ball and found a four-pound pickerel giving the pigskin a fishy stare. They clouted the fish with an oar and hauled both the ball and the fish into the boat.

Senators Don't Lack For Support

NEW YORK (AP) — Washington Senators drew 41,977 fans for their three-game series with Minnesota Twins last weekend and joined New York Yankees and Cincinnati Redlegs as the only big league clubs showing attendance increases over 1960.

The Senators have played before 161,130 customers in 17 home dates this year. In as many dates in 1960, their total was 153,771. The Twins are up 36,000 and the Reds, 8,000.

Chicago White Sox have the largest deficit. They are 191,800 behind last season. Los Angeles Dodgers trail their 1960 aggregate by 167,000.

The Twins, who shifted from Washington during the winter, lead the American League with 340,287 customers for 24 home appearances. The new Los Angeles Angels have pulled 206,647 through the turnstiles for 23 home dates.

The over-all National League lead is 1,968,464 — 26 per cent ahead of 1960. The American League's figure is 2,013,933 compared to 1,570,070 in 1960 when the circuit had eight teams.

SURE OF WIN

LONDON (AP)—Alphonse Halimi arrived in London Monday confident his half of the world bantamweight boxing title will go back with him to France after today's fight against John Caldwell of Britain, flyweight champion. Halimi holds the European version of the world bantamweight. A victory over Caldwell could see him step into the ring against Brazilian Edgar Jofre to determine the undisputed world crown.

Koufax Not Trying

Piling Up Strikeouts

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Sandy Koufax, who has the highest strikeout average of any pitcher in National League history, may be leading the league in victories today because strikeouts don't really mean much to him.

But he's still accumulating them at a phenomenal rate, as he did Monday night when he fanned 13 as the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated St. Louis 3-1 —each side getting a run on a balk.

Koufax not only took over the league lead in strikeouts by running his total to 66, but pitched his second straight four-hitter and scored his fifth victory, also high in the league. He has only two losses.

Koufax, who didn't get his sixth victory last year until Aug. 15, believes much of his present success has resulted from the discovery that he was overlooking a good thing—his speed.

"The idea of not trying to throw so hard is what's really helped me," Koufax said. "I'm not racing back to try to get that little extra on the ball. That's what breaks your rhythm.

"I'm not trying to get as many strikeouts. I don't care how many I get."

MARY ASTOR SUFFERS IN ROLE OF BIGOTED SMALLTOWN GOSSIP

In Mary Astor's 41 years as a film actress, the choicest role she has played, according to her own estimate, is that of Roberta Carter, bigoted, smug, "hundred percent American," in 20th Century-Fox's "Return to Peyton Place."

Originally offered to Joan Crawford, then to Bette Davis, both of whom turned down the part, the characterization is exacting and subtle, depicting as it does the book-burning type of moralist whose "high-mindedness" usually destroys innocent people in the name of some lofty-sounding principle. Into the role of Rebecca Carter, prime instigator of the case against the young author who has written an expose of the morals of her own hometown, Mary Astor injects all the intelligence and superb realism that have kept her early beginnings as an actress.

Author of a book of her own, "My Story," Mary Astor is literally a two career woman. Of her literary life, she declares: "Writing is the harder of the two jobs I do. It is lonely work, even for a loner like myself. I live alone, except for a couple of Siamese cats, on a cliff overlooking the ocean. I like to be alone; I like to write. Yet I still like the excitement and bustle of the studio. The hard part about writing is the starting. You can clean it perfectly clean typewriter, trying to get going. A telephone call is a reprieve. But once I get into it, the same telephone can ring and be a nuisance. I suppose both jobs are creative, in a way. Acting is easier, but writing gives me more satisfaction."

"Return to Peyton Place, starting tomorrow, Wednesday, at the Belle Theatre, is a sequel to the sensational best-seller by Grace Metalious, and co-stars Carol Lynley as the controversial young author of the incendiary novel.

CBC to Broadcast Prokofieff Opera

Serge Prokofieff's opera, The Fiery Angel will be broadcast on CBC radio (CBL) May 31 as part of CBC Wednesday Night.

The five-act opera, presenting by means of BBC transcription, will be heard from 7.40 to 11.00 p.m.

Soprano Victoria Sladen and bass Thomas Hemsley head a cast of 14 soloists. The BBC Chorus and Royal Philharmonic Orchestra are conducted by Stanford Robinson.

Between the second and third acts English critic and musicologist Andrew Porter will give a talk on the origin of the opera.

The plot of The Fiery Angel is based on a novel published in 1907 by Russian Symbolist poet Valeriy Bryusov. The action takes place in the 16th century Germany, mainly in Cologne.

There are subordinate plots concerning fortune - tellers, magicians and counterfeiters, characters and throughout the story there is a strong aura of religious mysticism blended with eroticism.

Prokofieff set his story to music between 1919 and 1927, while living in a village near Obersammergau, Germany.

In 1927 the Berlin Opera accepted the completed work but never staged it, and later Prokofieff used much of the music in symphonies or other works, notably his little-heard Third Symphony.

A concert performance of The Fiery Angel was given in Paris in 1954 but that was not until September 14, 1955, that the opera was staged for the first time at the Venice Festival.

Later it was given at the Holland Festival and, in 1959, at the festival in Spoleto, Italy.

Radio broadcasts of the work have been rare. The BBC presented it on June 7 last. Theo Mogram, in Russian in 1958 and in English in 1959. It is a transcription of the latter performance that will be heard on CBC May 31.

The role of Renata is one of the most demanding in the entire operatic repertory. As the central figure of the musical drama, the soprano soloist is required to do almost 90 minutes of practically-continuous singing.

The English translation of the opera was done by Dennis Arundell, who also served as producer of the BBC transcription.

RUSSIAN TV

The Soviet Union in 1960 had more than 5,000,000 television sets, compared with 15,000 in 1950.

Couldn't Find TV Program Called The Vast Wasteland

NEW YORK (AP)—The head of the U.S. Federal Communications Commission, Newton Minow, recently made headlines and started a fierce television controversy with a speech criticizing the medium. He called television a "vast wasteland."

Mail immediately started to pour in—some defending television, some endorsing Minow.

But one viewer took pen in hand to inform the FCC chairman that he had looked, but couldn't find any TV program called The Vast Wasteland.

AUTO CLAIMS RISE

SEBRINGVY CLUB, Que. (CP)—R. H. Brown, president, said Monday Canadian automobile insurance companies paid $194,000,000 in settling automobile accident claims in 1960. This was some $10,000,000 higher than in 1959. Speaking to the annual meeting of the Canadian Underwriters' Association Mr. Stevens said automobile underwriters showed a small profit for the second year in a row after a series of heavy losses.

Fear Uranium City, Sask., Will Become Ghost Town Before End of the Sixties

By JIM WHELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

URANIUM CITY, Sask. (CP)—Unable to keep their tongues off a sore tooth, the 3,000 people of Uranium City often mention "mid-1963."

By that date there is expected to be no ready market for the barrels of uranium - bearing yellow powder produced by the Crown-owned Eldorado Mining and Refining Company and the independent Gunnar Mines Limited.

The two companies pay 73 per cent of the taxes levied in the 1,000-square - mile area chartered as the Municipal Corporation of Uranium City and District. They are the only major employers.

But shrinking market require-is the main headshaft, being deepened by 2,000 feet to reach new deposits that will be ready for production on revival of demand by 1970.

ments have snatched the immediate threat from their minds and they may shut down by mid-1963.

Some people came into this with their eyes open. They planned and made a quick killing," says town manager William S. Seaman. "Those who intended to recover their investment over a long term will be broken if the mines shut down."

The boom town of Uranium City was born in 1952 during the most concentrated staking rush in Saskatchewan's history. When 1953 ended, 21,000 claims had been staked—most in the Martin and Beaverlodge lakes area just north of Lake Athabasca, about 450 miles north of Prince Albert.

By 1956 the municipality was incorporated, including all operating mines and the mine townsites at Eldorado and Gunnar. Within two years the district was established as a major world producer of uranium.

Yet in the last 18 months more than a dozen of the district's 21 uranium mines have sealed their shafts, paid hefty severance wages to employees and closed their books.

Once - busy mine sites of Cayzor, Athabasca, Rix-Athabasca, Lorado, Black Bay and Lake Cliffe look as though everyone who left at a five o'clock whistle and never came back. It cost less to leave some heavy machinery behind than to freight it out.

The economic jolt of the mine closings helped knock 25 of about 35 Uranium City firms out of business and wounded the municipal corporation's finance.

Unofficial estimates of the lifetime of Gunnar are about 30 months, including one year of stockpiling after recovery contracts are fulfilled. The stockpiling gives Eldorado time for renewal contracts for uranium for peaceful purposes about 1970.

EXPANDING PLANT

Eldorado mine manager J. M. (Don) Douglas says the Crown company may be forced to shut down between 1963 and 1970.

"By 1970," he says, "Eldorado could reopen in a new market climate and we'll be prepared to do just that."

The company's confidence is being expressed in construction of a second hydro-electric plant at a cost of $3,000,000; installation of new machinery and sinking of one of the three shafts to another 2,000 feet to more than a mile.

Despite high transportation costs, annual personnel turnover of more than 70 per cent and other peculiarly northern problems, Eldorado and Gunnar have remained this long in competitive production partly because of a high recovery rate of nearly four pounds of uranium from each ton of material treated.

Uranium City fathers, who can't afford to take the long-term view of mine officials, see the 1963 to 1970 period as an impassable abyss, deepened by the corporation's $2,800,000 debt.

They fear that unless the mines can obtain enough contracts to stay in operation Uranium City will become a ghost town.

Paint Ducks' Wings in P.E.I. For Research

SACKVILLE, N.B. (CP) — Eight hundred black ducks wintering at Montague, P.E.I., have had their wings daubed with red or yellow dye in the continuation of a study of their breeding habits.

It's part of a program carried out by the Maritime branch of the Canadian Wildlife Service.

Some 300 black ducks were marked last spring and the branch, encouraged by the public response, decided to continue the study this year.

Drakes are daubed with red dye on the underwing feathers and females get a yellow marking.

Biologist C. O. Bartlett says his branch received reports of breeding migration from such points in Newfoundland and around the Gulf of St. Lawrence last year.

Anyone spotting the painted ducks is asked to forward information on where they are sighted to wildlife service headquarters in Ottawa. The program lasts until early June when spring moulting causes the ducks to shed their painted feathers.

P.M. INDICATES

said. In all cases where it has been recommended since the Conservative government took office, it has been followed by a cabinet commutation, he said.

(Mr. Diefenbaker did not cite the figures. But the justice department said that since June, 1957, there have been 49 death sentences passed. Of these, 19 sons have been executed; 30 have had their sentences commuted to life imprisonment—including all 14 cases in which there was a mercy recommendation by the jury.)

NOT AUTOMATE NO

It was not always so, he noted. In the period 1930 to 1957 there were about 20 commutations for mercy "to which effect was not given by the cabinet."

"I felt then and I feel now that responsibility for carrying out the law and maintaining the safety of the public in each area depends on the jury.

"Having heard the evidence and the presiding decision has on the basis of the law as explained to them by the judge a verdict of guilty is the only one they can bring in, a jury ought nonetheless to have the right to add a recommendation to mercy, and having done that to expect that the royal prerogative will be reasonably carried out.

Opposition Leader Pearson said he would have voted for the principle of the bill on last week's second reading vote but supported the Liberal group in the House.

However he found fault with the bill on several counts and wondered why the government did not see fit to change the method of execution. There are more humane methods than hanging, Mr. Pearson said. "As I see it, there could hardly be a more barbarous method."

CRITICIZES 'DOUBT'

He also criticized the "doubt or uncertainty" left in distinguishing between the two kinds of murder. It would be left to each jury to distinguish between a premeditated murder and one that is planned and deliberate."

"It seems to me that we may get into a great deal of trouble in the future in attempting to work out that definition in a way which will not create injustice."

Mr. Pearson suggested the government submit the bill to a committee where representatives of law enforcement agencies could be heard along with members of the bar and the provincial deputy attorneys-general. He also suggested a clause to ensure review of the legislation by Parliament after a certain period.

Mr. Diefenbaker replied:

"This is a matter which has received the attention of considerable period of time. His law officers and all those connected with the administration of justice have studied this measure.

"It is designed to ensure that we shall protect and preserve by proper safeguard those who would place themselves above the law while at the same time protecting those who in passion or under circumstances short of malice, commit homicide."

DEFENDS WORD CHOICE

Justice Minister Fulton also defended the government's choice of the words "planned and deliberate" in defining capital murder.

"Because the words 'deliberate and premeditated' in the United States have tended in some states to be equated to mere intent, we selected words which in our view would not do make plain that something more than intent formed on the spur of the moment and under a sudden passion or impulse is required to constitute capital murder."

Mr. Fulton said the words chosen "import the idea of the mind making and carrying out a project as distinct from the sudden passion or impulse."

He added:

"I think a time element is present but it may vary from case to case. Plans may be received and carried out very quickly but they must be planned and not merely impulsive.

"When the words are applied to a specific set of facts as they will have to be in practice, I do not think a judge will have too much trouble explaining to a jury understanding the definition."

"DOMINION to Continue Its Policy of 500 Lower Prices...."

—THOMAS G. McCORMACK,
President,
DOMINION STORES LIMITED

DOMINION STORES LIMITED
605 ROGERS ROAD
TORONTO 15, CANADA

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

TO ALL DOMINION MANAGERS:

During the fiscal year ended March 18th, 1961, the sales of Dominion Stores Limited increased by more than $12 millions over the previous year, and passed the $400-million mark for the first time in the Company's 41-year history.

I believe that one of the major reasons for this increased public patronage has been Dominion's long-established policy of offering food and other household products to the public at the lowest possible cost. Regular price comparisons throughout the past year revealed that Dominion had an average of more than 500 lower everyday prices than stores conducting permanent high-cost promotions.

Our steadily increasing sales prove that Dominion's lower-price policy is endorsed by a substantial percentage of shoppers. Needless to say, with such enthusiastic public support, Dominion will continue its policy of maintaining at least 500 lower everyday prices.

In addition to lower prices, we will continue to offer the public the very best quality merchandise, the widest variety, the utmost in shopping convenience, an unconditional guarantee of complete satisfaction, and Dominion's own special brand of friendly courtesy.

These are the things that have built Dominion from three tiny stores in 1919 to a coast-to-coast enterprise employing more than 13,000 Canadians. These are the things that will continue to merit ever-increasing public support in the future.

Yours sincerely,

THOMAS G. McCORMACK,
President.

During the past year, a total of nearly 85 million cash-register transactions were rung up, amounting to a total of $400,906,318 in sales. Betting Houses Protected Says Crown Witness

Posed as Corrupt OPP Officer to Get Evidence

TORONTO (CP)—A constable who acted as a double agent for the Ontario Provincial Police testified today a former constable charged with bribe conspiracy told him he had made $30,000 through tipping off gamblers.

Const. George Scott, first witness at the trial of Robert J. Wright, former OPP constable, and two other men, said:

"Wright boasted that he had accumulated $80,000 and he could buy and sell anyone on the force."

He added that the former member of the anti-gambling squad told him that the money was paid him by gamblers for tipoffs.

The trial with the 38-year-old Wright on charges of conspiring to bribe a police officer are Joseph P. McDermot, 40, of Port Credit and Vincent Feeley, 37, of Toronto.

Const. Scott, consulting a diary he kept during the undercover agent days, said Wright told him "he had a partner on the force who was good at collecting squad."

Const. Scott testified Wright told him that "the thieves"—a nickname for McDermott and Feeley—had taped recordings of telephone conversations by members of the force.

"Wright told me he had actually sat down and listened to them," Const. Scott identified as the Supreme Court trial.

The police officer testified Tuesday that, while posing on OPP orders as a corrupt officer willing to take bribes, he had been told some gambling squad officers were using gambling houses in four Ontario cities.

During this time, he said, Wright told him other gambling squad members were protecting betting houses in St. Catharines, Thorold, Niagara Falls and Port Erie, all in the Niagara Peninsula.

He said Wright told him "one or maybe two" members of the anti-gambling squad were taking bribes in the city of Toronto.

Const. Scott said he was also told that the New Ramsay Club in Niagara Falls, Ont., was controlled by "a man named Nicholas

Danish Frigate Trails Crippled Scottish Ship

COPENHAGEN (AP) — A Danish frigate today trailed the Scottish trawler Red Crusader after shelling her near The Faeroe Islands in a Danish-British clash over North Atlantic fishing rights.

The 374-ton Red Crusader retreated toward the Scottish coast under escort of two British warships, which hurried to her aid after the shooting Tuesday.

The British naval commanders refused to surrender the trawler, which the Danes accused of fishing inside Danish territorial waters around The Faeroes.

The Danish frigate Niels Ebesen was under orders to follow the trawler but only to the edge of British waters.

The clash at sea was hit three times by gunfire in Tuesday's brief encounter after the Danes in a boarding party aboard the trawler to take her over. The crew said the frigate opened fire when the British skipper made a dash for freedom.

Britain and Denmark are disputing fishing rights around The Faeroes, between Iceland and The Shetland Islands.

Asks Increase In Powers of Laotian Body

GENEVA (CP)—British delegate Malcolm MacDonald today called on the 14-power Laotian conference to increase the powers of the International Control Commission to bring an effective cease-fire to warring Laos.

The commission, made up of India, Canada and Poland, had notified the conferees it is taking new steps to halt the fighting.

It dispatched to Geneva a report of plans to split truce teams in the neutral spots, including Padong, where Moo tribesmen loyal to Premier Souvanna Vieniane government are under attack from artillery of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao forces.

MacDonald made the first speech when the conference went back into session after a week's recess.

"We do not see how the commission can do its work unless it is free to carry out investigations whenever and wherever it up desires," the British said.

Will Not Ask Death Penalty For Generals

PARIS (Reuters)—The prosecution at the trial of two former generals accused of heading last month's abortive army revolt in Algeria said today he would not ask for the death penalty.

Prosecutor Antonin Besson said his decision not to demand the full penalty provided under the law for the charges against former generals Maurice Challe and Andre Zeller followed "a week of menial torture."

Besson said he is "a maximum term of detention" of 20 years for both former generals for their part in the revolt.

Challe, 53, and Zeller, 63, are accused of illegally taking over a military command and organizing an insurrectional movement.

TEAM APPROACH TO MEDICINE RECOMMENDED

Welfare Council Now in Session

OTTAWA (CP)—A team approach to medicine was recommended Tuesday to the annual meeting of the Canadian Welfare Council as a way of solving modern - day problems of care and treatment.

In an assessment of Canada's health needs a panel supported group practice by doctors specializing as an imaginative way of coping with the complexities of modern medicine.

Dr. John Hastings of the University of Toronto's School of Hygiene said the pooling of knowledge was the only way to keep pace with medical advances. A close association with other professions was essential to do their best work.

Child welfare Supervisor of Toronto, secretary of the Ontario Medical Association, however, said group practice would not preserve the same doctor - patient relationship.

While discussing a drop-off in medical students, the panel displayed a fear of socialized medicine as being responsible. Shortage of doctors in this space age was blamed. Students who might have entered medicine are being lured into the more scientific careers.

Walter Boyd, co-ordinator of rehabilitation for the Manitoba department of public welfare said: "The whole purpose of the health workers. But they were hampered by inadequacy and a wastage of service was particularly evident in rehabilitation.

Proposed "team attacks" on many other welfare problems emerged as policy in other discussion groups into which the 450 conference delegates were divided.

Topics ranged from adjustions to needs of the aged.

Child welfare both an interprovincial and global scale were discussed at other sessions. Progress in intercountry adoptions were made "to assure that children anywhere in Canada can find homes to fit their needs."

He said World of Geneva, international director of the International Social Service, has proposed an inter-country adoption program that has placed 9,000 children in 15 countries since its inception in 1954.

A committee dealing with working mothers suggested "maternal salaries" be an inducement to keep mothers from taking paid employment outside the home. A mother's pay would be scaled to the number of children in the home.

LIBERALS THINK GOOFBALL BILL IS VIOLATION

Bill of Rights Broken Is Claim

OTTAWA (CP)—Has the government violated its own Bill of Rights in proposing a goofball crackdown?

The Liberals think so. They argued in the Commons Tuesday night that increased penalties of goofball ingredients—usually sedatives and sold-as-pep-tablets would be forced on the government proposals to establish their innocence in court.

And that, said Paul Martin (L—Essex East) and J. P. Deschatelets (L—Maisonneuve-Rosemont), rubs against the provisions of the 1960 Bill of Rights that every accused person must be presumed innocent until proven guilty.

Justice Minister Fulton was not in the House. He left the hospital earlier Tuesday on other business a move that postponed debate on the Criminal Code amendments setting out "capital" and "non-capital" offences.

Solicitor-General Browne contended that his colleague had checked the goofball bill and that "he has certified that this bill's interfere with the Bill of Rights."

CLAUSE SUSPENDED

Martin, a former criminal lawyer, was not satisfied. He suggested that the clause on goofballs be given an opportunity of establishing" that he has not possess it for the purpose of trafficking and that the prosecutor can try to refute that clause.

Paul Martineau, parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Diefenbaker, argued that such procedure had existed for years. A prime example was its use in the case of receiving stolen goods.

Whatever the outcome, the Liberals will soon get a second chance to raise virtually the same arguments. The bill is almost identical to that in the goofball legislation introduced in the government's new narcotics control bill, introduced in the Commons Monday.

Main purpose of the narcotics bill is to implement the government's promise to crack down on pushers while keeping them in custody.

SHOULD KEEP SEPARATE

The narcotic and goofball bills are being considered together. But Health Minister Monteith stressed the need for keeping them separate.

He explained that the goofball bill would place controls on the manufacture, importation and distribution of the main goofball ingredients—barbiturates and amphetamines, drugs already on the prescription list. Barbiturates are "drugs which are dropped into alcoholic drinks to provide a kick or stimulus which the user either requires or finds enjoyable," Mr. Monteith said.

But these drugs were not narcotics. Their medical uses were different—barbiturates as sedatives or for the relief of emotional tension, amphetamines for purposes including appetite control and relief of mental depression.

Two Contractors and Four Union Members Face Arrest

TORONTO (CP) — Roving squads of housing construction workers, which accounted for much of Metropolitan Toronto's building activity in the past year, have been ordered to stay off construction sites on apartment and housing subdivisions, are expected to turn their attention to western areas of Metro today.

New Toronto and the Parkdale area escaped the union raids Tuesday which saw the first mass arrests of strike and the arrest of four union members and two contractors.

Squads of up to 30 carloads of strikers, mainly immigrant workers, patrolled subdivisions in the hope they will be able to impose union conditions on the construction industry.

An Etobicoke contractor, Guiseppe Paolini, was charged with possessing a weapon dangerous to the public peace after he brandished a shotgun at union members who were pushing his workers, upsetting scaffolds and throwing away tools.

A second contractor, William Neckovic, 37, was arrested after the alleged pointing of a starter's pistol. Police said he threatened a group of strikers entering Etobicoke house before being overpowered and the pistol to police.

Henry Diesinger, 37, business agent for the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America (CLC) and union member Bruno Gubert were arrested in East York after 10 carloads of men ripped boring wires, overturned mortar boxes and swung pieces of lumber at workers for an apartment project.

Diesinger is charged with malicious damage and Gubert with malicious damage and common assault.

Antoni Carozza, 30, and Joseph Carazza, 34, were arrested

Rousing Welcome Given U.S. President and Wife

BULLETIN

OF from AP-Reuters

PARIS — President Kennedy and President de Gaulle reached "general agreement" today on the problem of West Berlin in the opening session of their allied policy conference in Paris.

PARIS (Reuters) — President Kennedy settled down to talks with President de Gaulle today after receiving a rousing welcome from thousands of cheering Parisians at the beginning of his three-day state visit to France.

The two leaders began their talks, which will take place in five meetings during the next three days, shortly after Mr. Kennedy and his wife arrived.

The talks are expected to cover the entire list of international problems as a prelude to Mr. Kennedy's summit meeting with Soviet Premier Khrushchev in Vienna this weekend.

De Gaulle also gave a lunch-eon party for Kennedy and his wife and 40 other guests including French Premier Michel Debre.

Hundreds of Parisians shouted "Vive Kennedy" as the car carrying the visiting president swept through the gates of the Elysee Palace, de Gaulle's official residence in the heart of their city.

THRONGS LINE STREETS

Tens of thousands of Parisians lined the streets in spring sunshine to cheer the president and his wife as they drove through the city from the airport.

Pierre Salinger, presidential press secretary to Kennedy, said he estimated the crowds at about 1,000,000.

A 101-gun salute boomed out as Kennedy entered the city of a big open convertible with de Gaulle. They smiled followed in the car behind with Mrs. de Gaulle.

The cannons were still blasting out over the River Seine when Kennedy reached the Quai d'Orsay, the French foreign ministry, where he and his wife will stay.

De Gaulle beckoned him up the steps of the building.

MOUNTED ESCORT

A motorcycle escort accompanied the two presidents and their wives past the Arc de Triomphe and then gave way to colorful mounted and dismounted republican guards on horseback.

De Gaulle and his wife greeted the Kennedys at Orly airport. The two leaders shook hands warmly as Kennedy emerged from the plane.

Mrs. Kennedy and Mme. de Gaulle were both dressed in simply tailored suits, Mrs. Kennedy in pale blue with a big straw hat.

In his airport speech, Kennedy paid glowing tribute to de Gaulle and emphasized the importance of their alliance to include to his weekend meeting in Vienna with Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Departing from his prepared text, Kennedy declared the personal relationship between France and the United States is essential for the preservation of freedom round the globe."

He described de Gaulle as "a captain in the field in the decisive days of the West for more than 20 years."

De Gaulle assured Kennedy of "our deepest esteem and friendship."

Sgt. Blatchford Gives Kiwanians Safety Lesson

The importance of parents and adults providing children with good examples in both safety and citizenship was emphasized by Sgt. Ralph Blatchford of the Belleville City Police when he spoke to local Kiwanians at their weekly dinner meeting held at the Quinte Centre yesterday afternoon.

The local safety official said that it was most important that young children be started out on the right foot as soon as possible so that they may assimilate their own way safely and that the good, safety habits which they must learn through habit are helped along by their parents.

Children have been matured over the years by following such examples set by their parents, the speaker said and gave several accounts of his personal experiences which bore this theory out. Good examples, he insisted, should be available at all times.

Sgt. Blatchford noted the effectiveness of the Elmer safety program, which the Kiwanis Club supports, in local schools in reminding children to obey safety rules and not to be careless around traffic. He also outlined the various forms of safety training at the different grade levels in the local schools. These levels include instruction, initially by the traffic safety officer and later by the class teacher, in safe practices, choosing a safe route to and from school and individually, safety in operating a bicycle.

It is appalling, the speaker noted, the number of children encountering the traffic officer who are afraid of policemen. He queried whether or not such an attitude might be traced to a lack of citizenship in the home and in the school. Good citizenship, he suggested, contributes much to good safety conduct. Apathy or indifference on the 'other hand, he considered, was one of the major contributing factors to many or the accidents resulting in loss of life and property today.

Sgt. Blatchford was thanked by Dan Hastings for his message, having been introduced by John Trafford, for his address. Acting president Leo McKee also expressed the thanks of the club for the assistance Sgt. Blatchford had rendered it in its safety campaign work in the community.

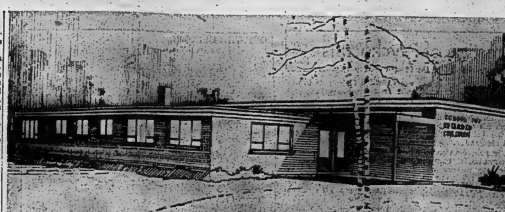
In light gold trading, McIntyre Porcupine was up ¾ to 33½.



The market finished ahead in extremely light trading Tuesday.

Steels and papers led the rise with Burlington, Algoma, Atlas and Dominion Foundries and steel all up, while Great Lakes, Consolidated and Price Brothers gained in the latter group.

On the exchange index, industrials rose .31 to 579.18, golds .76 to 81.43 base metals 1.28 to 105.71. The final volume was 1,028,000 shares compared with 1,706,000 Monday.

Base metals were slightly ahead all day, but made their strongest gain near the close. Hudson Bay Mining rose ¾ to 77¼, Labrador and Geco ½ to 24 and Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting ¼ to 52½. Falconbridge was up ⅜ to 54¾, and Consolidated Mining and Smelting ¼ to 27¾.

Western oils were tending to drop off near the close. Dome and Kerr Addison were both up ⅛ to 21¼ and 10¾, while McIntyre Porcupine fell ¼ to 33.

Chamber Plans Sept. Dinner

TRENTON—Due to the fact that a great many social events have been planned for June, the Chamber of Commerce has been unable to fix a date for a civic dinner to spark an all-out membership campaign, but has decided to go ahead with the campaign, while postponing the dinner until the fall. Tentative date for the dinner is Sept. 27. This was decided at a meeting of chamber directors last night.

The chamber will operate the tourist booth at the foot of Farley's Hill on the corner of Dundas St. W., and Division St., from July 1 to Sept. 5. The booth will be open six hours a day, including Sunday, and Miss Eva Morrison will be asked to operate it.

Three life preservers, two on the town dock and one on the bridge, placed there by a former chamber a few years ago, will be replaced. Chamber members expressed the view that the presence of life-saving devices, bearing the name of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce, created a false impression when the extreme age and dilapidated condition of the preservers themselves and the attached ropes, were considered. Members agreed that they would be loath to be either on the "throwing" end or the "receiving" end of the "life-savers."

One member thought that the preservers are probably older than a lot of people in Trenton."

Plead Guilty To 'Swinging The Train'

TRENTON — A magistrate's court yesterday, three Moncland youths, charged with riding on a Canadian Pacific Railway train with the intent of defrauding the company by not paying fares, informed the court, through the spokesman of the group, that they would plead guilty to "swinging the train."

Magistrate T. Y. Wills said that he was confused by the expression "to swing."

Crown Attorney John Pringle cleared the point by explaining that the expression meant "riding the rodd."

The trio was remanded for a week, at which time the services of an interpreter will be employed.

PAID $1,000

Special Prosecutor Gordon Ford said that in his summary of evidence he would show Const. Scott was paid a total of $1,000 intended as bribes.

During the hearing jurors and spectators strained to hear voices on a tape recording played for Const. Scott. Only portions of the recording were audible. Const. Scott identified one voice as that of Wright. The voice said: "I got the money." when Const. Scott asked him if his gambling contacts had agreed to pay him yet.

Const. Scott said that at one tavern dealing with Wright the man slipped him envelopes of bills" under the table.

The policeman said he was paid to tip Wright as to the times of raids on either of two clubs and as to OPP activity at gambling establishments.

He said the clubs were the Vets' Club in Cookstville, Ont., and the Ben Ramsay Club. Both clubs were in operation names for use during tip - off on raids and for other information.

Const. Scott said Wright told him the Cookstville club was doing "a slow death" because large floating crap games in adjacent Toronto were drawing all the potential business.

PLANS FELL THROUGH

Wright told Const. Scott said, there were plans to open a gaming house in St. Catharines but that this fell through because the New Ramsay Club was pulling in all the peninsula business and a new club would not attract the proper clientele.

He said he understood the St. Catharines, Thorold, Niagara Falls and Port Erie establishments were all just betting rooms and not full - scale gaming houses.

Const. Scott said that on Feb. 24, 1960, Wright told him there were good grounds to suspect there was someone other than himself giving information to gamblers" and that payoffs were going to someone else on the gambling squad.

"... Wright said there was at least one and maybe two" informants," Const. Scott said.

MENTIONED 'THIEVES'

At one point in the hearing, Const. Scott said Wright had referred to "the thieves." He said under questioning that he understood this to be a nickname for McDermott and Feeley.

After repeated reference to "the thieves" during Const. Scott's testimony, John Brooke, counsel for McDermott, objected.

Mr. Justice W. F. Spence ruled against him, saying that "the thieves" was the reference Const. Scott said was used by Wright in conversation and that it would be wrong to use anything else.

The trial continues today.

Expansion Job At Hospital Nears End

TRENTON — Almost a year ago, Mayor James MacDonald turned the first sod to mark the start of construction of a $775,000 extension to Trenton Memorial Hospital. This week, a spokesman for the general contractor, H. J. McFarland Construction Company of Picton, said that in spite of setbacks experienced by the workmen during the prolonged winter, the work was progressing favorably.

Many new rooms have been opened while renovations to sections of the original building have been carried out. The addition of three new wings and equipment installations will increase the bed capacity of the hospital from 66 to 100, which will go away with the overcrowded conditions experienced by the hospital for the past years.

Last week, the hospital's medical staff moved into new and larger operating rooms on the second floor. Rooms formerly used as operating rooms now will be used for patient recovery rooms and also provide space for a consultation room.

The laundry has been re-located on the first floor of the north wing. Although the new pediatrics ward is completed, it will not be opened until furniture and equipment are installed.

Workmen are engaged in adding the finishing touches to the exterior paint job on the new addition.

Four dwelling repair permits valued at $3,400, were issued; permits for construction of four garages (value $1,875).

Permission to build an addition to a local doctor's office was given and this work is valued at $6,000.

Education Bd. Sends Group To Toronto

TRENTON — A delegation from the Board of Education, headed by the chairman of planning, T. S. Ketcheson, met Tuesday with E. J. Davies of the Department of Education at Toronto, to discuss existing secondary school facilities in Trenton and the possibilities of expansion.

Under a federal provincial government plan, eligible municipalities may come under a program whereby the governments concerned erect and equip technical schools, which the municipalities must maintain.

A spokesman for the Trenton board said that it was anxious to explore every avenue by which Trenton taxpayers may be saved money.

Other board members attending the meeting were board chairman, L. G. Phinney, Rev. Roelie Reid, and Mrs. Gabrielle Griffiths. V. P. Carswell, supervising principal of Trenton's public schools, also attended the meeting in an advisory capacity.

No New Industries in 1960

The Industrial Development Branch of the Ontario Department of Commerce and Development has issued another of its annual reviews of the province's industrial growth—and once again Belleville's name is conspicuous by its virtual absence.

The report lists 133 companies as "among the more important establishing a new manufacturing industry in Ontario through buying an industrial site, or renting, building or purchasing industrial premises" in 1960. None of these 113 companies located here. Little Brighton has two new industries listed, Cobourg two and Campbellford one, but Belleville is not mentioned. Neither is Trenton—but that town has made the "honor roll" on several occasions in recent years.

There appears to be an ebbing of the once-strong tide which was sweeping so many new plants into Metropolitan Toronto. Of the 113 new plants, only 38 located there—a high figure but not, by memory serves us right, as large a percentage of the total as in some recent years. If manufacturers are beginning to recognize the many advantages of locating in smaller centres, Belleville ought to be able to present a convincing argument to firms planning new plants. In few areas are the advantages of close proximity to large concentrations of consumers, unexcelled shipping facilities and a large but stable working force, all important to the employer, combined with easy accessibility to lakes, beaches and wide open spaces, for the greater enjoyment and contentment of employees.

However, the picture of past achievements here is not all black. Belleville's name appears three times in the list of 561 Ontario manufacturing plants named as "amongst the more important making additions to their existing facilities." The companies which expanded operations here were Bakelite, Deloro Stellite and Mead Johnson of Canada Ltd.

Meanwhile we all know that our city continues to grow. Sometimes we may be tempted to add "for no apparent reason." But is this not the soundest type of growth? It indicates an inherent stability and vitality, a general recognition by many firms of our strategic location in Eastern Ontario and the advantages to be gained by making it the centre of sales and distribution work in the region.

Still, one soundly-financed, new "growth" industry would be more than welcome. Just because we are not standing still does not mean that we may not find ourselves in that unhappy position later unless we "sell" our city to outsiders.

Why Wait?

This Friday seven Latin American countries will be forming the Latin American Free Trade Association which is dedicated to the mutual elimination of tariff barriers over a 12-year period. This is a significant move towards strengthening that region's lagging economy.

It can be interpreted as such due to the accomplishments which may be observed in the union of the Inner Six and the Outer Seven. This sort of a union, which involves an almost supernatural effort to cast aside ingrown needs for protection of the small, conservative domestic enterprises as well as the large vested interests, has in the long run proven beneficial not only to the commercial enterprises affected, but also to the working forces of the countries concerned.

Instances are readily available where the prosperity of an industry in one country within a customs union has directly benefitted the working force of another country within that union and vice versa, to the mutual benefit of both. The over-all result is the creation of a strong economic entity, in which exists a healthy rate of economic development, where stagnation and unemployment usually occurred previously.

It would seem that Canada might well benefit by membership in such an association for we can hardly claim to be an industrial giant capable of standing on our own feet as far as industrial development and the fullest utilization of our working force is concerned.

If our government was as enterprising as it would have us believe it would certainly have taken steps to put Canada on the advantageous side of such a customs union by now.

It is obvious that our domestic market is incapable of supporting our highly developed industrial productive capacity and that economic salvation for both our working force and many of our industries is going to have to come from foreign trade. If we can enter into trade within an association wherein our products are not discriminated against through tariffs or embargoes we might meet the needs of our country much more satisfactorily than at present.

Prestige of Psychocrats

By Percy Hovard in the London Sunday Express

Today if a Commons committee discusses crime or education or the trade in pornography it is the evidence of the psychiatrists which will be accepted with the awe once accorded to the prayers of archbishops and cardinals.

If the nation's morals are debated on television, it can be assumed that the camera will finally turn with reverence to the authoritative, saintly lilt-eyed face of Dr. David Stafford-Clark.

He, or — if he cannot be present — some other well-known psychiatrist, will then pronounce the final verdict. There will be no more to say.

Dissenting voices are hushed. The word has been given.

For such is the extraordinary position in which the psychiatrists now find themselves.

From being a handful of men struggling bravely through trial and error, to tackle disorders about which little is known, they have, perhaps, ever be known), the psychiatrists have become a ruling class. They have become the psychocrats.

Because of their day-to-day work often involves the morals of their patients, the psychocrats have assumed similar duties in the moral politics of the entire nation.

It is as if the planning for D-Day had been put into the hands of the chaplains of the armaments factories. And the results are no less disastrous.

• • •

Look at the question of sexual crime. Here is a problem which, established with tricky wristwork by the experts, are convinced that the solution to sex crime is one the increase to a menacing extent. Psychiatrists are right to be disturbed.

Yet what explanation is offered by the psychiatrists?

A BBC program summed up their attitude in a brief and frightening phrase. Belleville's name appears three times in the list of 561 Ontario manufacturing plants named as "amongst the more important making additions to their existing facilities." The companies which expanded operations here were Bakelite, Deloro Stellite and Mead Johnson of Canada Ltd.

Meanwhile we all know that our city continues to grow. Sometimes we may be tempted to add "for no apparent reason." But is this not the soundest type of growth? Pact Limits Air Liability

Financial Post

In case of death or injury in an air accident on an international flight, the airline's liability is nearly always limited to $8,300. The assumption here is that this ceiling is embodied in a treaty of 1929, known as the Warsaw Convention, ratified by 45 countries, Canada included.

It was brought to the public notice by a recent case. William Kapell, a famed American concert pianist, died in the peak of his high earning powers, in a Washington-to-Australia-to-San Francisco plane crashed. His widow sued for $1,150,000 but got only the Warsaw minimum.

Damages higher than $8,300 may be obtained, under the treaty, only if "wilful misconduct" can be proved. Clearly this is next to impossible. As the lawyer for the plaintiff in the Kapell case said, announcing an appeal: "We're going to catch up with that treaty. Now, it seems, to collect you have to prove a pilot was determined to commit suicide."

In 1955 the Warsaw signatories agreed, at The Hague, that the figure fixed in 1929 was no longer fair, and should be doubled to $16,600. But 30 countries have not ratified this "Hague protocol" before it becomes effective; and by no means all of the leading Canada, have done so.

Why hasn't Ottawa acted? What is Canadian policy on this matter? At Ottawa neither External Affairs nor Transport can throw light on these questions. Neither has been a party to a parliamentary debate on the subject at any time. Apparently Canada just has not got round to the Hague protocol. A question should be asked about it in the House of Commons.

Perhaps the Warsaw convention needs a new look entirely. Right now it seems as nearly stacked against the overhead lines is that they are wooden and the sign stands at five. This is the case even of Shakespeare's "good" character; the gentleman. In "Romeo and Juliet" the two lovers have the superficially good in order to prevent Mercutio and the foul-speaking Nurse from being the only ones left on.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS.

FACE NEW TRUTH

There are people in the world who might be called "offbeats." This is a musical term, but it is also being applied today to people who step out of the line in order to thinking for themselves, who see things which others do not see and hear things which others do not hear. The offbeats are the people who make great discoveries.

The prophets of Israel were offbeats. Socrates was an offbeat. So were Columbus and Galileo. Christ Himself was an offbeats. Practically all the great inventors and men who stepped outside limits which orthodox science had erected and insisted on finding reality beyond such limits. Usually they were criticized. Sometimes they were persecuted. But the offbeats have been people who have led us to new ways of thinking. They have made the great scientific discoveries. Pasteur was an offbeat. The scientific world roared with laughter over the fact that he attributed certain diseases to the presence of minute organisms which he called germs. Fifty years later it is big league.

The open mind does not accept every new thing, but the open mind examines every new thing. Sometimes the most fantastic ideas turn out to be new and valuable discoveries. Einstein questioned some of the findings of Sir Isaac Newton, and Einstein will stand with Aristotle and a few others of the world's greatest thinkers.

Do not be scornful of offbeats. Do not hesitate to be an offbeat yourself. But never be a beatnik.

Actor's Forte Is Vice Says Mr. Harris

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Several readers have asked me to comment on the "striking coincidence" that all four film performers who resigned Oscar awards last month won them for portraying immoral or unpleasant characters.

The more paranoid of my correspondents seem to feel that there is almost a "conspiracy" in the choice of certain characterizations on the public. What they overlook is the sincerest fact that, in the theatre, the "bad" parts are usually the best.

An actor preparing a drunkard can scarcely fail to arouse the audience to intense admiration for his craft; there is, indeed, an old saying that if you fail as a drunkard in the theatre you would fail in any role. Likewise, no actress in the part of a prim spinster has ever been anything but a rousing success.

Many performers have told me that they understand such characters much better than they do heroes and heroines; and, of course, the constant striving for clear-cut moral lines is that they are wooden and do not stand out in life. This is the case even of Shakespeare's "good" character; the gentleman. In "Romeo and Juliet" the two lovers have the superficially good in order to prevent Mercutio and the foul-speaking Nurse from being the only ones left on.

Shakespeare was least successful with his so-called heroines: Portia is really a small trickster; Rosalind is "a Yorkshire lit" in her part and aggressive; Isabella in "Measure For Measure" is a prig; Miranda is "The Tempest" is a cardboard figure, as is her "good" sweetheart, Ferdinand. Viola in "Twelfth Night" alone seems human and to the mark.

Writers tend to put forth their finest efforts in depicting wicked and unappetizing characters; this is what makes them so easy and satisfying to play. Vice seems, somehow, more human to us than virtue — because we are able to identify it with our own defects, while goodness remains a mystery from beyond the limits of man's mortal knowledge.

Need for Sleep Is Basic, It's Not Acquired Habit

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: A group of us would like to know if it is possible for a normal human being to live without sleep.

"Our teacher thinks that if you taper off gradually a person would be able to live without sleep, because sleeping is a habit, and habits can be changed.

"We think that without complete rest, as obtained by sleep, the human body would become sluggish and out of order, and you would soon die. We would like your view. M. D."

I wonder if your teacher might not have been tossing an idea at you to see what you'd do with it!

Habit may — and I'm sure does — have some effect on the amount of sleep we need. But the basic need for sleep isn't a habit. It is a genuine need. Small babies sleep 20 per cent of the time at first. Cats, dogs, aardvarks, zivets bees, flies, animals of every sort not an acquired habit.

The amount of sleep we need lessens — we grow older — but at a very great age, we, too, begin to sleep more (or snooze or catnap) a great deal.

In ancient times, and in some modern instances, preventing a person from sleeping was used as a method of torture.

If great disasters, personnel, rescue workers, etc., may go for extended periods without sleep — but they reach a point at which they must have it. They fall asleep on their feet, or simply collapse.

The army has done considerable research on sleep. In research centres (the Lafayette Clinic in Detroit comes to mind at once) experiments have been carried on, based on the fact that if a person is kept constantly awake for several days, he lapses into "micro-sleep choices," that is, an induced and temporary form of sleeping in which he is disoriented, "sees" things that aren't there, can't remember, or reason. He becomes, temporarily, like a severely ill patient in a mental hospital.

I've heard of various people who insisted that they could get along on a very small amount of sleep, perhaps two to four hours a night. But I've also heard that these same people acquire the knack of falling asleep at any time of day, snatching five minutes here and 10 there, even when people were talking to them. I believe Thomas A. Edison was one of these. He bragged on napping.

No, sleep isn't just a habit. It is a need. It may be modified to some degree by habit, but it can't be eliminated.

And on that score, I'd like to remind college and high school students that using coffee or "stay-awake" pills" to ward off sleep isn't a very good method of getting things done. It's possible to goad the human system into staying awake for more or less. But confusion, inaccuracy, inability to remember facts that you've crammed into a mind that wants to rest, are the price you pay. It's too much price!

"Learning to go without sleep" is the title of a book that the farmer who tried to teach his hens not to roost — a little bit in the oats the first day, a little more each day, and then the horse finally starved to death.

"Dear Dr. Molner: A doctor once told me I had an exceptionally small heart and that was all he said about it. Can this be true? I'm very active. Should I take things easier? — N. L."

That's nothing to worry about. Position and apparent size will not affect the size the patient's build.

Note to E. N. K.: At age 55 and six monthly period for three years, we can be categorical in answering: Pregnancy will not occur. (The discharge warrants investigation by your doctor.)

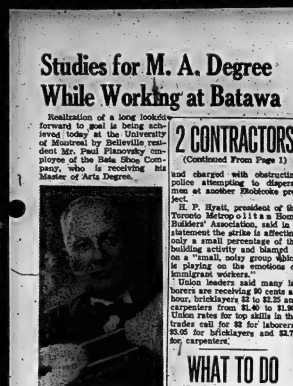
ENCOURAGE

You may think the above title is a very commonplace one. It is. So is the encouragement it produces. But think what the world over to the "staff of life" it has been and is. We owe to the encouragement that has come to you from time to time.

Bread belongs to the stomach, but encouragement is food for the soul.



A human being may be grievously afflicted bread to satisfy his craving and hunger, but no human being was ever starved to death for the lack of encouragement. In fact, the longer he is starved the more successful he becomes the more he wants.

Encouragement is the salt that savors the smiles and joys of the world.

Today study the first dozen faces you see. Do you think you could pick out the one that wouldn't beam and brighten after a little encouragement? Answer — no, not one. Every human face is a confidence producer. But think what the world owes to the "staff of life" and to the debt we

Studies for M. A. Degree While Working at Batawa

Realization of a long looked-forward to goal is being actively realized today at the University of Montreal by Belleville resident Mrs. Paul Planovsky employee of the Eddy Match Company, who is receiving his Master of Arts Degree.

Studies for his M.A. degree were carried on by Mr. Planovsky in conjunction with his regular employment at Batawa. His M.A. thesis was entitled "The Tactics used by the communist states in their fight against Christian churches".

A native of Czechoslovakia where before World War II he was a professor in geography and physical culture, Mr. Planovsky fought as an army captain with the Allied forces against the Nazi armies on the Eastern front.

Following the war he was mayor of the city of Presov in his native Slovakia and was a member of parliament at Prague, holding the post of deputy chairman on the committee of national defence.

LEFT IN 1948

After the communist coup d'etat in 1948 Mr. Planovsky left his country with 80,000 other persecuted patriots. In exile he is a member of the Council of Free Czechoslovia (in Washington) and is also a member of the Presidium of the Czechoslovak National Association in Canada.

Now living at R. R. 3 Belleville, for the past four years he has been a regular member of the choir at Bridge Street United Church and is also a member of the A.O.T.S. Choir. He is a member of Maple Memorial Lodge No. 16.

Oral French Survey To Be Held This Week

A fact-finding survey on Oral French is going to be conducted in the Belleville Public Schools this week by the Belleville and District Home and School Council in co-operation with the Belleville Public School Board.

In this survey, parents will be asked three important questions —

(1) Are you interested in the teaching of Oral French in your children in school?

(2) Would you object to the investment of a portion of your school tax dollar in the payment of a salary to a teacher of oral French?

(3) If you favor instruction of Oral French and the School Board cannot provide instruction for grades 5 to 8, would you like the Board to consider some other means of providing such instruction on limited groups of children on a voluntary basis?

Throughout Ontario the question of whether a second language should be taught in the public schools is being given serious consideration by parents' groups, school boards, educators and government, officials.

SURVEYS

Surveys made in Ontario indicate that it is practical to institute Oral French in the Public Schools and that if started in the early grades, the pupils will have received by graduation sufficient instruction to be able to speak and comprehend French. They also indicate that if a child receives this type of instruction at this age, he, or she, will retain this comprehension throughout life without the language being spoken in the home or outside the school.

The normal method of instruction is by a rotating bilingual instructor, teaching Oral French in four 30 minute periods a week.

Parents are urged to complete the survey sheets as soon as received and to return them to their respective schools the following day.

The Oral French committee of the Belleville and District Home and School Council will tabulate the findings of this survey and present them to the Belleville Public School Board for their considersation and information.

OUTSIDER WINS

it was considered the most wide-open race in years.

The lead changed hands several times before Paidlin, Scottish-owned but ridden by French jockey Rogert Poincelet, pulled away to win by two lengths.

Moutiers, owned by the 80-year-old widow of American publisher Ralph Strassburger, was favorite for the race at 5-2 but was never in the contest after Paidium turned on the speed in the stretch.

Paidium's victory accomplished over a hard, dry turf course after weeks of near drought, was the biggest upset in the classic since Abeyoun won at 100-to-1 odds in 1953.

Paidium — a sensational one — had the crowd roaring wildly. Paidium did not make his dash until the last furlong.

For a few strikes it looked as though he would have a hard task getting the better of Parda and Dicta Drake.

PULLED AHEAD

But Paidium had what counted as the horses raced up the slight hill to the finish post. He'll pulled ahead and walked away with the lucrative purse.

All the first three horses are owned by women. So once again the cycle of a woman winning the Derby every six years since 1947 came up.

From a good start, Time Greine settled down in front with Parda and Verdict, Moutiers, Dual, Pardao and Paidium in close pursuit.

At the top of the hill, with a mile to go, Patrick's Choice took the lead with Boundless Dual and Time Greine. Paidium at this point was the back marker.

Supreme Verdict moved into second place behind Patrick's Choice as he field reached the six furlong mark. Dual and Moutiers still were prominent.

HIT THE FRONT

Supreme Verdict hit the front as the horses rounded the sharp Tattenham Corner into the straight with three furlongs to go.

Two furlongs from home Cipriani went ahead. Dicta Drake, Sovrango, Latin Lover, Paidium and Pardao were there to challenge.

Then Dicta Drake, Pardao and Paidium took over and battled in the wire.

The scene at the track for the Derby—a mixture of country fair, carnival and horse race—was a mingling of society elegance and raucous gaiety.

Men in grey top hats and morning dress and women in extravagant outfits contrasted strikingly with Cockney families enjoying the garish Derby Day carnival.

Retiring Teachers Given Macdonald Paintings at Banquet in Their Honor

Two Belleville teachers were paid verbal and tangible tribute Monday evening when they were the honored guests at their retirement banquet. The dinner marked the end of two long careers in their chosen profession.

George J. C. Wallace and William Gordon Anderson, agreed highly respected teachers of this city, are leaving the world of the classroom as of June 29, this year.

The dinner was held in the Masonic Temple. Several hundred people were in attendance. This number included family and friends of the retiring gentlemen, present Belleville staff members, their husbands and wives, many former pupils of both men, several board members and their wives, Inspector Jack Chubbs and Mrs. Cousins, and Superintendent Lawrence Kells and Mrs. Kells. Among the out-of-town guests were Mitsies Moorcroft, Jack Carswell, Norma Arkell, Frances Sullivan, and Mr. Anderson's sister-in-law, Mrs. Pope. Both Mr. Anderson and Mr. Wallace were presented with original oil paintings by artist Manly Macdonald. The paintings reflected the lovely coloring of the Quinte District in autumn. Friends of long standing, Don Osborne and Daisy Young presented the paintings.

Following the banquet and the evening was a musical treat by Mrs. Arnold Downes. She sang a light French melody, followed by Vespers, better known to many as Christopher Robin by A. A. Milne. Her third choice set the trend and mood for the rest of the evening — Our Best To You. Pat was accompanied at the piano by Clifford Templer.

President of the Teachers' Institute, Mrs. Clayton Phillips, was chairman of the banquet. Guest speaker was Mr. T. A. Spafford, assisted by Mrs. Dorothy Blakely.

The first words of Mr. L. A. Kells, when called upon to speak, were words of welcome to the many retired teachers present. Calling them by name, he made each one feel like a member, once more, of the Belleville staff. He expressed his personal appreciation for the fine job Mr. Anderson and Mr. Wallace had accomplished in over 40 years of teaching.

BOTH ARDENT FISHERMEN

Everett Fairman, as one who had known both men for many years, told how they were ardent fishermen. They'll be found, when school starts in September, casting their lines in the lakes north of Belleville.

William Gordon Anderson commenced teaching in September, 1919, in Richmond township, Lennox and Addington, and taught in various schools in the township until 1920. He came to Belleville as a civic-principal in September, 1920, at Queen Alexandra School. He taught classes, supervised sports when they played for the Harvey Cup, drilled a Cadet Corps, taught marksmanship, shared in yard and corridor duty, all the while earning the respect of hundreds of pupils and teachers. In 1933 he was appointed principal of Queen Alexandra school. In 1951 he was honored with the principalship of the newly completed Queen Elizabeth school. He is completing 47 rewarding years in the teaching profession.

George Wallace commenced teaching at Roe-20, Thurlow, in September, 1921, and handed in his resignation the second day. Conditions were not what one would expect of a school. He was persuaded to stay by the late W. C. Macdonald, father of the artist, Manly Macdonald, who painted the presentation pictures.

Mr. Wallace has been thankful all these years that he stayed to stay teaching. He moved to No. 15, Ameliasburg, in 1922, then to No. 22, Thurlow, for two years. He was principal of Pickering public school during 1925-1933. He held the post of vice-principal in Queen Alexandra for many years beginning in 1933. The keynote of his entire career has been his deep, unselfish devotion to duty. He cared for his wife during her lengthy and fatal illness. He carried out all his duties as vice-principal and often returned to the school after midnight to attend to an ice skating rink at Queen Alex. Many boys from the Belleville hockey team were former member of that school. He loved the boys and girls and is fondly thought of by all.

TEACHERS THANKED

Kyle Langabeer, the present chairman of the Belleville Public School Board, thanked the retiring teachers for accepting the responsibilities of their positions through the years. He introduced many past and present Board members, several of whom were School Chairmen.

Gordon Anderson received a standing ovation from the guests in the huge hall. He expressed appreciation for his lovely wife, Ruth, and her care and devotion. George Wallace's friendship was much in evidence. He had received co-operation from the various school boards who gave careful consideration, long hours, and long thought, to all school problems. He thanked Mr. Kells and Mr. Cousins for their continuous constructive help. His staffs were always loyal and co-operative. Mr. Anderson feels that our young people are the hope of our nation, and he enjoyed having a part in their training for the future — he'll take it as it comes, with no definite plans.

George Wallace, too, received a thunderous standing ovation. He thanked the Board, inspectors and friends who had made teaching such a joy to him. His former pupils consider him to be a very fair person. His classes always were very interesting.

To these two loyal teachers are given the heartiest good wishes for a long, eventful, active and interesting retirement.

'Children's Aid Function' Outlined

About 40 foster parents of the Children's Aid Society met with members of the Society Board and staff at Thurlowby United Church, Belleville, on Monday night.

The meeting was the first of a series to be held throughout the year to come.

The local director of the Society, Bruce M. Kerr, acting as chairman for the evening, welcomed the guests and introduced to them Mrs. R. E. Follwell, chairman of the committee planning the evening, Mrs. James H. Forrester, president of the Society and the members of the agency staff.

The foster parents were then in turn introduced by the member of staff supervising the child or children in their home.

A series of posters depicting the structure and financing of the agency were explained by Miss Betty-Ann Makar and Miss Enid Miller of the children's staff.

This was followed by the showing of a 30-minute film entitled "The Deep Well". It dealt with the work of a family-focused welfare agency and showed how the agency, through casework serves to its clients, helped them to resolve their problems and thus live a fuller and more useful life.

Mr. Kerr outlined the function of a Children's Aid Society, the policies of the local Society and the manner in which the staff are organized to take care of the various areas of activity such as protection, child care, unmarried parents and adoption. A question and answer period which lasted for approximately 30 minutes concluded the program.

Mrs. Follwell thanked the foster parents for their interest and said that the meetings would be resumed in the early fall.

A buffet-lunch was served by the ladies of Tabernacle United Church.

Plumbers May Be Required To Have Licence

Plumbers doing contract work in the city may soon have to have a licence to carry on their trade.

According to City Manager J. E. Reynolds the city public works department is considering the setting up of an examining board to examine plumbers before being granted a licence to operate.

In the past there has been no examining board for plumbers' allowing completed plumbing work has to be passed by inspectors.

The completion of the new retaining wall at the Graham apartments on Pinnacle Street was reported to the public works committee at their committee meeting Monday evening.

Also at the meeting planned work for the improvement of College Street was discussed, the work being expected to get underway in late June or early July, following laying of a watermain by the public utilities commission.

The Experts Say

Buying Husband's Shirts Can Be Extremely Confusing

By EDNA BLAKELY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — So you want to buy your husband a shirt?

For the woman who thinks all shirts are alike, her first venture into the men's shop may be a bewildering experience.

There are 17 different styles of collars and men usually have definite ideas which they like best.

The part of Canada a man lives in may affect his choice of shirt.

In the Maritimes, men tend to wear conservative shirts for dress wear but burst forth in bright colors for sport shirts, says Jim Forsyth whose family has been connected with the shirt - manufacturing business at Kitchener, Ont., for more than 50 years. And the Maritime make doesn't like the Ivy League look.

Quebec men shy away from button-down collars. They prefer the rounded collar with eyelet and bar. For the uninitiated, the bar fits through the eyelets and lies underneath the tie, holding the collar flat.

Button - down collars and the British look are most popular in Ontario. Blue shades and bold stripes are associated with the British look which is coming to the fore in men's fashions this year.

Mr. Forsyth says British Columbians tend to buy more expensive shirts. "They look for quality."

Calgary, he declares, sets the pace for men's fashions—"it has to be to get the Canadian men's style centre along with Edmonton."

Montrealers were also regarded as style - conscious dressers—"they dress better than men in New York."

The fact that many men own and wear white shirts probably is due to the fact that 60 per cent are bought by women and many women like to see men in white shirts, Mr. Forsyth says.

Following the Second World War, the sale of coloured shirts dropped sharply, because many former servicemen were tired of the khaki and blue shirts they wore with their uniforms.

Checks and patterns were introduced with the Ivy League look. Now bold brown and blue stripes are becoming popular with the advent of the British look.

Discussing the care of shirts, Mr. Forsyth discourages the use of bleach because, he says, it rots the cloth, may discolor it and leave an odor.

When ironing the collar, iron away from the points to make the collar lie flat.

And be sure to ask your husband what size he wears before buying a shirt. Men often get a shirt that nearly fits, will wear it in an emergency then stick it away in a drawer because it isn't comfortable.

PATON — WINSTANLEY

Christ Church, Belleville, was the setting on Saturday, May 20, at 3.00 p.m. for a very pretty springtime wedding when the rector, Archdeacon J. B. Creegan, united in marriage, Carole Lynne Winstanley, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Winstanley, to James Douglas Paton, of Erindale, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Paton.

The church organist, Mr. John Croyden Withers, presided at the console of the organ, and accompanied the choir of eight boys in their rendition of appropriate hymns.

Given in marriage by her father, the lovely bride was charming in her short, white organza bridal gown having a Chantilly lace bodice with rounded scalloped neckline and elbow-length sleeves. She wore a matching headdress and elbow-length veil of silk illusion tulle, and carried a bouquet of white carnations.

Her only attendant was Miss Sheila Seger, who was attired in mauve organza with full skirt, matching headdress and accessories. She carried a bouquet of yellow Sheila Brush mums.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Gerry Morris, of Toronto, while Mr. Larry Hesensburg, of Toronto and Mr. Roland Porte, of Belleville, ushered the guests.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held at the bride's home, where the guests were received by the bride's mother, wearing a blue and pink printed silk sheath gown with matching three-quarter length coat, white accessories and corsage of pink roses. The bridegroom's mother, in pink with matching jacket and accessories and corsage of pink roses, also received.

The bride's table was appointed with white linen damask, and centred by a three-tier wedding cake flanked on either side by tall white candles in silver holders. The bridal bouquets lent an additional nuptial note.

For travelling the bride wore a mauve and green printed terylene dress with pink carnation corsage and all-green accessories.

Guests attended from Montreal; Toronto; Hamilton; Oakville; Richmond Hill; Chicago and Belleville.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was the honored guest at a kitchen shower given by her personal friends and at a presentation by the girls of the Industrial Acceptance Corporation, when she was the recipient of a crystal shower.

Mr. and Mrs. Paton are residing in Belleville.

Liverpudlian Fruit Tarts

By Mary Moore

My niece Beverley Berryman, ophthalmologist) came from Liverpool for Pete's and Margy's wedding.

Before she returned we had a family dinner party and she telephoned beforehand to ask if she could help me. I accepted with alacrity and told her she could help with the dessert.

It was some luscious fruit tarts and after she arrived we were feeling over what we should call them. I thought of "Suddenly It's-Summer Fruit Tarts." But since she came from Liverpool and did all of the assembling and had such a big hand in them and since I want you to remember them forever I am calling them

LIVERPUDLIAN FRUIT TARTS:

Note: I baked the tart shells in individual ramekins 4 3-4" in diameter by 1 1-2" deep because ordinary tart pans were too small for my liking. I wanted 8 big important-looking luscious tarts. So for the pastry for the shells I used 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 cup good quality shortening, 1 teaspoon salt and 5 tablespoons cold water. Sift together the sifted flour and salt, cut in the shortening with pastry blender until it resembles coarse oatmeal in size. Drizzle the water over slowly, mixing with a fork until all flour particles are moistened. Press into a ball and roll out to 3 -16" or 1-8" thickness. (I cut this out using a saucer) white, made a circle which lined the inside of my ramekins neatly. You could make 6 or 10 rounds if you wish to fit regular tart tins.) Prick with a fork and bake at 450 deg. Fahr. until they are tinged with gold. Carefully turn out and cool on rack.

FILLING:

Two cups rhubarb sauce (see below), 2 pints fresh strawberries washed, hulled and halved (save 8 perfect ones for topping), 1 cup drained canned pineapple chunks or raw pineapple, 3-4 cup whipping cream. Put the rhubarb sauce out up 1 pound washed rhubarb, add 1-2 cup water and simmer until tender — about 4 minutes. Mix together dry, 1 cup sugar, 3 tablespoons cornstarch, 1-4 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-4 teaspoon nutmeg, 1-8 teaspoon cloves, 1-4 teaspoon salt and when very well mixed stir into the rhubarb, over low heat until thickened. Remove from heat and add enough red food coloring (at least 1-2 teaspoon) to give a warm red color. Cool. Fold into the rhubarb the halved strawberries and drained pineapple chunks. When serving lime arrives fill shells with the fruit filling and top with unsweetened whipped cream. Decorate top of each with a perfect berry. Beverley and I left the table after the salad course, telling the rest of the company to converse amicably while we took our limit assembling the dessert. I did not want this filling to soak the pastry during mealtime. We served the 8 luscious-looking large tarts on Eleanor's huge glass serving plate and not one crumb was left. Do try them during the present rhubarb-strawberry season.

NOTE:

The spices and cornstarch in the rhubarb sauce make an interesting addition to the stewed rhubarb above, to be served "as is" for dessert.

Hastings-Pr. Ed. Belleville WA Holds Final Presbytery Meeting

At the final meeting of the Hastings and Prince Edward branch of the Belleville Presbytery W.A. held in St. Andrew's United Church in Marmora, last Thursday, the 16 past presidents of the association, nine of whom were present were called to the front of the assembly and presented with corsages. Mrs. J. A. Lott, presidentd when the association was first formed in 1953, led the procession, and was followed by Mrs. J. McKown, Miss A. Hickman, Mrs. H. Hilts, Mrs. G. E. Dobbs, Mrs. M. R. Davidson, Mrs. A. N. Fyear, Mrs. J. R. Marsh and Mrs. F. Davidson, the present president, Mrs. C. Macklin, Mrs. P. Lent, Mrs. E. Ward, Mrs. J. M. Wood, and Mrs. R. C. Jackson were unable to be present.

Following the ceremony an historical sketch of the Hastings and Prince Edward W.A. of the Belleville Presbytery was presented by Mrs. Fyear. Through the efforts of the Rev. S. F. Dixon, minister on the Milford charge, the association was formed and held its first meeting in 1933, in June 1934, 40 societies responded to the roll call, reporting a total of just under $10,000 raised. Today 103 associations are members and recently $19,000 was raised in 1960. This Presbytery W.A. is the initiative in organizing the Bay of Quinte Conference W.A. in 1931, and had the honor of having Mrs. J. M. Wood chosen as its first president. Mrs. G. E. Dobbs as its last president, both from this Presbytery. Since Dominion Council W.A. was formed in 1940, thirteen members of its executive have spoken at Presbytery W.A. meetings.

SPEECHES

Mrs. J. L. Halpenny, a past president of Dominion Council of W.A., was guest speaker at the afternoon session of this meeting. Her topic was the United Church Women, the new organization which is to come into being January 1, 1962. Having been secretary of the committee and the commission appointed by General Council to study the work of women in the church, and also director of the continuing committee to implement the recommendations in the report made to General Council last fall, she spoke with authority on her subject.

She said that the commission gave long careful and prayerful study of the WA, the WMS and the related boards of the church, their findings being as follows: "Because of duplication of effort, some competition, the changing pattern of church life in new suburbs, in downtown city churches, the difficulties of obtaining leadership in rural areas, and in mid-week groups in city churches," the commission decided to recommend that all the women of the church be invited to form one organization and that the manual of the United Church of Canada be rewritten to provide for the necessary changes in the boards of the church.

Mrs. Halpenny distributed a chart showing the signs of the new "United Church Women" within the congregation, and its relationship to the other boards and committees within the local church.

U.C.W. FUNCTIONS

At the bottom of the chart, the purpose and functions of the U.C.W. were listed and Mrs. Halpenny discussed these in detail, enlarging on them, and answering questions asked from the floor. She concluded by stating that there are approximately 400,000 women in the United Church who belong to no organization, and challenged the women to enlist all the women of the church in the total mission of the church.

The meeting opened in the morning with the theme hymn and prayer followed by devotions conducted by Mrs. Wellman, Mrs. Thompson and Mrs. Seymour of Springbrook W.A. Hymns on the theme, "I am the Way, the Truth and the Life", it was pointed out that the materialistic civilization has lost sight of the necessity of things of the spirit. "If we believe our help is in the Lord, we must translate it into action before it is too late".

After the reports of the treasurer and secretaries were given, Mrs. F. Davidson, president, told of the budget fund set up by the Conference W.A. to help students, men or women, who are entering training for full time service in the church.

It was decided to vote $100 from Presbytery W.A. funds for this worthwhile cause. Should local W.A.'s wish to contribute, the fund will remain open until the end of July, and contributions may be sent to Mrs. C. W. Smith, R.R. No. 1, Belleville, who is the Presbytery W.A. treasurer.

At the last executive meeting, $100 had been voted to the Lay Foundation of Presbytery to help a student minister. Also, Mrs. J. R. Marsh and Mrs. A. N. Fyear had been appointed then, to the provincial committee of Presbytery. Since Belleville Presbytery W. A. has two branches, it was voted to unite the Hastings and Prince Edward W.A. and the Lennox and Addington W.A. at the end of this year, so that the new Belleville Presbyterial of United Church Women would be formed in 1962. The inaugural meeting of this organization will be held in Bridge St. United church, Belleville, on January 10, 1962.

GREETINGS

Mrs. C. J. Meiklejohn, president of Marmora W.A. graciously welcomed the ladies to the church and the president of Mt. Pleasant replied. Greetings were brought to the assembly by Mrs. George Carlisle, president of Belleville Presbyterial W.A.S.; Mrs. G. E. Dobbs, president of Bay of Quinte Conference W.A.; Mrs. Hewitt of Marmora Anglican Church, Mrs. R. Wells of the Free Methodist Church; Mrs. M. McCoy of the Pentecostal Church, Rev. M. McLeod, minister of St. Andrew's United Church and the Rev. H. M. Wells, president of the Belleville Presbytery.

The ladies enjoyed the singing of a duet by John and Ed Svoboda of Stirling accompanied by Mrs. H. Hilts. These were two young boys who had been winners at the Stirling music festival. Mrs. Kerr, on behalf of Tabernacle W.A. presented a corsage to Mrs. F. Davidson.

REPORTS

Mrs. Davidson gave a brief report of the work she had done and the meetings she had attended this last year as president of the Presbytery W.A. Mrs. R. H. Smithrim, vice-president, gave an excellent account of the highlights of the Dominion Council previous week which she and Mrs. Davidson had attended as delegates. The reports of the standing committees showed increased interest in the fine work of each department. Mrs. Smithrim, devotional convener, suggested reading the book, "The Art of Building Worship". Several, by Thomas Bruce McCormand, Mrs. T. W. Spear, parsonage convener, commended one group who made additional donations to special parsonage fund so that money is available for purchase of items of greater expense.

Mrs. V. A. McMurray asked all W.A.'s to keep accurate account of visits made during the year.

Mrs. F. Carter, for Christian Citizenship, reported 35 bales had been packed for overseas relief.

At the conclusion of Mrs. Sherry's report on Christian Education, she suggested that the local W.A.'s promote the establishing of a Christian Education committee in the churches where none is yet in existence, in preparation for the new set-up in this work for 1962.

Mrs. A. N. Fyear defined Leadership Education as a training that makes people willing to serve who are able to serve.

Mrs. P. Brownson asked each local to appoint a Christian Stewardship convener so that Stewardship would receive more emphasis in the program.

Mrs. A. Clare asked that leaders for program planning for 1962 be chosen most carefully, as the new programs for the U.C.W. for 1962 are most important.

Mrs. C. W. Sine literature secretary, said that more good books had been purchased this year, and keen librarians had been established. This Presbytery W.A. has become one of the foremost Presbyteries in the use of W. A. literature and program helps. The reports of the fall rallies and the statistical reports were printed and handed out at the registration desk.

AFTERNOON SESSION

Due to bus schedules, Mrs. Halpenny spoke immediately after the luncheon, and then the afternoon devotions followed, Mrs. H. Pierson, Mrs. C. Cleeke and Mrs. H. Nash of Wellington W.A. took part in the worship and took as their theme, "Faith is the substance of things hoped for; the evidence of things not seen". Mrs. R. Coulter of Picton, sang "Jesus Lover of My Soul".

The offering was taken by ladies of St. Ola W.A., and dedicated by Mrs. H. Outhwaite, president of Holloway St. W.A. Belleville.

Mrs. J. E. Marsh brought in the report of the nominating committee and asked Mrs. J. Lott, the first president of Presbytery W.A. to assist in the installation ceremonies. The officers, who will hold office only to Dec. 31st 1961, are the same as last year namely:

The secretary report was given by Mrs. Anderson, president of Bridge St. W.A., Belleville. The meeting was closed with the benediction pronounced by Rev. M. McLeod.

B.C. Girl Wins Brown Belt In Judo Class

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — Sheila Mainland has a brown belt, but it's hardly a fashion accessory.

Sheila, 20, won the prized belt in a city YMCA judo class.

Four years ago Sheila graduated from Lester Pearson High school and was looking for a sport to replace the activities she had enjoyed at school. Deciding judo sounded interesting, Sheila walked into a Y class — and walked out the back door when only one other girl, a friend, turned up.

But she returned and has loved the sport ever since.

"Judo is not rough," said the dark-haired beauty, "and I love the strenuous exercise it brings."

Although most women take up the science in order to learn self-defence, Sheila maintains it is being able to practise the sport to her heart's content without ever getting hurt—only tired—that attracts her.

Miss Mainland hopes to win the black belt, highest on the judo scale of seven, next spring.

Successful Living

Favors Bachelor Days

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—My husband wishes us to take vacations separately. He favors the feeling of bachelor days again, temporarily; then he is glad to come home again.

He likes to have extracurricular girl friends and while he is not at all serious about them (he says I am his wife and that other girls mean nothing), naturally his attitude is destructive toward our marriage.

I am willing to do anything to give him a happy home life, but am very tired of hearing him say how nice life was without home responsibilities.—CLEO.

DEAR CLEO:—So he wants to get his cake and have it too! Familiar, but not practical.

There is nothing wrong with short separate vacations of the fishing-with-the-boys type. Men return to their women-folk from such diversions with a freshness of attitude which can enrich a marriage. We all need ways to retain our individuality. You too.

The other girl friends are just out. Unless he is interested in destroying your marriage. What means nothing now can, if winked at, involve deep feelings later on.

My advice is to encourage some diversions away from you, but when it comes to encouraging a harem, the answer is a resounding "No!"

DEAR DORIS:—I am a widow with just one daughter who is 24. She has fallen deeply in love with a man who has only part of one lung left. He has a long history of being in and out of a sanitorium but has been all right now, apparently, for two years.

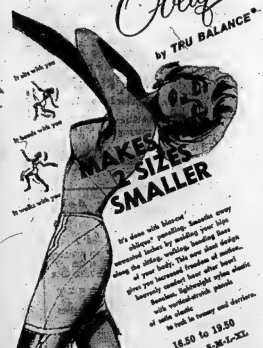
He is just as much in love with her and wants to be married almost at once. I do not question the sincere devotion of either of them but Jean is not rugged and I know what a struggle it is to educate and bring up even one child and be the only wage earner too. His doctor and our own physician feel it is all right.

The chap is 30, has very little insurance but has a good position. He has been completely honest and I respect him thoroughly, but I still feel it is a great risk. Should I give in or not?—WIDOWED-BREADWINNER.

DEAR WIDOWED-BREADWINNER: — Would you have avoided marriage yourself if you had known you would later become a widow with a child to raise? I doubt it.

We can't keep life from happening to us. If this union has the doctor's blessing, it sounds like a good one to me. Give your daughter her chance for a home and family.

* * *



TO MRS. B:—You list too many troubles for any one letter even to begin to solve. The debts, alcoholism and deceit; the possible drunken driving and other threats to secure living almost certainly spell disaster to your marriage unless some outside help is drawn in. I would strongly urge you to make an appointment for an interview at the Children's Aid Society, 93 West Moira St., Belleville. The workers there will advise you as to the best place to obtain professional counselling for your type of situation.

Mothers' Aux. Sponsors G.G. Brownie Party

DESERONTO — The Deseronto Mothers' Auxiliary of the Girl Guides Association sponsored a party for the 1st and 2nd Deseronto Brownie Packs and 1st and 2nd Deseronto Girl Guides Companies on Friday night at the Lions Hall.

Chairman of the evening, Mrs. D.C. McVicker, the District Commissioner, extended a welcome on behalf of the Guides and Brownies to the invited guests and to the special guests of the evening, the girls themselves, also a most hearty welcome on behalf of the Mothers of the Auxiliary and said that the number in attendance assured a success of the evening despite the illness that prevented many from attending.

At this time Mrs. McVicker said she realized she was throwing protocol out of the window but she wanted the girls to know how much she appreciated their help and the Guides help during her first year as District Commissioner. She quoted "One profits by one's mistakes" and she realized how many of these mistakes were overlooked and how nicely they were explained. However due to the knowledge gained she hoped to be of more help durine the coming year.

Mrs. McVicker addressed the Brownies and the more recent Guides advising them that one of the most cherished badges a Guide could receive is the Religion and Life Emblem badge. The badge is available to Second Class Guides only of their own denomination and a Guide must be faithful and a diligent worker to receive the badge.

Canon Coleman who was introduced to the gathering by Mrs. McVicker briefly told how pleased he was to be taking part in the evening. Both he and Mrs. Coleman have been interested in the Guide Association for many years and he thought more adults should display more interest in the group. In his opinion, the Gunde movement helped their character to develop mentally, physically and spiritually. He mentioned that one of the proudest moments of his life was when he was presented with a badge by a Girl Guide organization.

Mrs. McVicker also introduced Father Martin, who briefly told of his pleasure in attending the party and was proud of his association with the movement.

Father Martin and Canon Coleman made the presentation of the Religion and Life emblems to Sharon O'Brien, Carol Marek, Theresa Dowling, Barbara Therrien, Brenda Therrien, Linda Topping, Linda Sherman, Janice Henry, Sharon Kimmett, Wendy Webster and Shirley Joyce.

Miss Wendy Webster was presented with the Girl Guide Cup for 1961. This presentation was made by Mrs. Gerald Lott.

Special guests at the head table included the Rev. J. M. Sloan, Mrs. C. McLeish, Mrs. J. Webster and Mrs. G. Lott.

PLAY WILL CLOSE

NEW YORK (AP)—The hit musical Wildcat is closing for two months while its ailing star, Lucille Ball, takes a rest. The show will go on vacation starting next Monday and will reopen Aug. 7 on Miss Ball's return. Miss Ball's press agent said both physicians have diagnosed her ailment as a serious respiratory infection.

A RUN-DOWN ON WEDDING PREPARATIONS

Having discussed "who pays for what" and the preparations of the invitation list, I think a short review of other wedding preparations is in order. These are details that should be planned as far ahead as possible. Much confusion will be avoided if the mother of the bride makes sure that these important details will run smoothly when the great day comes.

The following suggestions are based on planning for the formal wedding. A few variations may occur for the semi-formal and informal ceremonies.

1. A family council should decide just what the budget will stand.

2. Select the date, the hour and the place where the ceremony is to be held.

3. Contact the religious advisor who will perform the ceremony, to ascertain that the day and time you have chosen will not conflict with other commitments he may have. Don't forget to plan the rehearsal, too, for of course he has to be here.

4. Decide early where the reception is to be held. Whether it be in a hotel or club, the reservation must be made and the caterer contacted. A hotel usually takes over as far as the food to be served is concerned. Some clubs do, but some prefer to have your chosen caterer supply the refreshments.

5. It is wise to get two caterers to give estimates on the cost of the menu you choose. When first talking to them, you can only give them an approximate idea of the number of guests, based on the invitations you are sending out. As the day of the reception draws near, and you have received acknowledgements from those invited, a more definite count can be given.

6. Follow the same procedure with florists. Get an estimate of what it will cost for flowers for the church and the reception, and for the bouquets of the bridal attendants.

7. If you wish a portrait photographer for the bridal pictures, make arrangement with him well ahead of time.

It is important to stress the time element when talking to these people. If you wish things to run smoothly, the church must be ready at a certain time, for both the services and the rehearsal. The same rule follows with regard to the others, from the caterer on down. This may seem like a lot of details, but if you plan them well ahead of time, you won't be sorry.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Irving S. — If she wants to go to work, let her work with me.

Enid S. — I want to go back to my former specialty. He can hire someone.

* * *

Irving S. — Isn't a wife's place at her husband's side, no matter what? With our daughter in high school now, my wife wants to take an outside job. I could use her beautifully in my paint and varnish shop. With her around, I'd be free to look into possibilities for expanding my business.

But she puts her fingers in her ears when I suggest this. She's a trained dietitian and wants to take a job in a hospital or a school. I ask one question: Which is more important — her husband's business or somebody's hot lunch?

Enid S. — Irv knows that I've been waiting patiently, ever since I left my job in a home for the aged, to get back to the work I love and feel at home in. All during the 14 years of our marriage, I helped him in the shop during rush seasons, besides devoting myself to our home and our little girl.

His business is thriving. There's no financial reason for my returning to work. If Irv wants to expand, he has a trusted manager to leave in charge. Besides, the idea of being together for 24 hours a day doing the same work sounds dangerous to me. This way, we're each a big treat to the other at the end of the day.

The Council — We'd ask Irving what could Enid would be around the paint cans, when he hasn't in the rum pots? Oh, she'd go through the motions, but the inner malaise, the champing at the bit, might make the net gain of the arrangement disquieting.

There are three situations where the husband-wife business partnership can be smooth, natural and profitable. One is the Marie and Pierre Curie or Lynn Fontanne and Alfred Lunt type of combo where each member happens to be in the same line. Thus the pianist who marries the tenor can live happily ever after as his accompanist, as well as his missus.

Another easy transition can be made by the "home" gal — the wife who went from Dad's sheltering arms, directly to hubby's with no special preparation for the pursuit of pay cheques. She's malleable enough usually to adapt to whatever niche her husband offers, be it the checkout counter in the butcher shop or the sleek greeter in the tearoom.

Also, of course, there's the "no alternative" emergency, where a wife must punch hit because her husband can't possibly get anyone else. This S.O.S., however, doesn't exist in the case of Enid and Irving. Nor do any of those mentioned conditions apply, either.

So our vote, for the present, goes to Enid who deserves a fair chance to follow her heart's desire in the vocational department, with the full permission and enthusiasm of her heart's desire in the matrimonial wing.

Plowing Match Details Given at Recent W.I. Meeting

A most profitable meeting of Melrose W.I. was held in the Melrose Hall, recently, with many visitors present from branches of Tyendinaga East and Quinte as well as several gentlemen, all of whom were most welcome.

The president, Mrs. K. McMeechan, chaired the meeting and after the usual opening conducted the business session when the secretary treasurer, Mrs. R. McLaren reported a balance of $47 on hand.

It was decided to apply for the short course on "Millinery and a building in July to "Upper Canada Village", near Morrisburg was planned with more details to be announced later.

Short talkings of the district annual were given by those who attended same, the most important of which was that the new "Hand-Book" was completed and copies would soon be sent to all Branches.

TWO GUEST SPEAKERS

At this stage Mrs. L. Graedinger convener of Historical Research took charge and in her brief introductory remarks stated how fortunate the W.I. was to have two guest speakers from Belleville present.

Mrs. R. Badgley briefly introduced Dr. Russell Seath, general chairman of the Plowing Match committee, who is well-versed on this topic. He traced the history of same and revealed how five years ago the County Council had applied to the Plowmen's Association for the mammoth event and in spite of much competition they agreed to hold it in the County of Hastings. There are 15 or more committees at work under various headings and all are enthused with the support they have received from the public and other countless sources.

In a most interesting manner he told of the "match" which requires 500 acres of land, 50 for the "Tented City" and 75 for parking; how the land had to be specially seeded to withstand heavy traffic. Arrangements have been made for school children in the upper grades to attend with no admission fee.

The "County Exhibit" will occupy three tents giving the industrial picture of the county.

Cheese Producers will have a fine display and permission to sell cheese has been granted. Fifty tractors or more and 20 teams of horses will be required and Imperial Oil Co will supply the gas and set up pumps on the grounds. The stabling and feeding of the horses will be in charge of Mr. W. Woods and his committee.

Wagon tours will be conducted around the grounds with the Jr. Farmers in charge. The accommodation and feeding of the vast crowd expected will be a gigantic task but tentative plans are already made to cope with this problem.

Farm demonstrations will be held and these will stimulate more interest in the various projects.

A Home - Improvement contest is being held in connection with this event and over 30 entries have been submitted thus far. He revealed the stupendous arrangements which have been made up to the present time and hoped to make this event the best ever staged.

Mr. Charles Long, Reeve of Tyendinaga, thanked Dr. Seath for taking time out from his busy schedule to present such an interesting address.

Mrs. Graedinger cleverly introduced the first speaker, Mr. T. Wrightmeyer, who is in charge of the Historical Exhibit or Antique Farm display. He has been an Antique dealer for some 30 years and is fully qualified to head this committee. His message was brief and he requested the loan of any article over 100 years old, which would be suitable for this display, especially items used in hundreding days.

Mr. Graedinger thanked the speaker and all joined in a rousing sing-song with Mrs. T. Howard as leader with Mr. Graedinger at the piano.

Lunch was served and a social time followed.

GRAY BEE COURSE

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—A bill requiring Florida high schools to teach a course in "Americanism versus communism" became a law Monday with Governor Farris Bryant's signature. Since 1955 a state department of education has been encouraging high schools to promote the study and evaluation of Communistic ideologies and methods, but it has not been a required course up to now.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

In the last act of King Richard III, Shakespeare causes the King to say, 'A horse! a horse! my kingdom for a horse!' Who has not heard someone in jest declaim these lines with mock heroics. We heard what might have been the answer to the prayer the other day in Trenton, when a young woman turned from the phone and said in tones of awe and thankfulness, "I've got it; in maybe two weeks, I'll have my own horse!"

It was inevitable that someone should say, "Won't that make your room rather crowded?" There was no trouble on that score as she had clients of two beats for the stabling. Her employer had another we blanket to throw by saying, "There go your holidays". But the young lady, still with the bemused smile on her face answered, "This is my holiday, then but in addition, are truly interested in learning how to look after the horses and are actually doing it. One mother said of her thirteen-year-old daughter, "She spends hours riding, and at the stables, and when she comes home she has to go through what amounts to a decontamination routine, shedding clothes, showering and into fresh clothes".

By no stretch of the imagination could this be called "the horsey set" for it is done purely for pleasure and from the love of horses. Most of the followers of harness racing are country people or people originally from the country, who grew up with horses and to whom the country fair with its harness racing was the most looked-forward-to event of the year. We wonder if the modern allurement of bowling and the disappearance of horses from the farms will change this interest.

The majority of people who go to horse shows, (hockey-addicted horses) know very little about horses; some go for betting, but even without that the thrill of a close horse race is contagious. Not many can say as one gentleman did: "I have always known that some horses can run faster than others, but it is matter of complete indifference to me which ones they are".

The horse is a very ancient and beautiful animal. It is thought to have come originally from Asia. There are said to be closer bonds between man and horse than between man and dog, but many will dispute this. Much has been written in fable and story about the horse — there is even a television series now about a talking horse.

OLD SAYINGS

There are sayings of special meaning using the word "horse"! A common one is "Don't look a gift-horse in the mouth", which also appears in Latin, Italian, French, Spanish and Greek. There is the wooden enchanted horse that could be directed by a pet turned by the rider and could fly through the air. In racing again, there is the 'dark horse' a term for a horse of good pretensions, but of which nothing is positively known by the general public. This phrase has now been transferred to the seventh heaven and Black Beauty, the famous mare ridden by the famous Dan Patch ridden by Fox.

Then a few weeks ago in Belleville we saw on back of a milk wagon a sign reading: "Dairying — Student Horse".

Frenchwomen Revive Art Of the Artificial Bouquet

By PEGGY MASSEY

PARIS (Reuters)—The latest fashion in Paris is to "say it with artificial flowers."

Frenchwomen revived the art of the artificial bouquet last winter when fresh blooms were both expensive and scarce. These life-like, artistic flower arrangements need no water and can be used over and over again.

Theatres, haute couture salons and professional decorators long have realized the scope of artificial flowers. But the idea has caught on only recently in private homes.

Such experts as Judith Barbier, who supplies fashion flowers for the haute couture; Dugrenot, the well-known Faubourg St. Honore sculptory; and Trousselier, who creates absolutely lifelike reproductions of every natural bloom, offer beautiful and varied selections of artificial flowers for private clients.

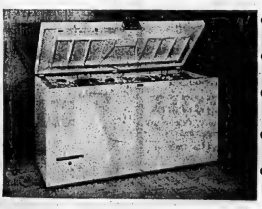
Trousselier is capable of reproducing an exact copy of any known flower. But his selection is usually within the range of fresh flowers sold in the florist shops. His special favorite is the rose.

The finest pure fibre fabrics are used to make the flowers. Silks, velvet, and sheer organdies or voile are the most suitable. Shading, streaks, veins, and etched effects in leaves are hand-painted. Petals are high. buttmany clients "collect" their flowers a few at a time, adding to their bouquets every week with money which they otherwise would spend on fresh flowers.

Wire Preservers

A plastic bag stretched across your hat will give you unexpected drying space for small garments like hosiery or baby clothes.

Monsieur Trousselier's roses cost an average about 15 francs (about $3) each. Single branches of lilac, gladiola or delphinium cost between 20 and 35 francs (about $4 and $5.50). Smaller flowers for doing or side table vases, including sweet peas, nasturtiums, corn flowers, daisies and ivy or leaf sprays, cost from three to six francs (60 cents to $1.20) each.



Madame Jeaine Dugrenot has launched a special line of miniature orchids made of plastic. No one can resist touching the waxy smoothness of their translucent petals to probe the secret of this lifelike media.

Madame Paula Bedeteau, who runs a florist shop, specializes in mixing fresh and artificial flowers in the same bouquet. She believes in taking advantage of the fresh-cut flowers in season, and using two or three artificial varieties to provide a touch of the seasonal.

Closed Meeting of Top Law Enforcement Officers Will Study All Aspects of Crime

TORONTO (CP)—Top law enforcement officers from Canada and the United States meet here today to discuss all aspects of the interflow of crime between Ontario and eastern parts of the U.S.

The closed meetings will cover all phases of the problem and probably will pay special emphasis to an international narcotics smuggling ring, doing business in the multi - million-dollar range, spoil after a recently when a U.S. grand jury returned indictments on four Ontario men. Three of the men have been arrested. An intense search was being made for the other.

Officials of nine law agencies will attend the meeting, arranged by the Metropolitan Toronto Police Force.

C. O. Bick, chairman of the commission, said the conference will cover the extent of organized crime in the U.S. and Canada, weaknesses in law enforcement and means of correcting them and ways of strengthening the hand of the police.

The only open session of the three-day conference will take place behind security-tightened doors of the police commissioner headquarters—will come when Premier Leslie Frost addresses a luncheon here.

Premier Frost, who plans to attend the meetings, said last week he would explain Ontario's position during his luncheon speech. He said he was particularly anxious to learn of any lack of co-operation between Canadian and U.S. agencies.

A recent U.S. crime commission report spoke of definite criminal links between New York state and Ontario, but police chiefs in most of the cities concerned in the report denied any knowledge of organized crime connections.

Two men were arrested following the grand jury indictments, named separately in court Monday. Bail was set at $20,000 each. The men, Alberto Agosto, 34, and Max Edwards, 36, and Rocco Scoppelitti, 32, were remanded to June 7 for an extradition hearing.

The fourth man is John (Peter) Papalia, 32, also known in the underworld as The Executioner. He was arrested earlier in connection with the mid-March beating of Toronto racketeer Max Edwards.

Those invited from the United States to the conference include the U.S. Secret Service, Albert Ward of the Bureau of narcotics, Vincent Charles of the revenue department and John Bugas, vice-president of Ford Motors. Representatives of the immigration department and the RCMP will also be present, as will also expected.

Ontario representatives at the meeting include: Toronto Police Chief James Mackey, Commissioner W. J. Clark and Assistant Commissioners W. B. Common and Harry E. Kelsey. At the Ontario Provincial Police; RCMP Commissioner C. H. Rivett-Carnac; Commissioner K. W. Goldsmith of the RCMP criminal investigation branch.

Strong Royal Commission On Crime Urged by Church

WOODSTOCK (CP) — Immediate appointment by Premier Frost of a strong royal commission on crime was urged Tuesday night by Rev. J. R. Mutchmor, secretary of the board of evangelism and social service of the United Church of Canada.

Dr. Mutchmor said crime in Ontario has become a political football at a time when a royal commission is needed, and called on Mr. Frost to forget the political juggling.

"It is time the lid was taken right off the crime situation in this province," he declared.

"No evil so quickly and thoroughly spawns a police force as gambling," he told the annual meeting of the church's London conference.

Dr. Mutchmor expressed concern at the "amazing volubility of smart and sophisticated Canadians, centred chiefly in Toronto."

CRITICISES WIVES'

Not a few of them, he said, are recent imports. They include civil servants, television and radio commentators, clergymen, professors and "clever housewives with not enough to do at home."

Their target had been Protestantism in general and Sunday observance and religious instruction in public schools in particular.

Dr. Mutchmor deplored inroads into the traditional holiness of Sunday, and urged the contempt be "turned back and turn the attack."

He predicted that Montreal will become the sweepstake centre of North America if the federal government succumbs to pressure.

During discussion on legislation relating to relaxation of Sunday observance laws, Dr. Mutchmor said that the board feels that in this respect the province has delegated its rightful authority to municipalities.

THANKS TO REPORT

Delegates were told by Rev. A. E. Semple, chairman of the committee on evangelism and social service, that the United Front has agreed to a church request to change the wording on ballots for Sunday sports

"Just a Second"

"Why can't you be unhealthy and limp like other husbands?"

City Council Votes Against Giving Contract

HAMILTON (CP) — City council Tuesday night voted 10 to 7 against awarding a contract to Day and Campbell Limited, Toronto, for which Alderman James Campbell is a director and has a half - interest.

During the debate Alderman Campbell left the room before the citizens of Canada and Hamilton meeting. He said it might be possible to evade conflict of interest legality but not ethics.

The company submitted the lowest tender in the city's request call for roadway and sidewalk contracts on Hamilton Mountain. But the bid pointed out Mr. Campbell's interest and the contract was only accepted. The contract if the Ontario Municipal Act was considered flexible enough.

Following the debate, Controller Jack McDonald said as far as he was concerned council had established a policy which "we have to live with from now on."

He suggested council to go on record as being opposed to accepting contract bids from members of council. But he was told out of order and told to give notice of motion.

Ouimet Would Like to See Second Network

OTTAWA (CP) — CBC President J. Alphonse Ouimet said Tuesday that the publicly owned corporation would like to see a second Canadian television network but not at the expense of the CBC's existing national service.

He told the Commons broadcasting committee that if a second network is desirable the CBC's present network of 19 CBC and 46 private stations should be kept intact.

A second network should be built over and above what the CBC already operates.

Mr. Ouimet testified as the committee continued its investigation of the current controversy sparked by the fact that privately owned CFTO-TV Toronto outbid the CBC for the 1961 and 1963 TV rights to Big Four football games. The CBC has a so-called exclusive that its network be split to allow some private television stations to carry Big Four broadcasts.

Mr. Ouimet said splitting the CBC network for football or hockey would destroy the national television service provided by the corporation.

HATE HIS EXAGGERATES

Art Smith (CCF—Calgary South) said Mr. Ouimet "exaggerated the situation."

Mr. Ouimet questioned by Douglas Fisher (CCF—Port Arthur), said he thought the executive branch of the federal government and the Board of Broadcast Governors is the best protector the corporation's parliamentary mandate is to give a broadcast service in the same way as does the CBC.

Mr. Ouimet also said the CBC would not publish its weekly magazine Time Canada at a net cost of $307,150 a year if it did not think the periodical was necessary.

Gordon Chown (PC — Wingham) said he had described the expenditure as "irresponsible."

R. G. Fraser, CBC vice-president in charge of corporate affairs, said the publication was one of the most informative ways of reflecting all the activities of CBC.

Mr. Fraser said it would cost more for the CBC to distribute television in separate cases.

Canadian Navy To Embark on Conversion Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — The Royal Canadian Navy is embarking this year on a multi-million-dollar conversion program to equip its destroyer escorts with improved submarine - detection equipment and helicopter landing platforms.

This program, including purchase of the helicopters, will cost an estimated $57,100,000, of which $7,500,000 is expected to be spent in the current fiscal year which started April 1.

Defence minister Harkness said in a handbook on national defence issued Tuesday in advance of Commons debate that the detailed spending estimates of the defence department.

What little news the handbook contained concerned the navy. There were no policy statements, such as those once published in the now-discontinued white paper on defence, and nothing about a possible new interceptor for the RCAF or construction by Canada of submarines.

Type of Cancer In Women Can Be Cured

WASHINGTON (AP) — Research has shown a certain drug cures a type of cancer which affects women, Dr. Leroy Burney, Surgeon - General Luther Terry said Tuesday night.

Dr. Terry said in an interview that the cancer is a very specific cancer. While there are not a great number of cases, they are the most widely growing cancers that happens to originate in the womb of a pregnant woman.

"In the past when this cancer was detected it was fatal in every instance. We have just passed the stage now where, after treatment by a group of these cases over a long period of time, we feel hopeful, in fact almost confident, that we have gotten actual cures."

Although the surgeon - general did not mention the name of the drug, experiments have been under way for years with a drug which seemed to show the best results with this type of cancer.

Tariff Bill Given Second Reading in Senate Over Strong Protests of Liberals

OTTAWA (CP) — The politicians make way for the businessmen today in Parliament Hill's hottest debate of the year.

The Senate banking and commerce committee was scheduled to hear a score of business leaders on the government's controversial "dollar a head" tariff legislation.

The bill, bitterly opposed by the Liberals in the Commons and Senate, was given second reading in the upper house over their protests Tuesday night.

Chief target of the opposition is a proposal to give revenue Minister Nowlan the final say on such factors as whether or not imported goods are approximately the same "kind and quality" as goods already made in Canada. Imports directly competing with Canadian - made goods generally face a stiffer tax.

Senator W. Ross Macdonald (L — Ontario), Senate opposition leader, said that while he would not bring the majority in the Senate against the bill a second reading stage, he was opposed to the contentious clause. He is to try to have a separate amendment could be worked out on it.

Senator Lionel Choquette (PC — Ontario), sponsor of the measure on behalf of the government, said much of the criticism has been misunderstood.

Senator Fred McGrand (L—New Brunswick) called the bill a prelude to tyranny.

Secondary Canada may have a revenue minister who would say, like a king of France, 'I am the state—the state is me.'"

This, Senator McGrand said, was not far from the position of Senator William R. Brunel (PC — Ontario), deputy government leader, who told the Senate last month the bill had to be considered "as it is" in its final word."

Senator Brunel's remark has been interpreted as meaning the government will call a general election on the tariff than submit to any Senate amendment to the bill.

Senator Choquette said the bill made no sharp change in practice but merely gave legal expression to the courts. The final decision on "like products" is made in very limited fields.

He would decide finally whether imported goods were custom - made or drawn from open stock shelves available to any purchaser, and whether there were facilities in Canada for the production of specialized goods an importer wanted to bring in from abroad.

"The proposed changes do not represent any sharp departure from the present rules of the game," Senator Choquette said. "They are designed by the nature of a modification of those rules based on actual operating experience and designed to make them work better."

Former Eastview Treasurer Charged With $20,000 Theft

EASTVIEW, Ont. (CP)—Spectators jammed the courtroom here Wednesday for the first day opening of the preliminary hearing of Mrs. Adrienne Lacoste, charged with theft, fraud and $20,000 in town funds.

Mrs. Lacoste, grandmotherly is alleged to have taken the money while she was treasurer of the town of Eastview between 1956 and 1960.

She was removed from the office after last summer's provincial auditor's report charged with theft, in a provincial police investigation that followed.

In stating the Crown's case, special prosecutor Percy McHugh of Cornwall said the charges were nine items involved in the charge and that each witness will be called to testify on all times during the trial.

The hearing is supposed to June 6 after three items had been dealt with.

Tuesday's main witness was a chartered accountant called by the OPP to aid in the investigation.

STUDIED CHEQUE DEB

James Cunningham testifying Ottawa said his study of the accounts showed what seemed to be the last cheque issued from other sources to cover parking-meter bank deposits.

He said the cheque was dated December, 1956, in the amount of $906.81, made out to cash. The cheque from Millcraft Limited of Montreal for that exact amount.

The witness said that a second cheque from Millcraft was used in January, 1958, to cover parking revenues.

Mr. Milligan, who was called to testify, said he was in charge of the Crown attorney for Carleton County, Ontario, from 1956 till a few months ago, said another cheque for $1,000, paid by a contractor to Mrs. Lacoste, was to cover a parking revenue bank deposit by Mrs. Lacoste.

Mr. Lewis said he could find no record of the three cheques being endorsed or received by the town.

HADN'T CHECKED

When asked by defence attorney Roydon Hughes whether he had checked the town's cheques before signing them, Mr. Lewis said he hadn't.

Jack Key, an official of Millcraft, Ontario, Limited, said his firm paid the town of Eastview cheques in addition to their public works jobs done for the firm.

In an inaugural address that followed last summer's provincial probe, Mrs. Lacoste said she was not entirely now council sponsored by a group called the Eastview Citizens' Association.

It was at the league's request, she said, she was installed by the Ontario municipal affairs department.

WINS DAMAGES

KINGSTON (CP) — Dora Pepper, 49, of Kingston, was awarded $3,821.22 in damages Tuesday in an action arising out of a traffic accident which caused the death of her father. Her claim was against Morris Galway of Odessa, driver of a truck and J. B. Kane Limited, the firm with which he was employed.

Cobourg Minister Elected Pres. Of Conference

SINGHSON (CP)—Rev. D. M. Smith, Cobourg, Ont., outgoing president of the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church of Canada, recommended Tuesday that a second year of continuous service be carried out by the permanent position as superintendent of the conference. Such duties now are carried out by the conference.

Mr. Smith said such a position is necessary to cope with the growing co - operation between United and Anglican Churches in Canada.

In elections held Tuesday, Rev. Ray Keshen, Oshawa, was elected president. Other officers include:

Rev. K. J. Crawford, Omemee, re-elected secretary, Rev. Glover, Marmora, re-elected treasurer; Rev. J. Newton, Sunderland, statistician; Rev. F. Lane, Oakwood re-elected archivist - historian; Rev. Stanley Hawkins, Trenton; Hope, settlement committee chairman; Rev. M. E. Parsons, Carleton Place, conference press representative.

Fleming Denies Insinuations By Pearson

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming flatly denied Tuesday an insinuation made by Opposition Leader Pearson that E. Brynan of Toronto resigned as a Bank of Canada director for reasons other than his heavy business commitments.

Mr. Fleming told the Commons Mr. Bryden, who resigned from the central bank's board of directors several weeks ago, had asked to resign because of a heavy load of other duties. He was elected president last week of the Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association and is general manager of the North American Life Assurance Company.

"That is the whole reason," Mr. Pearson interjected.

Mr. Fleming angrily replied that Mr. Pearson's statement was untrue.

Already 82 persons testing segregation laws in bus and train terminals have been arrested and convicted on breach of peace charges. Ten have posted appeal bails and paid their $200 fines.

There were new announced plans for more "Freedom Riders."

"They may as well quit," said Police Capt. L. C. Bennett. "They're not scaring us. It's getting to be routine."

Tuesday night more "Freedom Riders" joined earlier groups in testing "Jim Crow" practices. They arrived in small first to come by train — were arrested, convicted, got $200 fines and 60-day suspended sentences. Their trial lasted five minutes.

The 44 earlier "Freedom Riders" filled jailed when they attempted to use white facilities in a cross-country bus terminal.

Thirty-four of the riders, including Tuesday's arrivals, remain in jail. They will appear early work out their fines at the rate of $5 a day.

"We're a long way from being where we can't take care of them," Police Chief Ray Nichols said. "If their idea is to saturate the jails, it will take a lot of people. The county jail here can hold 160 to 170 and the city jail between 140 and 175."

Eight whites are being held in the city jail and 30 Negroes in the county jail. Gilloy said that if necessary a circuit judge can be ordered to issue a permission to send prisoners anywhere in the state.

Census Takers Start Ringing Doorbells Across Canada on Thursday to Get Information

OTTAWA (CP) — Georgie-taking era start ringing doorbells across Canada Thursday in a major national undertaking that will provide a benchmark of the country's progress and an aid to future growth.

Some 27,000 enumerators, travelling by foot and in cars—and by boat and packhorse in some remote areas—will count about 18,200,000 persons.

They'll assemble a good deal of information about the people behind the doors, including age, sex, marital status, birthplace, language, education, jobs and wages.

And in a broad survey of about fifth of the population they'll seek even more information about change of residence in the last five years, place of families and details of income—a question the citizen will answer in private.

Since a count of population at June 1 is the goal, babies born after midnight tonight won't be counted but people who die after then will be.

One of the main purposes of the census, conducted for the first year of each decade, is to provide data for the parliamentary redistribution of Commons constituencies in line with population changes.

It will also give vital information to business and to levels of government, and be used in almost every type of business in deciding on new production, sales outlets and selling campaigns.

HAS BEEN CONTROVERSY

This year's census has been controversial in the field of census controversy, particularly on two counts: the census question on ethnic origin, and the question on political favoritism in hiring enumerators.

French - speaking organizations, anxious to preserve their cultural identity, were afraid that the first draft of the census form showed "Canadian" as a possible answer to a question dealing with ethnic origin.

The form was repeated to ask, more specifically, for the "racial or cultural origin of ancestral ancestors when they first came to North America."

Charges of political patronage stem from the fact that the 1,396 census commissioners in charge of the fact-gathering are appointed by Parliament.

The commissioners, in turn, appoint the census-takers.

Use of census answers such as purposes as taxation, military service and the administration of laws is forbidden by law. No government department except the census division may see the answers, and that includes the national revenue department.

Continue Effort To Link Klan With White Mobs

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—The justice department planned to continue today its efforts to link the Ku Klux Klan to mob violence against "freedom riders" in Anniston, Birmingham and Montgomery, Ala.

This is the third day since the government mint launched a hearing in Montgomery aimed at (1) making permanent an injunction against members of KKK and (2) Obtaining an order requiring Birmingham and Montgomery police to provide protection for future interstate passengers.

During the second day of testimony before U.S. District Judge Frank Johnson, witnesses refused to answer at least seven questions put to them. They pleaded the Fifth Amendment of the Constitution, which says no person might be forced to incriminate them.

One witness was cited for contempt after he refused to tell the judge who advised him to plead the Fifth Amendment. The Upholds Conviction

An appeals court Tuesday, the Alabama Court of Appeals upheld a $1,000 fine and 90 days in gross arrested in a series of lunch-counter sit-ins, ruling that the demonstrations were not concerts be ses fit.

Two Negro students each were fined $100 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in jail under a city ordinance that makes it unlawful to remain on the property of a retail store after being warned to leave.

Two Negro leaders, Rev. F. L. Shuttle sworth and Rev. Charles Billups were convicted of organizing the sit - in demonstrations.

Eight more integrationists arrived at Jackson, Miss., Thursday and followed their predecessors to jail as the "Freedom Rider" movement continued.

OSHAWA (CP) — Mrs. Jennie Wilson celebrates her birthday today, but it will have to be a big cake to hold all 106 candles.

Mrs. Wilson, Oshawa's oldest resident, was born in Marlpore Township, 30 miles north of Oshawa, and came here as a bride 79 years ago. She has outlived two husbands, has 14 grandchildren, 61 great - grandchildren and six great - great-grandchildren.

Her advice for a long life: "Go to bed early to rise early, and plenty of work in between."

Death Penalty To Be Retained For Women

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons voted Tuesday to retain the death penalty for premeditated murders committed by women.

It also decided against a Conservative back - bencher's proposal that capital punishment of the proposed minimum age of 18—should be applied to hanging for the same crime.

The two votes were taken in quick succession after the Commons set as a committee dealing with wholesale revisions of the new government death-penalty bill.

P. Deschatelets (L—Montreal Maisonneuve - Outremont) rose from obscurity to attempt from the death penalty and sentenced to life imprisonment in murder convictions.

Justice Minister Fulton said that the issue had been considered but rejected by the cabinet.

The bill provides for life imprisonment in murders—one who kill is a fit of passion or in other unpremeditated circumstances, or who are under the age of 18.

Mr. Deschatelets proposal was defeated, 53 to 8. Two CCF members and 51 Liberals in the House at the time voted for it.

Maurice Johnson (PC—Chambly-Rouville) moved that the age be 18 be cut to 16.

His motion was defeated 41 to 5.

Fleming Denies Insinuations By Pearson

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming flatly denied Tuesday an insinuation made by Opposition Leader Pearson that E. Brynan of Toronto resigned as a Bank of Canada director for reasons other than his heavy business commitments.

Mr. Fleming told the Commons Mr. Bryden, who resigned from the central bank's board of directors several weeks ago, had asked to resign because of a heavy load of other duties. He was elected president last week of the Canadian Life Insurance Officers Association and is general manager of the North American Life Assurance Company.

"That is the whole reason," Mr. Pearson interjected.

Mr. Fleming angrily replied that Mr. Pearson's statement was untrue.

Kennedy Gains Support for Tractor Trade

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy appears to be gaining ground in his support of the tractors - for - prisoners trade with Cuba's Fidel Castro. The congressional opinion remains predominantly critical.

Kennedy has picked up the backing of an influential Republican. Senator John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky, in a White House-directed campaign stressing that Castro blundered badly in offering to trade lives for machinery.

Cooper told the Senate Monday he agrees with critics who have contended that the Cuban prime minister is trying to "blackmail" the United States. But he said the U.S. has a responsibility for the 1,200 prisoners because of its support of the ill-fated invasion.

"Without our help, I see no opportunity that they will be released," he said.

Aid for disabled or lost motorists is on its way this week as the Carling Courtesy Patrol station wagons begin another season of service. Seven of the vehicles will patrol pre-selected highways in Ontario and Quebec, and three will operate in Manitoba in the Winnipeg area.

In all instances the duty of the drivers is to assist motorists who have lost their way or are in difficulties through accident or minor mechanical breakdown.

When this public service began in Ontario in 1958 there were two cars in operation. Last year there were six in Ontario and two in Manitoba. In all, the vehicles actually assisted 3,500 motorists in the provinces. This does not include the number of stops made where no assistance was required.

In Ontario the cars covered 140,000 miles in the season from June to September — an average of almost 1,400 miles per car per week.

All drivers are medical students, carefully chosen for their courtesy and intelligence. They receive St. John Ambulance and Red Cross training in first aid. In addition they receive safe driving instruction from the appropriate provincial Safety League.

Equipped with two-way radio telephones, the cars also carry first aid supplies, tire jacks, fire extinguishers, flares, blankets, fresh water, oxygen and even a baby bottle warmer.

Attached to the roof of each station wagon is a giant speedometer intended as a friendly reminder to motorists of safe driving speed.

The cars assist in changing flat tires or correcting boiling radiators. In cases of more serious breakdown they summon mechanics and tow trucks from nearby service stations on their patrol routes.

They offer first aid at accident scenes and in the four years of operation have several times been credited with saving the life of an injured motorist by taking prompt action until police, ambulance or medical help arrived at the accident scene.

The cars will operate on main highways in the following areas: Toronto, Hamilton, Ombawa, Huntsville, Orillia, Hull (Quebec), and Winnipeg, Manitoba.

U.S. VISITORS

Highway traffic entering Canada from the U.S. in February, 1961, increased by 28,100 cars over the same month in 1960.

Ready to help stranded or lost motorists on Ontario highways this summer are these three out of seven Carling Courtesy Patrol cars and their drivers. Travelling pre-selected highways, all cars are equipped to handle any road emergency that may confront the Province's motorists.

New Mark Set In Indianapolis "500"

By DALE BURGESS

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Texan A. J. Foyt, who sits mighty tall in a race car seat, won't know until tonight's victory dinner how much he won Tuesday by capturing the golden anniversary 500 - mile race in a record 139.131 miles an hour.

What he does know is that the $100,000 or so almost slipped through his fingers in a ferociously contested race that knocked out 21 of the 33 starting cars before the checked flag fell. And because of a timing breakdown, he didn't learn until Tuesday night that he'd set a record instead an almost.

It was a three-car race in the last stages among Foyt, 26, of Houston, Tex., charging Eddie Sachs, Center Valley, Pa., and 1959 winner Rodger Ward. And it finally was decided in the pits.

Foyt made his third and supposedly last pit stop for tires and fuel, but the connection on the pressure fueling system wouldn't work. His crew hoisted a refueling rig and called Foyt back in for an extra stop.

AWAY GOES A TIRE

Meanwhile, Sachs was flying and looked like a sure winner after failing to finish in four previous starts. Then his right rear tire wore ragged and he had to stop for a new one with only three laps—7½ miles—to go.

Foyt passed Sachs as the Pennsylvanian was gunning his car out of the pits. The handsome Texan beat Eddie to the finish line by 6½ seconds. With four pit stops apiece, Sachs sent 8 2-3/4s seconds longer off the track.

Foyt, drove the Indianapolis Bowes Special. Sachs the Long Beach, Calif., Dean Special.

Ward, having a handling trouble with a new type Watson car, was less than a lap behind in third place.

Jack Brabham of Australia, the world road racing champion, drove a shrewd, smooth race to ninth place but he never was in contention. His little English Cooper simply didn't have enough oomph on the straightaways.

Brabham said afterward he thought more powerful Europ pean cars, such as the new V-8 Ferraris, could win the 500 and probably would next year. But the American Offenhausers still were kings of the speedway for the 15th straight year.

Dawe Drops Two-Hitter To R.C.A.F.

TRENTON (Special) — Cobourg's "Sleeper" Dawe pitched two-hit ball and struck out 18 batters but lost himself a ball game, 4-3 to the RCAF Flyers, in B. and D. softball league action last night. He walked two.

Cobourg had a 1-0 lead until the fourth when Dawe walked Trekz, Alexander reached base after striking out, Hughes also walked and one run scored on a throwing miscue. Mowat's infield hit plated the lead run.

RCAF scored two more in the fifth to make it 4-0. An error at short and two more errors on third strikes plus Alexander's long fly did the damage.

The Marshards initial run came in the first on base hits by Church and Dawe. A walk, the winners' long error and Campbell's two-run pinch-hit single bagged the final pair to make it 4-3 in the eighth.

All in all, of the 18 batters Dawe tapped on strikes, four reached base and the Cobourg catchers were officially charged with six of their club's seven errors.

Lefty Ken Kibblewhite pitched good two-hit ball to pick up the victory in relief. He walked seven and walked three after taking over from Howie Cole with two on and one out in the fifth. Cole had whittled three, walked three and allowed four hits.

RCAF hits were both infield singles, by Howie Cole in the third and by Moe Mowat in the fourth. Don Cole, in left field, pulled off a couple outstanding catches for the winners.

Dawe's two solid singles, Rolly Campbell's timely hit and others by Al Church, Billy Mills and Scotty McGoovern, looked after the losers' safeties.

Blues Call Press Confab

Harvey With Rangers?

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Rangers have called a press conference for this afternoon, presumably to announce that Doug Harvey has agreed to coach the National Hockey League team.

Muzz Patrick, vice-president and general manager of the Rangers, confirmed that Harvey is due in New York today. He refused further comment.

Harvey, Montreal defenceman, has been dickering with the Rangers for the last three weeks.

Harvey, 36, is a 14-year veteran of NHL competition.

Demaret For Palmer In Cup Golf

SAN JUAN (AP) — Jimmy Demaret arrived Tuesday to complete the cast for the Canada Cup International golf matches, with the exception of two teams whose presence for the tee-off Thursday morning was doubtful.

The Korean and Venezuelan teams were reported having visa troubles and International Golf Association officials were attempting to get definite word whether they would get here. If all make it, 67 of the world's best pro golfers will start the 72-hole event.

Demaret was a last - minute substitute for Arnold Palmer, who teamed with Sam Snead to win the two-man Canada Cup team title last year. Palmer and two others—South Africa's Gary Player and Canada's Stan Leonard—had dropped out because of a jurisdictional hassle between the IGA and the Professional Golfers Association.

Flory van Donck of Belgium will defend his invidiual international championship.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

A jade-chopping aristocrat of the wrestling fraternity highlights a hodge-podge of muscle-masters at the arena Friday night.

He is well-known here where he enjoys an outstanding popularity and his return to the mat wars in Belleville will be greeted loud and long.

He is the six-foot-eight Lord Athol Layton, Surrey, Eng., and bloodlined noted for his jude chop, warm personality and fine appearance who is also a wrestling commentator of note.

He comes here as one of the central figures in what seems to be a Change of the Light Brigade ring hassle. It is called "Handicap Wrestling" and pits the Russian combo of Kalmikoffs Three against two of the opposition.

There will be more beards here than at a lumberjack convention. The Whiskered Kalmikoffs do a double take, the trio first taking on Pat Flanagan and Man Mountain Campbell and if they are not rendered hors de combat in this session, will return to take on Lord Layton and Farmer Boy Townsend.

There will be two bouts, each an hour limit, or the best two of three falls. Flanagan and Man Mountain essay the first bout in a softener attempt and Layton and the Farmer will be on hand for the late show.

The way I'm told the convention goes to work is the Kalmikoffs select two of their number to take on the foemen. The other "beard" stands outside the ropes ready to assist the whiskered brotherhood with everything but the box office, the rafters and other loose but illegal accessories.

The referee, identity unknown, will have his troubles. There will be no trouble identifying the standing timber such as Layton, Flanagan, the Mountain and the Farmer but with three sets of whiskers dashed in, out and around, who is going to tell Ivan from Ilenof from Nikiko?

If I were slated to do the Bonny Dunlop job I'd insist on a whisker-view for the Rounsys just to keep the record straight.

Nikiko, the nikki rookie of the trio, would look well in a flaming red shag adornment. Ivan could wear a royal blue spread while Karol would stand out with a neat black and yellow striped effect.

Lord Layton's six-foot eight and 35-inch paunch may prove somewhat of a puzzle to the three little bears. How they'll pin a half-nelson on him without doing a double shoulder stand is more than I can figure out.

Anyway the Davids and Goliaths of the mat should put on a fine show. It's new and different and the "mob" effect should produce some outstanding action.

SOFTBALL

Belleville's first big inter-city softball battle goes to the Jessing park tomorrow night when the league-leading Bobcats clash with Joyce's Real Estate at the Fair Grounds.

The Cats have racked up victories in their first two starts while Joyce's lost a squeaker to Cobourg after blowing a five run lead.

Manager Bill Shaw will likely throw his full potential at the Cats and by the same token Bill Old's crew will be out to maintain the Bengal's unbeaten string.

The club's top fingers, the Joyce's Hull, and Cats' Hunter, will likely get the mound nod. It could be a Hull of a night or the Night of the Hunter.

Gerald Joyce's young team will be going hard after their first victory and the Cats had better be on their best softball behavior. From here it looks like quite a tilt. Game time, 8.15.

Giant-Killer Sweep Pair At Frisco

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

It was a long climb back to the top, but Cincinnati Reds finally made it. They rocketed out of the cellar by winning 20 of their last 26 games for a share of the National League lead in what amounts to a three - way jam with San Francisco and Los Angeles.

The Reds had first place all to themselves back on April 30, then went into an eight - game losing slump that dropped them into eighth place just a month ago. Now they've tied the Giants for first, .000 percentage points ahead of Los Angeles, by sweeping a Memorial Day doubleheader at San Francisco 7-6 and 6-4.

The Dodgers, who have played four more games than the Reds and Giants, defeated St. Louis Cardinals 5-3 in a night game. Defending champ Pittsburgh Pirates stayed in fourth place, 3½ games behind, after dropping a pair to Chicago Cubs 3-2 and 10-0.

Fifth place Milwaukee remained .500, 4½ games behind. The Braves split a doubleheader with Philadelphia, losing the opener 3-1 but losing the nightcap 11-4.

TWO ON UNEARNED RUN

The Reds and Giants slugged seven home runs in the opener but it was an unearned run that handed it to the Reds.

The Giants were finished with four runs in the ninth, three on homers by Charlie Hiller, Hobie Landrith and pinch - hitter Willie Mays, who had been rested by manager Al Dark. Reds' Jim Maloney was the winner.

He hit one of the Reds' three home runs, Sam Jones lost his third in a row as a starter.

The Reds then made it five straight with a sweep of the three - game set by scoring four runs in the third against Juan Marichal in the second game. Marichal, making his first relief appearance of the season, saved it for lefty Jim O'Toole in the ninth. The Giants now have lost three in a row and are straight at home.

Consecutive doubles by Jim Gilliam and Willie Davis and tal ly error by Card catcher Hal Smith brought the Dodgers from behind with two runs in the seventh against loser Bob Gibson. Righthander Stan Williams and reliever Larry Sherry held the Cards to three hits, one a homer by Curt Flood.

The Cards had two on with one out in the ninth when Sherry retired it by striking out Ken Boyer and getting Stan Musial to line out. It was the third straight success for the Dodgers who scored their first run off Card relief ace Lindy McDaniel in 30 innings since 1959 when Gil Hodges homered in the eighth.

LOST FIFTH STRAIGHT

Ron Santo's two - run double wrapped up the opener for the Cubs in the seventh inning, and righthander Don Cardwell then blanked the Pirates on seven hits in the nightcap as the champs lost their fifth in a row.

The Cubs, after losing seven straight, beat southpaw Wilmer Mizell and righthander Bob Friend collecting 25 hits in the two games and hiking two homers in each. Dick Ellsworth was the first game winner.

Mizell had beaten the Cubs 14 times in 15 decisions going back to 1958. Friend now has lost six in a row as a starter, giving up 10 hits and six runs in four innings in this one.

The Braves won the opener on the four-hit pitching of Bob Buhl and a tie - breaking, two - run triple by Hank Aaron in the eighth inning. Lefthander Don Ferrarese was the loser in his first NL start.

The Phils broke loose for six runs against Carl Willey in the third inning of the second game. Tony Gonzalez hit a three-run double and Ken Walters a two-run homer. Art Mahaffey won his fourth in a row with his eighth complete game in nine starts, tops in the majors.

Orioles, Indians Cut Tiger Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Detroit Tigers came off with a 3½-game lead in the American League race Memorial Day, but Baltimore moved into third place, 4½ games behind, with a 6-0 and 2-1 sweep over Chicago White Sox. The Orioles did it as southpaw Steve Barber won his seventh with a three-hit shutout and Skinny Brown and Hoyt Wilhelm combined for a four-hitter.

Second place Cleveland shaved a game off Detroit's pace, 4½ and 5, while the Tigers split with Kansas City, winning 5-3 before the As came back for a 9-3 decision. New York belted seven home runs and beat Boston 12-3, and Washington beat Los Angeles Angels 2-1.

Barber walked six and struck out three while blanking the White Sox on three singles. The Orioles collected 15 hits with Gus Triandos and Jim Gentile, who socked his 11th home run, each driving in two runs. Bob Shaw took the loser.

Brown (5-1) then won his fourth in a row, shutting out the Sox on four singles for eight innings. Wilhelm retired the first two in the ninth, then gave up a homer by Jim Landis. Billy Pierce (1-4) lost it as Dick Williams hit a homer in the fourth inning.

GAME FROM BEHIND

The Tigers came from behind in the opener on a grand-slam homer in the eighth by Norm Cash, the first man faced by lefty Bud Daley, in relief. Bill Fischer (1-1) was the winning relief. Reliever Bill Kunkel, who lost his first in the opener, then saved the second game victory for Jerry Walker (2-2). Norm Siebern belted a pair of 400-foot plus homers and drove in five runs for the As. His first, with two on, beat Paul Foytack (3-3) in a five-run third inning.

Ryne Sandberg by Don Gullard broke a tie and won the first game for the Cubs in the ninth. Camilo Pascual (4-5), Wynn Hawkins and winning reliever Frank Sullivan (4-3) downed Lennie Green's hitting streak at 34 games-longest in the major s in two years. In the nightcap, the Tribe scored in three big innings with four in the third innings, with half of the runs unearned, against Jerry Stephenson (3-5). Mudcat Grant (5-0) won it with three innings of two-hit, shutout relief by Barry Latman after Bob Allison's grand-slam triggered a five-run ninth for the Twins. Minnesota has lost five in a row and 10 of 11.

Mickey Mantle, Roger Maris and Elston Howard each clubbed a pair of homers for the Yankees, tying the major league record for most players hitting two or more in a six-inning game. Relievers Bill Stafford and Jim Coates blanked the Red Sox on three hits over the last six innings, with Stafford (1-2), the winner, retiring all 12 men he faced. Gene Conley (2-4) was the loser, giving up four homers, the 6th to Yogi Berra.

The Scouters reached .500, for the first time since their second game of the season, behind the six-hit pitching of Ed Hobaugh (3-2). Singles by Jim King and Willie Tasby broke a 1-1 tie in the third off loser Ned Garver (0-3) as Washington won.

Jets Whip Vees Twice, Leafs Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Strong pitching seems to have battled, at least momentarily, the Columbus Jets' beckward position in the International Baseball League.

The Jets, who had slipped from first place to three games behind the league - leading Charleston Marlins in the past two weeks, swept a Memorial Day doubleheader from Richmond 3-1 and 3-2.

The double victory moved the Jets back one game closer to the top as Charleston had a seven - game winning streak snapped in the second game of a doubleheader by Jersey City, 3-1 after the Marlins took the opener 5-3. Jersey City is the only club to beat the Marlins—twice now—since their transfer from Puerto Rico.

In other IL action, Syracuse beat Buffalo twice, 6-2 and 10-7 while Toronto beat Rochester 5-1 in the opener of a doubleheader and Rochester took the nightcap 7-0.

STRIKES OUT 10

Sherman (Roadblock) Jones' five-hitter stopped Charleston as he struck out 10 batters. Ulisa Alvarez had five RBI for the Jerseys, two in the nightcap. George Olivares' triple with two on in the eighth inning of the opener gave the 3-2 win for the Marlins' victory.

Syracuse, which lost a free-hitting affair Monday to the Bisons, garnered 27 Tuesday. Dan Gaita and Ted Savage homered in the opener for the Chiefs to pace a 10-hit attack. Two five-run innings sewed up the nightcap.

Steve Demeter's 11th homer, a two-run drive, sparked Toronto's first game victory, aided by winner Big Coleman's solo blast. Rochester hit Bob Smith in the nightcap for six runs in the eighth inning on only three hits. But the Wings also got four walks and a hit batsman from Smith and reliever Raul Sanchez. Herb Moford was the winner.

When This Canary Singing More Than Tune Is Swinging

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Ann-Margaret Olsen is Hollywood's latest Cinderella story.

She is well-assembled singer with a doll's face and dark brown hair that hangs down to about her fifth vertebrae. Unless she sweeps it aside, a large lock of it partly obscures the left eye in a manner that reminds one of Veronica Lake.

Ann-Margaret is better be hall-blinded?

"Never thought of it," she says. Nor has she ever thought of cutting her hair.

Likewise Ann - Margaret has not followed the trend of new pop singers, a mumbling lot.

"People say they can hear the words when I sing," she commented when asked to analyze her singing style. "They also say I move around a lot. I've been called a female Bobby Darin. I can't understand this, because I have never seen Bobby Darin work. I move around because — well, I feel like moving around."

ATTRACTED BURNS

This mobility, her striking appearance and her ability to put a song attracted the eye of George Burns. He put her in his Las Vegas show last Christmas and she was gifted with rave reviews, an appearance on Jack Benny's TV show, a contract with MCA Century-Fox and eight pages in Life.

She was loaned to Frank Capra to play Bette Davis' daughter in Pocketful of Dreams.

Next she returns to Fox for State Fair, in which she'll play the role Jeanne Crain did in the last version.

Ann - Margaret was born in Sweden 20 years ago, went to Chicago at five and has sung since she can remember.

The new Nielsen ratings have three westerns leading the TV herd in popularity with the sudden rise of Gun s of the Trail, Train and Rawhide, in the order listed.

Kefauver Proposes New Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Estes Kefauver (Dem. - Tenn.) says the conviction of Frankie Carbo on extortion charges has given Congress "an unparalleled opportunity to effect a final and conclusive cleanup job in professional boxing."

Carbo, long reputed to be boxing's secret boss, was convicted Tuesday in Los Angeles with four others on charges of trying to muscle in on the earnings of former welterweight champion Don Jordan.

The Senate anti-trust and monopoly subcommittee, headed by Kefauver, starts hearings today on the senator's bill which would set up federal regulation to drive racketeers out of boxing. The bill would create the post of federal boxing commissioner with powers to regulate professional boxing.

Under his proposal, Kefauver said, "Men like Carbo and Palermo couldn't operate."

Frank (Blinky) Palermo, Philadelphia fight manager and allegedly Carbo's front man, was convicted with Carbo.

"Professional boxing is racket-ridden from top to bottom," Kefauver said in a statement prepared for the start of hearings today.

FACES UPHILL FIGHT

The bill, however, faces an uphill fight. Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy has declared that he is in favor of federal regulation but has demanded that the legislation be kept separate from the rigid boxing bill, which he considers unworkable.

Kennedy's point is that the justice department is mainly a law enforcement agency.

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, (Rep.-Ill.) senior Republican member of the subcommittee, has called the bill an invasion of states' authority. So all democrats like the bill, either.

Carbo, Pals Face Long Jail Terms

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Frankie Carbo, long reputed to be boxing's secret boss, was convicted Tuesday with four others of trying to muscle in on champion's earnings.

Astrological Forecast

Thursday, June 1
By CARROLL RIGHTER

General Tendencies: This is the day to really start the month right by taking a good long look at exactly where you are headed, for deciding what your long-range objectives are and how you can best secure them, for consulting with older persons or whomever is very experienced. The use of tact and diplomacy is urged in all relationships.

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — If you concentrate seriously upon how to improve any business, social or civic relationships now, you will soon be making great headway in such directions. Be certain you think things over with authorities, however, as well.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — You can incorporate fine new persons or improved conditions appreciably today, as well as mean excellent; few contacts will open up new vistas of experience for you, so that not a moment should be lost inactively. Be broad-minded for best results.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Begin this month sensibly by establishing better relations with key persons in your life. Later, be very devoted to the most important person in your personal life and realize great ecstasies. Be very good to those loyal to you.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Begin the new month properly by doing your routine work in order and then be sure you socialize with all key people so that you can plan the future more wisely. Evening is then ideal for having lots of fun with good friends.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — While Monday's duties may seem confining, it is imperative you get all monetary matters in best order possible and job on the right method of increasing your income. Take precautions for travel and loss conditions.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Assess your own self more at this time and make better plans for acquiring what you desire. Be certain you have greater leisure and do not have to rush, P.M. Talk over your ideas well to avoid social ties. Be brief, listen.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Put aside any gatherings you may have in mind and pay particular attention to the ways and means by which you can increase efficiency and happiness in the future. Be sure to follow your horoscope daily, too, for best results.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Talk over your current affairs with higher-ups now and get their views as well as their co-operation in the future. Strike out for greater success, P.M. Plan for pending week and having a wonderful time with good pals.

If your child is born today . . . he, or she, will be one of those wonderful people who will study a project through to its minutest detail and then when fully satisfied, will carry through in an unwavering fashion. However, be certain to give very tending in spiritual and ethical matters, or your progeny may turn into a human machine without warmth or love in the making. First chief for the great virtues, adaptation, tolerance, etc.
